SHE DARED AND WON — Now 23, Anne Tyler of Montreal was 22 when she won critical praise for her novel, If Morning Ever Comes, about a man who returns home to North Carolina. It was written from a man's point of view . . . something a college professor had told her no woman writer should attempt. Miss Tyler (married name Modarressi) is seen at home in Montreal, where her Iranian husband is in residency in psychiatry at McGill University. They will move to Iran in two years. (AP Photo)

QUEEN VICTORIA SCHOOL

The February meeting of the Queen Victoria Home and School Association concluded a five-part series with a study of the "Community Influences."

"Outside Influences on Our Children" were discussed. These involved television, movies, newspapers, welfare agencies, as well as the standard attitudes and prejudices of communities, nation and world at large.

The acceptance or rejection of a child by his community greatly affects him.

Parental and community attitudes towards occupations, religions, race, police and so on are also reflected in a child.

PANEL DISCUSSION

Those participating included Mrs. Sexsmith, Thorne, Mr. Sprackett, Mrs. Doornbos and Mrs. Bell. Mr. Rupnow was moderator.

Community organizations combine to develop broader interests, co-ordination, team spirit, physical and mental growth, but to be effective must have capable leaders.

GROUP DISCUSSION

Group discussions over coffee considered the following questions:

"How far should a parent go in allowing a child to be community active?"; "Are the "Golden Books" good material for the children to read?"; Is the playground an important part of a child's life or is it a babysitting station to accommodate parents."; Do group activities tend to stifle a child's ability for imaginative play?"; Do you feel the YMCA gives value for the all inclusive outlay?"; Are the complications that arise in organized sports balanced by the achievements?"

Two Nurses Adopt 13 Little Indians

By DAN COGGIN

NEW DELHI (AP)—It's a rollicking home, with 13 children, two mothers and no father.

The mothers are U.S. nurses Gene Long and Jackie Liechty. Both single, one a blonde the other a brunette. By their own they have become foster mothers to 13 abandoned Indian children and agreed to remain in India until the youngest reaches 18. That will be in 1981.

"Starting complete nervous breakdown, we'll be here," Miss Long says with a smile.

Miss Long, 36, and Miss Liechty, 32, came to India in 1958 in an exchange program, but with a children's home in mind.

Cutting through mountainous government red tape and overmounting dozens of obstacles, they became foster mothers Dec. 29, 1960, when all authorities turned over to them an abandoned eight-day-old boy.

They named him Anand, a Hindi word meaning joy.

Over the next four years, Anand was joined by 12 brothers and sisters.

INDIANS CAN'T LOSE

They now speak both English and Hindi, devour curry and rice or hot dogs and mustard with equal gusto, and are apt to switch suddenly from traditional Indian games to cowboys and Indians—American, that is—complete with war whoops.

Every couple of weeks the brood is taken into a restaurant for dimer or ice cream—quite a chore since Gene and Jackie, known in the family as Mama Gene and Mama Jackie, have no car.

Ten of the 13 children attend a neighborhood school. When they come home in the afternoon the place quickly becomes a headquarters for most kids in the area, Indian, American and European.

"Of course the children have no father and that's not normal," Jackie said, "but some of the fathers in the neighborhood come over occasionally and play with them. The children just love it, and they need the male influence."

Three Indian nursemaids, called "aunties" by the children, help out at Signal Home, keeping teeth brushed, hair combed and glasses filled with the 18 quarts of milk the kids consume daily. A cook and a cleaning woman complete the staff.

In this land where waifs often fall into the hands of professional beggars and are deliberately maimed to evoke sympathy, the good fortune of these 13 children is a rare phenomenon.

STUDIED NURSING

The story goes back to 1950 at Johns Hopkins School of Nursing in Baltimore where an alphabetical seating system brought Miss Long and Miss Liechty together as student nurses.

It also involves in a big way the financial and moral support of their parents: Dr. and Mrs. H. D. Long of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Rev. and Mrs. H. M. Liechty of Los Angeles.

In 1956, the future foster mothers were together again at Columbia Bible College in Columbia, S.C. It was there they decided they wanted to bring up homeless children.

They wrote dozens of letters to government officials and welfare authorities in India and Pakistan, countries chosen because of their poverty and because English is spoken. They got a few half-hearted replies but no encouragement.

Deciding they could be more persuasive in person, they went back to work at different children's hospitals to save enough for ship passage and making a start in India.

Under an exchange program of the International Council of Nurses, the girls debarked in Bombay in 1958 and came to New Delhi to work in a hospital ward while pushing their plan for a children's home.

RAISED FUNDS

Meanwhile, Gene's father, a retired pediatrician and gentleman farmer, and his two Hereford cattle farms on Signal Mountain near Chattanooga and used the $100,000 proceeds to set up the Signal Farms Foundation. The fund foots most of the bills for Signal Home.

They had Signal Home built at a cost of $20,000, which took a big chunk of the $100,000 Mama set up by Dr. Long. Living expenses have reduced it to about $35,000.

The family's cost of living in New Delhi, one of the world's most expensive capitals, amounts to $350 a month. Contributions sent to Dr. Long by friends and interested parties average about $200 a month.

If dentistry continues at the current rate, Gene and Jackie estimate the funds in Dr. Long's Signal Farms Foundation will last eight to nine more years. After that the two nurses expect to have to work in local hospitals, but it would be hard to make ends meet since they would be paid on low Indian salary scales.

But that's a long way off, and one thing the girls don't lack—determination.

EASTER'S COMING

Dear Susanna: Easter Lily bulbs should have been planted several weeks ago but if you hurry you may be able to bring yours along in time. They are so beautiful and I would enjoy giving your readers a few hints about growing them. If you think they would be interested.

The soil used for planting should be slightly acid and contain some peat or fibre — your local flower store will probably be glad to help you here.

Using a six-inch pot, place the bulb loosely on about two inches of soil. Add more until the bulb is just covered. Water. When the sprout is about six inches high, fill the pot right up with soil mixture — just leaving enough room at the top for watering.

Plenty of moisture, light and a temperature of about 60 to 70 degrees F. will help your lilly along to lovely full bloom. High temperatures and dry atmosphere should be avoided — the addition of a complete soluble fertilizer every two or three weeks will benefit your plant greatly.

As an old time gardener I've enjoyed passing this information to you and hope it will be of some benefit. — G. S. Maybe

Thank you Maybe for giving us the benefit of your garden variety experience. — SUSANNA RUBDOWN

Tumultuous Applause Greets National Ballet Performance

By EUGENE LANG

As in past years the Collegiate auditorium was filled to capacity by ballet philes who turned out in full force to witness the annual presentation here of the National Ballet in Canada. At the rate that adherents to the ballet are increasing in Belleville and district it will be late before buyers of the medium of "Sold Out" notices.

The performance given on Saturday evening was one to please the most discerning tastes and one that merited the complete approval of all as verified by the tumultuous applause at the conclusion of each number.

Mozart's delightful Clarinet Concerto in A Major provided a background of instrumental charm to the fusion of motion and music in the three part "Triptych" set to formal patterns, with a creative theme in the middle section. James Morton came through very well in the demanding solo part on the clarinet. We found this different but very enjoyable.

Tschaikowsky's "Swan Lake" in excerpt only was the scene prominent for Angela Wong and Jeremy Blanton in their "Pas de Deux" which was portrayed in carefully wrought detail by both. An unblemished canvas was the sensitive stylings of Jacqueline Irving and Alastair Munro in "Clair de Lune" with music from the pen of Debussy. Lois Smith and Lawrence Adams combined their individual talents in complete rapport in the orchestra by their conception of the "Pas de Deux" set against a portion of "The Seasons" by Glazounov. To conclude part two of the program Marianne van Manen and Earl Kraal exemplified remarkable poise and polish in their performance of their "Pas de Deux" based upon Drigo's "Le Corsair."

BRILLIANT COSTUMING

Following the second intermission the last part of the program was taken up with Act Two of Tschaikowsky's popular "The Nutcracker." Brilliant costuming, here were heightened by the appeal of the familiar tunes and the spirited (yet humorous at times) action of the performers. Although hampered by the confining dimensions of the stage the troupe nevertheless managed a realistic effect. This was meticulous in manoeuvring yet suave in projection. The orchestra under Conductor George Crum provided fine interpretations to the dancers. What few small errors in the effects of the performance could be put down to either the lack of space on stage or the effects of the long drive from Quebec City to Belleville in crowded busses. Otherwise an evening that was fine in all respects.

A note to the ushers: If people persist in coming late (and the performance did not start till 8.10 p.m.) then don't seat them until after the first number. Make them stand up at the back instead of holding up the show by their inconsiderate regards of all others.

Ann Answers Questions For 'A Baby Forever'

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — How old does a girl have to be before she can
(a) Go out on a date
(b) Shave her legs
(c) Wear heels and nylons
(d) Make her own decisions.
Thank you. — A BABY FOREVER.

* * *

DEAR BABY —
(a) Limited dating should be permitted after a girl reaches high school — and this means the 9th grade.
(b) It depends on what's there.
(c) See answer to (a).
(d) What decisions?
You're welcome. — ANN LANDERS.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Jason and I have been married 10 years. We have always wanted a family but for some reason I couldn't get pregnant.

After going to a fertility clinic for two years I finally got the good news. Our baby is due next month.

Everything was grand until last week. Jason told me when my time comes to go to the hospital I should call a taxi and leave the house quietly. He said, "I don't want to know a thing."

At first I thought he was kidding but now I believe he is serious. Last night he said again, "Don't call me until you can say whether it's a boy or a girl."

Frankly I am hurt. It seems to me a husband should want to be with his wife at such a time. Is something wrong with him? Should I insist he come with me or should I go alone? — MRS. COUNT DOWN.

* * *

DEAR MRS. — Of course there's something wrong with him. He's scared. Unless you can get your doctor to put him at ease and have he accompanies you willingly, let him stay home. Panicky husbands hint and get in the way and are more trouble than they are worth.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The other evening my girl friend and I attended a party given for a young woman who also works for this company.

On the way home, she told me that one of the young executives had paid me a lovely compliment. I was thrilled because I always have had a terrific crush on this young man.

Well, Ann, the next day I went to the young man's office and repeated what my friend had said. I told him how pleased I was. He looked at me like I was crazy and finally blurted out, "I didn't say it."

Now I don't know if the fellow denied that warm compliment because he doesn't want me to know he likes me, or if my friend made up the whole thing to perk up my spirits. I'm not very pretty and am dateless most of the time. What do you think? — CONFUSED.

* * *

DEAR CONFUSED — I think the next time you get a compliment (even second-hand) you should just leave it alone.

It could be that the young man made a nice remark about you and your friend embellished it (as people sometimes do) in the retelling. Perhaps her reported version was a more glowing testimonial than he wished to undertwrite. From now on, Honey-Bun, remember that a compliment is best treated like perfume. You're supposed to take a whiff — not swallow it.

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Smoking," enclosing with your request 15c in coin and a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Michael J. Rodden of Kingston, east of here, one of the deans of Canadian sportswriters, ditto at all-time NHL references, once said me "there are thousands of people in the rink and the ONLY sane one in the whole building is the referee."

That was before league officialdom allegedly began to interfere with its top arbiters. You figure it out. Red Storey and Eddie Powers quit, George Hayes was fired and now the referee-in-chief Carl Voss will toss it on the official sponge come season end.

"We never had any interference in the old days," said Ki Miguel, "we ran the show pretty well ourselves and the most of the time we had to protect ourselves."

"Red" Storey, the big likeable scrapper, who loves people—and to be with them—found the job too lonely at times. He couldn't stay at the same hotel as teams—he couldn't fraternize with players.

"How could you have a guy respect you as a referee, for instance, if you were his partner at bridge that afternoon, and he knew you were a lousy bridge player?" he told me once.

As his taxi turned a corner the street suddenly became alive with gunfire as rival gangs shot it out. Getting out from under the cab later, Cleghorn remarked, "I'm convinced—but they didn't have to put on such a big show."

Bobby Hewitson, the smallest referee in NHL history, never needed trouble. Detroit policemen as an escort out of the rink. He carried his skates in his hands for protection. The cops kept him out of reach of the crowd who merely wanted one of his ears for their autograph books.

The late Fred Waghorne Sr. who refereed Ontario Hockey Association games for years was deadly in his judgment. He established what is believed to be a hockey "first."

And it happened right here in Belleville several years ago.

Fred was refereeing a game in the old arena here when a blazing shot catapulted toward the goal. The puck hit the post—and split in two. Waghorne saw one piece zip off to a corner of the ice surface.

The other half nestled inside the net. Waghorne recalled the rule that the largest part of the puck must be across the goal-line to rule a score. He measured the pieces; found the larger was in the net and awarded the goal. The OHA upheld his decision.

Waghorne did not lack for courage. Before a playoff game at Peterborough, one of the local players had been suspended. Unknown to Waghorne the player had been reinstated for the game, but the official refused to allow him on the ice.

The Petes' management produced a telegram from the OHA secretary, W. A. Hewitt, to prove their point. "Look at this," they pleaded, "Hewitt says he is OK to play."

Waghorne read the telegram. He handed it back and said with fire in his eye. "He still doesn't play. You fellows can't fool me. I KNOW Hewitt's HAND-WRITING."

Mike Rodden, whose hair turned to silver at an early age, often walked off the ice after a game his thatch looking like a plaid wig. This proved the deadly accuracy of the tobacco-chewing hockey mentors who showed their disapproval by trying to use Mike's negatin as a cuspidor.

When King Clancy was an NHL arbiter he had one particular fan enemy at Boston who plagued him with heckling-tinged epithets if he called a decision against the Bruins.

Blacks Out Of Contention

Hornets Back on Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Welland Blacks dropped out of contention for the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior playoffs with a thud during the weekend, and the jockeying for first place between Guelph and Galt continued.

Oakville Oaks thumped the Blacks 11-4 Sunday to take a 17-point lead over Welland, with only seven games left for the Blacks to play. Galt Hornets captured first place — again — by defeating Woodstock athletics 5-5 Saturday and taking a one - point edge over Guelph Regals, who were idle all weekend.

At Oakville, Moe Geland and Doug Millman each scored three times to lead the Oaks attack. Bill Ford, Gus Mortson, Carl Hymers, Wayne Mayhew and Jack Price also counted with Norm Sibbick getting four assists.

Injured Hull Will Be Out For Week

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The odds are beginning to stack up against Bobby Hull as he challenges the 50-goal season.

Once considered a cinch to eclipse the National Hockey League's most formidable record, Hull now stands 13 goals away from the milestone with 30 games remaining in the schedule. And he'll miss at least two of those games.

Hull, who has scored 38 goals for Chicago Black Hawks in 50 games, was sidelined for Sunday night's game against Toronto Maple Leafs. It was only the ninth game he's missed in nine seasons.

He has twisted ligaments in his right knee, now in a half-cast and ruling him out of games against Detroit Red Wings on Wednesday and Thursday. He may return to action next weekend.

The injury, blamed on a check by Toronto defenceman Tim Horton, came just as Hull had snapped out of a six-game scoring famine and connected for No. 38 in Chicago's 6-3 victory at Toronto Saturday night. Without him, the Hawks go to Toronto Sunday night in Chicago.

In other games, Detroit trounced Montreal Canadiens 6-0 Sunday night after defeating the skidding Habs 3-1 in Montreal Saturday night. Boston Bruins won 3-2 at home Saturday night against New York Rangers but bowed 6-3 at New York the following evening.

HAWKS KEEP LEAD

Chicago kept the league lead with 59 points, two more than Montreal. Two points behind are the Leafs, clinging to a one-point lead over Detroit.

Frank Mahovlich set up Dave Keon's game-winner in the first period and then pushed the Leafs 2-0 early in the second. Stan Mikita's 19th brought the Hawks within range three minutes later, but Mahovlich's goal stood up.

PHIL ESPOSITO

BOBBY HULL

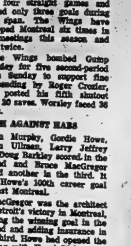
Johnny Bower kicked out 21 shots for Leafs while Denis Dejordy handled 38.

Bower got the call after Terry Sawchuk's shaky performance Saturday night. Three times the Leafs fought back to tie, but Sawchuk gave up too many.

Phil Esposito scored twice for the Hawks and singles were contributed by Hull, Mikita, Doug Mohns and Camille Henry, playing his first game for Chicago after the Rangers traded him. Toronto scorers were Keon, Mahovlich and Tim Horton.

Detroit continued its mastery over the Canadiens, who have lost four straight games and scored only three goals during the span. The Wings have whipped Montreal six times in 10 meetings this season and tied twice.

The Wings bombed Gump Worsley for five second-period goals Sunday to support fine goaltending by Roger Crozier, who posted his fifth shutout with 30 saves. Worsley faced 36 shots.



100TH AGAINST HABS

Ron Murphy, Gordie Howe, Norm Ullman, Larry Jeffrey and Doug Barkley scored in the second and Bruce MacGregor added another in the third. It was Howe's 100th career goal against Montreal.

MacGregor was the architect of Detroit's victory in Montreal, scoring the winning goal in the second and adding insurance in the third. Howe had opened the scoring with Henri Richard trying it in the second.

Although Henry was the leading New York scorer until his trade, the Rangers didn't seem to miss him. The Bluesiders power play got two goals in a losing cause Saturday night and Ranger shooters connected eight times Sunday night.

Rod Gilbert and Doug Robinson, one of the figures in the trade, each scored two goals and Bob Nevin, Harry Howell, Don Marshall and Arnie Brown added singles. It was the first had night for Boston's rookie goalie Jack Norris, who made 38 saves.

Bill Kaibbs scored twice for the Bruins and Murray Oliver got the other.

Two goals by Reggie Fleming led Boston to victory the previous night. His second goal, a deflection of Bob Woytowich's blueline drive, broke a 3-3 tie at 18:32 of the final period.

Phil Goyette scored both goals for New York, kicking off a five - point weekend that launched him into fourth place in the scoring race. Ed Westfall scored the Bruins' other goal.

Won't Compete With Others

New Pro Football League Formed

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Professional football's newest league christened itself the American League Sunday because "we're the third league."

The third league was established a 14-game schedule that will begin in mid-summer and instituted the sudden-death rule for all tie games.

"Our level is the third league," said Bob Rosen, a member-of the executive board and general manager of the Newark franchise.

Rosen also said the new league will "obtain the best ball players available, but won't compete with the established National and American Football Leagues."

The new league will consist of Philadelphia, taking over the Canton franchise; Toronto, replacing Montreal; Charleston, Wheeling and Fort Wayne (formerly Indianapolis), all of the UFL, and Newark, Richmond, Springfield and Hartford of the AFCA.

The 10th team in the new league will be in Providence. The ACFL itself also plans to keep a team in the city.

There also are possibilities of further moves in the new league, with Miami and New Orleans considered. Those two cities, however, have been approached, Schoenbaum said.

WILL HOLD FRANCHISE

Schoenbaum said a Toronto group is ready to take over the Montreal franchise of the United League, but Truman Katz, president of the Montreal team, called Quebec Rifles, said he planned to hang on to the franchise and shift it to Toronto. He said he might take in the interested Toronto group as partners.

Directors of the Atlantic Coast League, a 14-team circuit last fall, also meeting in New Orleans, announced the circuit would continue with at least eight teams.

Richmond, Newark, Hartford and Springfield have jumped to the new league.

But the ACFL plans to continue, publicist Murray Goodman said, with these teams: Miami, replacing New Bedford; Providence, Jersey City, Harrisburg, Scranton, Mohawk Valley, Pittsburgh and Fort-land, Me. Atlanta and Westchester were dropped for failing to meet obligations.

"This will not be a minor league, said Schoenbaum, describing the new circuit.

"We are throwing away salary restrictions and plan to go big-time all the way."

JAMAICA BEATEN

HAVANA (Reuters) — Jamaica, already qualified for the finals of the World Soccer Cup, was beaten 5-0 by Cuba Sunday in the final match of Group 1 of the North and Central American zone preliminary competition. All three goals were scored in the first half.

Fleming, Gadsby Fined $200

MONTREAL (CP) — Additional fines have been levied on Bill Gadsby and Reg Fleming for a stick - swinging altercation they had in a National Hockey League game Thursday night, NHL President Clarence Campbell has announced.

Fleming, a Boston Bruins winger, and Gadsby, a Detroit Red Wings defenceman, each have to pay $200 each instead of the automatic $100 in fines they incurred for clopping at each other with their sticks in a game won 5-1 by last - place Boston.

Each received misconduct and game misconduct penalties for exchanging what Campbell called in a statement "several vicious two - handed swings at each other with their sticks." None of the intended blows landed.

Quebec Bonspiel

Oshawa Rink Finishes Tops

By EDDY COLLISTER

QUEBEC (CP) — The last rock was delivered, the ski shouts to the crowds echoed through the rink and the 52nd annual Quebec International Bonspiel was a thing of the past.

Bert White of the Oshawa Curling Club came close to making a clean sweep of the spiel, losing prizes in the weekly events.

The Oshawa rink won the Challenge Trophy Saturday Friday night, the grand aggregate awarded the rink with the best playing record, but was defeated 10-8 by Jacques Girard of the Quebec Jacques-Cartier Curling Club in the final game for the Lieutenant - Governor's Trophy.

The defeat by the Oshawa rink was fla first in the 11 draws since last Monday's start. Girard's rink defeated Michel Boivin, second Lionel Lehaye and lead Yves Cote after leading 4-2 after six ends but the Oshawa rink bounced back to tie it up at 6-6 going into the ninth.

The Quebec rink scored a three - pointer in the ninth and led from then on to take the trophy, top prize in the bonspiel.

BEAT BURLINGTON RINK

Girard's rink beat another rink from the same club skipped by Charlie Emond, 10-8 in one of the semi-final games for the Lieutenant - Governor's Trophy while White handed a rink from Burlington, Ont., piloted by Ernie Dennison, a 7-4 defeat in the other game.

Dennison emerged as the only threat to White. The Burlington rink had also had a chance to clean up. If Dennison had beaten White and then won the finals he would have had a record of 10 wins and one loss while White would have been automatically eliminated with a 9-1 record.

The Burlington rink won the trophy for the third division while John Kilburn of Fredericton won the Francois Jobin Gold Cup, symbolic of the second division championship.

There were 128 rinks on the ice for the start. Ontario had 45 rinks entered, Quebec 57, New Brunswick nine, the United States eight, Nova Scotia seven and Prince Edward Island and Manitoba one each.

Apple Kings Bow 3-1 To Juveniles

Rough and rugged action featured both games and the Apple King-Legion battle was perhaps the most crowd-pleasing game of the hockey season here.

It was a scoreless tie after one period and the Apple Kings led 1-0 after two hosts. The Legion Juveniles pumped home their win with a reply in the third to snatch the decision.

Rick Munro and John McDonald were the Trenton goal-getters.

Play was very rough in the final period and among the penalties assessed was a misconduct to Scarboro's Larry Herrington and a misconduct to teamate Lorne Johnson.

You and the Solunar Periods

With a farmer whose business it was to fatten beef cattle for market, I asked him how he went about it. Twenty minutes later, I knew just about all there was to know about fattening beef cattle with one exception—when were they fed? So I asked, "All day long and most of the night," was the answer.

Two hours later, I left him, a startled and confused man. I had shown him that the one thing that had been draining his pocket for years, waste, was not only unnecessary, but could be avoided with no extra effort on his part. Through the simple expediency of feeding during a solunar period and not feeding in between, he cut down his overhead, put more weight on his beef in less time and made more money.

The business of using the solunar tables in selling is not an original idea with us. For years, in fact for the 31 years we have been in business, we have been told by smart, alert salesmen that they plan their entire approach to making the big sale around the solunar period which that day has to offer. I have checked this myself, in the toughest marketplace in the world, that of door-to-door selling, and found that it was not only true, but astoundingly so.

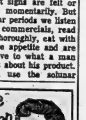
ALERT AUDIENCE

Want to breed a litter of puppies, a racehorse, bigger rabbits, better mink . . . mate during a solunar period. Want to give a successful speech, put on really great floorshow? Try doing this during a major period and see the difference. The audience is alert, interested and laughs readily. Like to give the greatest cocktail party you ever gave in your life? Pick a day when the major period falls during the cocktail hour and stand back for success.

I have a friend who feeds birds all winter long. He would no more refill his bird feeder except during that critical 15 minutes before a solunar period occurs than he would put catsup on ice cream. Another bird lover plans his walks or hikes around the solunar tables when he goes "birding." Each time he writes me, he glows about adding to his life list during a solunar period. Dr. Leon Kelso, perhaps one of the greatest ornithologists this country has ever seen, used the solunar tables exclusively in his habitat and nesting studies of various species. He found that he spent less time accomplishing more . . . that, my friend, is natural automation if you ever saw it.

For years, we have talked about what the solunar tables can do for you in the allied sports of fishing and hunting. We have told you that you will be able to tell, a full year in advance, when to expect the best that each particular day has to offer. Thirty-one years and acceptance of the solunar tables in 11 foreign editions as well as the United States and Canada has proved our contention to be correct. You can tell; they do work.

This past year, I wrote a book entitled the Boy's Book of Gun Handling (G.P. Putnam's $3.50) In this instruction course on the handling of all small arms, I used two 16-year-old boys. As they posed as models for the illustrations, they also learned to shoot . . . rather well at that. But what they did not know was that the odd-hour teaching times as opposed to course-study times had been planned directly around the occurrence of solunar periods during those particular days. I found they reacted better, assimilated faster, and understood more if I taught them gun handling only during the times of solunar periods.



NATURE COMES ALIVE

All of us have pets of some kind or another. Whether it be a cat, dog, or a bowl of goldfish, they all respond in the same degree of intensity to the effects of a solunar period. You can check them yourself any day. The cat will be up playing or wanting to go outside. The dog will awaken and be looking for food or attention. The goldfish will be up to the top of the bowl, blowing bubbles on the surface. Your bird will sing or be active in its cage . . . your guinea pig will uncover and scurry about. In short, all nature comes alive.

As people, we are animals . . . the most highly developed of all. We all respond to the same stimuli as animals, doing it each day whether we realize it or not. What we have subjugated by habit still exists. Why would you feel exceedingly hungry at three in the afternoon when you (and your stomach) know perfectly well you never eat dinner before six? Why do you have cold nights when not even the dullest book in the library will not put you to sleep long after you should have been in dreamland? You are nothing more than a complex animal responding to solunar influences, believe it or not.

We, as people, do not respond as quickly as the lower orders of development do to solunar influence. Rather, there is a time lag of as much as an hour before the first signs are felt or even noticed momentarily. But during solunar periods we listen to television commercials, read a bit more thoroughly, eat with a shade more appetite and are more receptive to what a man has to tell us about his product.

This year, use the solunar tables on something else, just by way of a check on yourself. Try them on something besides hunting and fishing and I'll guarantee you that you are in for a big surprise. You'll think you just invented the wheel!

Terrell, Machen Matched

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — Cassius Clay still is proclaiming himself the greatest. Sonny Liston is persona non grata in some boxing circles but still the logical contender for Clay's crown. And two-time champion Floyd Patterson has emerged again as one of the sport's brightest stars after taking a 12-round decision from George Chuvalo of Toronto.

But two of the lesser lights in the heavyweight realm are preparing to meet here for a share of the world title.

Terrell, a guitar - strumming 205 - pound Chicagoan, opened training Monday at a south side gym. Machen, a well-traveled journeyman out of Portland, Ore., is to start shaping up today at a motel.

"I thought I could have taken both of them. Neither fighter was very smart. They were unscientific moves. They were just banging away at each other. Patterson just happened to get in more bangs."

In the ring, Terrell has kept only once — stopped in seven rounds by Cleveland Williams.

Since then, he has won 12 in a row, including a decision over Williams, and has a record of 36 victories in 40 fights.

The Flyers won the game, 5-3. O'Shea has already missed the Generals' last three games and will remain inactive for his team's next eight games.

So he reflected today after his tension-filled victory Sunday in the $100,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic. Twice before, Casper led the way going into the final round of the 90-hole event, only to falter. In 1961 he fell back to fourth and last year he tied for seventh.

"I guess the third time was the charm," said the one - time round man of golf, now a trimmer 165 pounds.

Casper admittedly played better in the tournament's early rounds, but his par-72 at the Bermuda Dunes Country Club Sunday was good enough to beat off one of Arnold Palmer's famed rallies and the equal challenge of young Tommy Aaron.

The winning score was 342, a stroke ahead of Palmer and Aaron, who had last-round 70s.

The finish, enacted before some 8,000 spectators packed around the 18th green, was perhaps best described by one disgruntled onlooker.

"That putt you knocked in was a regular knee-knocker," said former president Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The general referred to a three-foot putt for a birdie that Casper had to make and avoid a sudden-death playoff with Palmer and Aaron.

PALMER WAS AHEAD

Palmer had finished just ahead of the Casper - Aaron-Dave Marr threesome. His approach went into the crowd, but he got down for a birdie 4.

Casper's second shot reached the green, 45 feet above the pin. He putted back and left himself the three-footer. It was Aaron's turn to putt, and he sank a birdie 10-footer.

Casper won $15,000 and a new $6,000 automobile, although it developed that he was just loaned the car, with the insurance paid, for three years.

Nicklaus, with a belated 69 rally; Frank Beard, 74, and Dave Marr, 73, tied at 352 for third. Each got $3,666.

Leonard picked up another $833 Saturday in the pro-amateur competition when he teamed with different amateur threesomes in the first four rounds to compile a best-ball score of 45 under par, tied for 19th place behind Frank Beard, the leader, who was 55 under.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles, barely edged out for the 1964 American League pennant by New York, hope Steve Barber pitches as well against the rest of the league in 1968 as he did against the Yankees last year.

Barber, a veteran lefthander, signed his contract Sunday, taking a reported $2,000 cut to a salary of $25,000.

Barber's record in the last five years — his entire major league production — is 66-31. His performance last year, though, will "not too valuable to the Orioles, who wound up the season a mere two games behind the Yankees in third place.

After becoming the first modern Orioles to win 20 games in 1963, Barber was expected to be the ace of the pitching staff and help the Orioles in the drive to their first modern pennant. Instead, he won nine games and lost 13, compiling a 3.84 earned run average.

Against the Yankees, however, it was a different story. He started against them five times, winning four and allowing only seven earned runs in 36 2-3 innings for a 1.70 E.R.A.

Among other players signing were first-baseman Joe Pepitone of the Yankees, pitcher Dennis Bennett of Boston Red Sox and shortstop Ron Hansen of Chicago White Sox.

Pepitone received a modest raise, reported $32, a 45-per cent increase for a 221 season with 28 homers and 100 runs batted in.

Bennett, 13-14 with Philadelphia last season, will be making his American League debut. He came to the Red Sox in the trade that sent shortstop Dick Stuart to the Phillies.

Hansen batted .232, a 42-point rise from 1963. He also led all shortstops with 31 assists, 382 putouts, 527 total chances and 105 double plays.

New York Meet Crothers May Not Compete

TORONTO (CP) — Olympic silver medallist Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., said Sunday he may not run in the New York Athletic Club track meet Thursday in Madison Square Garden.

Crothers is currently recovering from a bout of influenza which forced him out of the 1,000-yard run at the Philadelphia Inquirer Games Friday night about halfway through the race.

The Canadian champion is scheduled to run in the 880-yard event in New York. He was unable to train in heavy indoor races this season before Friday night's event.

He said in an interview he will resume training today. He and coach Fred Foot of East York Track Club will decide later this week whether he will run in New York.

He is scheduled to run against Peter Snell of New Zealand Saturday night in Los Angeles. Snell defeated Crothers in the 800 metres at the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo.

Ex-Leafs Star For Americans

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

George (Punch) Imlach is no superstition he won't carry a $2 bill, but Toronto Maple Leafs' manager and coach appparently believes in two of everything else.

Imlach has been using alternate goaltenders around the National Hockey League for the last three years and now it looks as though he's got a substitute team.

Rochester Americans could be the alternates and after they swept two weekend games in the American Hockey League one had to look twice to make sure the Leafs hadn't moved south.

The Americans, who lead the AHL's Western Division by 14 points, defeated Pittsburgh Hornets 5-3 Saturday, and walloped Hershey Bears 7-0 Sunday.

And here's how former Leafs fared:

—Gerry Ehman got three goals Sunday.

—Bronco Horvath got two goals Saturday and another Sunday.

—Jim Pappin got a goal and two assists Saturday.

—Don McKenney scored a goal Sunday.

—Eddie Litzenberger scored a goal Sunday.

Red Armstrong and Stan Smrke, who both had brief whirls with the Leafs, also scored a goal each Saturday. Les Duff, the only weekend goal-getter who has never had a tryout with Toronto, scored for the Americans Sunday.

In other weekend games, Providence Reds edged Cleveland Barons 3-2 Saturday, Buffalo Bisons defeated Hershey 3-1, and Springfield Indians defeated Baltimore Clippers 7-3.

Sunday, Pittsburgh defeated Buffalo 3-1, Baltimore and Providence battled to a 3-3 tie, and Quebec Aces defeated Springfield 5-3.

Nationals Defeat Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP) — Marshall Johnston fired four goals and centre Roger Bourbonnais added five as the Nationals Saturday night as the Canadian national team posted a 6-3 exhibition hockey victory over Edmonton Junior Oil Kings before 3,500 fans.

The Nationals were in control throughout, leading 2-0 after the first period and 4-0 after the second.

The game was played under international rules.

Islanders Double Score On Napanee

Ganaoque Islanders all but clinched first place in the OHA Eastern Junior Hockey League standings last night.

The victory gave Ganaoque a comfortable six-point lead over Picton. Ganaoque has 29 points, Picton 19, Trenton 17, Belleville 16 and Napanee 11. The schedule winds up on the weekend of February 20.

Belleville visits Kingston tonight and Picton is said to be playing a postponed game in Napanee, although this has not been confirmed.

Six Teams To Enter Intercounty

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—At least six teams—and possibly seven—will play in the Intercounty Baseball Association Senior series this year.

Listowel, which left the league 3 yrs. ago, will be returning, but Brantford may not, an association meeting learned Saturday. There were six teams last year.

Deadline for entries is March 1. The season will open about June 1 and end Aug. 7.

Discussion at the meeting centred on the import rule. Both Stratford and Listowel will be allowed five imports and the others three.

The number of players a team can carry after June 15 was changed to 18 from 16. League president Reuben Halpern said the increase was to alleviate the problem of teams showing for games with only nine players.

A rule calling for a $10 fine for teams appearing late for a game will be strictly enforced, delegates agreed. All postponed in the final two weeks of the schedule must be played before the schedule ends.

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hockey Association president C. G. (Pat) Patterson indicated Saturday southwestern Ontario may get a Junior A hockey league and that the present provincial junior A league may be upgraded to a new classification.

Patterson was commenting at a regional OHA executive meeting on an application from four members of the OHA's Western Junior B league asking that they be allowed to form a Junior A league next year.

He said the four centres concerned — London, Windsor, Chatham and St. Thomas — all have large enough populations to qualify for classification as team cities.

"It is not fair," Patterson said, "to have this strong league playing against other B leagues in the province."

But he did not feel the Western League, even with junior A status, would be strong enough to vie with teams in the pro provincial league.

PLAY FOR CUP

If the Western League is upgraded, it is expected to play against Junior A league teams in the rest of Canada for the Memorial Cup.

The application of the Western League teams will be reconsidered March 6 when representatives of the teams are to appear before executives here.

The OHA also decided to send a letter to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association protesting the recruitment of Rick Ley, who plays for Guelph Regals of the OHA Senior series, for the Canadian national hockey team.

Patterson said the CAHA had worked with Ray directly rather than through the Regals and the OHA.

He said an investigation would be made by the OHA and the situation would be discussed at a sub-committee meeting "in a week or 10 days."

The Guelph club announced last week that Ley has been given permission to play for the nationals in the world tournament and a preceding European tour.

Win Junior Badminton Singles Title

TORONTO (CP) — Jim Cunningham and Barbara Hood, both of Toronto, captured the under-19 Ontario Junior Badminton singles titles Sunday afternoon.

Cunningham edged Don Moon of Toronto 1-15, 15-7, 18-16 while Miss Hood defeated Joyce Harris of Niagara Falls, Ont., 11-9, 11-9.

On Saturday, Miss Harris refused to enter a contest to decide Miss Ontario Badminton Queen, calling it "silly" and saying she was in Toronto to win on the courts.

In the under - 17 division, Nancy McKinley of Toronto downed Sue Wolfard of Kitchener 15-3, 15-13 and Gary Stewart of Kitchener turned back Don Miskman of Peterborough 15-13, 17-18, 15-7.

Dave Forbes of Toronto took the under-15 title by defeating Geoff Kramer of Kingston 15-7, 15-4, while Judy Morin of Toronto took the girl's division with an 11-0, 11-5 win over Jennifer Dakin of Toronto.

BASIC TRAINING

In view of this, your newspaperboy is on the first chapter of what will probably be a success story. Not that he's destined for the Hall of Fame—but he might be. For example, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Herbert Hoover, Eddie Rickenbacker, Thomas Edison, Joe DiMaggio, Walt Disney, and Bob Hope all started as newspaperboys.

Newspaper route experience helps mold those special character ingredients so necessary for success in any field: self discipline, punctuality, getting along with people, responsibility. And all the hundred and one other character-makers that are built into the management of a newspaper route.

The newspaperboy is skillfully guided by man trained and experienced to bring out his talents. This combination could well be the most important training in his life. In the long range picture, the money he earns on his route almost seems like a fringe benefit.

Although only one boy in ten ever gets a crack at a newspaper route, our Circulation Department people are always glad to talk it over with youngsters and parents. If you have a son or know a boy who might profit from newspaperboy experience, we'll be happy to hear from you.

Special News Programs Given on Viet Nam Raids

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The major television networks—particularly CBS and NBC — responded like firehorses to the latest Viet Nam alarm.

They interrupted programs with bulletins, provided live coverage of Defence Secretary McNamara's briefing and whipped up special news programs.

NBC put on one of its instant news specials which included the McNamara session. CBS pre-empted Lassie for a resume of the events. Finally, both networks gave the subject extended attention in late evening news reports.

CBS got some pictures of the smoldering wreckage at Pleiku for its early evening special. The network also had a brief filmed interview with cartoonist Bill Mauldin, an eyewitness at the airfield where he was visiting his son in the service.

The week's most enthusiastic audience was that attending the taping of CBS's On Broadway Tonight with Judy Garland as a guest star. Judging from the sound when the show was broadcast Friday night, her more mature fans greeted Miss Garland with the unrestrained fervor found among teen - age fans.

Miss Garland, looking happier and heavier than last season, seemed in good voice and high spirits. Bright spot of the rest of the show was a young comedian named Jerry Vernon.

Miraculous Machine Keeps Him Alive And a Source of Inspiration to Others

At 27, Burl Osborne, Associated Press staff writer, has lost the use of both kidneys and but for a miraculous machine would soon be dead. With courage and ingenuity, he pioneered a transcontinental trip via artificial kidney, giving hope to others for a more normal life.

By BURL OSBORNE

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)—My greatest fear as a beginning artificial-kidney patient was not of death, but of bondage to the very machine that keeps me alive.

Now, because I wanted to take a cross-country vacation and because experts in the East and West are beginning to communicate, the fear is gone and the ties are relaxed.

Twice a week I submit to the maze of plastic and plumbing that cleans and purifies my blood—functions my own diseased kidneys no longer can perform.

With the treatments, I am able to continue a relatively normal existence. Without them, in a matter of a few weeks, I would be dead of a disease called chronic nephritis.

Under these circumstances, it seemed highly unlikely that I could make a 6,700-mile trip to Kentucky to visit my family.

Machines in predominant use in the East are built differently from those used on the west coast. My doctors and I were not sure I could switch from one to the other, even if one could be found near my hometown of Ashland, Ky.

We could find no evidence that such a transition ever had been made, but we decided to try.

SWITCH WAS SUCCESS

We located a machine in Huntington, W.Va., only 20 miles from my destination, and somewhat apprehensively, set out to prepare for a switch. The success of the experiment removed doubt and raised exciting prospects for freer travel about the country.

Doctors on the artificial kidney team here already knew that medically, both machines performed the same task—hemodialysis—but the problems, if any, would be mechanical ones.

The KIL sandwich kidney, which essentially is two rectangular cellophane envelopes sandwiched between three heavy plastic plates, is widely used here and in Seattle, where almost all west-coast kidney research and development is being done.

In the east, many centres are using a "twin-coil" kidney developed by Dr. Willem J. Kolff of the Cleveland clinic. That machine looks like a stainless steel washtub with two coils of cellophane membrane stacked in the centre of it.

In either system, the patient's blood—loaded with poisons and fluids his inactive kidneys failed to remove—flows beside the apparatus. A chemical solution flows through the machine and impurities are drawn from the blood and carried away in the chemical bath. The blood continues to circulate through the kidney until impurities have been reduced to a safe level.

ADAPTERS ATTACHED

To make certain there would be no problem in making connections, blank tubing was attached to adapters, so I could be hooked to the machine in Huntington, no matter what its tubing size.

My physician, Dr. Loren Gothberg of Spokane, prepared a summary of my medical history and mailer it in advance to Dr. L. Sheffer Clark, the physician who would supervise two runs on the artificial kidney in Cabell-Huntington Hospital in Huntington.

By telephone, arrangements were made in advance for doctors to provide the two pints of blood needed to prime the kidney before each run.

By spacing the treatments four days apart, and undergoing treatment just before leaving and immediately after returning to Spokane, I was able to stretch the vacation to 12 days.

So, off I went with my wife, Lucella, and a bag full of adapters, tubing, bandages, tape and everything else that might have been needed.

WILL AVE MONEY

By the end of this month, we will be using a kidney in our home, on a do-it-yourself basis. It is estimated this will reduce the cost of treatment to about $3,000 a year, down from $14,000 a year. This way we hope to become independent, except for technical assistance and supplies, of the Spokane Centre where I now receive treatments.

An effort is under way in Spokane to organize a country-wide Cannula Club to provide a channel of communication between doctors, nurses and technicians throughout the nation.

One of the first goals would be completion of a central supply of information about new techniques and procedures. This could lead to reciprocity, so patients might receive treatment away from home without red tape.

Of course, a more nearly ideal method would be development of a portable kidney.

That machine has not been developed yet, but scientists at the University of Washington are working on a miniature kidney, no larger than a metropolitan telephone directory.

AT THE BELLE — Although secretly planning to marry another man, Kim Novak pretends to respond to Laurence Harvey's lovemaking in this scene from "Of Human Bondage", written for the screen by Bryan Forbes and Somerset Maugham. Opening today at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Has Had Marvellous Career And Wants It to Continue

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I've had a marvelous, colorful, exciting career, and I'm still enjoying it. I want it to continue, but along the lines that I find gratifying."

Ginger Rogers was explaining why she had turned down offers to star in London or national companies of Hello, Dolly. Although it would mean a handsome salary in a sure-fire musical, she answered thanks, but no thanks to producer David Merrick.

"In the first place, I don't think I'm right for Dolly," she reasoned. "And also I don't really hanker to get tied up in the same show for months on end. To take a show out for four to six weeks is fun. To play it for a year is another matter entirely."

Ginger can afford to play it cool. Her Hollywood career has brought her not only fame, but also the kind of enduring fame that keeps her services in demand for television and variety entertainment medium — except, oddly, motion pictures. She hasn't made a film in Hollywood since Oh Men, Oh Women! Almost nine years ago.

She attributes this to the film industry's preoccupation with masculine stars and stories. But she doesn't fret over it.

FIGURES ON TV

Aside from playing limited runs in shows like Annie Get Your Gun and Tovarich, she often turns her hand to television. Upcoming: A drama on the Bob Hope Chrysler Theatre; the role of queen in CBS' Cinderella by Rodgers and Hammerstein on Feb. 22.

She and producer - husband William Marshall have big plans to establish a film enterprise in Jamaica.

"We shot a picture there last year," said Ginger. "It is called The Confession, and it stars Ray Milland and myself. It's a suspense story laid in Italy, and Jamaica looked just perfect for it. The island is simply beautiful. . . .

"We have been chartered by the government to develop a film industry in Jamaica," said Ginger. "The possibilities are enormous — weather, scenery, water."

She and Marshall expect to film more movies in Jamaica and hope to lure other producers, both for features and television. They also plan to buy a house in Jamaica, and she plans to spend at least half of each year on the island.

Grade 10 Dropouts Reduced 50 Per Cent in Three Years Minister Tells PC Assoc.

PICTON — Minister of Education for Ontario, Hon. William Davis, was guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Prince Edward-Lennox Progressive Conservative Association, held Saturday night at the Royal Hotel. In spite of the heavy fall of snow during the past few days, both dining rooms were nearly filled, with visitors sending a good representation.

Election of officers and welcomes by Mayor H. C. Mcfarland of Picton and County Warden Barney Hepburn, along with a brief review of association activities by the president, Allan Anderson, featured the meeting.

The speaker was introduced by Norris Whitney, MPP, who added that in the proposed redistribution of seats in Ontario, the Prince Edward-Lennox riding will remain the same. Douglas Aikenbrack, MP, thanked Hon. Mr. Davis, MP for Peel.

Mr. Anderson was re-elected president for a second term, and acclamations were given the four vice-presidents, Joseph Pearce of Napanee, Donald Walker, Milford; William Briscoe, Ernestown; Harold Bonter, Carrying Place. Earl Morrison of Napanee, was returned as secretary-treasurer with D. O. Reynolds, Picton, as assistant.

Also introduced were Mrs. George Pitt, president of the Prince Edward-Lennox Area Associations and Mrs. Cuthill, president of Lennox ladies.

President Anderson told of association annual meetings and urged that organization be kept strong as he said, one cannot tell what might happen in the Federal field.

DROPOUTS REDUCED

Under the Robarts' plan in the field of education, the dropout of students before Grade 10 has been reduced by fifty percent in the past three years, Hon. Mr. Davis told the meeting. So has the vocation and technical training schools. Now, nearly half of the students are taking these courses.

The minister stressed that that not everyone required a university education, but that the ability of many young people lie in fields other than the professions. Automation begs with it the need for trained and skilled workers and more must be encouraged to acquire these skills. Automation will increase but if it is treated intelligently, we can profit by it, the minister said.

Referring to the larger school areas now in effect, Hon. Mr. Davis said that it came from a desire of centralization. It is to ensure that there be equal opportunity of education for rural as well as urban areas, he declared. The best possible facilities for such must be provided. The minister allowed that administration of school grants and other matters has greatly increased.

Noting that when Quebec recently established its first department of education, Hon. Mr. Davis said Ontario now has only 85 school areas outside the cities and he felt that the future might bring even larger school areas.

Referring to the department of University Affairs, the minister recalled there had been a claim there would be inadequate accommodation. Instead, he asserted, some areas of university population had not been filled. "However, we are prepared to make further financial sacrifices to continue needed university facilities," he added. "What we do in the field of education will determine the social and economic development of the province," the minister said. "The reorganized program of education is something of a revolution. We must determine the objects of education and then build a curriculum that will fit the need."

Touching on teacher training program, the minister is stressed that education is a continuing process and the teacher in grade one is just as important as that in Grade 13. "The curriculum and type of teachers have a most important effect on pupils," said the speaker.

He laid great emphasis on the changes to be expected in the future and the necessity of providing training for these times.

MEDICARE PLAN COMING

Hon. Mr. Davis also touched on other government departments. We plan to establish a medicare program of our own, which is needed as soon as possible. While it is possible for the Province to have its own pension plan, Ontario has decided to join the national plan. This, he felt was evidence of the government and party's philosophy that foremost all are Canadians with a concept of one country united.

The Minister warned that "we must be careful not to become involved in schemes which will encumber future generations" in noting that there are certain limitations.

The Provincial budget, to be presented Wednesday, will be the largest in the history of Ontario and will reveal the priority and concerns for increasing services to the people of this province, said the Minister.

Confidence in the people, stability and the desire to serve, were cited by Mr. Davis as the reasons for success of the Conservative party in Ontario, as he mentioned former premiers Hon. J. D. Robarts and Leslie Frost and premier John Robarts. "Some say we have been in power too long, but with such leadership, we will be in for a long time yet", the Minister declared.

"Looking back on the progress of the past hundred years in this day of changed communications, we are capable as a people of facing any problems," Hon. Mr. Davis declared.

REJECT UNION BID

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canada labor relations board has rejected a bid by the Order of Railroad Telegraphers (CLC) to extend the scope of its bargaining unit with the CPR. In a ruling issued Thursday, the board said it could not agree with the union's arguments for taking in additional categories of workers. It would also give the ORT a total CPR membership of 5,300, roughly double its present coverage.

Successful Living

Guilty Party Is Liable For Divorce Action Costs

DEAR DORIS — My unfaithful husband agrees to give me a divorce but won't work long enough to pay for it and I don't. Now this is my idea. Since my husband is Catholic and I am not, and since we were not married in the Catholic church, isn't it true that the Catholic church does not recognize our marriage? Is there any way our marriage can be annulled through the Catholic church?

Failing this, is there any way a person can get help financially or otherwise to get a divorce? I already have all the evidence I need in the hands of my lawyer.—HOPEFUL

DORIS CLARK

DEAR HOPEFUL—Canadian divorce laws are based on our common law. Sanctification by a church is just an addition. So that idea won't work.

Lawyers will help in urgent situations, but a divorce is not so classified. And the out-of-pocket costs of divorce alone amount to a considerable sum.

But did you know that the guilty party is liable for the costs of divorce action? In event of default, you would be expected to guarantee payment of your own lawyer, but even if part of this debt fell to you, the freedom that comes of being your own woman again would be well worth some sacrifice.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — Why should a husband resent a wife asking him things about his work, or meetings he goes to, movies he sees alone or with his son or daughter? I consider it making conversation and whenever I go to meetings I chitchat about this and that when I come home, and I would just love it if he did the same. He never tells me a word and he gets mad and shouts and tells me to stop giving him the third degree.

Then he gets cold and silent and it upsets me and I can't sleep. I'm always the one who has to "make up" and as far as I can see I didn't do anything wrong in the first place.—PUZZLED

Should I just never ask any questions? We have been married for 17 years. — BAFFLED,

• • •

DEAR BAFFLED — Some people never learn to chitchat. But they should. Couples who share small incidents and laugh together over Mrs and love, have a better time than silent long marriages.

Try the silent treatment and see if he doesn't miss your chatter.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — My girl friend and I like two boys (who are 20 and 23) very much. We only get to see them on Saturday night.

My girl friend's mother takes us to the community centre and the boys take us home. They've never asked us to go anywhere, but on Saturday they said they would phone us some time this week. They haven't phoned yet.

We don't know where we stand with them. How can we find out? We are shy and are 17. — GROOVY AND STONEY.

• • •

DEAR GROOVY AND STONEY — No point in worrying about where you stand with two offhand young men. They are just toying with you.

Try to get involved in more interesting doings with the opposite sex closer to your age.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — Since you are a social worker, I would like some information on how I could get a summer job as a camp counsellor. I am 18 years old and early to be asking about a job, but this type of work interests me.

I will be 18 in the spring. Would I need some kind of experience? — EARLY BIRD.

• • •

DEAR EARLY BIRD — It's not too early. Many camps like to have their staffs all lined up by Easter. Direct your enquiry to the Ontario Camping Association, 801 Yonge Street, Toronto.

Experience helps. Some camps provide training-on-the-job. Some recreation departments and Y.W.'s put on counsellor training sessions in the spring. Ask about these where you are.

What It Was Like At Belleville's Costliest Blaze

COMPLETELY GUTTED — Interior view of Schwab's and Shaw's Men's Wear stores shows completeness of the loss. Fire loss was also complete in Reward Shoe store and overhead offices.

COFFEE PATROL — Looking after fighters manning the firelines was the Salvation Army with coffee, soup and sandwiches.

Will Locate Sub Post Office

Saturday's fire left the downtown business district without easily-accessible mailing facilities.

Postal authorities will not know the extent of their loss until a search has been made of the ruins at the rear of Schwab's Stationery, where the townstown post-office was located.

However, no mail was lost, a post office spokesman said today.

Meantime, alternative accommodation is being reviewed.

"In the next few days the sub-post office will be located in the same general area," said the official.

Theatre Guild Carries on

Left without even a curtain to ring up, the organization - - once probably the best equipped in this part of the province - - nonetheless is going ahead with its current plans.

Gone in the fire is a little theatre auditorium - - painstakingly constructed in the past two years - - with equipment, costumes, scenery, a library, all accumulated during its years of operation.

An emergency meeting of the Guild Tuesday night immediately took action to start undaunted again from scratch.

Most immediate need is for accommodation and first community response came from the city's Elks Lodge which offered rehearsal space for a current production.

Professional Men Still Practise

Two city barrister were among the professional men probing the extent of their loss today in Saturday's West Robertson Block fire.

Meantime, Ralph L. Graham has temporarily relocated in the Victoria and Grey Trust building, while Ronald Cass is setting up offices at 237 Front Street.

Also on the same floor was the long established tailor-firm of A.B. Liddle. The firm will now temporarily be in business at 145 Pinnacle St.

Photographer William Riley has set up temporary studio facilities at his Strathcona Drive home and will operate from there in coming weeks.

PILE OF RUBBLE at front doors is all that remains of Schwab's Stationery and Shaw's Men's Wear stores. Both stores were complete loss.

Stonehill

landed immigrant status for Stonehill.

Stonehill said Friday in his first interview in Canada he did not know the author of the letter sent to Pearson aide Hal Dornan.

Premier Bennett branded the letter a "phoney", and asked for an investigation.

NO ACTION YET

Attorney-General Robert Bonner, who says RCMP have told him who wrote and signed the letter, said Sunday no action will be taken until the man's statement has been evaluated and acted on by the federal government.

Dornan said he turned the letter over to Raymond Denis, then an immigration ministerial assistant.

Last week, Dornan's name was linked with those of Stonehill, Denis and Vancouver public relations man Al Williamson in connection with an Ottawa meeting between Denis, Dornan and Williamson.

Prime Minister Pearson, in a statement last week, said there was nothing improper in Dornan's action at the meeting. Dornan had reported to the prime minister that during the discussion Stonehill's status came up, and Denis asked: "What was in it for me—for us?"

Dornan said the comment "appeared to have been intended as a joke", and Stonehill said Friday he didn't take it seriously.

In a television interview Sunday, Stonehill said he met Senator Louis Gelinas, treasurer of the Quebec Liberal party, in Ottawa and sought his help, but heard nothing from him.

LEAVES FOR NEW YORK

Stonehill said he will leave here by plane today for New York to confer with lawyers on his March 1 hearing on the bills of lading charge.

It concerns his allegedly sending a cigarette-making machine to the Philippines in a box for which the lading bill read "agricultural machinery."

A tobacco company—ag well as oil, real estate, mamufacturing and investments — was among Stonehill's Philippine interests.

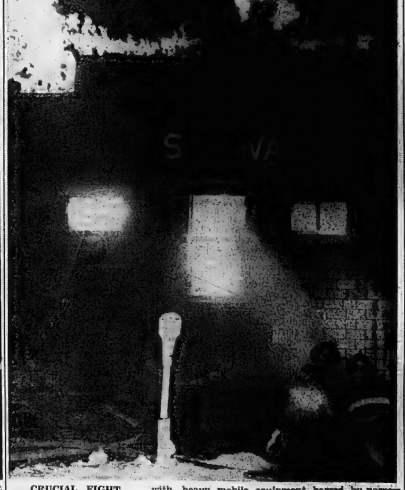
His wife and family will stay here — by special immigration department permission — until the end of the school year in June.

Where they will go after that is unknown. Stonehill has been in Mexico and Switzerland since being deported from the Philippines, where he was accused of tax evasion, customs violation, influence peddling and assault.

"The world is small, and if a person is thrown out of one country he is really excluded from every other country," he told a reporter.

HARBOR MASTER DIES

VANCOUVER (CP) — Commander Archibald H. Reed, CNR, Port of Vancouver harbor master for 34 years, died here Friday. He was 91. In 1911 he was appointed harbor master and port warden of Vancouver, a post later divided. He remained as harbor master until his retirement in 1945.



MISSIONARY DIES

HILLSBORO, Kan. (AP) — The death of a Canadian missionary nurse in Mexico who contracted anthrax was reported Saturday by the headquarters of the Mennonite Brethren Church. She was identified as Elizabeth Petkau, 30, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Petkau, Vanzhall, Alta. She had been stationed at a clinic near Durango City since last September.

U. S. SWITCHES AIR ATTACKS TO LAOS

84 Die; Plane Plunges Into Ocean

Crashes Shortly After Takeoff From New York

Ottawa Stewardess One of the Victims

By JOHN MORGANTHALER

NEW YORK (AP)—Officials are mystified by the crash of an Eastern Airlines DC-7B that plunged with a flash of orange flame into the Atlantic off Jones Beach, probably killing all 84 persons aboard including a Canadian stewardess.

The weather was good, there was no hint of sabotage, and everything had seemed normal as the plane took off Monday night from Kennedy Airport, a federal official said.

There was no radio word of distress from the crew. It should have been a flue trip for Flight 663 to Richmond, Va.; Charlotte, N.C.; Greenville-Spartanburg, S.C., and Atlanta.

But the four-engined propeller - driven plane went down about five minutes after its 6:20 p.m. takeoff, dropping 3,700 feet into the dark calm sea. It was 14 miles from the airport, and about eight miles off Jones Beach, a deserted summer playground on Long Island's south shore.

CREWS SEE CRASH

The crews of two other airliners saw the crash from the second major world disaster in three days.

William Lamb of the Civil Aeronautics Board said an Air Canada crew reported "an explosion in the water," and a Pan American flight saw the plane "in an exceptionally steep turn."

Last Saturday, a Chilean Airlines propeller - driven DC-6B crashed into a mountain near Santiago and exploded, killing 37.

The last comparable U.S. disaster came in February last year when another propeller-driven plane, a Constellation, crashed into a hillside near Unionville, Mo., killing 81. The Lake Tahoe crash did not involve a scheduled airline.

At 10 p.m. - tat U.S. Coast Guard lookout on shore, Seaman Barry Lundy of Easton, Pa., heard a sound like a fire-

Allows Heart To Rule Head

TORONTO (CP)—Health Minister Matthew Dymond took personal responsibility Monday for overcrowding at provincial hospital schools for retarded Children.

In a speech later attacked by Stephen Lewis (NDP—Scarborough West), Dr. Dymond told the Legislature that many children do not need to be in the hospital schools.

"In taking responsibility for it," he said, "I have always allowed my heart to rule my head."

Parents often seek help from members of the Legislature, who in turn come to him to place the children, he said, although no balance has ever been sought or used.

But as a result, these institutions are "overcrowded, the minister said.

"While making no claim to be an expert in this field," he said later, "it seems obvious to me that automatic admission to the hospital school may not be best for the majority of children.

"Indeed, many of our professional staff have repeatedly stated that large numbers of our patients do not need to be in our institutions."

The Smiths Falls hospital for mentally retarded children, criticized recently for overcrowded conditions, does have too many patients, Dr. Dymond said.

"There were 2,650 patients carried on the books Nov. 30, 1964, but only 2,441 were in the institution. More than 200 were on home visit . . . I recognize, however, that even 2,440 shows 19 per cent overcrowding."

Dr. Dymond outlined an expansion program for diagnostic and assessment facilities.

Vietnamese, Chinese and Russians Stone U. S. Embassy in Moscow

From AP-Reuters

MOSCOW (AP)—About 1,000 student demonstrators hurled rocks and smashed windows at the U.S. Embassy today and smeared the building with green and blue ink in a protest against U.S. air raids on North Viet Nam.

The demonstrators were led by 250 Vietnamese, but there were also Chinese in their political baggy blue overcoats and other students from Lumumba University. Few Africans were among them.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — Clouds are rapidly spreading through Ontario today as a vigorous disturbance moves toward the Great Lakes area from the southern United States. Snow mixed with freezing rain will spread into the province during the day and will change to rain in the southern and central portions of Ontario. Milder air, accompanying the unsettled weather, will give afternoon temperatures near the 40 mark across southern Ontario and into the 30's elsewhere. As the storm moves through Central Ontario Wednesday, northerly winds will again push colder air and snowflurries into Northern Ontario.

The students were joined in front of the embassy by a few hundred Russians, mostly from Moscow University. The Russians helped in the rock throwing.

Malcolm Toon, political counsellor at the embassy, said a protest would be filed with the foreign ministry against the destruction and demonstration.

Two foreign correspondents were hurt in the melee. Bernard Dimmis, chief of the Moscow Bureau of Agence France-Presse, was knocked to the ground. Adam Clymer of the Baltimore Sun suffered a face bruise when he escorted away from the scene by a policeman.

The rampaging students were pushed away from the embassy by police after they hurled missiles for about five minutes without being stopped. About 400 police were called in to deal with the demonstration before it ended.

The demonstrators hurled rocks and the nine - story building and draped the iron railings outside with anti-American slogans and banners.

About 40 minutes after they arrived, the students began marching away in the direction of Mayakovsky Square on Gorky Street, Moscow's main thoroughfare.

Demolish Block Tie Fire To Faulty Furnace

Plans for wrecking the building were set in motion after fire inspectors satisfied themselves late yesterday on the cause of Belleville's costliest fire.

Fire chief Ted Poste confirmed the source of the million-dollar blaze was a leaking furnace connection beneath Schenk's Stationery.

The chief said it was believed pressure may have mounted in the furnace as it flooded.

District fire inspector Del Hope of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office with other investigators from Toronto headquarters, yesterday sifted through the ruins with chief Poste and local department officials.

Meantime, work crews today began removing the few stone signs still intact on the gaping Front Street facade of the building.

START WORK WEDNESDAY

Still outstanding from the fire's aftermath are the definite location of the sub-post office lost when Schwab's was gutted.

Postal authorities said it was not certain it would be moved to downtown Bridge Street — as reported had it earlier today.

One store owner has already moved.

Druggist Bruce Lattimer today was said setting up business at 329 Front Street — almost directly across the street from the scene of Saturday's disaster — where he will dispense prescriptions.

PM's Paper Used in Parole Bid

OTTAWA (CP) — An exhibit filed with the Dorion inquiry showed today that Liberal MP Guy Rouleau made representations to the national parole board on behalf of convict Bob Tremblay the stationery of Prime Minister Pearson's office.

A copy of a July 17 letter by Mr. Rouleau on the board was headed Office of The Prime Minister. The copy showed that Mr. Rouleau signed the letter as an MP and as parliamentary secretary to Mr. Pearson.

Mr. Rouleau resigned Nov. 24 as parliamentary secretary after the Lucien Rivard affair broke in the Commons. He said he had made representations on behalf of Lucien Rivard, who wanted in the U.S. on narcotics conspiracy charges.

The exhibit showed that Mr. Rouleau told the parole board July 17 that Rivard had a job open for Tremblay, who was serving 20 years for attempted murder in a Vancouver necrobus case.

At that time, Rivard had been in jail for about a month after being arrested on a bail warrant for U.S. authorities.

Mr. Rouleau has testified that he renewed his representations on behalf of Tremblay after freeing Rivard in Ottawa June 17.

USED LETTERHEAD

Under questioning today by Ross Dowson, Conservative party counsel, Mr. Rouleau confirmed he had used the letterhead of the prime minister's office to make representations on behalf of Tremblay. He also confirmed he had signed a letter to the parole board as parliamentary secretary to the prime minister.

Tremblay was sentenced in 1955 to 20 years for attempted murder by beating a man with

Leaders Trade Insults

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Richard Thrasher, national director of the Progressive Conservative party, and Quebec leader Leon Balcer traded insults Monday about the weekend decision to reject a leadership convention over John Diefenbaker.

Mr. Thrasher, commenting on Mr. Balcer's call Sunday for security of ballots filled in by the national executive, accused the Quebec leader of "duplicable treachery" and a lack of guts.

He said to suggest the rejection of a leadership convention ran counter to the trend of the meeting questions the integrity of him and the two other men who made the tabulation.

"What I would speak for the others, I say to those who make such insinuations and innuendos—they are trying to engage in despicable treachery and undermine confidence in our association and the party as a whole," Mr. Thrasher said.

Commenting on Mr. Thrasher's comment, Mr. Balcer shot back: "Poor little boy, if he is crying he doesn't be publish the figures."

Party President Dalton K. Camp announced Sunday that a leadership convention had been rejected.

Mr. Balcer, who initiated the move for the executive meeting and wants Mr. Diefenbaker replaced, said the decision is in conflict with the trend of Saturday's meeting.

"I trust Mr. Diefenbaker will have no objection to the examination of the complete figures and the voting slips on which they are based," he said.

DIEFEN OUTBURST

It was this statement that prompted Mr. Thrasher's outburst. He, Mr. Camp and National Secretary Keith Davis have analysed the three-part questionaires filled in by the 116 members present.

In an interview Monday, Mr. Balcer said the demand for a convention was backed by Conservatives in other provinces, especially Ontario and the Maritimes.

"This is not a move by Quebec only," he said. "That 56-52 vote shows that Conservatives in other provinces support our party."

The vote he referred to came when Erik Nielsen, MP for the Yukon, made a motion to delete from the poll a question asking whether Mr. Diefenbaker should be asked to resign.

Mr. Thrasher said Mr. Balcer's statement "underlined the same kind of tactics "used by some to destroy confidence in our leader, Mr. Diefenbaker."

"I say in particular to Mr. Balcer that if such reports (that the trend of the Saturday meeting differed from the announced result of the questionaires) are correct, you display the same lack of intestinal fortitude that has been so characteristic of you in recent weeks as well as in recent days," Mr. Thrasher said.

Mr. Diefenbaker spent the day at home recuperating, his staff said, from a bourse throat. Those close to him said he has no intention of calling a leadership convention voluntarily and no intention of resigning.

Anti-U. S. Demonstrations Block Traffic in Peking

PEKING (Reuters)—Massive anti - American demonstrations blocked traffic in Peking streets today as China became the first of Hanoi's allies to hurl the threat of retaliation for U.S. and South Vietnamese air strikes against North Viet Nam.

It came in an editorial in the Communist party newspaper People's Daily that said the air attacks "have to be repaid."

Long columns of bluecled demonstrators, carrying multi-colored paper flags and red banners and slogans, paraded all over Peking today. They included well-drilled local militia armed with rifles.

The New China news agency said China waited "in battle array" for any U.S. attempt to extend the conflict in Southeast Asia.

The agency quoted an editorial from the People's Daily as saying "when debts accumulate they must be repaid at compound interest."

"The Chinese people mean what we say," the editorial added.

"We warn U.S. imperialists: You are overreaching yourselves in trying to extend the war with your small forces in Indochina, Southeast Asia and the Far East.

"To be frank, we are waiting for you in battle array. If you insist on imposing war on us, heavy rebuffs are in store for you."

The People's Daily splashed the government statement with huge headlines: "Our govern-

Say Russian Troops Leave Germany in Pact With U. S.

BONN (Reuters)—The massciroulation West German Newspaper Bild Zeitung says that Russian troops are being pulled out of East Germany after secret Soviet-United States negotiations in Geneva and New York.

The newspaper, quoting informed sources in Poland and East Berlin says only symbolic contingents of Russian troops will remain in East Germany.

To bolster the East German Communist regime, Moscow is considering asking her Warsaw-pact states to station troops in East Germany.

These would consist mainly of Polish and Czechoslovak troops, the newspaper says.

Monday's arrest really began last Friday when a man deposited a cheque for $4,044 at the Guarantee Trust Company and withdrew $250. The company, meanwhile, learned the cheque had been stolen and when the man returned to withdraw the remainder,employees had been alerted.

Assistant Manager Derek Dunlop grabbed at the fleeing man and was struck by a closing glass door. He continued to chase the man and was assisted by a passerby who held the captive while another bound Mr. Dunlop's injured arm.

North Viet Nam Raids Halted; Await Red Reply

Supply Lines in Laos Targets of New Strikes

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP)—South Vietnamese defences against possible Communist retaliatory attacks bristled today. A battery of Hawk anti - aircraft missiles manned by U.S. Marines was set up at Da Nang Air Base and South Vietnamese armed forces tightened the alert along the North Viet Nam border.

U.S. Air Force F-105 fighter bombers roared aloft from Da Nang today, but headed into neighboring Laos for a bombing raid on Communist supply lines there.

Qualified sources at Da Nang, 80 miles south of the border, said the F-105s, among the best in the U.S. Air Force arsenal, also carried out heavy raids in Laos Monday in retaliation for South Vietnamese and American aircraft struck at North Viet Nam.

The sources said raids against North Viet Nam have halted, at least temporarily. But the raids against Communist supply lines in Laos are expected to continue "as long as there is a need for them."

There were no immediate reports on results of the raids into Laos.

FIGHTING HEAVY

Communist Viet Cong guerrillas today shot down three U.S. helicopters, killing one American and wounding eight in a battle five miles northwest of Saigon, scene of the government's worst defeat in the war last December.

South Vietnamese Skyraiders —the same type which hit military targets in North Viet Nam Monday — struck at suspected Viet Cong positions. Helicopters were hit by machine-gun fire as they landed on a clearing surrounded by trees.

Heavy fighting was reported elsewhere in this war-torn country, including one bloody battle in the Mekong Delta, where two American installations were heavily hit Sunday by Viet Cong attacks which underlined the current Vietnamese crisis.

Meanwhile, the first stage of President Johnson's "fade-in, fade-out decks" policy got under way today as the first group of American dependents — families consisting of 20 women and children—flew out of Saigon by jet airliner.

Some 1700 persons were expected to leave today in the first wave of a mass evacuation of United States dependents.

UN Council Will Take Secret Vote

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The UN General Assembly agreed Monday to hold another election behind the screens to avoid a U.S. challenge to the voting rights of France and the Soviet Union.

The assembly president, Alex Quaison - Sackey of Ghana, decided in the informal secret balloting for 11 a.m. to noon Wednesday in his office outside the assembly hall preparatory to an afternoon assembly session.

The procedure is aimed at clearing up contests between Gabon and Guinea for the economic and social council; Brazil and Colombia for the budget advisory committee; and Czechoslovakia and Belgium for the board of auditors. Those that get majorities in the informal poll will be elected by general consent in the assembly.

The same scheme was used last December in electing Security Council members. It fitted in with the voting moratorium instituted at the start of the session Dec. 1 to avoid a big - power showdown over UN charter Article 19.

That article says any member two years behind in total assessments shall have no assembly vote. The United States insists that it be enforced. The Soviet Union and France, among others, are that the behind for refusing to pay assembly peace-keeping assessments on grounds that the Security Council has the right to start and finance peace-keeping ventures.

At Monday's meeting the assembly set the stage for a long series during which negotiations, could proceed to break the financial deadlock.

Quaison-Sackey said consultations were going forward on the machinery to carry on these negotiations, which would cover all aspects of UN peace-keeping. He proposed to convene the assembly Friday to set it up.

Chatham Woman Alderman Quits Due Threats, Others Intimidated

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—Two former city aldermen said Monday night they received threats during the last year similar to those which Mrs. Helen Moffat received before resigning Monday as Chatham's first woman alderman.

Mrs. Moffat claimed threats had been made against her and members of her family. She did not spell out the nature of the threats.

Two former aldermen—Blair McKinnon and A. R. Sanderson —said in later interviews they had received threatening letters and telephone calls over questions concerning Highway 401, the Macdonald-Cartier Highway, and daylight saving time.

Mr. McKinnon resigned in December in the middle of a two-year term because, he said, "I didn't want my health to go that far over the worry of it."

Mr. Sanderson said: "I received my share of letters and turned them over to police."

Mr. Sanderson lost his aldermanic seat in the December election.

But detective Sgt. Fred Frandon said he had not seen any threatening letters received by a member of the council in the last year. He said no reports of threats had been made to his department by Mrs. Moffat.

Mrs. Moffat's resignation, accepted by council, was considered to be a blowing the threats have "worsened considerably."

She said that when a member of her family was "hurt intentionally" by the threats, she had no choice but to resign.

She would not comment further.

In her letter to council, Mrs. Moffat, who was in her third term as alderman, said: "Since last July, I have received threats. Then, in December, the threats worsened considerably. At that time, I had legal advice against resigning."

Police Chief C. E. Bagnall said that early last year he and several aldermen received anonymous threatening letters. But he believed there was no connection between the earlier letters and Mrs. Moffat's present situation.

Martin Gives Reasons for Air Strikes

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin says the development in Viet Nam in the last few months are "very disturbing" but the situation was caused by aggressive policies of the North Viet Nam government.

Mr. Martin issued a statement Monday night in connection with the weekend U.S. air strikes against targets in Communist North Viet Nam. The U.S. said the action was in retaliation for recent raids by Communist Viet Cong forces against Americans in South Viet Nam.

The external affairs minister said he did not consider it appropriate for him to comment on an individual incident which was part of a broader problem.

But he recalled that he has said on several occasions the situation "has been brought about by the aggressive policies of the Hanoi government towards South Viet Nam.

"The nature of these policies has been confirmed in the international commission report of June 2, 1962."

Canada, India and Poland serve on the international Viet Nam truce commission set up by the 1954 Geneva conference that ended fighting between the French and Communists in what was then French Indochina.

N. P. Carswell, 44 Years In Education in Trenton, Tenders His Resignation

TRENTON — V. P. Carswell, who has spent 46 years in the service of education, 44 of them in Trenton, has tendered his resignation to the Trenton Board of Education last night. Starting out as a public school teacher, Mr. Carswell went on to become the principal of College Street Public School, a post he held for many years, and then became the town's supervising principal of public schools. For a number of years he combined the duties of this position with those of secretary-treasurer of the school board, finally relinquishing this post to return to the classroom work entirely.

In his written resignation, Mr. Carswell expressed his appreciation for the co-operation he had received from school boards and trustees over the years.

Last night's school board meeting was attended by board members, Mr. McKinnon, board members E. D. Topping, Ralph Weaver, Jack Hadley, Gordon Ash and J. W. Wilkinson, seperate school appointee. Absent were Douglas Whitley and Mrs. Hazelton Spencer. Present were high school principal, John Garrett, Mr. Carswell, Miss Ella Jackson, public spectator and Miss Eva Baker, board secretary.

Miss Baker read out the resignation of Miss E. Davidson, who has decided to up the English department at Trenton High School for a number of years.

School Inspector Mr. Ross Mullen had submitted a report on Marmora Street Senior Public School to the board stating that the school had a "strong, alert principal - A. S. Robson, and a fine staff." Mr. Ross Mullen commented favorably on the semi-rotary system in the school, saying that in his opinion the pupils benefited by this system which prepares them for high school life. Mr. Ross Mullen made a number of suggestions for minor improvements in the school.

SHOULD PLACE SIGN

He said a sign with the name of the school should be placed outside the school. The senior school is, in fact, the old high school, and bears a sign to this effect. This quite often leads to confusion.

Architects Barnett and Reid had submitted three tenders for the supply of finishing hardware for the proposed new school in east Trenton. Prices ran from $2,715 to $2,842, and it was decided to accept the lowest, tendered by the Toronto Architectural Hardware Ltd.

The annual report from the public school nurse, Mrs. J.M. Pollock, showed a busy year for a dental clinic in town. Many children from low income families had a need of dental care, she said.

Also noted by the board was the report from the high school nurse.

Mr. Garrett brought to the board's attention the case of a Grade 12 student, stricken with a rheumatic fever, who has been in a Toronto hospital for the past few months. Mr. Garrett said the student should be in the hospital for the next two months at least and was in need of tutorial help which which could be supplied by Toronto teachers.

He could devote two hours a day to study and could thus take on two subjects. Mr. Garrett will attempt to find out more details on the matter and report to the members by telephone.

A letter from the Air Cadet League of Canada, asking the board to subscribe to annual membership at a cost of $3.00 and to find nine other individuals who either were interested in cadet work or were former cadets themselves, met with very little enthusiasm from the board members. Mr. Hadley commented that this seemed a "very poor way to raise money." However, more information on the league's suggested way of raising needed funds will be sought.

Mr. Carswell said that it looked as if the Trenton high school teachers would be needed for next term and Mr. Garrett said the nine high school teachers would be needed. The board will advertise for new teachers in February and March.

Mr. Topping reported that the new addition to North Trenton School should be completed by March 9.

Following the formal board meeting, the members met in committee to discuss a number of items, some of which had to do with school personnel.

Admits Stabbing Woman When Only Thirteen

LONDON, Ont.—(CP)—Robert George Thompson, 37, of Hamilton broke down in magistrate's court here Monday and sobbed that he had stabbed a woman in St. Thomas 14 years ago.

Thompson was appearing on two charges of robbery from banks in Hamilton and London. He pleaded guilty to the charges.

"I stabbed a woman in St. Thomas when I was only 13," he said suddenly, "and I never told anybody . . . and I don't know what happened. I didn't stay around to find out."

Thompson broke down after more than an hour on the witness stand answering questions about his past.

He was remanded to Feb. 16 for a pre-sentence report on the robbery charges. He was charged with robbing a Bank of Montreal branch in Hamilton Dec. 24 and the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce here Jan. 13.

St. Thomas police said they did not recall any such stabbing but they intend to investigate.

He was arrested on a bus by London police after a robbery of the London bank was robbed of $2,244.

WROTE NOTE

He note found in a coat thrown off by Thompson as he left the bank said:

"Please find me. I didn't think I could get away with it. But thought I'd be apprehended and put in jail, then some agency would see that my family would eat. They've eaten nothing but bread and water for four days."

He said he got $435 from the Hamilton robbery.

Earlier night of the Hamilton robbery — Christmas Eve — his family went to the home of a woman with a fur coat in Toronto's Forest Hill district, Thompson told the court.

He said he went berserk at that party and ended in an Ontario mental hospital for a week. After his release, he took his family to London. He tried to make some money playing pool and then sent his family after that he robbed the London bank, he said.

FLAMES FLARED UP

"The flames were orange but it was not definite that it was a plane—yet it must have been," he said. "The flames flared up for a while and then died down."

Among the dead was Judith Ann Durkin, 22, of Ottawa, one of the stewardesses aboard. Her parents live in the capital.

Miss Durkin joined the company in September, 1962, after spending four years in the RCAF. She was educated at St. Joseph's School in Stratford, Ont., and Immaculata High School in Ottawa.

Working recently on flights between Boston and the southern states, she lived in Winthrop, Mass.

By early morning, search boats had recovered parts of several bodies. A fishing boat reported it had found a plane seat with a body strapped in it, but the body had fallen back into the water as it was being hoisted aboard.

The searchers also fished out scraps of burned and torn parts of the plane, charred bits of clothing and airline brochures, found floating on water 60 to 70 feet deep.

But they found no survivors.

The 79 passengers included two young opera singers en route to Italy, a Canadian concert, a woman bound for a funeral, prominent U.S. Southern businessman, a former Virginia college beauty queen, U.S. soldiers heading home on leave from Germany, and others returning to camp in Georgia.

STARTED IN BOSTON

The flight had started in Boston, but all but one of its passengers had boarded in New York.

Through the night, under the eerie light of flares dropped by helicopters, and searchlights, boats continued the search. Although it was hazy, they could see the lights of the ships tenders along the coast.

Chris Walk of the federal aviation agency said the last radio call from the plane was an acknowledgement of a routine instruction from the Kennedy tower to change direction. The plane had been at 6,000 and was climbing through 3,700 feet when it crashed.

The pilot was Capt. Frederick Robert Carson, 41, of Hunting-ton, N.Y., a veteran of 16 years with the airline. Both he and First Officer Edward Robert Thompson, also 41, of Clinton Conn., were pilots during the Second World War, Carson in the U.S. Army Air Force and Dunn in the U.S. Navy.

Britain's 23,000 Doctors Revolt at Fee Increases

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — A revolt among Britain's 23,000 family doctors loomed today after the government accepted a report Monday recommending pay increases far below the doctors' demands.

They had sought the addition of more than £18,000,000 ($54,000,000) to the complicated "pool" system from which doctors in the National Health Service draw their incomes. Instead the committee recommended £5,500,000—with strings attached.

The British Medical Association immediately dismissed the increase as "derisory" and predicted that many doctors would leave the nationalized health service for private practice and others would emigrate. It is estimated that the medical "brain drain" of doctors to other countries already averages about 400 a year.

The dispute involves only doctors who work under the health service, which is free to patients. Those in private practice, mainly specialists, charge fees and are not concerned in this dispute.

The doctors' negotiating committee had urged an average increase of about £15 ($45) a week, bringing salaries to about £70 ($210) before taxes.

The BMA said that because of stipulations under which the award is made it will amount, in most cases, to less than £1 a week—or a penny extra for each consultation.

The committee, set up after a royal commission hearing in 1960, recommended strict rules under which the bulk of the additional money is to be spent. Almost all of it is earmarked for doctors who improve their practices with more help or who pay high rents. Only about £500,000 is for a general salary increase.

The report comes only a few weeks after the government did away with the two - shilling charge for each prescription. The doctors claimed this would add even more to their burden since many people who needed simple drugs they could buy in a pharmacy now would visit doctors for a prescription to get it free.

The Ontario Intelligencer Trophy Spiel Being Staged

Play is in progress at the Quinte Curling Club for the Ontario Intelligencer trophy and accompanying miniatures on 24 rinks from the Quinte district competing. Twelve rinks from the local club are entered along with rinks from the RCAF, Trenton Curling Club, Kingston, Napanee, and Picton. Mrs. Fran Miller of the Kingston Curling Club, who has won the trophy on three successive years is again seeking further honors.

Mrs. Hazel Blair is general chairman of the spiel and a most enjoyable time is in store for the visiting curlers. The girls started play on Monday afternoon and all three competitions are now down to the eights and today the curlers will be playing for all the "marbles". This is a knockout draw and all rinks must win third game or drop out of the competition.

This evening a representative of the Ontario Intelligencer will present the trophy to the winning rink. During the spiel the women have enjoyed a social hour, a tea hour and many have been entertained in private homes. This spiel is the highlight of the year for the Women's Section of the Club and the directorate is going all out to make it a huge success.

On Saturday the Victoria and Grey "bonspiel directed by "Bud" Trill, manager of the local office, will be staged at the Quinte Club with sixteen rinks in play. This spiel is a costumed affair and some weird makeups will be seen during day with the judging of the costumes held over until the evening draws. Last year the Old-fashioned Belles led by Ernie Wilkinson, won the honors and again this rink is seeking further honors. There will be two draws of three eight-end games with points to count in the summary.

On the first draw Gil Wansbold it will meet Ron Cass, Joe McKay and Dr. Jim Loynes will hook up, Dr. McCorquodale will meet Dave Duffy and Charles Cox will tackle Hal Emerson.

On the eleven o'clock draw, Ernie Wilkinson will meet Ben Corke, the Victoria and Grey rink will meet Ross Booth, H. H. Morrison wil tackle Murray Johnson and Pat Houston and Don Bell will meet head-on. The rinks have been chosen by lots which make for exciting curling. Good curling fellows and don't let your skirts get caught on the "rocks."

The congratulations of the club are extended to Bill Henderson, Al. McCallum, Ben Benn and skip Mac White in playing their way into the finals for Provincial honors. The play will open in Cobourg on Wednesday afternoon, the draw being made at the lunch hour.

There will be eight rinks in the competition and a round-robin series will be played. Two games will be played on Wednesday and three on Thursday and Friday with the evening left open in case of a tie.

The White rink disposed of some excellent rinks on their way to the finals, especially in the playoffs staged a Kingston some weeks ago. There will be stiffer competition in Cobourg than that encountered at Kingston.

Morris Booth, father of Ross Booth, of the local club, will be the convener and official umpire of the matches and there is no doubt a large number of the local curlers will be on hand for some of the matches. The winners in this contest will compete in the Dominion finals in Saskatoon in March and here's hoping the local rink has to make that long trek to the prairies.

Cooksville Rink Wins Honors At Bancroft

BANCROFT — Four sharp curlers from Cooksville made off with top honors in the eighth annual bonspiel sponsored last weekend by the Bancroft Curling Club

For those clubs of Belleville and Trenton that felt the pressure of the Cooksville four there is some consolation in the fact that they did not have to carry home the silver pitchers, other gifts, plus the Hiram Walker trophy presented by Tom Sheridan of Peterborough to winners of the first event.

Second and third events were taken by Skip Ross Hawley's team and Art Hatlin's four of Bancroft. A total of forty teams attended the three-day event that ended on Sunday.

Cecil Wiggins, president of the Bancroft club, said he hoped everyone would come back again next year if only for the home-cooked turkey supper put on by the Women's Curling Club.

Hit by Auto Helping Friend, Has Leg Broken

A 17-year-old youth suffered a broken leg last night as he helped a friend start a dead automobile motor.

Jan Victor Morris, 17, of Foxboro had linked his car battery to that of Phillip Arthur Stephens, in Foxboro when an approaching automobile, driven by Clifford John Monteith, 204 Front Street, Belleville skidded on an icy patch.

Both men were taken to Belleville General Hospital where Morris was admitted.

A Heavy Blow

Belleville can ill afford fires like the disastrous one which on Saturday gutted one of the oldest landmarks of its main business district.

Though a century old, the West Robertson Block was well and truly built and had been well maintained, so that it enhanced the appearance of the area. The stores it contained were amongst the most modern in the city.

A decade or so ago when the city was growing but the trend towards decentralization of the business district had not set in, one could rest assured that a fire in the down-town area would quickly result in a rebuilding program.

This is no longer true, as two gaps on East Bridge Street, right at the bridge and in the block between Front and Pinnacle Streets, will serve to remind us.

All will hope that the progressive merchants, who owned the premises they occupied in the block, will be able to reach a prompt arrangement to return the property to its appropriate use, by rebuilding.

Meanwhile, despite the invaluable protection afforded by insurance, the city as a whole is the poorer by reason of Saturday's misfortune.

"Quick . . . What Does 'Drop In On Yuh' Mean?"

A Petty Action

Richard Lyall, the foreman of a grand jury which voiced criticism of conditions at Mercer Reformatory, has received an admonition from A. A. Halford, licensing officer in the department of insurance which is a section of the attorney-general's department.

Mr. Lyall operates an insurance agency and he used his firm's letterhead when he sent copies to members of the Ontario Legislature press clippings dealing with a former matron's comments on the grand jury's findings.

"As the subject matter has no relation to the business of an insurance agent, we must ask that you refrain from using your letterhead to deal with private matters," wrote Mr. Halford.

We are conscious of situations in which the use of a firm's or individual's letterhead for purposes unrelated to the business of the firm or individual might constitute an impropriety.

For instance, we suggest that it would be improper for a chief of police to solicit funds for a pet charity on the letterhead of the police department, an inspector of the public licensing Board to use its letterhead to request a hotel to provide a free room for a fraternal organization's convention or for a plumbing inspector to use his office's letterhead to ask a plumbing firm to sponsor a juvenile hockey team.

For the life of us though, we cannot see any impropriety in an insurance agent using his firm's letterhead for correspondence concerning something which has nothing whatever to do with insurance.

We cannot help wondering whether the licensing officer is always so particular about an offence of this kind. Would he have registered a protest if Mr. Lyall had used the letterhead to invite a friend to dinner? Is it only the lack of proper governmental supervision which permits the stenog to tell her aunt in Backwoods Falls about seeing Uncle Jim in Toronto last weekend? When Dr. Smith uses his office stationery to invite a friend to the cottage for a bit of relaxation next Saturday evening, is there not a grave danger that the friend may mistake this as a prescription for a rest cure backed with all the authority associated with a member of the Canadian Medical Association?

Or is it just possible that Mr. Lyall is treading on somebody's toes in the attorney-general's department with his criticism of conditions at Mercer?

Remedy Essential

Down in New Brunswick, Premier Robichaud and an assortment of other politicians and officials are busily engaged in an effort to prove that there was nothing irregular about the process by which a 16-year-old girl was kept in Northumberland County jail for six months.

It seems to be agreed that the only reason why the girl was in jail was because the Children's Aid Society and the provincial Department of Youth and Welfare were unable to find any place else where she could be cared for.

If these officials are able to prove that, under New Brunswick law, this justifies her confinement in a jail cell six feet from the men's quarters, they will have at least proved one thing.

To Your Good Health
Yellowish Cast of Hair Common as We Grow Older

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My hair, recently grey, is turning yellow. Some say it is the result of too much acid. What's your opinion? — Mrs. A. K.

Dear Doctor: What would cause a real, itchy, scaly area under my wedding ring? One suggestion is that I may have a hyperacid condition. What does this mean and can it be controlled? — M. J. L.

"Too much acid" or "an acid condition" are common "explanations" for almost anything.

But the phrases are vastly overused and are quite meaningless.

The body in general is slightly on the alkaline side. It only changes to acid when certain serious disease conditions are present.

And as for "acid stomach," that organ is one part of the body which is supposed to contain acid, to help digest food. Indeed, it something interferes with production of enough hydrochloric acid by the body, it sometimes is necessary to prescribe a little each day.

True, there can be such a condition as acidosis, but in such a case, the patient is seriously ill. I repeat, the body is normally not acid, and it becomes so, serious problems ensue.

Therefore, don't grab at the word "acid" as a simple answer to whatever problem you have. Otherwise it would be misled you, and thus prevent getting at the real solution.

As for the yellowish cast of hair, this is extremely common as we grow older and is no indication that anything is wrong. Just using a tint or rinse is the best bet — without trying to attach any health problem. (Of course, a yellowish cast to the skin and whites of the eyes is another thing. That's jaundice, and requires examination to see what is wrong with the liver or with some of its related organs.)

Now for the itchy, scaly trouble under the wedding ring. Here again there is no relation to "acid" or "hyperacid" condition.

It's some kind of local irritation. Otherwise it wouldn't happen just in that one area.

Call it a contact dermatitis, meaning that something which touches the skin bothers it. An allergy at the point of contact, in other words.

Sometimes it is metal. People are sensitized with the earrings or other kinds of jewelry.

One answer is, first, to leave the wedding ring off for a time, to let the skin return to normal, and then to coat the metal, where it touches the skin, with a clear lacquer. (In the case of a wedding ring, if you don't want to leave it off, perhaps you could wear it on a chain around your neck.)

Another possible source of trouble is some soap, detergent, cleaning powder or other chemical which remains, even in small quantity, under the ring. Here again removal of the ring, until the skin gets over its itchy redness, followed by care not to let the chemical accumulate, is the answer.

Dear Dr. Molner: What do you think about a brother-in-law who reads medical books and thinks my mother-in-law, who is very ill, should have medicine the books refer to? He wants me to sit for hours and listen to him read about her illness and the medicine he thinks our doctor should give her? — Mrs. J. M.

He sounds as though he needs a psychiatrist.

Today in History

Feb. 9, 1965 . . .

One of history's most dramatic speeches was made by Winston Churchill, then British prime minister during the Second World War, when he appealed to the U.S. 24 years ago today—in 1941—to provide arms for Britain to enable the beleaguered island to beat the Germans. The speech contained the now famous phrase: "Give us the tools and we will finish the job," Churchill promised: "We shall not fail or falter; we shall not weaken or tire . . ."

Fifty years ago today—in 1915—French troops held the heights of Les Eparges against repeated German attacks; Austro - German forces advanced in Bukowina, occupying Wams, but their attacks in the Carpathian Mountains were repulsed.

Filling a long-wanted need in the eastern part of Belleville, the S.W.A. Co. open air ice rink was officially opened by His Worship the Mayor on Wednesday evening, when the Stewart Warner-Alemite Corporation held a skating and winter frolic for their friends and families.

Not only were there hundreds to enjoy the skating on the new S.W.A.C.O. rink, that is lighted with a strong battery of floodlights giving it a likeness of daylight, but old-fashioned winter sleigh rides were organized for the plant employees who did not desire to skate, rounded out a perfect winter frolic program that concluded with refreshments in the company recreational parlors.

Ottawa Offbeat
Conservatives Aid Liberals Avoid Harmful Headlines

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Isn't it fantastic, almost incredible, the way the feuding Conservatives, seemingly, again, determined on self-mutilation, have been making all those unflattering headlines and destructive news broadcasts?

With the Dorion investigation in progress, the dismissal of Yvon Dupuis from the Cabinet and other ministerial embarrassments plaguing Prime Minister Pearson, this, at all times, should have been a period when the Conservatives might better have left the headlines to the Liberals.

What political profit there might have been for them, in these last couple of weeks, to have remained quiet or, at least, kept their party troubles decently to themselves and left the Government with a damaging monopoly of the big type on the front pages.

And the Government, oddly, seemed to be doing everything in its power to assist the Conservatives.

While the Dorion Commission churned out its daily quota of rumors, gossip and scandal-tidbits of improprieties in high Government places, Prime Minister Pearson, perhaps overwhelmed by the melancholy prospect of even more unpleasantness to come, did nothing to counteract it.

Nor did any members of the Cabinet.

They could have taken at least some of the emphasis off the scandal news, had they made news of a more constructive nature.

ONLY SILENCE

They might have used the always dependable device of the press conference to announce this or that — anything that might indicate action and a will to rise above the political misfortune of what have been termed "ministerial peccadilloes."

Or the Prime Minister or any of his Cabinet colleagues could have made news with any number of Government announcements.

But no.

There was only embarrassed silence from the Cabinet offices and the continuing story, told gleefully, in the headlines and radio bulletins, of politically unsavory happenings in high places.

Then, unbelievably, into this embarrassed silence the Government was maintaining thundered the Conservatives, making news with their untidy family quarrels.

It seemed that if the Liberals were unwilling or unable to attempt to take the news spotlight off the unflattering story of questionable conduct and worse exposed in their own high command, the Conservatives were more than ready to oblige.

So, as they have done in the past, they competed for space on Page One by shouting on their own leader, and their messy family spat shared the big type with the Government's continuing ministerial mishaps.

It got so that the Conservative word "Dump Diefenbaker" rebellion could take the news play away from the Liberals and their woes with Quebec furniture deals, tinkerings with gangland deportations and seeming sociability with the mafiia.

DIEF TRIES

And if you think that feelings may run high between Liberals and Conservatives during election campaigns, you should have been around Parliament Hill's Centre Block in recent days to see what real hostility can be!

The splattered Conservatives were like two armed camps — and there was one day when it looked like they were coming to actual blows in the Parliamentary cafeteria.

The Quebec Conservative rebels, notably Leon Balcer, the Three Rivers MP who was supposed to be Dief's deputy, and Paul Martineau, one of his former Cabinet Ministers, were sounding off on how, for the sake of National Unity, he had to go.

It apparently didn't occur to any of those concerned that such a feuding group of Parliamentarians and such a divided party was scarcely in a position to lecture anybody about unity, national or any other variety.

In turn, some of the Ontario Conservative loyalists, particularly Doug Alkenbrack, MP for Prince Edward Lennox, were talking of slugging Martineau and company as traitors and trouble - makers (Alkenbrack could probably do it, too, if seriously he was of such a mind, for at the close of the Flag Debate, needled, he popped James Byrne, Liberal MP for Kootenay West, square on the nose.)

All served only to further attract public attention which otherwise might have been directed to the ever-compounding Cabinet difficulties of the Liberals.

Dief attempted to re-focus the public eye when reporters, asking him what was new in the "leadership crisis" in turn were asked what was new in "ministerial indiscretions." But, he couldn't beat the competition his own party was giving him.

Letter to the Editor

Advocates Entrance To Buildings' Rear

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

Many citizens wonder no doubt, as I do, if the fire loss in the weekend will prompt city council to action. It certainly must have been frustrating for firemen not to be able to get a larger aerial ladder in behind the buildings.

It has been suggested, many times, that the empty Legault property and the old stone warehouse behind Ireland's Store be purchased or expropriated to gain an entrance. The usual answer given by the Department of Highways would not allow an exit onto number 2 Highway, as traffic is heavy about an exit? The suggestion is and has been for an entrance. It is doubtful if the department could refuse this especially in view of the fact that this entrance would open over No. 401 and not the Belleville lower bridge.

At any time, such an entrance would allow access for vehicles delivering goods to those stores which have their entrance on Front Street of that traffic. It would provide an "in" for those desiring to park in the rear area. Most important of all, it would open a way for the largest fire fighting equipment.

Everyone loses in a fire such as occurred regardless of insurance coverage. In this particular case, professional offices, merchants, landlords and other businesses together with their workers are involved all of whom produce revenue for the city. Possibly a large pumper and aerial ladder at the rear could have cut down the loss.

It is the duty of city officials to carefully examine the entire Front Street area now and take action where needed. Such action should be immediate not just to protect a very large group of property and business taxpayers but for the safety of those persons living in apartments over Front Street. True it is somewhat late, but not late than never.

"Citizen".

British Plane Workers Irked

LONDON (Reuters) — Some 2,000 aircraft workers marched through the streets of London today to protest against the government's decision to buy American aircraft instead of British for the RAF.

The government announced last week its decision to cancel orders to the British Hawker-Siddeley P-1154 vertical takeoff jet fighter and the 115-681 transport in favor of American planes.

Rotarians Hear Talk on Income Tax Problems

Belleville Rotarians moved out to the Sun Valley Motor Inn for their regular weekly dinner meeting on Monday. An American Optical Convention, in progress at the usual meeting place the Hotel Quinte, necessitated the move.

Guest speaker for the occasion was J. M. "Max" Fell, former Director of Special Investigations for the Department of National Revenue for the Government.

Mr. Fell,entitled his address "Recollections of a Revenuer," outlining the differences between "evasion" and "avoidance" in "Evasion," Mr. Fell said, "is when people deliberately falsify records or make three or four sets of records, putting in false liabilities."

Mr. Fell said that in 1944 a special branch was formed for investigating tax evaders and during the war 175 million dollars was collected in back taxes. He said about 1800 cases were investigated and roughly 500 prosecuted.

The speaker said that most people worry about whether or not they are going to get a refund or a bill back from the income tax department. He said that the evasion area should be eradicated wherever possible and honest investigation encouraged.

SECRECY IMPORTANT

Mr. Fell stated that "income tax people are honestly trying to do a good job." He said that secrecy was most important but that in New Zealand the name of every tax evader was published.

He stated that the common man avoids the tax department because he feels he is getting a "royal fleecing" when he has to pay $50 or $60 while some corporations are not paying their fair share.

In closing, the speaker related some of the humorous experiences he had while with the investigation branch of the tax department.

Special guests at Monday's meeting were Tom Fell, chairman of the 1964 United Appeal Campaign, and vice-president for the 1965 campaign, and G. F. Cunningham, re-elected president of the United Appeal from 1964. Mr. Fell is the son of the guest speaker. The two men were invited to the meeting in recognition of a job well done during the 1964 United Appeal Campaign.

Rotary Club president, S. Reston, informed members that applications for the forthcoming Science Fair and Hobby Show, were not coming in as fast as expected. He urged all members to contact anyone they knew with a hobby.

Two long term employees of H. Corby Distilleries Ltd., Fred Furmidge, Sr. of Corbyville and Donald Milton, of Canniton, were honored recently by the staff and management at a retirement party.

Mr. Furmidge entered the employment of the company in 1921 and has had 44 years of continuous service, rising to the position of assistant mechanical superintendent; while Mr. Milton first entered the company's service in 1927 for a period of about 4 years, then returning in 1946 after military service with the dental corp. Medicare Plan No Bar to Federal One

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts said Monday night the province's medical care program will not be a bar to any federal plan which may be developed.

He told 534 members of four Ontario riding associations that he would like to avoid the hectic scramble that surrounded medicare when it was in the Canada Pension Plan.

However, he told reporters following the dinner that he was aware of any plans at the present to set up a federal medical care plan.

"Before anybody says I'm sabotaging anything, I want to point out there's nothing there to sabotage," he said.

The province's plan will be based on the report of the 14-member Hagey committee. He said this report now is at the printer's. The medical care plan for Ontario residents is expected to be presented during the present session of the legislature.

Three Charged In Kingston Armed Robbery

TORONTO (CP)—Three Toronto men were charged Monday with the armed robbery Sunday night of the Carol Ann Shop in Kingston.

Kingston police said the store was held up by one man armed with a gas-operated pellet gun, who took $600 and fled with two other men waiting in a parked car.

Massey Claims Monarchy Is Necessary

TORONTO (CP) — Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey said Monday night the monarchy is necessary to Canada's existence as a sovereign state and the Queen's visit of last October left it stronger than before in Canada.

The former governor-general said the conduct and words of the Queen in Quebec, where demonstrations broke out, caused French- and English-speaking Canadians to be realistic and perhaps to "face the issues more clearly."

Mr. Massey spoke at a testimonial dinner given in his honor by the Toronto Canadian Club. He has been a member since 1909 and an honorary life member since 1948. He is honorary president of the Association of Canadian Clubs.

Mr. Massey said:

"The monarchy is so essential to us that, without it as a bastion of Canadian nationality, of Canadian purpose and Canadian independence, we could not, in my view, remain a sovereign state.

Mr. Massey said the monarchy "lays claim equally to the affections of French- and English - speaking Canadians, and is something worth remembering in these times of somewhat discordant dialogue between the two founding races."

Successful Living —

Good Nursery School May Help Difficult Child

DEAR DORIS — Frequent moves are a way of life for my daughter and her husband, because of his work. This is hard on the little boy, who at three is having to make new friends.

Those in his neighborhood are four and five years of age, and he has taken to biting and kicking them. When his mother took him to nursery school he pleaded and begged her not to leave him.

Do you think permanent harm can result to his personality? He is hard to manage and his parents have been advised by friends to be strict with him.

What do you advise? — MOTHER MINNIE

DEAR MOTHER — No doubt about it, the shifting environment is taking its toll of the little fellow's sense of security.

DORIS CLARKE

Mother must give him more time, more love, more help in making pals and keeping them. Also much reliable firmness about his routines. If she can find or start a good nursery school, and have a part in it, this kind of skilled help could be a life-saver.

Best of all, of course, would be if his dad could get a job where he could light somewhere and stay there.

(My leaflet "Nursery Schools to the Rescue" is on its way to help you understand what is being done for many little tots. Available to others for ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am thinking of joining the R.C.M.P. Now a friend tells me that new recruits cannot get married until they have been five years with the force.

I have a wonderful girl and I don't think I could wait that long. — JOE.

* * *

DEAR JOE — Nor need you. It used to be five years. Now it's two. Can you invest this long in the fine training given by R.C.M.P. before taking the vows with your intended?

* * *

DEAR DORIS — In answer to Desperate's letter, I disagree with her father. I do not think that there is anything to regret.

I am 17 and had my ears pierced recently. My mother had her ears pierced as a little girl and this has not detracted in any way from her appearance. Desperate is old enough to make this decision. — MARY K.

* * *

DEAR MARY K. — Thank you. Maybe Desperate could show your message to her father and ask him to reconsider.

Origin of W.C.T.U. Groups Outlined at Recent Meet

The January meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held in Bridge Street United Church with Miss M. Barnum presiding. A fine devotional was given by Mrs. A. Wells. Mrs. E. Farnsworth gave some recent highlights on the current temperance issue.

Mrs. B. Way presented the clip sheet based on "Beginnings" and was assisted by three other ladies. The Youth Temperance Societies were begun at the first convention of the W.C.T.U. in 1874 and outlined by Miss Francis Willard. The plan was to teach youth in public schools and Sunday Schools the ethics, chemistry, psychology and hygiene of total abstinence. Teaching should be done by appeal to the eye as well as the ear, using object lessons, experiments and pictures. Text books should also be provided for pupils. The suggestion was also to organize Youth Temperance Unions and to use recitations, plays, songs and debates for public meetings; also to circulate the pledge and invite signers.

The influence of young women in the homes and social circles is also recognized and they are urged to do away with wine and liquors in their social gatherings and to show their disfavor with those who do become intemperate.

In 1879 two leaders were appointed for two departments of work, scientific temperance, better youth and a better world and the young women's work. The question was asked, "What have we today as a result of this early planning?" Today scientific temperance instruction is based on scientific facts presented by the most approved methods and techniques.

INTERNATIONAL CONVENTIONS

The first international convention was held in Niagara Falls, U.S.A., in 1876, when 26 young people from Canada attended and brought greetings from Canada. At this convention Miss Duff, field secretary, spoke on "Our Common Heritage." In 1935 the youth Temperance Society was named the Youth Temperance Council by a group of young people who attended the National convention at Atlantic City, New Jersey.

The Loyal Temperance Legion was first known as the Band of Hope and consisted of boys and girls banded together to learn the truth about alcohol. Miss Anna Gordon travelled all over the world to organize the Loyal Temperance Legion and when she came back she had 350,000 signatures.

The principles of the L.T.L. are: spiritual growth, mental stability, social guidance, good citizenship, character training, world friendship and training for total abstinence from alcohol and narcotic drugs. — W. Jenning Demorest originated the medal contest and hundreds of young people won bronze, silver and gold, also diamond medals. The first medal contest was held in the U.S.A., 1880, and in Canada in 1890.

The beginnings of the WCTU work is most interesting and presents a challenge to the WCTU of today.

Susanna's Family Fare

AS YOU WERE!

Dear Susanna: From time to time you have mentioned dozens of effective uses for baking soda but I have never noticed you use the one about adding a pinch to the cooking water of green vegetables to keep their color from fading. — Harriet Neris

Hold it right there Harriet, and drop that soda back in the box — not in the vegetable water. In this case what you gain in color you will lose in food value.

Baking soda added to green vegetables while cooking will destroy valuable vitamins, make them softer than they should be and even change the flavor. Our home economist suggests that for best results they be cooked in a small amount of boiling salted water until just tender-crisp. Remove the lid during the first five minutes of cooking to allow acids which turn vegetables brown to escape. — SUSANNA

NUMBER PLEASE

Dear Susanna: If ever you have occasion to wire relatives or friends of your arrival at the airport on a certain day at a given time always include your flight number in the telegram. Otherwise, if your plane is late, they may have a difficult time trying to check out the whereabouts of your particular plane with the airline company. — Roger.

READER SHARES TREASURED RECIPE

There are some splendid cooks in this audience who share their treasured recipes with me. Mrs. M. K. N. is one of them. She says: "I have been meaning to send you a recipe for raisin bars which came to me from someone in Tillsonburg, B.C. I have never managed to get the cake part as cakey as they should be, but it always turns out highly edible — in fact it disappears too fast."

Here, M. K. N.'s Raisin Bars and we all thought the finished product a real find and worthy of a turn on our show.

I hope the girls who have been requesting the recipe for Raisin Squares see this, for while it is a little different and richer than standard Raisin Squares it will please them no end. The cakey part is delicious.

RAISIN BARS (courtesy Mrs. M. K. N.):

Dough: 1 cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 cups sifted but not sifted all-purpose flour, 3 teaspoons single-acting baking powder, 1 egg.

Filling: 1 1/3 cups Sultana raisins, well-packed, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup boiling water, 1 tablespoon butter, juice and grated rind ½ lemon.

To Make Dough: In beater bowl beat butter with sugar until creamy. Add 1 cup of the flour and baking powder and egg and beat 2 minutes, then beat in remaining 1 cup flour.

To Make Filling: Stir together raisins, sugar, cornstarch and salt. Stir in boiling water over heat until thick. Remove from heat and add lemon juice, lemon rind, butter and cool to room temperature.

Divide dough in half. Press half evenly on bottom of buttered 9 x 9" square pan. Pour cooled raisin filling over. This filling is wet and you may be alarmed at its thinness but never fear — all turns out fine. Because you cannot press top half of dough over wet filling, you must roll it out. A slick trick is to place it on a sheet of wax paper, flatten it with your palms, place second sheet of wax paper over it and roll it out between sheets of wax paper with rolling pin to roughly size of pan. Peel off top sheet of wax paper, invert rolled-out dough over raisin filling, deftly smooth edges with fingertips, sprinkle top with granulated sugar and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. on centre rack of oven for 30 to 35 minutes. Serve warm cut into squares or bars. Could be accompanied by ice cream, whipped cream or white cream cheese or Cheddar cheese.

To Go With Three Favorite Apply Story . . . . . .

Apple pie and soft drinks or milk make a flavorful combination for after-school snacks, to tide hungry children over until dinner time. If they're in a great hurry to get out and play, a whole apple or apple slices freshly cut will satisfy them.

Three Favorite Apples Win Approval of Ontario Women

Ontario has three favorite apples — the McIntosh, the Northern Spy and the Red Delicious. The Macs represent more than a third of Ontario's 6,000,000 bushel crop. With the other two they comprise the entire million bushels that go into controlled atmosphere storage.

These three apples have won top honors from the housewives because they are colorful and flavorful. The McIntosh and Delicious are tops in order for fresh eating. The Northern Spy is not only good fresh but is a good cooker too. It makes a superb apple pie or pudding, holding its form and not becoming mushy.

The apple growers of Ontario have told the story of the birth of these three apples in a new folder they have just put out, called Ontario Apples Please.

McINTOSH

Canada's favorite apple—and now a favorite throughout the world, is the McIntosh. It is all-Canadian. The McIntosh is Ontario's gift to the world. It originated in Dundas County over 150 years ago.

John McIntosh settled in the township of Matilda, County of Dundas, Ontario, and began clearing land for his homestead. There he found about 20 young apple trees. These trees he cared for and one of them was the original tree which later bore his name and is now known as the McIntosh Red. Through the vision and effort of this Canadian pioneer, Canada and North America have profited much. Any grower today would be proud if he could give to the world an apple with as many virtues and as much appeal as has the McIntosh.

It stands to the credit of John McIntosh that he was able to recognize the merits of this one accidental seedling. That he did recognize it is proved by the fact that he first began selling apples from this one tree. It was not so well recognized in those days that apples did not come true from seed.

In 1835 Allan McIntosh, John's son, introduced the propagation of the McIntosh by grafting and buddings, and the actual introduction of the real McIntosh dates from that time. The original tree flourished until 1894 when it was so badly damaged by fire that it finally died in 1906.

RED DELICIOUS

The Red Delicious was discovered in 1872 by Jesse Hiatt of Iowa, only he called it the "Hawkeye." It was introduced commercially by the Stark Brothers Nursery of Louisiana, Mo., in 1893 under the name of "Delicious." The change of name was due to a mix-up.

In 1893 the Stark Brothers held an exhibit for new fruit and Hiatt sent four specimens of the Hawkeye. The name of the sender was missing and the nursery gave it the name of Delicious to identify it.

For no other purpose than to find the sender, the nursery set up another show the following year and asked all who had entered previously to do so again.

Fortunately Hiatt entered again and the Starks were able to make a deal for the tree and all rights to propagate it.

NORTHERN SPY

The Northern Spy originated on the farm of Heman Chapin, East Bloomfield, N.Y., about 1800. He secured apple seed from Connecticut for the purpose of grafting named varieties on them when they grew. He selected the hardiest seedlings and left the rest. Among the ones left, unknown to him, was the Northern Spy.

A neighbor, Roswell Humphrey, dug up some sprouts which had come up around this seedling and planted them.

The original tree died before it bore. The Spy takes 12 to 15 years to come into bearing, so Humphrey's trees, by good luck, saved the variety.

The Spy is rather slow in bearing and fastidious and exacting in its soil and climatic requirements. Its production is limited. It is most at home in Ontario.

Ann Landers

Tranquility Under Stress Brings Good Results

DEAR ANN LANDERS—This letter is for "Outa My Mind," the gal whose husband stays out till all hours and "forgets" to telephone her.

This poor thing says she's been married only two years. Well, I've got news for her — it's going to get worse, so she's better learn how to deal with it. After plenty of heartaches I finally resorted to professional help and found the solution. I'll give it to "Outa" for the price of this newspaper.

ANN LANDERS

First: The louse will come home. They always do.

Second: Make up your mind that you will not greet him at the door with "Where have you been? Why didn't you call? I've been worried sick."

This is not easy to do when he smells like a brewery and has trouble getting the key in the lock.

The next morning don't utter one word about what happened the night before. Soon he will be apologizing all over himself. Then say, "it's all right, dear," and smile when you say it.

I followed this procedure for three months and it cured my husband completely. — HAPPY NOW.

* * *

DEAR HAPPY — Wonderful idea. Your formula of nonviolence and passive resistance is not only saintly but wise. It also requires enormous self-control and understanding. The results are worth the effort and it does work.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — There is a rumor going around school that it is possible to get lip cancer if you kiss a boy who smokes a lot and has the beginning of lip cancer.

Is this true or not? Can you tell us what lip cancer looks like? Thanks a lot. You're a pal. — TROUBLED GROUP.

* * *

DEAR GROUP — I'm a doctor now but not a physician — and only a physician is qualified to give medical advice. I consulted, however, with a physician who specializes in skin cancer, and he said it is not possible to get lip cancer from kissing a person — even if the person has lip cancer.

It is unwise, however, to kiss anyone who has a sore on his lip because you could get something deadlier than lip cancer, and I'm talking about syphilis. Sores which are stubborn about healing (particularly if they are around the mouth) should be seen by a physician without delay.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My sister lost her husband several years ago. He left her well fixed, financially. They had no children.

Recently my sister told me she has written her will and generous sums will go to our son (her nephew) and the daughter of my brother (her niece).

We have an adopted daughter who is 17. We adopted her when she was an infant but she is just as dear to us as our son who is our flesh and blood. This sister was against the adoption and said so.

She has always been pleasant to the girl, however, calls and asks her to run errands, and has invited her on some lovely trips. (We always paid the girl's way.)

I think it is terrible that my sister is not including our daughter in her will and I'd like to know if I should ask her why. Yes or no? — AUSTIN HEARTACHE.

* * *

DEAR AUSTIN — No. An inheritance is a gift. Your sister does not owe either an explanation or apology. You sound a little money-hungry to me, Lady.

NEW TECHNICIANS — Jeanne Sprackett and Fay Rudman, radiological technicians from the Belleville General Hospital training school, following graduation exercises in Kingston on Saturday. Both girls will remain at Belleville hospital.

Hospital Radiological Students Graduate at Ceremony

Two of the graduates — Glenda Fay Rudman and Frances Jeanne Sprackett, were from Belleville, three from Brockville, two from Cornwall, 10 from Kingston General Hospital and six from Hotel Dieu at Kingston.

Graduation certificates were presented by Dr. S. L. Franman of Kingston, and pins by Mrs. B. Kennedy, representing the Eastern Section of the Ontario Society of Radiological Technicians. The guest speaker was Dr. J. B. Firstbrook, Associate Dean of Medicine, Queen's University.

White Cane Club President Describes How Blind 'See'

"To the blind, sound is almost a way of life," says Miss Pat Baverstock, President of the Belleville White Cane Club in a White Cane Week. The week of February 7 to 13 is being observed by the local group. "Sent to a friendly person who offers a hand in traffic, sound is the best guide in the world," says Miss Baverstock.

The President told how blind persons listen for the sound of plates sliding across the table at meal time, or the closing of a door when someone goes out. Some blind persons can make an accurate estimate of the distance of a building from the street or tell where the trees are on the lawn.

In industry, sound devices are also proving useful tools for blind employees. One man, with a radio factory, checks the quality of speakers by a tone test. The test indicates by different levels the sound standard of each speaker.

Miss Baverstock clears away a much misquoted theory. "Blind people do not develop a sixth sense", she says. "We listen hard to learn all that a particular sound can tell us."

"Sometimes this leads to annoyance. The normal rattle of dishes in a restaurant often sounds noisy and automobile engines suddenly revved up, will startle a blind person. Other sounds are beautiful—bicycle tires crooning over the street, or water falling over rocks. Winter has its special sounds—skaters on a well-frozen rink and the hush of the world in general after a new snowfall."

"Sound is a wonderful medium", the President says, "but it has its limitations. That is why we of the world of sound appreciate the friendly guidance of you sighted folk when the street gets too busy for white cane travel. That is why we invite you to 'Let the White Cane Introduce Us.' We'll welcome your approach and be glad of your help."

Income Tax Explained
A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to engage the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax office.
By C. A. MILLER
Retired Supervising Assessor, Income Tax Department
WHO ARE DEPENDENTS?
You may claim as dependents those individuals you actually support and who come within the provisions of the Income Tax Act and its regulations. You may not claim as a dependent anyone whose income for the year was in excess of $600.
If you supported a dependent for part of the year but a new dependent earned over $600 during the taxation year, there would be no allowable claim. This applies where a child started working after finishing school.
There is no claim for nieces and nephews, aunts or uncles, unless there are circumstances that take them out of these categories, such as their being adopted children or foster parents. This will be covered in more detail in a future column.
If the child is over 21 a claim may still be made for $550 exemption providing it is in full time attendance at a school or university. The claim is also allowable if such child is mentally or physically infirm.
There is one new provision for dependent brothers or sisters attending university who are over 21 years of age. In prior years a taxpayer supporting a brother or sister over 21 had no claim at all. It was only the parent that could make a claim but the 1964 tax legislation allows a taxpayer to claim his brother or sister whom he is supporting and educating when they are over 21 years.
You may not claim as a dependant anyone whom you do not actually support, regardless of the fact they have not been claimed by anyone else. A working son or daughter will often try to claim younger brothers and sisters, in view of the fact the father does not need all of them to make him contaxable.
QUESTION 1: Can I claim my two younger brothers' My father does not need them to make him non-taxable?
ANSWER: No. You must pay their entire keep to have a claim.
QUESTION 2: Can I claim a cousin who now lives with me and has no income?
ANSWER: No.

Civil Servants Clamor For Bilingual Courses

By RONALD LESEL

OTTAWA (CP) — With bilingualism now in fashion in the federal civil service, English-speaking government workers—especially those with better than average positions — are clamoring for an opportunity to learn French.

More than 300 civil servants in middle and upper echelons have gone back to school to acquire a working knowledge of a second language, and more than 600 are waiting for openings later this year.

"We get telephone inquiries constantly," Yves Guerin, chief of language training for the Civil Service Commission, "You can say that thousands are interested in learning French—a very high proportion of the English - speaking civil servants in Ottawa."

Mr. Guerin, 43, supervises the government's language school in neighboring Hull, Que. The school started in February, 1964, with four teachers, 54 full-time students and a $13,000 language laboratory. Today it has 35 French and English teachers, 160 students and a second language lab. All students are volunteers.

Mr. Guerin has also been busy with a new school in suburban Ottawa to be opened in mid-February. It can provide part-time language training to between 400 and 500 civil servants at a time.

PLAN SATELLITES

Mr. Guerin, a fluently bilingual Montrealer, was a squad-ron leader in charge of the RCAF's language school at St. Johns, Que., before he transferred to the civil service last August.

He said in an interview he hopes to open two or three satellite language schools next September in Ottawa suburbs where the federal government has clusters of office buildings. These will make it more convenient for even more civil servants to pick up a knowledge of French or polish up their English.

He said he has not encountered any hostility to the bilingual drive among government officials who speak English mostly. The only cheek came from a division heads who naturally did not want to lose too many staff assistants at any one time.

The French courses are all patterned after the oral - visual St. Cloud method developed by the French education ministry. Traditional stress on grammar and literature is ignored altogether.

Each class is limited to eight to 10 students. Using pictures, tape recorders and an electronic sound system, the teachers encourage the students to engage in conversations.

Students at the Hull school attend classes four to six hours each working day for four or five months. They concentrate on picking up a basic vocabulary of 1,500 words.

OVERCOME FEAR

Students at the satellite schools will attend classes one hour each day for six or eight months. These courses are designed for busy high - ranking officials who cannot spare any more time away from their desks.

Mr. Guerin said the first language - course alumni already have begun to write French letters and converse in French.

A smaller number of French-Canadians, who have to speak English to qualify for most civil service - jobs, are taking advanced English courses to improve their writing proficiency.

Mr. Guerin said oral French teachers have good results with civil servants who studied French for five or six years in elementary and secondary schools.

"They're making out very well. They have a passive vocabulary of perhaps 5,000 words but don't dare speak French. After a certain point in the oral course, they suddenly break the sound barrier and start speaking French fluently."

Many more civil servants volunteer for night French lessons at Ottawa high schools. The government has long-term plans to open language schools in other outside Ottawa but the local program will be built up first.

Mr. Guerin keeps in close touch with the research staff of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, informing the commission of the lessons learned from experience at the Hull school.

Protect Car With Proper Lubrication

By EUGENE B. MILNOR

"If it squeaks, grease it" does not apply to your car. Engines of course can't run smoothly unless — or far very long — without lubrication, and no one would allow the crankcase to run dry. But the same care is also needed elsewhere, suspension, etc. Besides saving wear, proper lubricant promotes easier starting and softer riding . . . modern parts to minimize noises and bumping on rough roads.

Few service stations will remind you when your car is due — or overdue — for a good greasing. It's up to you to follow the schedule recommended by your car. True, some independent experts say you can safely stretch the intervals between chassis lubrication if cars are careful in your car's manual . . . but it doesn't really pay, especially when your car is subjected to something more than average driving. For example, a car which often travels over dirt or gravel roads and in all kinds of weather, will certainly need more lube attention than one used primarily on highways and turnpikes when the weatherman is showing his best.

S. T. asks: "I keep all tires about four pounds harder than the pressure specified for my car. Is this harmful?"

No — in fact, many experts recommend this practice. Underinflation is another story. It can tires fast.

F. C.: "I want to sell my 1964 6-cylinder sedan. There's only 9,300 miles on the clock, it runs very well, and the interior and exterior show it's been well kept. How much should I get for it?"

About 70-75 percent of the original cost.

T. L. writes: "A garage discovered my engine's headgasket was rotting and causing leakage. Why would the gasket rot — the car is only 3 years old?"

In the past two weeks, several readers have asked whether — in cold winter months — it's best to warm up the engine by idling, or by getting underway immediately. Our advice is to let it warm up easily for a few minutes until oil begins to circulate fully and chilled parts limber up. Attempting to move off immediately after the starting usually results in stalling and a tendency to flood the engine when re-starting.

sent reiterates that to invade Viet Nam is tantamount to inviting China" and "Chinese people are prepared to support Viet Nam against United States aggression."

Observers said the government statement was similar to the statement condemning U.S. air attacks on North Viet Nam during the Gulf of Tonkin crisis last August. Some passages were repeated in almost identical phrasing.

Monday night a statement issued by the New China news agency condemned the "piratical action" against North Viet Nam and said China would not "stand idly by."

Without mentioning the current visit to North Viet Nam of Russian Premier Kosygin, today's government statement demanded in stronger terms than previous statements on Viet Nam that other Communist countries should help.

Barry Zorthian disclosed plans to de-fly out all 1,500 Americandependants within about 10 days.

President Johnson ordered their evacuation following attacks on U.S. bases in Pleiku and Tuy Hoa, Sunday by communist Viet Cong guerrillas, and retaliatory U.S. and Vietnamese air strikes on North Vietnamese barracks and staging areas.

President Johnson warned Monday that the United States would answer any threat, take up any challenge and pay any price to preserve freedom.

CLEAR WARNING

Observers interpreted the statement as a clear warning that the U.S. would launch air attacks on military targets in North Viet Nam whenever the Communists made serious attacks on U.S. installations in South Viet Nam.

In Moscow, Premier Kremlin warned that U.S. air action against North Viet Nam will "create international conditions" to step up the defence potential of the Hanoi regime.

The Russian statement, issued more than 24 hours after Sunday's U.S. air strikes, coincided with a Peking statement that China "will not stand idly by."

Moscow's statement condemned the American actions as "serious provocations" and "piratical raids."

The picture of mental health care described by Dr. Dymond must be considered, he said, because when psychiatric wings are added to general hospitals, community mental health clinics sometimes close.

Mr. Lewis also criticized conditions at the Ontario Mental Hospital in Toronto, which he said is acutely short of staff, lacking in follow-up services and faced with sanitation problems.

Mr. Drouin asked what Mr. Rouleau's duties were as parliamentary secretary. Mr. Rouleau replied that Mr. Pearson sent to him various files for examination. He received persons the prime minister didn't have time to see.

The Liberal MP said it could happen on occasion that he would receive an immigration file for examination. Files concerned several departments on subjects Mr. Pearson did not have time to study himself.

Mr. Rouleau said Raymond Daoust, a lawyer for Rivard and Mafia figure Joseph (Bananas) Bonanno, formerly was parliamentary secretary to Mr. Pearson and thus had access to various departments.

But Mr. Rouleau denied he had acted as parliamentary secretary in making representations to Immigration Minister Tremblay on behalf of Bonanno, who was expelled from Canada July 30, 1964.

The inquiry resumed with the usual number of spectators, nearly all middle - aged women.

The MP was in the witness box when the inquiry adjourned at Montreal Jan. 29.

The Brink's Ordeal

Somebody Out There Loves Their Money

By SID MOODY

CHICAGO (AP)—In the getrich-right-now dreams of the underworld, few lodgings are the equal of those the gilded word "Brink's."

It is safe to say (because the president of Brinks himself says it) that there is always someone in Brink's quarters plotting darkly, thinking deeply, biting his nails and emoking far into the night to devise a way to crack Brink's and one of its homely little trucks with all that money inside.

"If crooks spent the energy legitimately that they do plotting against us, they'd all be corporation presidents," said Brink's corporation president A. S. Geese.

As elite low crack Brink's and gain riches. Others die trying and become Brink's and its money are not easily parted. The next jaut dream on, resigned to being not even an uninvited participant in a business that at trunches $262,500,000.00 about the country each year, a sum equal in value to half the total national income.

Brink's sees its mission in life as twofold—to make money for itself and to carry it for any one else. If you do business by cheque instead of cash, you can still do business with Brink's although the company good naturedly discourages that aspect of its greatest enemy next to the Hallowe'en mask. Brink's does a brisk trade carrying cheques between banks to be cancelled deposited, etc.

Brink's armored cars have also carried the Magna Carta, the original manuscript of the Gettysburg Address, a gold-plated bathwater heater to a plumbing convention, and $250,000 in silver dollars that a war concern spread across the floor for its convention.

VARIOUS DUTIES

A Brink's truck waited patiently night after night in Kansas City with $300 in silver dollars inside to present to Rocky Colavito when the Athletics' outfielder hit his 300th career homer. Rocky tried but No. 300 came, unfortunately, when he was on the road in Minneapolis-St. Paul. Brink's has stood guard over ballot boxes in union elections and is forever delivering and protecting $1,000,000 in cash that promotion-minded stores delight in displaying in their windows.

Brink's cashes and delivers payrolls, too, and collects parking meter coins for such cities as Rochester, N.Y., and Chicago where it has a bonus that it sees the silver from the profit to the tune of about 80 bags of more than the gilded word "Brink's."

To do all this, Brink's 1,000 armored trucks make 60,000 pickups and deliveries across the United States every day handling an average of $1,000,000,000. In addition to carry $788,000,000 in gold from, say, Denver to New York with a crew of guards riding secret station-wagons armed with the same type of Winchester rifles that real life Andy Devine used to clutch atop the stage coaches back in the bad old days.

That's how Brink's makes its money. How it keeps it is another story. The great Boston Brink's robbery that made the company a household word has long since been chalked up to experience—and profit. Brink's thinks the 156 holes of 23,000,000 halped business because the next day the company went around paying off, proving that if Brink's lost, at least its customers did not.

"We data everything from the last holdup around here," said Donald Hoagland, vice-president in charge of operations. "That would be last Dec. 29 in Norridge, Ill., when a gang hit a truck for $225,000, the fourth try for a score on Brink's in the last two years.

DIRTY WORD

Since "holdup" is a dirty word in the money business, it is apparently good Brinkamanship not to mention it. Guest, a tall, hunky man who is as trim as a crisp new dollar bill, rarely utters the word. He talks instead about an "unfortunate circumstance" or "a problem" or "one of those things."

"You have to learn to live with those things," he said. "But when the phone rings at home, you wonder 'oh God, what next? But usually it's just one of the children."

To stay one up on the hoods Brink's is always mulling over security procedures and the design of its trucks to try and discover any chinks in their armor. The company trained its own safecracker to test the safes it rents to customers. The safe men works under conditions any yegg would trade his blowtorch for — right on the doorstep that says: "Private — safecracker at work."

A recent security improvement is an electric lock on the truck doors so they can be opened only from the sealed off driver's cab. It works fine. The other day a guard inadvertently slammed the door as he was leaving the cab. The end of the crew stood around for some time until a passerby from the shop could be summoned to let them back in the locked truck.

Ever since someone stole 15 police uniforms from a Chicago cleaning shop, Brink's will not open the doors of its trucks or its truckers or its headquarters here to a strange policeman.

"If they want to give us a ticket, fine," said Hoagland. "But they'll have to take us down to the station before we open the door."

WOODPECKERS' WORLD

There are more than 400 different kinds of woodpeckers, found in all parts of the world except Australia and Madagascar.

"You never saw anything so brave! Shagbranded she tackled the five-o'clock rush from the Acme Office Building!"

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

It looks like only one thing short of a miracle and that is sheer determination, guts and desire can bring Bobby Hull the coveted all-time goals-getting record of the National Hockey League.

They tell me the shrill war-whoops of loyal Point Anne fans loudened by the cheers of numbers of Belleville fans echoed in Maple Leaf Gardens Saturday night.

And Hull repaid them by breaking his seven-games' goal famine but he didn't know that that sinister jinx, injury, was lurking in the background.

An eye-witness tells me that the "Stop-Hull-and-you-stop-the-Hawks" tactics were never more in evidence. One Leafian "star" looking for the honor of reuidering Hull hors-de-combat had at him like a knight of old in the joustings.

Hull ducked the high-stick charge and the hero-in-the making flip-flopped and spent the next two minutes in the sin-bin.

But the damage came later when Hull was checked heavily by Tiff Horton with the result that he suffered a knee injury that kept him out of Sunday's game and likely more this week.

Now he has 28 games left to score the thirteen goals necessary to crack the three-way record. But the injury, reports say, will necessitate him sitting out two games at least and possibly three which reduces his "chore" to scoring his "13" in possibly 17 games.

The injury to Hull did not come as a bolt out of the blue either to the Hawks' Hull or his fans. With other clubs exerting tremendous pressure that made him a "marked man", the occupational hazard increased.

He was limping noticeably when he left the Gardens after the injured member had been heavily taped. And he took the injury in stride.

"There's a physical price," he told reporters after the game. "One time Horton reached down and pulled the feet from under me. But little accidents happen when a guy has a job to do."

While the next city or so will reveal just how serious the injury is, Hull played it down after the game. "I think it's a bit twisted, nothing serious."

As a matter of fact it is a wonder that the injury gremlin hasn't ridden successful herd on Hull before this. Opposing clubs have organized special defences for his goal-scoring forays. They have assigned special "policemen" to spike the sharp-shooter's guns.

There may be some players in the NHL who do not agree that Hull has the potential of becoming one of the game's greatest. But the majority like the Point Anne blonde Bomber.

Gordie Howe is one of them. "Hull," he said, "is a nice guy and earns every goal he gets. But my one wish is (with tongue in cheek) that he gets the flu every time we play the Black Hawks."

Some anti-Hull fans claim that his 30-40 minutes ice time is being done for the express purpose of breaking the record—and they add—it will shorten his hockey career.

Not so Black Hawks coach Billy Reay.

"He's a strong guy and thrives on work," says Billy "The more he plays the better he gets. They used to say Jack Adams was playing Gordie Howe so much he'd burn him out, but I notice Howe is still around. And wouldn't I give a lot to have him."

Hull's injury puts that elusive goals-record a little farther away, more difficult to reach or break. Perhaps it is a little too much to expect now, but unless he can come up with "cluster" efforts of two or three in a game, it will take a superhuman effort to score 13 goals in 17 games.

But it can be done—and I hope he does it.

Habs' Slump Helps Hawks Reach Top

MONTREAL (CP) — Chicago Black Hawks took advantage of Montreal Canadiens four-game losing streak to move into first place in the National Hockey League standings.

Chicago won two of their three games last week for a total of 59 points, two more than Montreal, who have two games at hand.

NHL statistics released today showed Toronto Maple Leafs retained their one-point lead for third place with 55 points, Detroit Red Wings fourth with 54, New York Rangers fifth with 41 and Boston Bruins in the cellar with only 30 points.

The Wings have three games more to play than either Toronto or Chicago and one more than Montreal.

The last time Montreal lost four straight games was back in October, 1956. If Montreal lose their next game it will mark the first time they have lost five straight since December, 1950.

Bobby Hull of the Hawks, who snapped a six-game scoreless streak with a goal Saturday, had his lead atop the individual scoring race further enlarged by teammate Stan Mikita.

Hull, out of action for at least seven more games with a twisted knee picked up in Toronto Saturday, has 47 points, including 28 goals. Mikita has 42 points and leads in assists with 43.

Norm Ullman of Detroit is in third place in the individual scoring race with 48 points, three up on New York Phil Goyette, who added six points last week.

Roger Crozier of Detroit recorded his fifth shutout of the season last week to lead in that department. Crozier has been scored on 115 times to put him in the lead among goaltenders although he has played fewer games than his nearest rivals. Toronto has 120 goals against, Montreal 122 and Chicago 123.

Coaches Choose 'The Best'

NEW YORK (CP) — Dave Keon of Toronto Maple Leafs has been named the National Hockey League's fastest skater and Bob Pulford, another Leaf centre, was selected the best penalty killer in a poll of the circuit's coaches.

The poll, taken by the magazine Hockey Illustrated, also resulted in the selection of Chicago's Bobby Hull as possessing the hardest shot, Toronto's Bob Baun as the hardest bodychecker among the defencemen and Detroit's Gordie Howe as most likely to score on breakaways.

Keon received three votes as the fastest skater while Hull collected two and Montreal's Henri Richard had one.

Pulford polled four votes as the outstanding penalty-killer. Don Marshall of New York Rangers was named on the other two ballots. Baun topped the hard-as-bodychecker balloting with three votes. Boston's Leo Boivin had two and Ted Green, another Bruin, received one.

The voting participants were Punch Imlach of the Leafs, Toe Blake of the Canadiens, Milt Scamidt of the Bruins, Red Sullivan of the Rangers, Sid Abel of Detroit Red Wings and Billy Reay of the Black Hawks.

'The Duke' Returns To Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (CP)—Slugger Duke Snider has rejoined Los Angeles Dodgers organization as a scout and minor league batting instructor.

Snider, who spent the last two seasons with New York Mets and San Francisco Giants, had a lifetime batting average of .295 for 18 seasons.

Snider will report to Vero Beach, Fla., in March, giving hitting instructions during the farm system training period. He will scout the area from Oceanside, Calif., to the Mexican border.

CROW GETS WISH

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis football Cardinals traded running back John David Crow to San Francisco 49ers Monday for defensive cornerback Abe Woodson. Crow had asked to be traded, saying that he didn't get to play enough for the Cardinals last season. He came back from a leg injury in 1964 to lead the Cardinals in rushing for the fourth time in six seasons with 564 yards on 183 carries.

Arena Busy Spot This Wednesday

While this city's minor hockey teams are busy on the ice at Memorial Arena tomorrow (Wednesday) night, the Belleville Minor Softball Association will have the limelight in the same building.

The B.M. Softball Association has called its annual general meeting at 8.00 p.m., also at the arena.

All of last year's coaches, assistants, officials and other interested parties are invited to attend the important meeting. Plans will be made for the coming season.

Meanwhile, on the ice, OMHA playdowns will get under way at 7.00 o'clock.

Kingston and Belleville Rollins clash in peewee playdowns at 7.00 and Kingston and Belleville Oddfellows tangle in bantam playdowns at 8.30.

Earlier, Belleville Riteway novices and Trenton play an exhibition, at 5.30, hockey game, also in Memorial Arena.

Return Uncertain

Hull Has Cast Removed

CHICAGO (AP) — Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks had the cast removed from his injured right knee Monday.

Hull, who leads the National Hockey League with 38 goals and 61 points, injured the knee at Toronto in a 4-3 victory over the Leafs Saturday night. The diagnosis was torn ligaments.

Hull is expected to miss the home-and-home series against Detroit Red Wings Wednesday and Thursday. He also sat out last Sunday's game against Toronto.

Dr. Myron Translise, team physician, said he does not expect Hull to see action until at least Saturday against New York Rangers and probably not until Saturday's game with Montreal Canadiens.

Hawk coach Billy Reay is afraid Hull may try to come back too soon and further aggravate the injury, which could sideline him indefinitely.

Lacroix And Hodge

Junior Stars Leave Pack

TORONTO (CP)—Andre Lacroix of Peterborough Petes and Ken Hodge of St. Catharines Black Hawks continued to pour on the coals last week in their fierce drive at the top of the individual point-getting list in the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series.

Lacroix scored seven goals and assisted on five others during three games in the week to boost his points total to 113—including a league-leading 69 assists. Hodge closed the gap to second place slightly with six goals and seven assists in four games for a total of 102 points. Hodge leads the league in goals with 52.

Below the leaders there was a general reshuffle. Ron Buchanan of Oshawa Generals, in third place a week earlier, was idle because of a knee injury and dropped to ninth with 78 points.

His place was taken by Dan Grant of Peterborough, who racked up eight points and sent his total to 85. Brian MacDonald of the Black Hawks jumped to fourth position from eighth with a nine-point display, including seven goals. Tied with him at 84 points is Sandy Fitzpatrick of Kitchener Rangers, who added eight points to his total during the week and climbed from seventh place.

Bernie Parent's goals-against-average as league leading goaltender dropped to 2.47 from 2.40 a week before, but he remained far ahead of the opposition.

Central Scouting Proposed For CFL

Response 'Hopeful'

By JOE DUPUIS

MONTREAL (CP) — Talent Scout J. I. Albrecht said Monday the fate of his scheme for a central scouting system hangs in the balance of the Canadian Football League meetings in Ottawa this week.

Albrecht said he made the league an "exclusive offer" of the scouting plan in a brief at the CFL's recent meetings in Chicago, and said the latital response was "hopeful."

He said he offered to sell the service to the Canadian League which would buy it for a set fee on behalf of all nine teams in the circuit.

"All of the teams reacted favorably except one," said Albrecht, declining to say more.

"If the Canadian League turns the plan down as a body, then we'll approach each individual team," he said. Although rejection by the CFL wouldn't be fatal, Albrecht said it would be a serious setback.

Albrecht resigned last fall as general manager of the Quebec Rifles to devote full time to his "pet project" of selling the central scouting idea to pro football.

The North American Professional Scouting Network, as it is called, would provide an information service on promising football talent in 88 United States colleges who have "already allied themselves with the network."

The brief says the network would provide a detailed evaluation of all pro prospects, a pre-season, position - by - position breakdown before June 1, and a week-by-week personal performance chart on each man.

The network would screen minor league circuits and provide information of training camp player cuts in the National and American football leagues.

No More Wind, Rain

Domed Stadium Passes Dry Run

HOUSTON (AP)—The curve curves, the knuckler dances and the ball carries off the bat just as it would outdoors.

That was the verdict of the baseball players who had practice session in Houston Astros' new $31,600,000 multi-purpose Harris County domed stadium Monday.

It was the first test of most of the mechanics of baseball on a regulation field indoors.

It was a warm day, cloudy, misty and damp. Even so, the ball was visible under the dome and the daylight seemed slightly better, if anything, than it was outside.

Then the lights went up, and the arena bloomed in all of its color and brightness and size.

Even General Manager Paul Richards of the National League club was somewhat amazed.

"Baseball will be exhibited better in this stadium than it ever has been," he said.

"Playing in this stadium will be just like playing in any other park on a calm clear day," said outfielder Al Spangler.

"No big difference from outdoors, no problems. You're going to have to hit the ball to get it out of there. The ball isn't going to jump and it isn't going to be dead."

"The only difference is that there won't be any wind," said pitcher Don Nottebart.

Rusty Staub became the first player to hit home runs in the park with its 340-foot fences and a 406-foot depth to center field.

But none of the batters came close to hitting the permanent dome that towers 207 feet, 10 inches above playing surface—a ceiling tall enough to shield an 18-storey building.

But Not Against Snell

Crothers Ready To Run

BILL CROTHERS

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Crothers, recovered from the flu that knocked him out of a race last weekend, is ready to start running again—but possibly not against Peter Snell.

The 24-year-old Markham, Ont., pharmacist, who suffered his first defeat of the indoor track season when he dropped out of a race at Philadelphia last Friday, said Monday night he'll be ready to go in the New York Athletic Club Games at New York Thursday.

Appearing at a banquet after a training session, Crothers said he will then move on to Los Angeles where Snell, the man who beat him in the Olympic 800 metres at Tokyo last October, is to run in the 1,000-yard race. But Crothers may run at a shorter distance.

"It's unlikely I'll race against Peter Snell," Crothers said. "But by June I hope to meet him at some other meet."

Crothers' coach, Fred Foot, said he and Crothers will make a final decision on meeting Snell after his runner's performance in New York Thursday.

Crothers attended the banquet to receive the Norton H. Crow trophy, Memorial Trophy as Canada's outstanding amateur athlete and the Major J. W. Davis Trophy as the outstanding track and field athlete in the country.

Balanced Attack

Lightfoots Top Wilsons

Belleville Lightfoots employed a well-balanced attack to trip a tall-end Trenton Wilsons 76-59 here last night in a Bay of Quinte men's league basketball game.

The Lightfoots climbed to within two points of first-place RCAF Flyers with the victory. However, the Flyers play at Cobourg tonight and against the Wilsons tomorrow, giving them a good opportunity to increase their league lead.

Williams, led by Arlan Burleigh's sparkling performance, jumped ahead of Belleville early in last night's tilt. They were in front 15-10 at one time but Lightfoots pulled ahead 36-31 at half time and were never behind thereafter.

Burleigh had one of the season's top performances, collecting 30 altogether, but it went for naught as far as the club was concerned. He got 14 in the first half and 16 in the second. Next big scorer on the club was Carl Crews with a 12-point total.

Lightfoots' points were well distributed. Ian Houston hit for 17 and Don Smith for 16 to lead the way. They each hooped 13 in the first half but the rest of the players took over in the second half to pile up the convincing total.

John McKibbon also starred with 13 points and Bill Letchford hit for seven. The club was without the services of Gary Duggan for the second game in a row because of an ankle injury.

Belleville picked up 28 for the Wilsons, who closed the score while the Wilsons got 17 for 26.

TRENTON WILSONS (59): A. Burleigh 30, G. Crews 7, J. Amm 5, R. Dingman 3, F. Wannamaker 3, R. Rogers 2, G. Rinaldi, M. Jeffery 1, V. Whitley 6, J. Bambers 5.

Quinte Rink Enters Ont. Finals

For the second time a rink from the Bay of Quinte Curling Club in this city will be represented in the Ontario finals and the winners eventually compete in the Dominion finals to be held in Saskatoon in March. In 1961 a rink skipped by Mac White won their way into the finals at Ottawa and were beaten in the last game by Tom Caldwell of Orillia.

Another rink, skipped by the same curler, but with a different personnel, will enter the Ontario finals in the consular at Cobourg starting on Wednesday and continuing until Friday under the supervision of Morris Booth. The rink of Bill Henderson, Al McCollam, Tom Bean and Mac White won their way into the finals by defeating a City View Curling Club rink of Ottawa, skipped by Bill Wagner, in two straight games in a two-out-of-three playoff staged at the 6 RD Depot on Monday.

Bill Wagner had Ab Sewell, Merrill Birch, Elliott Sherman with Wagner holding the broom. The Quinte rink won the first game 9-8 in the morning game and 11-9 in the afternoon fixture; the second game being a real cliff-hanger and not put away until the last rock.

MAC WHITE

In the finals at Cobourg will be eight rinks from the province, who have won their way by a long series of playdowns in their home clubs and through district playoffs. The Quinte rink had a tough series in their own club before entering the playoffs and they had a slight edge over their opponents in both of their games.

TWO ENDS BLANKED

In the second game the skips blanked two ends and after six ends they were tied 4-4, but after blanking the seventh end, White scored a big three, but Wagner came back with the same count in the ninth. The Quinte rink scored another three in the tenth, but Wagner would not give up and was only one down coming home after scoring two in the 11th. White had last rock in the final end and took away Wagner's chances with a "take out" to lie one. In the seventh and eighth ends McCollam made doubles to ease the pressure and in the 12th Ron Bean got a double to clear the "house."

The ice was lightning fast, but "swings" and the boys had a hard time reading it but the Quinte curlers made the truer shots and were more sharp on "takeouts."

It was a popular win and watched by a large gallery. The representatives of this district will, no doubt, give a good account of themselves in the playoffs. Members of the rink have a good assortment of shots and do not "freeze" under pressure. The score by ends in the game was:

White	001	020	030	301	—11
Wagner ..	010	102	003	020	—9

Frontenacs Hand 'B's' 8-3 Loss

Outshot by a wide 46-18 margin, Belleville "B's" dropped their seventh consecutive OHA Eastern Junior League game in Kingston last night. Frontenacs copped the decision by an 8-3 count.

Kingston took a first-period 4-0 lead last night, split four down the middle in the second and held a slim 5-3 edge during the final twenty minutes.

Making his debut in the Belleville net was Warren Brant, who started this season with the Napanee Legion junior "C" club. Brant saw plenty of work. Frontenacs outshot the "B's" 18-5, 14-7 and 14-6 by periods.

Kingston used two goalies. John Hoag started the game and was served up by Joe Arsenault in the second frame. They had an easy night.

Grant Hagerman and Jim Woodcock headed the Belleville scoring. Hagerman triggered one goal and got assists on the other two, both scored by Woodcock. Harold Townsend and Jim Sutherford drew one assist apiece.

Don White paced Kingston with two goals and an assist while Ed Leeman was the only other two-goal performer. Gary Lavallee and Wayne Clancy each had a single goal and two helpers. Chuck Convery and Dave Carr-Harris also registered. Among them was a misconduct apiece, Lavallee, Robson and a boarding major to Lavallee of the same team.

Resumes Training

Clay Ready For Action

CASSIUS CLAY

BOSTON (AP)—Heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay got the green light Monday to resume full-scale training for his defence against Sonny Liston. Dr. William V. Mcdermott Jr., professor of surgery, Harvard Medical School, pronounced Clay's condition excellent. McDermott operated on Clay for a hernia Nov. 13, almost on the eve of the scheduled fight with Liston.

The scheduled Nov. 16, 1964, fight, postponed when Clay underwent surgery, likely will be set at Boston Garden on a Monday night between May 10 and June 7. It was announced at a press conference.

To underscore his comeback from the scalpel, the champion shadow-boxed four rounds in street clothes with heavyweight Tom McNeeley at a local gym Monday after he was pronounced fit.

After expressing relief that a Denver jury recently acquitted Sonny Liston of a drunken driving charge, Clay started his ticket-selling war by commenting:

"For a man who never gets knocked down, Liston sure gets picked up a lot, doesn't he?"

Another Operation For Kidd?

TORONTO (CP)—Bruce Kidd, who has undergone one foot operation already, said in an interview here Monday night he is preparing for another.

Kidd had an operation Dec. 8 to remove scar tissue and bone from the heel of his left foot. His doctor, J. W. Virgin of Toronto, said at that time Kidd might have to undergo another operation depending on his progress.

"It is all quite indefinite at the moment," Kidd said Monday night after accepting a trophy as Canada's top university track and field star at a banquet of the Central Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union here.

Because of the pain in the bad foot, Kidd finished poorly in both the 5,000- and 10,000-metre races at last year's Tokyo Olympics.

Kidd said the operation, if there is one, will be after school this spring. He is a fourth-year student in political science at the University of Toronto.

Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

I break about 100 hockey sticks a season, playing in the National Hockey League. That's counting those I break in practice as well.

When you get a stick that has just the right feel and snap for you, you'd like to keep it. But that puck is like a piece of steel after it freezes. So the stick really takes a battering, despite the added protection of the tape you wind around the blade.

Of course one of the main purposes of the tape is to give you a better purchase on the puck. Today's more expensive sticks are reinforced with a glass fibre finish. So they do last longer.

However, I got an education regarding wood when I visited a factory where they make hockey sticks. I realized there are different grades of lumber but I wondered if sticks would be uniform if they all were made from the wood from one select tree.

They explained there are all different textures, different types of wood, from the outside of the tree to the core of it.

You may have what appears to be identical trees on a hill. One will be right on the edge of the tree line and it will be battling the wind throughout its whole life-span.

The similar tree, maybe three or four feet in from a good from the same original tree, will be of a weaker texture than the one that's been fighting the wind. The wood from that first tree will be harder, make stiffer hockey sticks.

They said the same thing is true when it comes to making baseball bats. They said Babe Ruth, for one, only would use bats that had three spots or knots in them. They made the wood and the bat heavier.

They gave me one of the Babe Ruth bats and one of a lighter texture. I gave the lighter bat to Harvey Oliver, now with the Boston Bruins, when he was playing baseball for Oak. The youngest of my three sons is named after Murray. That Babe Ruth bat was a little too heavy for any of us.

USSR Coach Blasted While Away

The coach, Gabriel Korobkov, was attacked for "showing insufficiently neglect and disrespect for the strong and experienced" U.S. teams which beat the Russians at a dual meet in Los Angeles in July and again at Tokyo.

Indians Sign Dick Howser

CLEVELAND (AP) — Shortstop Dick Howser has signed his 1965 contract with Cleveland Indians, General Manager Gabe Paul announced today. He was the 23rd player on the Tribe roster to agree to terms for the coming season.

Howser, 27, rookie-of-the-year in 1961, was sidelined by leg trouble much of the 1963 season. He played in all but two of the Indians' 162 games last year and hit .257 while leading the club in runs with 101 and hits with 163.

Extension Battle Re-opens

TORONTO (CP)—Maple Leaf Gardens has made an attempt to re-open its application for an extension which would hang over two city streets.

Harold Ballard, executive vice - president of the Gardens, said in a letter to Mayor Phillip Givens that if the application is not granted, the operations may have to be moved to the suburbs.

City council gave permission for the extension in 1963, but it was derailed by the private bills committee of the legislature.

In his letter, Ballard asked that the city reconsider the application to the Ontario government.

Award of Golden Globes Was Mighty Dull Affair

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Andy Williams and NBC played host Monday night to Hollywood's foreign press association for the award of their Golden Globes, and a dull affair it was.

The presentations, made before a star-studded audience at Coconut's, the tarters, followed the slow-moving form of the film capital's big annual awards bash, the Oscar ceremonies, complete with the envelope-opening.

Actresses, present because they were nominees for awards, were beautifully and formally attired, but the sartorial shocker of the evening was, Carroll Baker. Accepting for a missing winner—Peter O'Toole, I think it was—she dashed on stage in something that looked like an aquin - covered pyjamas. That even upset the imperturbable Andy.

He did not seem happy, either, as he sang the live movie theme songs nominated for awards, mixed in with movie awards were three cutlous ones for television—The Beatles was declared the best series, and Gene Barry and Mary Tyler Moore were proclaimed the "most promising" ties," whatever that means.

Anyway, it gave Andy a chance to say mixed in with sponsoring organization. a bit of free publicity.

The Nielsen ratings, issued Monday and covering two weeks during which the networks competed with the winner of the three-network popularity poll with a rating of 33.2. ABC followed with 20.9, and NBC is last with 19.9.

Maris Back At Former Pay Level

NEW YORK (AP) — Roger Maris is back at the $72,000 salary level, his $10,000 pay raise having been restored by Ralph Houk, general manager of New York Yankees.

When Houk announced Maris' signing Monday at a news conference, no specific figure was divulged. Houk did say that Roger would receive the same money he was paid in 1962 and 1963, reported to be $72,000.

Maris was due to have taken a pay cut in 1964. Only Mickey Mantle a $100,000 or better gets more money in the American League and probably only Willie Mays at $105,000 in the National League.

"I talked with Roger last year, because I thought everything had to be right if we were have been," said Houk. "I told him a man in his salary bracket had to have only a great player but had to co-operate with the press and everyone concerned.

"He agreed 100 per cent and I think he made tremendous strides last year. The mail has been very good."

"I am satisfied, quite satisfied," said Maris. "It didn't take too long. I didn't anticipate any trouble."

Sudbury Team Accepted In Soccer Circuit

SUDBURY (CP)—A Sudbury team has been accepted for the first time into the semi-pro National Football League, a Canadian soccer circuit, manager Carmen Santora of Sudbury Italia said Monday.

He said the league also comprises teams from Windsor, Hamilton, Kitchener, Oshawa and at least five Toronto entries. Santora said the season begins in April but Sudbury will play its first three or four games in southern Ontario until its own field is ready.

Sudbury captured the Eastern Canada amateur title last season, and Santora said the semi-pro team will retain all but a few of last year's players.

Soccer Slump In Midlands

By TOM FREEMAN

LONDON (Reuters) — The Midlands, once one of the most flourishing soccer areas of England, is going through its biggest soccer slump in years.

Two Midlands teams, Aston Villa and Wolverhampton Wanderers, once the pride of English soccer are lying at the bottom of the First Division, and two others, Birmingham and West Bromwich Albion, are not far above them.

It seems likely the two clubs to be relegated from the First Division this season will be from the Midlands. Wolves are almost a certainty and Aston Villa and Birmingham are the most likely candidates to join them in the big drop.

Wolves could be the most remarkable in recent soccer history. As recently as 1961 they were third in the league standings, having won the championship in 1958 and 1959, and finished runners-up in 1960. They also won the English Cup in 1960.

It was Wolves who first challenged the great continental teams in the early post-war years, and they played the straightforward English game could be a match for the more sophisticated European version.

ONCE WERE BEST

Aston Villa, the club that has won the cup more times than any other, has never touched again the peak it reached in the years before the Second World War.

There was a time when the Aston Villa team was interchanged with internationals. Now these are the exception.

By a strange coincidence, Villa has been drawn against Wolves in the next round of the Cup. They meet on the Villa Ground Feb. 20 and the match could provide the biggest soccer crowd in the Midlands for many years, in spite of the lowly league positions of the two clubs.

It could also be the first sign of a soccer comeback in the Midlands.

Rifles' Move Called Last Resort

MONTREAL (CP) — Hyman Katz said Monday the decision to move the Quebec Rifles football team to Toronto was taken as a last resort because we have nowhere to play in Montreal.

"We were ready to grab at anything," he said in an interview.

However, Katz, who owns the Rifles along with his brother Bill and a business partner, expects the team will do "much better" in Toronto because "we'll be playing in a good location and because a greater percentage of Toronto's population are football fans than is the case in Montreal."

Former Rifle star Leon, the Rifles operated in the minor-pro United Football League and finished out of the playoffs, winding up with a reported $150,000 deficit, and an average game attendance of about 1,200 fans. They were accepted on the weekend in the new 10-team International Football League, an amalgamation of teams from the UFL and Atlantic Coast league.

Katz said last year's players, plus coach Ian (the Rifle) Etcheverry, after whom the team is named, will be back with the club.

The Rifles' announced last fall they were vacating Delorimier Downs, traditional home of the old Montreal Royals of baseball International League. The stadium's owners were unwilling to renew the Rifles' lease, having other plans for the park.

Katz shopped for another site, "but there was just nothing."

Success of Mary Poppins Has Sherman Boys Hoppin'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Do you have a supercalifragilisticexpialidocious chorus in your house?

We do. Record fancier Carol-Ann Thomas, 6, plays the Mary Poppins album day and night and joins in on all the songs. At least the album has deposed the Beatles on the turntable, for which I am grateful to Richard Sherman and Robert Sherman, who wrote the score.

I delivered my thanks in person to the Messrs. Sherman, who may be the most successful brothers act in songwriting since George and Ira Gershwin. At least Mary Poppins is pointing the way.

"We just can't believe it!" said Dick.

"To look at the album charts and see our score as No. 2 for weeks and weeks!" said Bob.

"Why, the album has sold a half-million already, and the film is only in 21 theatres!" said Dick.

"The record company tells us it will go 2,000,000!" said Bob.

PREFER EXCLAMATIONS

By now you have received the impression that the Sherman boys talk in exclamation marks. They do. Their enthusiasm is boundless, which makes them ideal songwriters for Walt Disney.

"We've been at the studio five years, and we love it," said Dick.

"It's a songwriters's dream," said Bob. "We get a chance to write all kinds of songs, from German lieder to rock 'n' roll."

"Most songwriters have their worst problem in getting ideas," said Dick. "But we're given ideas all the time—for cartoons, television shows, movies."

The Shermans are dark-haired, apple - cheeked look - alikes who grew their talent naturally. Their father is Al Sherman, composer of Pretending, Save Your Sorrow, Tomorrows Are Cheaper, No, No, a Modified Yes and 400 other tunes. He is the one who started the boys on their song careers.

"I had been writing for quite serious music with no success," said Dick.

"And I was turning out novels with the same results," admitted Bob. "Dad suggested we collaborate and try writing songs together."

Public Utilities took their first step toward a berth in the city Interdepartmental Hockey League finals last night.

Utilities dumped the Police Department 8-3 in the opening game of their two-of-three semi-final set.

Winners of the semi-finals will meet the Public Works in the particular series. Works drew a bye after finishing the schedule in first place.

Women's Curling Finals

Toronto Rink Holds Lead

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — A clean sweep Monday gave Fern Rose of Toronto the third-round lead in the 1965 Ontario women's curling final.

Mrs. Rose, the 1962 provincial champion, defeated Effie Hezzlewood of Oshawa 11-9, Eileen Forsyth of Port Arthur 12-11 and Jennie Walsh of Kingston 10-4 for a 3-0 record.

Tied for second with 2-1 records were Aileen Kelsall of Niagara Falls and Vivian McDougall of Sudbury. Mrs. Walsh and Mrs. Hezzlewood had 1-2 records. Mrs. Forsyth, the 1960 Ontario champion, was last in the six-rink single round-robin with 0-3 losses.

Mrs. McDougall, who shared the second-round lead with Mrs. Irwin, went down 13-8 to Mrs. Hezzlewood in the third-round match after beating Mrs. Kelsall 12-9 and Forsyth 11-8.

HAD CLOSE SHAVE

It was a close shave for the McDougall rink in the match with Mrs. Kelsall. Mrs. McDougall trailed 9-8 going into the ninth end, but managed a three-spoiler to pull even coming home.

In the 10th and final end Mrs. McDougall put her first skip's rock behind a cluster of Kelsall guards to lay shot.

Mrs. Kelsall tried to raise one of hers in, but bumped in another McDougall rock to secure position and the Sudbury skip drew in for three with her final rock. Mrs. Kelsall missed on last rock as an attempt to score.

Marilee Mrs. Kelsall beat Mrs. Walsh 12-6, and Mrs. Walsh later defeated Mrs. Hezzlewood 12-5 in the second match. It was the widest victory margin of the first two rounds.

Utah State Hoop Star Is Killed

LOGAN, Utah (AP)—Wayne Estes, the first Utah State University basketball player to score more than 2,000 points, was electrocuted Monday night while working after playing what he said was the best game of his career.

Estes, 21, was killed when he grabbed a high voltage wire knocked from a metal pole during a windstorm by one a corner of the Utah State campus.

Teammate Tim Smith said Estes discovered the accident as he returned on foot from calling his mother to tell her about the game in which he set a Utah State home-court record by scoring 48 points in the University's 91-86 victory over Denver university.

Colorful T. Downes Quits Ring

LONDON (AP) — Terry Downes, Britain's boxing-booklie and former world middleweight champion, quit the ring Monday night—and he did it in his own flamboyant way.

Downes, once an American marine, came home with his family to Britain in 1957 and after only 18 months and six fights he was the British middleweight champion.

He was a great crowd puller, and earned an estimated $420,000 with his fists.

He is now an executive in a company owning 45 betting shops. He's got a house worth around $48,000 and is reported to have a bank balance of well over $700,000.

West Germany May Bow to Arab Pressure

BONN (AP)—West German government indicated Monday it may bow to Arab pressure to halt arms shipments to Israel.

A spokesman for Chancellor Ludwig Erhard said the government will ask the Bundestag (parliament) to debate the issue, which has strained relations between West Germany and the United Arab Republic.

Without giving any details of Erhard's plans, the spokesman said the settlement will be on a "non-disciplinary basis."

This would seem to mean that West Germany is considering a halt on arms shipments to Israel.

Drive for Unified Europe Actually Ahead of Schedule

BRUSSELS (AP)—To the outsider, progress toward a united Europe looks slow. But even here in what may be its capital. Actually, it is ahead of schedule and there is a strong effort under way to push it even faster.

That doesn't mean that a new federal nation like the United States of America is going to emerge in the near future. Differences of language, religion, tradition and outlook still policies make it a slow job.

President de Gaulle talks about a "Europe" stretching from the Atlantic to the Ural Mountains. That would include European Russia and its satellites. In a framework of that kind, he thinks, divided Germany can somehow be reunited.

This core consists of France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. They have a population and industrial resources almost as great as those of the United States, though their area, natural wealth and food-growing potential are much smaller.

This is the group known as the Common Market. In a few years it should actually become what the name implies: An area where people and goods can move freely, with uniform prices and co-ordinated taxes, a single system of social legislation for farmers and businessmen and perhaps even a single currency.

GOVERNMENT EXISTS

European government of limited powers already exists, hiding behind the unimpressive name of the commission of the European Economic Community. It is a nine-man executive appointed by the six member countries but pledged to work as a unit for the interests of the area as a whole, not of any particular nation.

The commission has considerable powers to initiate new economic proposals for the Common Market area. These actually are laws. In presenting them, the commission takes the role of the cabinet in a typical European government with the job of presenting bills to parliament.

Its proposals can only be approved by unanimous vote of the member governments, acting in the place of a European parliament. But, starting next Jan. 1, a system of weighted voting comes into effect. That will make it possible—theoretically, at least—for even France or West Germany to find measures enacted over its head by the other members gang up.

A modest effort now is under way to bring the six more into their policies on foreign affairs, defence and some aspects of education. Also, a European Atlantic Alliance, which have little support outside France.

The six nations will be meeting on this subject in the spring, and may set up regular sessions of cabinet ministers after the pattern of the Common Market council. But de Gaulle will not stand for anything that looks like the Common Market commission.

Ruby's Lawyer Plans to Resign Post

CHICAGO (AP)—Charles A. Bellows said Monday he plans to resign as a defence lawyer for Jack Ruby because of interference by Ruby's family and a Detroit lawyer.

Bellows has been directing since March the appeal of Ruby's conviction for the murder of Lee Harvey Oswald, assassin of President Kennedy.

Bellows, a Chicago lawyer, said a Detroit lawyer, Saul Dann, prevailed upon the Ruby family to fire Joe Tonahill, Bellows' Texas associate.

Bellows said he sent a telegram to the Ruby family saying he would resign unless Tonahill was rehired. The family had refused his request.

"I'm out as soon as I can notify the court of my withdrawal," said Bellows.

Court arguments on the appeal will be heard next month.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Amazingly these same actions were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

The way is accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Advance Party Of Guards Gets Home Feb. 26

PICTON (Staff) — According to a bulletin published at Camp Petawawa, a small advance party of about 25 members of the First Canadian Guards will return to Picton on February 26. This is a tentative date for the group of Guards, who have been stationed in Cyprus for about the past four months. Other planned dates listed on the bulletin are March 20, when the main advance party of about 90 will arrive. The rest of the battalion arrive between March 28 and April 3. These dates are scheduled unless a flare-up on Cyprus occurs then the U.N. would extend the period of service for the troops.

Approximately 800 officers and men of the First Canadian Guards, except for a small rear guard here, have been serving on Cyprus peace keeping duty since last September. It is not yet known if the U.N. mandate in Cyprus will be extended beyond the end of March or if this will have any effect on the proposed schedule for the Guards' return to Picton.

Chamber Wants Progress Report On Sanctuary

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce is seeking to have a waterfowl sanctuary established in the area of Big Island. It was decided at this meeting to write to the Department of Lands and Forests and request a progress report.

FESTIVAL FOUNDER DIES

OTTAWA (CP) — Dorothy White, a founding member of the Dominion Drama Festival in 1932, died at her home here Friday after a lengthy illness. Mrs. White, 72, who was president of the Dominion Drama Festival during 1953-54, was an active member of Ottawa's Little Theatre for many years. She established the Dorothy White Award, given each year to the winner of second place in the Ottawa Little Theatre's annual Canada playwriting competition.

Court Upholds Detention in Mental Hospital

TORONTO (CP) — Frederick W. Fawcett, 49, formerly of Owen Sound, had his detention in a Toronto mental hospital upheld in Ontario Supreme Court Monday for the second time.

Mr. Justice Neil Fraser also ordered Fawcett, who has been in mental hospitals for three years, to pay the costs of the six-day hearing which took testimony from seven psychiatrists.

Fawcett has refused since 1952 to pay land taxes on his 300-acre Euphrasia Township farm near Owen Sound. He claimed the land is exempt from taxes because it was acquired by his family through crown grants in 1856 and 1875.

Four psychiatrists testified during the hearing that Fawcett is mentally ill. They said he would be potentially dangerous if allowed to return to the farm. Three others said he is not mentally ill but stubborn.

A similar hearing in 1962 before Mr. Justice Wishart Spence also found that Fawcett's detention was lawful. The Supreme Court of Canada upheld the judgment of Mr. Justice Spence.

In 1963, Fawcett was sent by magistrate's court for a 60-day mental examination after he had ordered tax assessors off his property at gunpoint, shot a hole in one assessor's car tire and held seven police officers at bay with a rifle.

He was certified mentally ill Oct. 28, 1961 and was sent to the Ontario Mental Hospital at Penetanguishene.

Fawcett used affidavits from his sister and two psychiatrists, all of whom had testified on his behalf before Mr. Justice Spence, claiming he had improved during periods of leave from the mental hospital in Toronto.

Owl Acquaintance Won't Be Forgot!

VANCOUVER (CP) — Having an owl look at your homework over your shoulder may be disconcerting, but it's better than having a pig follow you to school.

Blair Gunn, 11, not only has his pet barn owl Sammy on his shoulder during homework sessions—he has to put up with him watching television from that perch.

Blair's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gunn, were somewhat unnerved when Blair first allowed Sammy to flit around the house, but "we get a lot of enjoyment out of Sammy now," says Mrs. Gunn.

"Blair had to wear leather gloves to touch him. He got a lot of wrist and arm scratches, and wore out 16 pairs of gloves before he tamed him," she says.

Sammy lives on the heads, hearts and livers of chickens or ducks, and mice.

He distributes it among two dogs, a cat and three cows as well as Sammy—but the pig that once followed him to school has gone the way of all pork.

Says Marijuana Not Harmful

VANCOUVER (CP)—A drug expert said Monday with at least one contention of a secret marijuana society here—that it is absurd to have laws against marijuana smoking.

Dr. James Foulkes, head of the pharmacology department at the University of British Columbia's medical school, said marijuana has no harmful physical or spiritual effects.

"A number of young people —intellectual people—are prone to try drugs such as marijuana because they have not arrived at a satisfactory relationship with their surroundings.

"Though I would discourage marijuana smoking as I would discourage homosexuality, I feel it is absurd to have laws against marijuana — especially such silly laws that put marijuana on a level with heroin, a recognized habit-forming drug."

Dr. Foulkes, who is also a doctor of medicine, said the United Nations has classified marijuana as a non-addictive drug.

"Marijuana isn't habit - forming," he said. "Cigarettes are habit - forming as many of us know — and so is beer or whiskey.

Its charter says the organization is dedicated to the advancement of marijuana, which it says should be given the same legal and social status of alcohol.

United States More Deeply Committed in Viet Nam War

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A weekend of military strokes and counter-strokes committed the United States more deeply than ever to the bloody war in Viet Nam.

It extended military activity to North Viet Nam, for the duration apparently, unless the Communist Viet Cong stops attacking American troops in the south 'and-or the U.S. decides not to repeat its retaliation for such blows. Neither of these developments appears likely.

The war in Viet Nam has moved in a new, broader and more dangerous stage, which perhaps can be ended only with one side or the other eating crow, most observers agree.

During the weekend the U.S. bombed North Viet Nam because some of the 23,000 U.S. "military advisers" in South Viet Nam had been hit hard again.

ACTION AWAITED

Now awaited are indications as to how far China and the Soviet Union will go in backing their harsh condemnation of the U.S. raids.

Events have put heavy pressure on the new men in the Kremlin. But they seem to have closed ranks with China on the question of the war in Viet Nam against the U.S. to that extent at least, the Sino-Soviet ideological battle has been set aside.

New stresses have been imposed on relations between the U.S. and Russia. This comes at a time when both sides seemed to be showing interest in lining up a leadership visit exchange this year.

Hopes have been sent reeling within the U.S. for a negotiated extrication from a war costing nearly $2,000,000 a day.

Although not popularly supported, this objective has been nursed by some government officials and congressmen.

SEES NO OTHER CHOICE

It also seems probable that President Johnson, who sees "no choice now but to clear the decks and to act in absolutely clear our continued determination to back South Viet Nam," may order fresh reinforcements for the military forces aiding South Viet Nam.

The swiftness of Johnson's retaliation against the Communist attacks and the accompanying message to the U.S. people reflects the heavy domestic political pressures on the issue.

There is conjecture in Washington and elsewhere, North Viet Nam, perhaps with Chinese help, has effectively moused-trapped both the U.S. and Russia.

This view suggests that the Communist Viet Cong baited its trap with concerted attacks on U.S. forces and drew the American response it expected.

Labor Wins Close Vote On Buying U.S. Planes

LONDON (CP) — The Labor government has narrowly survived a conservative challenge of its decision to step up purchase of U.S. planes for the RAF.

Prime Minister Wilson's government Tuesday night beat back a Conservative attempt to unseat it, but by only five votes, 306 to 301, as the Liberals added their nine votes to the Conservative censure motion.

In answer to opposition charges, Aviation Minister Roy Jenkins said, "whether we like it or not, the all-British plane is out." He then included all advance weapons systems as being British Independent production.

"We are at the end of the road as far as the exclusive British manufacture of complicated weapons systems for an exclusive British market is concerned," Jenkins said.

Jenkins announced a program of collaboration with the United States and Britain's European allies.

STUDY JOINT MOVES

Jenkins disclosed that Britain and the U.S. are studying joint development of anti-submarine warfare, tactical air defence missiles, army ordnance and army communications.

As announced in Washington, the United States will supply Britain with 1,000-mile-an-hour Phantom F-4 jet fighters and C-130 transports.

Until the Phantoms arrive, in two or three years, the RAF will continue with British-made planes.

Britain and the U.S. also are to combine in development of an advanced lift-jet engine for vertical and short takeoff aircraft.

In their censure motion, the Conservatives charged that Labor policies were leading to almost total dependence on the United States and shattering confidence in the British aviation industry.

The five-vote margin was Labor's smallest since it came to power last October. Last Tuesday, they beat back a Conservative censure motion by 17 votes when the nine Liberals abstained.

During the bitter debate, thousands of aircraft workers jammed full of losing their jobs, marched outside Parliament. They carried banners reading, "Keep the RAF British."

No New Taxes In Budget

By BOB EXELL

TORONTO (CP)—Provincial Treasurer James Allan will bring down a budget today that is expected to earmark more money for education alone than was spent for all government departments 10 years ago.

Mr. Allan's budget message to the legislature will probably call for over-all expenditures of almost $1,500,000,000—the highest in Ontario's history. But new major taxes are likely.

For education alone the government will lay aside more than $600,000,000, although not all is expected to be spent this year. Ten years ago the entire provincial budget was only $380,000,000.

Education expenditures will be divided in three areas—the newly - created department of university affairs, the similarly new Ontario Universities Capital Aid Corporation, and the long - established department of education.

The latter department's expenditures will be forecast at more than $400,000,000, while $80,000,000 will be earmarked for the department of university affairs.

PROVIDES FOR LOANS

Perhaps $100,000,000 will be made available to the capital aid corporation for construction loans to universities. However,

Viet Cong Goes Over to Offensive, Wiping Out 600 Foes in Mountains

From AP-Reuters

DA NANG (CP)—The Communist Viet Cong went on the offensive throughout South Viet Nam today amid reports that the guerrillas had wiped out about 600 government troops in a mountain battle.

Elsewhere, heavy fighting raged near the key Da Nang air base and to the east of Saigon.

The mountain battle was fought Monday but reports of the disaster—possibly the worst battle of the war so far—did not reach here until today.

The reports said the encounter took place in Binh Dinh province, 280 miles north of Saigon. News of the battle was apparently censored by the South Vietnamese government and withheld by U.S. authorities until today.

Relief forces totalling about 1,500 men were reported still unable to reach the battle site. The reports said one Vietnamese battalion plus two or three extra companies totalling 600 men were reported wiped out in co-ordinated Viet Cong ambushes. The Viet Cong were said to have numbered about 800 men.

Total government casualties were still unknown. The reports said two of 15 government personnel carriers were knocked out and the others damaged.

The reports said three U.S. advisers with the ambushed troops got out alone without any injuries.

Meanwhile four U.S. Army advisers were missing from a district town captured by the Viet Cong 80 miles north of the U.S. BOMB NORTH VIET NAM — American and South Vietnamese warplanes bombed communist military camps at Llem Cong Tay and Dong Hoi in North Viet Nam Feb. 7 and 8 amid signs of a strike-for-strike policy in the battle against Communist guerrillas operating in South Viet Nam. The air attacks came after guerrillas raided a U.S. base at Pleiku killing eight U.S. soldiers and wounding more than 100, Feb. 6. Communist forces attacked a U.S. installation at Soc Trang Feb. 7 but there was no damage and no casualties. (CP Newsmap)

Kosygin Pays Peking Call

PEKING (Reuters)—Russian Premier Kosygin arrived here by plane today for a one-day stopover on his way back to Moscow after a four-day visit to the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi.

Both in Peking and Hanoi mass rallies against United States raids on North Viet Nam were the major events of the day.

Some Of School Buses Do Not Attempt Trips

Icy Conditions Prevail Over Much of Ontario

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vehicular traffic in the Belleville district was slowed to a crawl this morning as streets, roads and sidewalks were covered with a slippery coat of ice as the result of the overnight fall of freezing rain. It was still raining this morning but the rain was no longer freezing on contact with road or car.

Throughout the district cars and trucks slid off the road and into ditches, city buses were stalled and in many instances school buses did not even attempt to make their regular runs.

And even taxis in some instances declined to accept calls.

City public works sanding trucks, as well as highways department crews, were out in full force trying to make the roadways passable, but proceed with caution, or not at all, was the order of the day.

CLOSE SCHOOL

In Prince Edward County conditions were particularly treacherous and early in the morning the Prince Edward District High School principal decided to close classes for the day.

Amelisburg public school, west of Redneersville was also reported closed, while the district high school at Brighton was to remain closed at least for this morning.

And buses hauling students to Belleville high schools were also having difficulty.

At 9:30 no buses had arrived at Belleville Collegiate, and it was not known whether the trips had been actually cancelled.

Two buses, one from Deseronto and the other from Corrying Place, were reported to have cancelled trips to Belleville schools.

A report from Picton revealed that most of the rural public schools in the district were closed, while shortly before noon high school officials at Belleville said that only about one half of the 22 school buses coming into the city had completed their trips.

Bus drivers not making their trips this morning were advised to cancel trips until tomorrow.

One Prince Edward resident coming to work at Belleville said he had never seen the roads so slippery. Another man, driving north on No. 14 towards Belleville slid into the ditch—also without other others.

CITY BUSES STUCK

Four of the city buses were temporarily out of commission this morning as the vehicles skidded around in the roadways and became stuck.

One bus spun around right on Front Street and had to have a tow truck. Two others did the same thing in the Av-

Scores of minor accidents pedestrian injuries and at least one traffic death were blamed on freezing rain that swept across central and western Ontario Tuesday and today.

Penny Susan Wyhe, 21, of Toronto, was killed when hit by a skidding truck on Toronto's Frederick Gardiner Expressway. Mrs. Wyhs was standing in the median of the road while her husband talked to a driver of another car about a minor accident.

The Gardiner Express w a y was blocked off for two hours as a result of a rash of minor accidents. One involved nine cars.

The Queen Elizabeth Way near Toronto was also blocked off for about half an hour by pile-ups. One accident between Highway 10 and Highway 27 involved 12 cars and another had five cars.

In Toronto, there were so many accidents, police officers could not investigate minor ones. Drivers involved in minor mishaps were told to call back today.

BLOCK ROAD

Police on Highway 6, near Caledonia, south of Hamilton' said tractor-trailer trucks were blocking the road by jack-knifing.

The Burlington Skyway Bridge just outside Hamilton was closed at least three times during Tuesday evening as accidents caused traffic jams.

Hospitals in both Toronto and Hamilton reported a busy run on their emergency and x-ray wards as pedestrians with broken limbs came in for attention. Most said they fell on slippery sidewalks.

In Toronto, taxis were almost impossible to come by as companies either took their cars off the road or struggled to make up the back log of phone calls.

About 200 Air Canada passengers were left stranded as flights between Toronto International Airport and New York and Chicago were grounded.

Earlier Tuesday, the same storm whipped across western Ontario.

Unemployment up But Working Force Much Higher Than Year Ago

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada jumped to 408,000 at mid-January, a gain of 122,000 from December, but the number of persons at work still was 218,000 higher than a year earlier.

A joint report issued today by the bureau of statistics and the labor department said mid-January unemployment reached six per cent of the labor force, compared to 4.1 per cent in December and seven per cent in January of last year.

Employment was 6,447,000, a drop of 187,000 in the month that was described as "somewhat smaller than is usual for this time of year." Construction and manufacturing jobs held up better than usual.

The unemployment figure of 408,000 was 58,000 lower than a year earlier although the labor force grew by 158,000 in the same period.

The job picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	Jan. Dec.	Jan.
	1965 1964	1964
Labor force	6,855 6,697	6,633
Employed	6,447 6,614	6,231
Unemployed	408 283	408

The DBS-labor estimates are based on a sample survey of 35,000 homes in the week ended Jan. 16.

The December - to - January drop in the labor force of 44,000 was less than seasonal, offsetting the effect of the slowed decline in employment. Thus unemployment rose at about the usual pace for this time of year.

The - farm employment was almost five per cent higher than in the previous January with employment among men showing a marked gain.

Regionally, the Atlantic provinces continued to report the darkest unemployment picture with 10.8 per cent of that region's labor force seeking work. This compared to seven per cent in December and 12.8 per cent in January of last year.

Quebec unemployment was 8.2 per cent, up from 5.4 per cent in December but under the year-earlier figure of 9.1.

The unemployment rate was 3.9 per cent in Ontario, 4.1 per cent on the Prairies and 6.3 per cent in British Columbia.

Canadians to Inaugurate National Flag Monday With Minimum of Fuss

OTTAWA (CP) — After 96 years of squabbles over the issue, Canadians will inaugurate their national flag Monday with a minimum of fuss.

The maple leaf flag will be hoisted atop the Peace Tower on Parliament Hill at the stroke of noon at the ceremony of Governor - General Vanier. Minutes before, the Canadian Red Ensign will be lowered for the last time and consigned to official oblivion.

Similar flag-raising ceremonies are being planned by at least six provinces—Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The red-and-white flag, still unfamiliar to most Canadians, will replace the Red Ensign atop all federal buildings and embassies abroad at noon local time.

Prime Minister Pearson will speak and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker has agreed to attend.

The two party leaders and their respective forces fought bitterly over the flag issue for seven months last year, but the controversy has cooled off considerably since Parliament adjourned Dec. 23.

The great Canadian flag debate, an intermittent affair since Confederation in 1867, blew up into a political crisis last May 17 when Mr. Pearson told the Royal Canadian Legion the time had to come to scrap the Red Ensign and replace it with a "distinctive" maple leaf flag.

A government resolution for a three - day debate with blue bears at each side statemated the Commons all summer and the issue was referred to a special committee Sept. 10.

Two weeks later, after consulting historians and heraldic experts, the committee recommended by a vote of 10 to 4 that Canada adopt a national flag with a big red stylized maple leaf flag in white square and red panels on each side.

The Commons approved the maple leaf flag by a vote of 163 to 78 in the wee hours of Dec. 15.

Romans Dig Out of Worst Blizzard in 150 Years

By BENNET M. BOLTON

ROME (AP) — Romans were digging out today from the worst blizzard in 150 years, while paralyzing snowfalls and freezing temperatures brought misery to wide areas of Poland, Greece and Turkey.

The storm dumped 16 inches of snow on Rome in 18 hours. The snow turned to shin-deep slush today, but with temperatures hovering around the freezing point, the Italian capital was still partially immobilized.

Seven days of snowstorms and cold claimed 30 lives in Turkey. Fourteen persons died in two avalanches in eastern Turkey, most of the other deaths occurred in the west. One of the avalanches buried a home occupied by eight persons.

Ankara's international airport was closed until further notice.

In Greece, eight persons died in a two-day cold wave that sent temperatures tumbling in the northern part of the country. Heavy snowfalls blocked roads on the Bulgarian and Yugoslavia borders.

Blizzards ranged across large areas of central and eastern Poland and snowdrifts up to seven feet blocked rural roads.

Nine deaths in Rome were blamed on the weather. One man died of cold in his unheated home and another was stricken on a bus over-crowded because of limited service.

The capital does not have a municipal snow plow because snow is so rare. The last record for blizzards was set in 1796 and there have been only three snowfalls since then—in 1846, 1939 and 1956.

Snow piled up in drifts on train routes and trains could not reach Rome's central terminal. Traffic was routed to two small railroad terminals on the city's outskirts.

CAN'T COPE

Flyers at Fiumicino airport could not cope with the raging whirls of snow but officials said air traffic would probably be resumed later today.

Police estimated more than 3,000 private cars were abandoned in the city, some in the middle of streets.

Telephone and power lines snapped, leaving whole neighborhoods without heat, light or communications for hours at a time.

Liberals Win Two Byelections On 'Island'

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Liberal candidates won two Prince Edward Island byelections Tuesday and reduced the Progressive Conservative majority in the legislature to four seats.

Alex R. Campbell defeated Conservative Claude Ives by 67 votes in Prince 8th and William Acorn had a majority of 13 in his victory over Conservative Albert Griffin in Kings 1st.

Both seats had been won by Conservatives in a 1962 election. Standings in the 30-seat house now are Conservatives, 17; Liberals, 13.

In Prince 8th, Mr. Campbell, a 31-year-old Summerside lawyer and son of Chief Justice Thane A. Campbell, Liberal premier from 1936 to 1943, polled 1,515 votes to 1,448 for Mr. Ives, a 34-year-old Summerside merchant. In Kings 1st Mr.Acorn, a Souris salesman, received 1,073 votes to 1,060 for Mr. Griffin, a Souris fish packer.

Premier Walter Shaw said he still had a working majority and the government will go ahead with same projects.

Liberal Leader Alex Matheson, premier from 1953 until 1959 when the Conservatives took office under Mr. Shaw, said the Conservatives would be "wiped out" if a general election were called now.

Windows Broken In Riot

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — Hundreds of Asian university students staged an angry demonstration in front of the United States Embassy Wednesday, breaking at least 140 windows and defacing the nine-storey structure with ink.

The demonstration, carefully organized and led by agitators who barked out directions to the students through loud speakers, was in protest against American air strikes on North Vietnam military installations.

Two western correspondents covering the demonstration were hurt.

At least 100 Moscow policemen formed cordons to keep the students, numbering between 500 and 1,000, from getting too close to the embassy. In the early stages they allowed students to stick dozens of banners and placards on the iron fence surrounding the embassy property from the sidewalk. They carried slogans such as "To Hell with American Imperialism," and "Down With the Aggressors in Vietnam."

Later, however police cleared the sidewalk of demonstrators. Many cases using (illegible) force to remove those who refused to budge.

BLOOD SPATTERED

But they made no attempt to stop the throwing of stones, ink bottles and chunks of ice by demonstrators massed on the street.

Nobody in the embassy was hurt.

Meanwhile, there was speculation in Moscow diplomatic circles that the Soviet government had committed a major blunder by sending Premier Alexei Kosygin to North Viet Nam at this time.

Some observers said the Soviets apparently had fallen into a trap concocted by either the Peking Communist regime or both. They surmised that the Communist Chinese South Viet Nam which triggered the American raid on the north was timed to coincide with Kosygin's visit.

This places the Kremlin in the position of either rendering decisive aid to the North Vietnamese or appearing to desert its fraternal Communist country in its time of need.

One Western diplomat said the Kremlin must be "furious" at having been placed in such a position.

Parolee, 17, Will Face Theft Charge

Belleville police last night arrested James Alfred Means and charged him with breaking, enter and theft of Doug's Hobby Shop, January 9.

In the burglary a series of coins were taken from a display case. Police today claimed to have recovered some coins.

They did not put any estimate on the amount missing in the theft.

Sudan Sheiks In Thousands Greet Queen

EL OBEID, Sudan (Reuters) Thousands of nomadic sheiks and tribesmen mounted on camels and horses roared a welcome as they trotted past Queen Elizabeth today in one of the most colorful tribal gatherings seen here for many years.

From dawn they had been pouring into this town, 250 miles west of Khartoum, to be on hand when the Queen and Prince Philip flew in from the capital.

The Queen, sunglasses shading her eyes from the blinding glare, sat for nearly an hour in a red-draped pavilion as the tribesmen cantered past.

The sunlight glinted from daggers, swords, knives and gun barrels as tribesmen, whips held high above their heads, shouted tribal greetings to the royal visitors, who will end a four-day visit to the Sudan Thursday.

Doctors Asked Not to Walk Out on Plan

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — While the British health ministry pleaded with them not to walk out, leaders of 500 Birmingham doctors announced Tuesday they will recommend a mass resignation from the British health service in protest against a new pay scale.

The General Practitioners' Association launched a campaign to organize a nationwide walkout to demonstrate their "contempt" for salary recommendations accepted Monday by the government.

Any of the 23,000 general practitioners, the backbone of Britain's free medical service, are free to quit and return to free practice. However, a health ministry spokesman said a doctor is "expected" to give three months' notice.

Any large walkout would bring chaos to the nation. Many patients would be forced to pay for a private consultation with their doctor or go to a public hospital clinic, most of which already are overcrowded.

APPROVES ADDITION

The uproar came when the government approved a recommendation to add £5,500,000 ($18,500,000) to the complicated "pool" system from which family doctors draw their pay. The doctors' representatives, in a long series of negotiations, had sought pay increases costing a total of more than £18,000,000.

Health Minister Kenneth Robinson said in a personal appeal he hopes doctors will take "a cool, calm look" at the full implications of the award, designed to "improve standards and encourage better family doctoring."

The 2,500-strong practitioners association, because of its constitution, has a long way to go before it can head a nationwide walkout. It has sent letters to all 28,000 family doctors inviting them to join the association with the "firm intention" of resigning from the health service.

However, to organize the walkout, it must recruit 90 per cent of the doctors and then win approval by 90 per cent of the membership.

capital. A U.S. spokesman said the Communists were still holding the town, Dao Phong.

Two armed helicopters were dispatched to the town. One was downed, killing an American gunner. The three others aboard were wounded, but were evacuated in a daring rescue.

A Ranger unit was airlifted into the battle area in attempts to retake the village, near the Cambodian border. A U.S. officer and three men were in the village when it was hit about dawn.

The deaths brought the total of U.S. dead in action in Viet Nam to 267. About 225 Americans are missing, including the four today.

BOMB DEFENCES

U.S. Marines were working feverishly at Da Nang to set up sand bag defences for their newly completed jets and anti-aircraft missiles.

Fighting between Vietnamese government forces and the Communist Viet Cong raged a scant nine miles from the base that also houses a strike force of 50 U.S. Air Force jet fighters and bombers.

Capt. Thomas Throckmorton, son of the deputy U.S. commander in Saigon, Gen. Throckmorton, was shot in the abdomen in the initial assault through the smoke screen. He was flown to Saigon and reported in fair condition after surgery.

His father, Lt. - Gen. John Throckmorton, came under fire while visiting him.

U.S. advisers said the general came close to being a casualty when a bullet whizzed by the screen in a helicopter. While he was on the ground, the Viet Cong launched a mortar attack and the general was hustled back into his helicopter and flown out to the base at Da Nang.

The two paratroop battalions suffered 20 killed and 75 wounded.

KILL AMERICAN

One American has been killed and 12 others wounded since the fighting broke out Tuesday. Eight of the wounded were helicopter crew members. Four helicopters were destroyed.

"The Viet Cong slammed us right along the line all night," said Maj. Wesley Shull, from Bridgeton, N.J., "but they didn't get through. They were looking for our weak point and we didn't have one."

The Viet Cong mounted 50 Viet Cong dead in the jungles, scattered around the circular grassy area which is the parachute were defending as a landing zone for the helicopters.

Nine South Viet Cong were killed by armed helicopters and South Vietnamese fighter bombers who flew cover.

In Saigon, reliable sources reported that Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, regarded as one of strongman Lt. - Gen. Nguyen Khanh's most powerful generals, probably would be named soon as South Viet Nam's new premier.

Khanh was moving rapidly toward organizing a new wartime government, completely revamping both the executive and legislative branches. But the military is expected to hold the real power.

Try to Bring Negotiators Back to Table

TORONTO (CP) — Conciliators of the Ontario department of labor will attempt to bring officials of the United Auto Workers (CLC) and Massey-Ferguson Limited back to the bargaining table Thursday.

A. G. Dennis, associate director of conciliation services of the department, said Tuesday both parties have agreed to a meeting in his office at 10 a.m.

The strike scheduled to enter its sixth day today has affected 5,000 workers at five Massey-Ferguson plants in Toronto, Brantford and Woodstock.

A spokesman for the company said Tuesday union negotiators have broken off the talks aimed at settling the strike.

D. W. H. Denton, the company's personnel and industrial relations director, said in a statement the company made a package offer Sunday that is higher than the union's original demands.

Mr. Burt, in his statement, said the company had come up with a "phony wage - equity plan which we consider valueless."

Report Rivard Had Money, Ready to Leave the Country

OTTAWA (CP)—Lucien Rivard was reported to have bank accounts in Mexico and Switzerland and to have been ready to skip the country if granted bail, the Dorion judicial inquiry was told today.

Andre Letendre, 35, executive assistant to Justice Minister Favreau, testified he was given this information in August by Guy Lord, then special assistant to Mr. Favreau.

The inquiry is investigating an allegation by Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne that he was offered a $20,000 bribe to agree to bail for Rivard, wanted in the U.S. on charges of being mixed up in a narcotics conspiracy.

Mr. Letendre, taking the witness stand for the first time, said he was told Aug. 11 by Mr. Lamontagne, acting for the Montreal lawyer in the case, that arrests had been synchronized around the world in a crackdown on an international network of which Rivard was a part.

Arrests had been made, for example, in Boston, Marseilles, and the Far East.

SAYS INVOLVED IN DRUGS

Mr. Letendre also gave testimony to the effect that Rivard had been involved previously in narcotics traffic but had stayed away from it for five years.

He said Liberal MP Guy Rouleau told him Mrs. Rivard had given this information to his brother, Raymond Rouleau.

Mr. Lamontagne has charged that he was subjected to Liberal party pressures to agree to bail for Rivard.

He went to the RCMP with his allegations, and the day he received telephone calls from Guy Rouleau, then parliamentary secretary to Mr. Pearson, and from Mr. Letendre.

Mr. Letendre said Mr. Rouleau spoke to him about the Rivard case Aug. 11.

He quoted Mr. Rouleau as saying he wanted to discuss the possibility of bail for Rivard with Mr. Favreau and needed information on the case first.

Mr. Letendre said Mr. Rouleau, a veteran member, had been of service to Raymond Rouleau in electoral campaigns.

HEARS OF ACCOUNTS

He said he had been spoke about the matter to Mr. Lord who had also been approached by Mr. Lamontagne. At this point that Mr. Lord had told him of Rivard's foreign bank accounts and of the fact that Rivard would escape if granted bail.

Mr. Letendre said he phoned Mr. Lamontagne to this effect at that time there were charges of conspiracy being illegally detained.

The witness said there was political pressure on the government to bail Rivard stemming from the dismissal from the navy of Gordon Knott because of mistaken identity by the RCMP security branch.

He told Mr. Lamontagne that Mr. Favreau's office had received representations on behalf of Rivard.

Mr. Letendre quoted Mr. Lamontagne as saying that Robert Kennedy, U.S. attorney-general, was following the narcotics case closely and that he knew Mr. Favreau would not interfere with the judge hearing Rivard's extradition case.

The witness said Mr. Favreau met Bob Kennedy in Toronto in April.

"We called him Bob like we called the president Jack," Mr. Letendre said.

TELLS OF LAST RITES

The commission also heard today Rev. Gaston Perron, 38, a Roman Catholic priest who administered the last rites Dec. 7 to Ovide Gagnon.

Father Perron said Gagnon was dead when he reached his house.

Gagnon was said by Mrs. Rivard to have loaned her $20,000 cash in June as part of the intended bail for Rivard.

Witness Refuses To Be Sworn Or Testify

MONTREAL (CP) — Two cases involving Robert Gignac, 28, charged with capital murder in the death of a nightclub doorman and perjury in testimony given at the Dorion inquiry, were postponed Tuesday until Feb. 18.

The murder case being heard by Judge Rene Theberge was postponed outright but the perjury case was delayed when a witness refused to be sworn in or to testify.

Maurice Poirier, a 35-year-old salesman, also accused of capital murder, is to be charged with obstructing justice and disobeying a statute as a result of his second refusal to give evidence.

Poirier made the same refusals Friday and was given the weekend to reconsider.

Gignac, Poirier and Robert Collin, 28, are charged in connection with the murder of Aime (Rocky) Bergeron, shot last fall outside the suburban Vimont nightclub where she worked.

Gignac's perjury case resulted from testimony concerning bail money for Lucien Rivard, accused of conspiring in narcotics smuggling, given before the Dorion hearing into alleged bribes and coercion attempts involving federal government ministerial aides.

Contraceptives Now Being Sold Recommended

TORONTO (CP)—All five oral contraceptives licensed for sale in Canada provide "virtually 100 per cent" protection against pregnancy, says Dr. F. E. Bryans of Vancouver.

Dr. Bryans, head of the obstetrics and gynaecology department at the University of British Columbia, has published an article on oral contraceptives in the Canadian Medical Journal.

Dr. Bryans indentifies the contraceptives as Enovid, Enovid E, two forms of orthonovum, and Norlestrin—all of which may cause slight weight gain, nausea, headaches, dizziness, depression or spotting among some women using them.

The contraceptives do not impair future pregnancy, he said, and "there is no evidence that the menopause is delayed or that years of fertility are prolonged."

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reports of a bombing attack on an American billet at Qui Nhon, South Viet Nam, with possibly heavy loss of life, reached the U.S. government through official channels from Saigon today.

Officials here said information indicated that the attack on the billet was accomplished through the explosion of a bomb placed at the site, rather than primarily by mortar raids of the kind that the Communists used to cause heavy damage to American installations at Pleiku last weekend.

Woman Ald. Wants to Be Left Alone

CHATHAM (CP) — Mrs. Frank D. Moffat, who Monday night resigned her seat on city council because she said she and her family had been threatened, told an interviewer Tuesday:

"I just wish they would leave me and my family alone. I've done what they want me to and now I'd just like to be left alone."

Following Mrs. Moffat's resignation, two former aldermen —Blair McKinnon and A. R. Sanderson—disclosed that they too had received threats while in office. Like Mrs. Moffat, they declined to reveal the nature of the threats.

Mrs. Moffat said she had received anonymous letters last July. A poll followed, then a series of phone calls began, culminating a peak during December at election time.

In December, she said, some of the phone calls carried this message: "You're next . . . Don't try to run again or you'll be clobbered."

Mrs. Moffat had just started the second year of a two-year term. Her husband is an executive of International Harvester, also at Chatham. They have two young daughters and a teen-age son.

Police Chief C. S. Bagnell said four letters were turned over to him "by various members of council" last April 10.

"There was definitely nothing threatening in them," he said, and apparently nothing of a criminal nature.

He refused to release the letters, saying they were given to him in confidence. He said he has undertaken no investigation.

Mr. McKinnon and Mr. Sanderson said they also had received threatening letters and telephone calls over questions concerning Highway 401 and daylight time.

Mr. McKinnon resigned in December in the middle of a two-year term.

None of the 20 aboard the 1,232-ton Senyo Maru, was injured, the newspaper said. The incident came to light when a seamen's association asked for an investigation.

26 Persons Killed, Train Catches Fire

ZARAGOZA, Spain (AP)—At least 26 persons were killed today when a passenger coach of the Madrid - Barcelona mail train caught fire near here, police reported.

Another 28 passengers were brought to Zaragoza, most of them reported in a grave condition.

Gaining English Education Hard Row to Hoe Meet Told

TRENTON — Speaking to Trenton Key Club members and their parents at last night's annual Parents Banquet in Canterbury Hall, Squadron Leader Stanley Baynes, a native of England himself, said that gaining an education in England was "a hard row to hoe," and advised the young Canadians to "hang onto the Canadian system", imperfect though it may be.

S/L Baynes took his listeners along the road of development of education in England from the days of King Arthur and his Knights of the Round Table to the present day system. "Real secular schooling," he said, "began in 1780 with the so-called Sunday Schools being held every day of the week. The four "r's" were taught . . . reading, writing, arithmetic and religious instruction."

In England now, the child starts out at five to attend nursery school and graduates to junior school at seven.

From the ages of seven to 11, the greatest pressures are exerted upon the child from parents and teachers. For four years, the subjects are drummed in, fed in, rammed in, jammed in . . . and sometimes strapped in. By the age of 11, the child is largely a nervous wreck. Then, he is required to sit his 11-plus examination without regard as to how he might feel on the particular day the examinations are held. He may have a stomach ache; he may have had no breakfast; he may not have slept the night before. No matter. The examination has the end result of labelling him "brilliant," "average" or "dull."

If he passes the examination, he may enter grammar school. If not, he must go to a secondary modern school.

At the grammar school, uniforms are obligatory and cost around $120, two and a half weeks' pay for the average worker.

STRICT REGIMENTATION

The chat of sending a child to grammar school deters some parents from sending him there and he ends up at the second-ary modern school.

Those who do attend grammar school are subjected to strict regimentation, and receive a purely academic education, which is geared to meet subjects designed to fit him for university. By 17 he is expected to enter university. The rigorous course at grammar school, on top of the "pushing" he received at junior school often proves to be too much for the children and drop outs are many. Only six per cent of grammar school students go on to university.

At 16, the students who have learned manual work, (boys) and cooking and sewing for the girls, plus a smattering of academic education, are put out into the world to earn a living, without even a certificate of any kind.

"They're hardly prepared to earn a living in the highly technological society in which we live," stated S/L Baynes. "No one can be told to get out and dig ditches any more. They use machines to dig ditches nowadays, and you have to have an education to learn how to run the machine."

The secondary modern school offers very little challenge to students, who should have passed the 11-plus examination, but didn't, for one reason or another. Hence, many run into trouble in later years, because they do not get a sense of fulfillment from their work. The students are given a "second chance" at 12 years of age, and if they pass these examinations, the boys may go on to technical training and the girls into art courses. They may even get to university, but it's "a hard row to hoe," said S/L Baynes.

SYSTEM DANGEROUS

The speaker said that some thought was being given now in England to doing away with the 11 plus examinations and substituting a system of teacher or principal recommendations for grammar school. But this system, he warned, "said S/L Baynes, because the teacher or the principal might be "swayed" by one consideration or another.

How the English can change their educational system within the foreseeable future is a problem, said the speaker, because there just aren't enough grammar schools and universities. But English university graduates are among the finest in the world, and the few who do manage to get an education are well-trained.

Special guests of honor at last night's banquet were high school principal John Garrett and Mrs. Garrett, Stanley Hall, president of the Trenton Kiwanis Club and Al Weaver, Kiwanis Key Club chairman.

Head table guests were introduced by Key Club president, Bill Spencer. The invocation was said by Donald Deduke; the ladies who prepared and served the banquet were thanked by Al Russell; certificates were presented to new members by Key Club Lt.-Gov. Robert Shoniker and the guest speaker was introduced by Gerald Bibby and thanked by Clare Webb.

MORE BANKS NEEDED

Canada should be allowed to have more banks to overcome the possibility of a monopolistic banking system, the president of British International Finance (Canada) Ltd. of Toronto said in a report released Tuesday. Sinclair Stevens said in the company's 1964 annual report that with present growth rates Canada could have a banking system with $50,000,000 in assets by 1975 controlled by the management of the five largest banks.

Girl, 13, Snatches Boy, 6, From Path of Moving Bus

Jerry Harlow, six-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Harlow, R.R. 4, Trenton was snatched from beneath the wheels of a slow-moving school bus by Kathy Little.

The Little girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Little, also of R.R. 4, Trenton, is credited with saving the Harlow boys' life. Kathy is 13 years of age.

The children were waiting at the side of the road, on Highway 2, west of Trenton, for the Freeman school bus to take them to York Road Public School.

Driven by Donald Freeman, the bus pulled up slowly on the icy road to pick up the waiting youngsters. It had not quite pulled to a stop, but was moving very slowly, when the Harlow boy slipped on the ice and slid in front of the back wheels of the bus.

Kathy Little, standing near the Harlow child, reached down quickly, grabbed the boy by the parka and pulled him to safety.

The children boarded the bus and continued to school without as much as a mention to the driver about the near-mishap.

However, at the school, the children were witnesses the incident were full of the story. It soon reached school principal Earl Everson.

Mr. Everson secured full details of the story from the children and relayed it to a news source here.

At last report, the Harlow boy was fine, the Little girl quite unconcerned — and driver Donald Freeman was still uninformed of what had slithered beneath the wheels of his bus.

Implications of Air Raids

U.S. air raids against North Viet Nam targets cannot have been made without considerable soul searching, and possibly with grave misgivings. The raids were, at one and the same time, a convincing demonstration of strength and a confession of weakness.

They prove that the U.S. has the power to win a conventional war in the area against its present foes.

There may be something to be gained from proving this point to the Vietnamese peasantry, but there was never any necessity for proving it to those in authority.

Nor, one suspects, will the confession of weakness provide these communist leaders with any new information. They must have already known that the strength of the Viet Cong had reached a point where the U.S. would be unable to cope with the guerrillas in their own style of warfare.

The raids on North Viet Nam bases have been described as retaliation for a ten-minute Viet Cong attack on Pleiku Air Base, in which eight Americans were killed, a hundred wounded, five helicopters destroyed and 17 other aircraft damaged.

Punishing though this raid was, it is doubtful whether the Americans would have resorted to raids on North Viet Nam if they had regarded it as an isolated incident. Rather, they seemed to have viewed it as an example of the type of action of which the Viet Cong is now capable. The raids were a deterrent—Congressional leaders leaving a meeting of the U.S. National Security Council at the White House had been given the impression that the U.S. is embarked on a strike-for-strike policy.

This may shackle the Viet Cong if, indeed, it is as directly controlled from the North as U.S. leaders believe. If, however, there are even segments of it which are acting independently of tight direction from the North, its raids may continue or even be stepped up. Experts doubt whether air strikes can close the supply route from the north. Indeed, even partial success in this endeavor might not strangle the Viet Cong. It is noteworthy that the mortars used to shell Pleiku had not been supplied by North Viet Nam but had been captured from U.S. forces.

The dangers in a policy of retaliation do not have to be outlined. They are obvious. The U.S. has long held the threat of raids on North Viet Nam over the heads of the Viet Cong and its allies. It was, as in bridge and chess, the threat is often more effective than the act. The raids having been made, the initiative has passed to the communists. What will they do? If they, in turn, retaliate, a frightfully hazardous situation will be in the making. For the experts are right in maintaining that the supply route cannot be closed by air attacks, eventually the U.S. might be led to bomb the new industrial complex around Hanoi. This would almost certainly lead to retaliatory raids on Saigon—but these would only be effective if China or Russia, or both, provided the necessary planes. Raids on Saigon might lead U.S. bombers further afield. It is dreadful to discover any logical stopping point short of full-scale conventional war, which, in its turn, could become a nuclear war.

For this reason, communist retaliation may, if it comes, be limited to Viet Cong attacks, but it would not be surprising if outside aid to the Viet Cong were increased, rather than diminished, by the war in Vietnam.

The future is frighteningly uncertain.

Uneven Growth

The Ontario Department of Labor predicts that the population of the Lakehead Region and of Northeastern Ontario will, by 1986, be almost double the figures for 1961.

These are the two areas of Ontario which have the greatest ability to absorb population increases, from the standpoint of available space.

Unfortunately, while they will lead the province from the standpoint of percentage increases, the additional residents will actually be much fewer than those acquired by Metropolitan Toronto, which is already crowded by Canadian standards. Northern Ontario's population, it is predicted, will increase by 704,226 people, Metro Toronto's by 1,899,055.

This further concentration of Ontario's population in the Toronto area is not something which will be an unmixed blessing. Great cities have their own attractions, but to support them and their industries one needs a flourishing countryside. When the city serves an area as large as Ontario, it hardly seems desirable that its population should comprise 30 per cent of the people in the entire province.

"Did you say he'd pick up the tab if we stalled long enough?"

To Your Good Health
We Will Never Grow Old ---If We Die Young

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 84 and in very good health, I exercise every day but lately my limbs are getting very stiff. At night when I draw my legs up, I find difficulty in straightening them out and it is very painful, especially in the knees.

If this is just natural because of my age, then I accept it. But if you can tell me anything to relieve this condition I would appreciate it. — Mrs. E. L. C.

One of the processes of aging involves enzyme and chemical changes within the cells of the tissues. We certainly do not know everything about this, but we know something and hope to learn more.

For whatever reasons, these chemical changes in the cells occur prominently in the cells of the muscles. The result is both stiffness and weakness. It comes to some of us earlier, and to some of us later, but come it must to all of us if we live it long enough. As someone once said, the only way never to grow old is to die young. But we can maintain strength of spirit and interest in the world around us, and we will mellow but not destroy the savor of life.

What can we do to combat this stiffness of the limbs? The first rule is to keep going as well as you can. By this I do not mean forcing yourself to keep going until fatigue makes you stop. But keep as active as you can. "Just sitting" endlessly makes the stiffness worse. So does "resting" in bed by making a point of having a bit of exercise every day.

Wholesome food is of great importance. This does not have to be complicated, but it must include certain things. One of the most important is a reasonable amount of protein. The best sources being lean meat, fish, eggs, cheese and dairy products. We have trouble with our teeth these protein foods can be prepared in easy-to-eat ways.

If vegetables (including the green, leafy ones) are hard to manage, a vitamin supplement may very likely help, but don't waste your money on fancy and over-priced supplements which promise all sorts of benefits.

And keeping interested in things is more important than some people realize, although I think that you do, Mrs. E. L. C. Read, keep up with the day's news, grow some house plants, send cards to friends or relatives, collect the different varieties of Christmas seals from year to year, keep a diary, write a little each day about the interesting things you've seen in your life — there are thousands of ways to keep mind and hands busy without too much strain.

Dear Dr. Molner: To the mother who was so worried about a spinal anesthetic in childbirth, I have had all four of my children that way. As far as I am concerned, it's the only way, completely free from discomfort and you are awake and see the baby the moment it is born. — Mrs. R. K.

Whether any mother-to-be should have a spinal is up to her doctor. Not all cases are alike, and I therefore refuse to generalize, except to say that when a spinal is advisable, there is no reason to fear it.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple. Write to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., for a copy of the booklet, "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains," enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Need Action On Report

Montreal La Presse

Economic Council of Canada has presented its report on Canada's future in a spirit of cautious optimism. Canada will be saved from the scourge of unemployment, youth will find jobs, inflation will be checked, foreign trade will grow — if such and such is done . . .

What will be done by the governments and public organizations to which these recommendations were made? There seems little indication of anyone's wanting to take action . . .

Canadian productivity will have to be increased since it is one of the worst in the Western world. It is false to link productivity simply to a reduction in time-off and an increase in work-hours. It involves many factors for which both unions and management must take responsibility.

How can something be done to prevent the hardships that Canada of the future holds for its youth? The labor market is being invaded by young people three times as numerous as in the 1950s. It would be a scandal if a young country turned out to be a country with a legion of unemployed youngsters on its hands. All the resources of education and all the vigilance of public groups will be needed to avoid such a scandalous absurdity.

Surprised?

Milwaukee Journal

A University of Chicago sociologist took four years and interviewed thousands of people to learn that the happiest man is young, wealthy, healthy, married and at the height of success. The unhappiest man is poor, unhealthy, elderly and unsuccessful, the study found.

So what's new?

Strictly Personal
Poor Need Money Most, Have Least

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"It's a funny thing about money," Ann Billings once observed. "The poor, who need it most, have the least of it." His ironic 19th century joke about money might be translated into 20th century terms of education.

For the children today, who need the best schooling most of all have the least; and those who need it the least have the best. Until we rectify this unbalance, it doesn't much matter if we "integrate" or "segregate."

The best schools are in the upper- middle - class suburbs, where the children are already exposed to numerous and early cultural influences and advantages. By the time they start school, they have already met and mastered many challenges to their minds.

The worst schools, of course, are in the slums, where the children are denied any creative pre-school experience. Homes are generally "non - verbal," there is an absence of books and magazines, and (most of all) parents are not looked upon us people who answer questions, but who give orders.

By the time a slum child is in his and either school, the odds are better than even that he will be a drop-out. He begins with an enormous disadvantage, and never gets the chance to catch up.

The vast majority of these children do not attend nursery school or kindergarten. Since what will be done by the governments and public organizations to which these recommendations were made? There seems little indication of anyone's wanting to take action . . .

Canadian productivity will have to be increased since it is one of the worst in the Western world. It is false to link productivity simply to a reduction in time-off and an increase in work-hours. It involves many factors for which both unions and management must take responsibility.

Removal of snow from sidewalks and roads of Belleville by tractor and plow will be realized in the near distant future. The city council has decided on the purchase of the necessary equipment which will place Belleville in the forefront of cities and towns in up-to-date means of snow clearance. Equipment which council decided to buy, and ordered, will be available for other uses the year round.

This will be the realization of a dream which a few years ago might have seemed just a fleeting vision of relief for the sorely tried property owner and tenant of property on whose hands and on whose backs has been the task of clearance of sidewalks since the time of the first walk in the city. In the early days there was not so much attention paid to the keeping of the walks clean but for years citizens have been expected to keep them shovelled of snow in winter, and they have been doing it.

The newly acquired snow plow is to be mounted on the city side. It is hoped to have the truck with the plow will be ready for action for the next storm if it does not come before the end of the week. The officials of the public works department say that the equipment will relieve them of much worry about drifting snow and snow banks during the rest of the winter.

The officials at the government fish hatchery here state they have had a very successful season. They now busy on the culture of a large quantity of white fish and a smaller quantity of lake trout. It is expected that an early distribution of the spawn will be made this spring for stocking purposes.

The politically settled section of what now is Eastern Canada passed from French to British control 202 years ago today — in 1763 — at the signing of the Treaty of Paris by British and French government representatives. The treaty marked the end of the Seven Years' War which actually ended four years earlier with the capture of Quebec by General Wolfe. The treaty stripped France of all her possessions north of what later became the United States, except for the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, which she still controls.

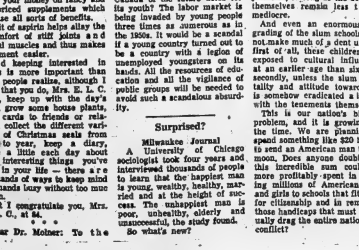
The province of Quebec withdrew Jan. 1 from 29 federal-provincial programs and will hence collect a larger proton (44 percent) of company and personal income tax in future.

Quebec has long wanted to pull out of all federal-provincial schemes, and the decision of the federal government allowing this is the result of an agreement made during the last federal - provincial conference. Contrary to what some residents are inclined to think, add to the amount of money Quebec will have. It simply allows her to collect herself the major part of the money paid by the taxpayer, to use it as she wishes and not under conditions set by Ottawa in federal-provincial projects.



Thus it is false to say that Quebec has special privileges; in fact she has none. Any province which wishes can withdraw from these programs. The province of Ontario, for example, to inform Ottawa of one's decision. Many provinces, however, prefer the system as it exists, the programs fill their needs — others because they can thus avoid all or some of the odious task of collecting income tax and appear generous to their taxpayers.

Quebec prefers to make use of her constitutional rights and do the job herself . . . The federal minister of finance, for that matter, recognizes that a provincial government should have the right to collect the money necessary to its administration. This does not appear to be the opinion of the Conservative opposition, which is always ready to condemn co-operative federalism once and for all when this matter comes up for debate. Mr. Diefenbaker considers the principle of joint projects as something separatist, the gradual disintegration of Confederation. Ottawa would end up paying all her powers to the provinces . . . But far from promoting the breaking of Confederation, this new formula helps reinforce it.

As it was planned, Confederation is only as workable as are the provinces. To operate, they have the revenues. They must be able to collect them according to their needs, without intervention from Ottawa.

Claims Nurses Being Sold Down the River

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:
RE: NURSING CRISIS IN ONTARIO

The current controversy raging in the nursing profession today gives one the impression that the brief on collective bargaining being prepared by the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario, and being presented to the government without the approval of the members of the association, is the first time the general staff or diploma graduated nurses has been sold down the river by the RNAO. It is not in fact the first time, but rather the second time.

In April of 1962, at the annual meeting of the RNAO, we were asked to approve "in good faith" the RNAO's brief to the Royal Commission on Health Services, as it was not yet available in its complete form for the members of the association to examine. In fact within ten days this very brief in its entirety was presented to the Royal Commission on Health Services at Queen's Park in Toronto.

This RNAO brief was prepared and presented by senior members of the Association as well as employees of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission. This brief made some of the following recommendations:

Page 7, para: 15—We see the role of the nurse prepared in the diploma school to be one which contributes to the nursing needs of patients under the direction of the professional nurse . . . .

Page 12, para: 28a—Training programs for certified nursing assistants will need to be maintained until sufficient numbers of graduates from the new plan of education are available. (This plan already in progress.)

If the destiny of the diploma graduate or general staff nurse was being recommended to the government in 1962, and now in 1965 this same group is preparing a brief on collective bargaining to present to the same government, is this not in fact sealing the fate of the general staff nurse from having at her back a puppet of the RNAO? This makes me ask: does the government also have a hand in preparing this brief on collective bargaining? Does the Health Minister have a finger in the pie as well?

The answer to all this same problem, but spared no effort to upgrade their profession, their education and their standing 97% of their profession, so that they will have nothing to be ashamed of in terms of quality. There isn't any mention made in the RNAO brief of the Royal Commission on Health Services for the specific upgrading of the diploma graduate nurses.

If the answer to this demonstration of the nursing body by a small minority is the formation of an association for diploma graduate nurses, then let us all join together and oppose the devious plans the RNAO has for us. We would include their brief on collective bargaining until we have had time to peruse it closely, fully, and explore all channels open to us. This brief, which has remained so secretive to date, and which we have been given to believe advocates a closed-shop "compulsory" type union, should be released by the RNAO, with full facts, for complete and open discussion at all levels of our association. Instead of this we are behind closed doors and merely releasing such statements as: RNAO forges ahead collective bargaining or informing us how hard the committee is working. I ask, "what committee?" We didn't elect one, or has the RNAO started to use wanted another appointed one?

This could be best summed up by one statement: "Hard work is no substitute for intelligence."

The White House said most of the cost to the government is for walks, platforms, and other facilities to accommodate large numbers of visitors to the grave. The cost of the work in the immediate area of the grave, estimated at $309,000, will be paid by the Kennedy family.

Pension Report Now Completed

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—The parliamentary committee set up to study the Canada Pension Plan has completed its report but details won't be known until it is tabled in the Commons, probably next week.

The 36-member committee, drawn from the Senate and the Commons, held 31 sittings, most of them during the parliamentary recess, to hear the criticisms and praises of various organizations and individuals.

The most frequent complaint was that the plan does the least for those who need it most. In most cases, criticism was coupled with a suggestion that the government replace the plan with expanded flat - rate benefits under the old age security program.

But the plan received approval in principle from a number of influential organizations, including the Canadian Labor Congress, the Canadian Welfare Council and the Canadian Teachers' Federation.

CAUSES STIR

The plan that easily caused the biggest stir during the three weeks of public hearings came from the Ontario government, just a few days after the province announced it would enter the plan.

It sought several major changes, and some Liberal members of the committee criticized them privately as being more political than practical.

The Ontario suggestions would result in an extra $25 a month paid to those in the Canada Pension Plan fund to all Canadians receiving the $75-a-month old age security benefit, and the establishment of a minimum $25 monthly pension under the plan itself.

The contributionor the plan would be collected from the first dollar of earnings, as opposed exempting the first $600-$1,000 and the plan would come to maturity in 20 years instead of the proposed 10.

While committee members, sworn to secrecy, would not reveal anything about their report, it was considered highly unlikely that any of Ontario's major recommendations would be adopted.

The Canada Pension Plan already has been dovetailed with the proposed Quebec plan, and any serious alterations would mean a new round of negotiations.

Considering the partisan exchanges in the committee, it was thought likely the plan might take a political buffeting in the Commons before it gets final approval.

Washday and NHL Playoffs Boost Demands for Power

Blue Monday — still a traditional washday for most housewives — brings demands for power in Southern Ontario of more than 300,000 kilowatts, equal to the combined peak demands of London and Sudbury.

The power energizes innumerable electric motors which drive laundry equipment and pump water as well.

National Electrical Week, being observed this year from Feb. 7 to 13, focuses attention on the impact of electricity on our lives.

Everytime you flick a switch, a remote generating station responds to your need for electric energy. When thousands of people do the same thing at the same time, the effect is remarkable.

Between tense overtime periods of a National Hockey League playoff game, power demands also jump suddenly. That's because people switch on lights, open refrigerators for a cold drink, put the kettle on the stove for a cup of tea or plug in the electric coffee percolator and toaster.

Power demands also rise on election nights when see-saw returns flow in later than the usual TV viewing hours.

Other events cause substantial declines in electrical requirements. On Remembrance Day, power demands in Southern and Northeastern Ontario drop about 300,000 kilowatts-enough to serve the customers of Ottawa and Port Arthur-when people pause to observe two minutes silence for the war dead.

Demands fall off a few minutes before 11 a.m. and pick up shortly after the hour as machines of commerce and industry resume work.

On a cold, blustery winter day when the street lights come on early, power demands soar. They are much lower when it's mild and sunny. In summer the peak is just before lunch.

Ontario Hydro, which serves approximately 2,000,000 customers in co-operation with 337 municipal utilities, must meet peak demands when they occur in big cities, towns and rural areas.

That means planning years in advance and keeping in close touch with trends so that adequate power can be supplied to meet people's needs at the right moment.

Says PC Party Needs New Leader

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Joe Clark, president of the Progressive Conservative party's student federation, says the party needs a new leader because of Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's stand in the flag debate and his opposition to changes in Quebec.

Mr. Clark, 25, a University of Alberta student and a member of the party executive, told a press conference Tuesday Mr. Diefenbaker and other party leaders are out of step with young Canadians under 30 years of age.

Crediting Mr. Diefenbaker with arousing his interest in politics and Canada, Mr. Clark said he had planned to inform the opposition leader of the federation's views at a meeting he sought unsuccessfully.

In a confidential letter to Mr. Diefenbaker, he said presidents of the 46 students clubs across Canada have been told they are "free and obliged" to speak out on policy questions when Mr. Diefenbaker's policies are in "discord" with views of young Canadians.

He cited the flag and French-English relations as the major issues where young party members disagree with the leader.

REGRETS ISSUE RAISED

He regretted the government ever raised the flag issue, but said the Conservative party became too closely identified with hard core opposition to the maple leaf design.

The party has also become identified with "opposition as a matter of policy" to much of the change occurring in Quebec. Most thoughtful young persons felt there was nothing to fear in this change, and even welcomed it for the benefits it will bring to the rest of Canada.

Mr. Clark said despite his feelings over the leadership he will support the "interpretation" of the weekend executive meeting against calling a leadership convention.

He said he sought, but was unable, to get an appointment with Mr. Diefenbaker Tuesday afternoon. This was only because he had set out in the request early enough, he added.

Had he seen Mr. Diefenbaker, he would have informed him of the federation's views about his leadership, and it would be "patently foolish" for him to have requested Mr. Diefenbaker's resignation, he said.

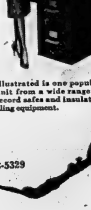
YESTERDAY'S HEADLINE

TODAY'S QUESTION:

IF FIRE STRUCK YOUR FIRM AND DESTROYED YOUR RECORDS, WHAT WOULD HAPPEN TO YOUR FAMILY?

Would you be able to care for them without any problems? Or would the loss of your files mean the loss of your business? Unfortunately, statistics show that close to half the companies which lose their records in a fire never re-open.

The sensible thing to do is to give yourself the maximum possible protection with Insulated Files and Record Safes from your Dominion Safe dealer. Unlike ordinary files, which usually act like ovens when fire strikes, Dominion files will easily withstand the hottest inferno.



They come in a variety of styles, colours and sizes, and the cost is unusually reasonable. The time to get this protection is right now . . . today . . . before a fire starts, not afterward.

Successful Living

Joys of Childbirth Outweigh the Discomforts

DEAR DORIS — To "Afraid" I would say why be afraid of childbirth? Because of a little pain which will be forgotten as soon as a wonderful little creature is put into your arms?

I have been through the war in Germany, my husband in battle when my baby was born. A beautiful little girl, eyes like his, I was so happy. She was all I had.

I had to leave home and relatives, seldom had milk to feed her; only raw potatoes and water. Then I got badly wounded shrapnel (from heavy bomb) in my stomach.

But I survived I think only because I knew I had to live for my child. After five years my husband returned. Pain and struggle are forgotten. Think of the many years of happiness and laughter. My girl is 20 now and beautiful. — SJECT.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR SJECT — There's just nothing to match the miracle of owning and raising a child. I'm sure your stirring story will help "Afraid."

• • •

DEAR DORIS — My neighbors have opened an excellent, much-needed home bakery. From my own experience in receiving more change than I deserve nearly every time I shop, I presume they are being robbed, either by people who don't count their change (I do, and return what I owe), or by people who walk out secure in the knowledge they obtained something for nothing.

Is there anything I can do to help these friends collect their just due? — GOOD CUSTOMER.

DEAR GOOD — What an uncalculated kick! Learning to count change can be learned much more easily than higher mathematics. As a privileged, trusted friend, make a point of discussing this with them.

Once they see their plight, offer to drill the one who handles the cash; and persuade them to check each other.

Church Groups

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The Evening Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, held its February meeting last evening at the home of Mrs. John Craig, Hastings Drive.

The president, Mrs. J. Allan presided at the business meeting with plans made to hold a Valentine party for the Ontario School for the Deaf students.

Mrs. A. L. Sutherland, assisted by Mrs. J. McKay, lead in the study. A film was shown, "Never a Saint," which is a story of a young man in his teens, who leaves his country home, to find a job in the big city. His trouble is finding a job. The jobs don't last long when you are unskilled, and soon you are out in the street. The faster tempo of urban life, the loneliness of the crowded "Asphalt Jungles," and the potential pitfalls of the big city are ever present to take their toll of the young, inexperienced newcomer. The need is great for "homes away from home," where young people can find stability in a Christian atmosphere in the midst of change.

Eggs Source of Protein, Fine Meat Substitute

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—An unusual increase in the production of eggs has caused a record price drop across Canada. In some areas Grade A large eggs are selling for as little as 38 cents a dozen.

Home economists in the consumer section of the agriculture department say this should be of particular interest to economy-minded housewives since eggs are an important source of protein and therefore an excellent meat substitute.

They note, for example, that a dozen Grade A eggs supply about 1½ pounds of meat in protein value and provide six servings at about seven cents a serving.

If you're taking advantage of the low prices by buying larger - than - average quantities, the experts say, it's important that they be kept at refrigerator temperature since they deteriorate rapidly at room temperature.

And poultry experts in the agriculture department add that eggs should be stored with the large end up.

As for preparation, moderation is the key word. For all types of egg cookery from the temperature low. This will prevent the valuable protein from toughening and turning the egg into a rubbery, unpalatable product.

Noting that big breakfasts are not as common as they used to be in Canadian homes, economist Beara Jarvis says: "We suggest that a soft-boiled egg makes a quick and satisfying breakfast more Canadians should adopt."

VERSATILE FOOD

But if the unadorned egg doesn't appeal to you, there are lots of ways of using it in fancier dishes. Some examples:

Baked shirred eggs—in tomatoes, with sausages, chicken livers or minced ham.

French omelettes—these can be varied by adding frozen asparagus tips, bacon, cheese, ham, jelly, mushrooms, tomatoes or herbs.

Poached eggs—for variety try them on corned beef, on toasted English muffins, on wholewheat toast with cream cheese, or broiled ham slices topped with hollandaise sauce.

Hard-cooked eggs—you may want to try creole eggs, curried or scalloped eggs; stuffed eggs with a new twist and a variety of spices and herbs and may be added to cream sauce, sour cream or served in tomato aspic.

Eggs for dessert—turn them into baked custard, bread or rice pudding, lemon sponge pudding, fruit whips, angel food cake, sponge cake, chiffon cake or meringues topped with fruit.

The economists add that the family cook may obtain a free copy of their consumer section publication, How to Buy Eggs, by writing to the agriculture department's information division, Ottawa.

Congregational Meetings

TABERNACLE UNITED CHURCH

The annual congregational meeting of Tabernacle United Church was held on Tuesday evening following a potluck supper in the Sunday school auditorium.

Rev. Morgan G. McFarlane opened the meeting. While the tables were cleared of dishes Mr. McFarlane led in a singsong with Mr. C. E. Templer at the piano. A hearty welcome was extended to the numerous new people who had become part of the congregation during the past year. Tribute was paid to the memory of the many deceased members and friends.

Mr. McFarlane expressed personal thanks to his staff: Mr. C. E. Templer, director of music; Mr. E. R. Taylor, church caretaker and Miss Ethel Horton, church secretary, for faithful and devoted services rendered.

Also to Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Archibald, Mrs. A. E. Cornish, Mrs. B. D. Salisbury who give voluntary clerical assistance from time to time in the church office, and to Mr. Gerald Gorniliw who has done much toward improvements of the church edifice.

The growth in Bible study, the new curriculum and the prayer fellowship have all been encouraging. He expressed thanks for the wonderful things accorded to the four and one-half years of his ministry in Tabernacle congregation.

ANNUAL REPORTS

Annual reports of activities and finances of every organization in the congregation were presented in mimeographed form as well as that of the church treasurer. Growth in membership was noted and increased givings were shown both for the local church and the Missionary and Maintenance Fund.

Mr. John Lyon on behalf of the session voiced the appreciation of the congregation to Mr. McFarlane and his family for the dedicated leadership given in every department of the local church. Under Mr. McFarlane's supervision every organization and department has grown spiritually. The Sunday Church School is making splendid progress with the use of the new curriculum. The

C.G.I.T. Groups Hold Conference

A C.G.I.T. leadership training conference was held Saturday at Tabernacle United Church with leaders from the counties of Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward, and Northumberland. Mrs. R. Ellis was convener.

During the morning Miss L. Pawrie, Deaconess of Presbyterian Church, conducted a workshop on the new C.G.I.T. manual. A short workshop service was given by Mrs. M. G. McFarlane.

Lunch was served by the U.C.W.

Miss M. Hillis led a question period, "What's Your Problem?"

Miss Ines Watson secretary of Ontario C.G.I.T., spoke on the 50th anniversary project and plans for area celebrations. There was a discussion on leaders' fellowship. It was felt it would be helpful for leaders outside of Belleville to get together in area groups and leaders were selected to promote these ideas.

U.C.W. under the leadership of Mrs. Jack Aitchison has been a great inspiration and here too can be noted growth in Bible study and missionary study.

Mr. Ross Hall, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the names of four new elders and three new stewards, which were adopted by the congregation. Elders are: Messrs. M. J. McClelland, Lyal Wannamaker, James Stobbart and Ira Campbell. The Stewards are Messrs. John Yott, W. R. McKay and Franklin Allin.

FILM SHOWN

At the conclusion of the business period the film "Freedom in Their Souls" was shown. This film was produced by the Canadian Bible Society. It has gained acclaim as one of the finer films produced by Canadians in the past year. The film shows Africa in its rise to freedom. It pictures the many-sided reach for freedom, intellectually, industrially, politically and spiritually. Into this changing society the church brings the Bible and the influencing effects of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. The Bible Society is shown as it works with the church as African Christian leaders carry the Bible to market places of industry making available the Scriptures to those anxious to read and know.

Ann Landers

Phoney Letter Distresses Mother of College Age Boy

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our son is 18, a high school senior. While cleaning his room this morning I ran across a letter from a boy friend of his who is 19 and in college.

"We just got back from the laundromat where we took turns riding in the dryer. It's 1:30 a.m. and my room is jumping with guys. Right now we are drinking gin highballs and eating popcorn. It's too bad you aren't here. This is the greatest blast ever. Don't make any plans for the 12th of next month because I expect you down for the big dance.

"There are some great looking chicks here and you don't have to worry about mothers because these girls don't have any. Well, I've got to go now because it's my turn to drink one straight down. I have a hunch I won't feel so hot in the morning but it's worth it."

Ann, what do you think? This boy's mother went back to work to help put him through college. I think perhaps we'll send our son to a trade school. Do you care to comment? — A MOTHER, TOO.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR MOTHER — I hope you won't deprive your son of a college education on the strength of that letter. It's phony.

Do you believe a college boy (for anyone else for that matter) would sit down and write a letter in the middle of a drinking party? Get with it.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a 19-year-old girl who is a perfect health. I had a good figure until I was 16, suddenly I started to put on weight and before I knew it I was 40 pounds too heavy.

I was determined to lose those extra pounds, and in three months I took off every bit of it.

Now I'm worse off than ever. I let myself go again and at present I am 20 pounds overweight and just plain disgusted with myself. I don't like going to doctors, and managed to lose those 40 pounds without any medical advice or reducing pills. I hope you won't 'tell me to go to a doctor this time because, frankly, I am ashamed to get on the scale in front of anyone.

I guess I am writing to you because I need your encouragement. Can you help? — HOPELESS OR NOT?

• • •

DEAR OR NOT — A girl who, in three years, gains and loses 40 pounds then gains another 50 needs outside help.

Go to your physician and don't worry about shocking him. He knows you are fat without looking at the scale. Along with the diet, ask him to direct you to a counsellor. The wild fluctuation of weight is a symptom of an emotional problem.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I want to say bully for you for the way you replied to Corky's letter. She was the farm wife who paints the house, putties windows, builds fireplaces, puts up 200 bushels of tomatoes, runs the tractor with the baby on her lap, sews her own clothes, and heaven knows what else.

I'm a 33-year-old farm wife who used to be a Corky, too. When I married at 20 I had wonderful health and tremendous energy. I worked right alongside my husband and helped build our home. I laid hardwood floors, carried cement in pails for the septic tank, trucked grain, husked corn and took off a few days now and then to have babies.

Besides depriving a man of a job, I also sewed my own clothes, baked bread, canned everything we grew and did the laundry and housework. I thought I was the biggest fool who ever lived. My back is ruined and I sleep in traction every night. If I knew then what I know now, I wouldn't be in this shape. Tip off the girls, Ann, please. Thanks — EX-HORSE.

• • •

DEAR FRIEND — Thanks for the confessions of an Ex-Horse. Consider yourselves tipped, girls.

• • •

Awkward and self-conscious? Unsure of yourself? Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 40c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Will Probe Number of Child Brides

RABAUL, New Britain (Reuter)—An Australian legislator will shortly visit a remote area of New Britain Island in the South Pacific to investigate the number of child brides there.

Korian Michael Urekit, a member of the Papua - New Guinea House of Assembly, hopes to dissuade the members of the Kol district from the custom of wedding girls of 10 to 12 years of age.

Father O'Brien says that sufficient legal remedies already exist to put an end to child-bride practices.

"Slap them in prison on a charge of statutory rape," he says of the offenders.

Often the girls are pregnant within a year of their marriage, says, and many of the babies are still-born.

Father O'Brien says the administration's view in the past has been that old brides are part of native custom.

"But so is chopping off heads, and we have put a stop to that," he said.

The New Britain district commissioner, F. E. Folds, says education is more satisfactory solution than what he calls dangerous direct interference.

A questionnaire was conducted on the study of Trinidad and enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Fox thanked everyone for a most inspirational and interesting evening.

The meeting closed and a social time was spent during lunch served by Mrs. W. McColl and the hostess.

Keep Sick Child Amused; Ease Strain All Round

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — It takes time and thought to keep a sick child happy, but it usually is worth the effort. Even if it doesn't shorten the illness, it does keep the strain on both mother and child to a minimum. And most important thing is not to leave a child with any feeling for too long," says Elizabeth Morrow, "After all, he is up and running and normally he changes activity."

As a general rule, she says, young children like large playthings they can handle while older children like to make something.

"It's a good idea to have a few toys or games tucked away to be used only when a child is sick, or, if you can, give him something new."

The patient should have a firm, flat surface to work on. In hospital Miss Morrow uses the adjustable tables on which meals are served. At home she suggests a tray, pillow or even either side of the child and propping a tray or board on them.

KEEP THINGS HANDY

The sick room should be attractive and uncluttered.

"But leave a few things the child will want most often near him; for instance, a book if he's fond of books. You can put them in a shoe bag or shopping bag tied to the bed so he can change his play without calling mother every time.

"Toddlers should have something like a big ball that won't go through cot bars. They need motion and activity and you can do something with a ball. They should have something that makes a noise, a pot and spoon or squeaky toy, and something cuddly. At that age they do a lot of dozing.

"The pre-schoolers are probably the most difficult to keep still. They need pretty constant supervision and change. You should have a definite plan for their day if you can. Give them building toys and blocks or modelling clay with tooth picks or pipe cleaners to use with it. The main thing is to choose something that changes.

"A young child will like the same type of thing, though perhaps more advanced. He might cut pictures out of magazines or look at books. And he may use any toy longer."

Miss Morrow says it's important to remember that a child when sick is more dependent on an adult and more easily upset. "An eight-year-old may behave like a 5-year-old. Somebody should see him often, and the younger the child the more often."

SOMETHING LIVE

For a child who will be in bed for a long period, Miss Morrow suggests potting a plant or goldfish in the room—"something he can watch and get interested in."

In choosing amusements, consider your own peace of mind as well as the child's behavior. For example, a small child in bed with scissors and cut-outs and tears him, it will be your fault, not his, if he cuts up sheets and blankets.

"You can give some children paints if you cover the blankets and keep him away from the wall. But some mothers couldn't. It would worry them too much. And it's not worth it to the child if there are too many anxieties about his games."

It's not necessary to buy sick-room entertainment. "Let them paste magazine pictures on brown paper to make a collage or dress up in old clothes. If you think about it, there are all sorts of play materials in your kitchen — tin cans carefully smoothed at the edge, spools and pencils and shoe laces."

If you can afford it a cheap record player is a good thing. "A young child can handle a simple one and enjoy changing records. Keep it in at a certain time, then put it away."

And for slowing down activity when a child is getting tired, Miss Morrow suggests a story or music.

Skipper Skips Back to Sea!

HALIFAX (CP) — Capt. William Norman, 60, has gone to the sea again, convinced that he's just not cut out for the life of a landlubber.

The native of Catalina, Nfld., retired two years ago and took his wife to a lodge in northern Newfoundland.

"Hunting and fishing are all right, but enough's enough," he says.

Then, since New York had been one of his favorite ports of call, he convinced Mrs. Norman they should live there.

"It's a far different place looking outwards than on a ship in the harbor looking inwards," he says.

Last fall found Capt. Norman as master of the Vagabond Prince, owned by Capt. Joe O'Brien of Halifax, another old mariner with a hankering to return to the sea.

Capt. O'Brien bought the vessel last summer after tiring of a shoreside job and made two coal trips to Newfoundland from North Sydney, N.S.

However, he was forced to go ashore again when he found his cargo-carrying business had become so brisk it was necessary for him to direct things personally.

The Vagabond Prince spent the fall bringing fish to Halifax from Labrador, then headed for the Caribbean with a similar cargo.

For company Capt. Norman has a 16-month-old boxer named Mr. Minto, a name traditionally given to dogs aboard Danish sailing vessels that used to call at Newfoundland ports half a century ago.

CAT COUNTRY

There are 79,000,000 cats in the U.S., compared to 37,000,000 dogs.

HOMEMADE FACE PACK

Dear Susanna: Have you recipe for a good homemade face pack?

I had one some time ago which included ordinary rolled oats as an ingredient — would you, by any chance, have a similar formula? If not, I would be interested in hearing about something else I might try.

Thank you in advance — I do so enjoy your column! — Mrs. D. S. Hamilton.

Not only am I able to send you that particular one, but I've included instructions for another type of homemade face pack as well.

Of course, all my friends everywhere are welcome to this information —and I always adore hearing from you all, but whenever a hint or suggestions is included it makes my heart leap with delight. Really!

Now, how about a light astringent, just for a starter, if commercial astringents are too harsh and irritate your skin, try a combination of equal parts of rose water and witch hazel. This makes a lovely, mild, refreshing pick-me-up . . . especially for parts of the skin that are inclined to be oily.

On the subject of that other rascal, dry skin, many of us don't realize how important diet is for combating this wrinkle promoter.

One should eat plenty of fruit, green vegetables and carrots — and drink lots of milk. Using olive oil for salads and cooking is helpful and the intermittent addition of cod liver oil to the diet is also recommended. — SUSANNA

HEDGING

Memo to all frosty areas: Our Department of Agriculture warns us that heavy deposits of snow on ornamental shrubs such as Japanese yews, junipers and cedars can result in severe damage if not removed. Wide, flat-topped hedges may also suffer.

After heavy snowfalls the snow should be brushed or branches should be pruned back to the point where breakage occurred. — SUSANNA

Mother's Helper

YOU CAN protect your toddler from falling out of the new Big Bed, until he's used to it, without making him feel "hobbled." Slip a pillow or rolled blanket between the outside edge of the mattress and sprines, making just enough of an upward slope to keep him safe.

Blocky Silk Prints Shown For Summer

By JORIE LUELOFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Prints and plaids of all sizes were in the spotlight at Monday's showing of Galanos' spring and summer collection for 1965.

Bright, brash, blocky silk prints—a lot of them in shades of red and pink—were cut into suits for afternoon and evening. Jacks were generously scooped out in back and gently nipped in just under the bust before flaring softly to the hipline.

The full feeling was continued in the softly pleated skirts. Sometimes the pleats were on the sides, sometimes only in the front, but they were always there.

The ensembles were generally topped by matching broad-brimmed hats of straw that, in some cases, were two-toned. For example, a straw sailor had red on one side, navy on the other—appeared with a red, white and navy blue plaid suit.

RECOMMENDS SWIRLS

For cocktails and evening wear, Galanos recommends swirls and swirls of full-skirted billowing chiffon. The drifty effect often was enhanced by long trailing sashes, wide sleeves or loose, flimsy overblouses, or panels that floated with each step.

The chiffon was printed in everything from dainty floral patterns to splashy blocks to tiger- and leopard-skin designs.

Necklines tended to be high and modest in front, but low and tricky in back. Squares and Vs plummeted down to the hip waistlines. A triangular neckline with the apex held together by a dainty bow at the nape of the neck was greeted with applause.

THIS WEEK'S EGG RECIPES

To prevent hunger pangs around 8.00 p.m. when you serve an egg and cheese main dish for dinner provide three vegetables.

In our house we are living almost entirely on eggs this week and like it.

Last night I served a crusty golden fondue with green peas, creamed cauliflower and thinly sliced carrots. The eye appeal was an important part of the success of this meal. Our served plates were pictures.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Fried Fillets of Sole; Tartare Sauce; Boiled Potatoes with Parsley Butter; Harvard Beets; Cucumber Salad with Cream Dressing; Grapefruit Halves; Crackers and Cheese; Coffee.

NEW-FASHIONED FONDUE

6 slices buttered white bread, cut in halves, 3 cups shredded old Cheddar cheese, fairly well-packed, 2 tablespoons grated onion or 4 teaspoons green onion flakes, 4 eggs, beaten, 2 cups milk, ¾ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard (optional), paprika.

Arrange half of the buttered bread in bottom of large shallow casserole, overlapping. Top with half the cheese and onion. Repeat with remaining bread slices, cheese and onion. Combine beaten eggs, milk and seasonings and pour over bread. Sprinkle sparingly with paprika. Let stand 5 minutes. Bake on centre rack in centre of oven at 350 deg. Fahr. for 40 minutes until crust is deep gold. This lovely golden crust is part of its charm. Serve as quickly as possible.

4 tablespoons butter or margarine, 4 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, ½ lb. process cheese, cut up, 4 eggs, yolks and whites separated.

Melt butter or margarine. Blend in flour and salt, then stir in milk until thick. Add cheese and stir over low heat or boiling water until cheese melts. Stir in egg yolks. Fold in stiffly beaten whites until evenly blended. Turn into well-greased deep baking dish, preferably with straight sides. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 40 minutes; or until well risen and golden brown. Serve at once. If desired, soufflé may be baked in individual greased baking dishes, but for a shorter time.

NOTE:

Grated Cheddar may be substituted for process cheese.

For special occasions, some of you might like to serve your cheese soufflé with Mushroom Sauce: Saute 1 cup sliced mushrooms and 1 teaspoon grated onion in 4 tablespoons butter until limp but not brown. Add 4 tablespoons flour and stir until blended. Stir in 1¼ cups milk or consomme or half water until thick. Add ½ or 1 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, and if desired, 1 or 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley.

U.C.W. Meeting

UNIT 3—WELLINGTON UCW

The January meeting of Unit 3 of Wellington UCW was held at the home of Mrs. J. Dart. The meeting was opened by Mrs. C. Burr, the unit leader. Miss Gladys Lumb led the devotional by reading a poem. The theme was a meditation on the color "Blue," from "The Moral Spectrum."

During the business meeting, projects for 1965 were outlined. These include a cook book to be compiled by the unit. Members are asked to bring three recipes to the next meeting.

Mrs. Dart led the Bible Study on "God's Men — Jesus Christ." Mrs. J. McNeill entertained with an organ solo, and Mrs. Ken Lane read an amusing excerpt from "The Snake Has All the Lives."

Refreshments were served and Mrs. C. Burr closed the meeting.

The next meeting will be held on February 18 at the home of Mrs. C. Burr.

SPOKE OXFORD EXAM

SKIPTON, England (CP) — Yorkshire grammar schoolboy Andrew Hilton, 18, has won a place at Oxford University without writing a word on his examination papers. The youth broke his right arm a few days before the exam, but a classmate volunteered to write the answers to his dictation. Teachers kept a special watch on the boys during the three-day examination to ensure no cheating took place.

sedale district, while the Park dale bus was also said to have had the same trouble.

The city public works yard phone was busy all morning as urgent calls for sanding trucks were rung in.

"The works barn is a popular place this morning," commented the city hall switchboard operator as she noted that all lines to the works barn were busy.

NO BAD ACCIDENTS

At nine o'clock city police reported no serious accidents, although a number of minor mishaps had occurred.

Neither were any serious mishaps reported by provincial police who said the main highways "were in fairly good shape."

"The trouble is getting out there," they said.

Tractor trailer transports were involved in at least three mishaps in the Belleville area.

Trucks jackknifed and overturned on Highway 401 just west of the city; on the CNR overpass north of Belleville and the Shannonville access road to the super highway.

There were no personal injuries.

And while driving was difficult attempts at walking were usually trying as pedestrians faltered and slipped — and fell—as they made their way to work or to the bus stop.

The emergency department at Belleville General Hospital had a busy morning as result of slippery conditions.

At least six persons were brought in for emergency treatment and X-rays following injuries suffered in falls. Broken bones were suspected in some of the cases but the extent of injury would not be known until X-ray plates were examined.

Many of the area schools had decided to remain closed for the day as many of the school buses were unable to negotiate slippery country sideroads.

Police said there had been so many minor motor accidents that they had not had time to book them in the police blotter.

No New

not all of the money will be provided to the universities this year.

The $800,000,000-plus forecast for 1965-66 compares with the provincial treasurer's estimate a year ago of education expenditures of $465,000,000 during 1964-65.

In fact, education costs for 1964-65 should reach $460,000,000 by March 31, the end of the fiscal year. Thus the net increase next year will be more than $120,000,000, or 25 per cent.

The next highest spender will be the department of highways, which probably will take up more than $200,000,000 of the provincial budget.

Mr. Allan is expected to begin reading his budget speech in the legislature between 3:30 p.m. and 4 p.m.

WILL BE LAST

For the 70-year-old provincial treasurer, it will be the seventh and last budget message.

Mr. Allan, a Dunnville dairyman, is expected to retire from his cabinet portfolio at the end of the session to take over as grand master of the Masonic Lodge for Ontario.

No major new taxes are expected from the government this year for a number of reasons. One is that gasoline taxes, liquor prices, hospital insurance premiums and auto registration costs were all increased a year ago.

Another is that revenues have been higher than anticipated from Ontario's economic boom. A third is that it would be poor politics for the government to raise taxes in a year when it plans to give members of the legislature a raise.

And finally, a federal - provincial committee is studying tax - sharing arrangements between the two levels of government and a provincial committee is also looking into the whole field of taxation.

HONOR CARDINAL

NEW YORK (AP) — Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York has been selected to receive the humanitarian award of the reform Jewish appeal at a dinner on March 27. He was cited Tuesday for his efforts on the schema (draft decree) on Christian-Jewish relations approved by the Vatican ecumenical council. The Jewish appeal said it is the first time such an award has been conferred on an American Roman Catholic leader by a national Jewish religious organization.

India, Pakistan Chiefs May Discuss Differences

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — There is speculation in political and diplomatic circles here about the possibility of an early meeting between Indian Prime Minister Shastri and President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan to settle outstanding problems between their two countries.

Relations between the two Commonwealth neighbors seem to have touched a new low.

The recent presidential elections in Pakistan produced a burst of anti-Indian propaganda in that country. President Ayub Khan charged India with secretly aiding Miss Fatima Jinnah, his chief rival, and the confined opposition parties.

The charges drew angry retorts from Indian newspapers, many of which played up even minor election incidents in Pakistan to prove their point that Ayub Khan was becoming more and more "unpopular."

With the re-election of President Ayub, observers noted a pause in the mutual recriminations.

SHASTRI DISTRESSED

Indian sources say Shastri is distressed over the deterioration in relations with Pakistan and has resisted pressure from a section in his ruling Congress party to take a firm stand against Pakistan.

Now that President Ayub Khan has won another five-year term by a massive majority, most Indians seem to be getting round to the view that whatever may be the shortcomings of his regime he is the best guarantor of Pakistani stability under the existing circumstances.

There is growing realization here that if the politicians return to power in Pakistan the resulting internal uncertainties might actually lead to a graver deterioration in India-Pakistan relations.

It was recalled that in one campaign speech Miss Jinnah hinted at the use of "other means, not excluding war" to settle India-Pakistan problems.

The Pakistanis on their part also seem to realize that Shastri's intentions towards their country are sincere and constructive.

Former CCF Govt. Accused Of Stealing Documents

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan said Tuesday his government was considering ordering an investigation into missing government documents that could "make the Dorion inquiry look pretty pale."

Five legislatures were in session across the country Tuesday, with a sixth, Nova Scotia's, due to open today.

The Saskatchewan Liberal premier, prior to moving adjournment on the throne speech, accused the former CCF government of having stolen government documents, some of which dealt with expense accounts, loans rejected under the industrial development fund and a bankruptcy file on a wool plant.

Mr. Thatcher said 19 of 24 cabinet drawers had been "cleaned up" and accused the CCF of clearing out the files to "destroy incriminating evidence."

"In the days to come, if we find the files, I think it would make the Dorion inquiry look pretty pale," Mr. Thatcher said, referring to the current inquiry being held by Mr. Justice Dorion into allegations of bribery in connection with a Montreal narcotics case.

In other legislature business:

Victoria — Frank Calder (NDP — Atlin), lone Indian member of the British Columbia legislature, asked the provincial education department to sponsor a study into how best to preserve British Columbia's native Indian languages.

Quebec City—A bill abolishing the veto power of the legislature council, Quebec's upper house, and replacing it with delaying powers, received second reading Tuesday.

Premier Jean Lesage read in the assembly a sharply-worded letter, addressed to Prime Minister Pearson, saying Quebec can accept neither the principle nor the commissioner of the Thompson inquiry into Air Canada's Winnipeg maintenance base.

The commission, under Winnipeg barrister D. A. Thompson, was set up by the federal government last June to look into Air Canada's decision to shift its maintenance base to Montreal from Winnipeg.

Halifax—The Nova Scotia legislature meets today with Premier Robert Stanfield's Conservatives out - numbering the opposition Liberals 30-29. Liberal house leader Peter Nicholson says he plans to accuse the government of patronage in the awarding of construction contracts.

St. John's—Liberal Premier Joseph Smallwood read to the Newfoundland legislature a letter of intent to purchase the full 1,000-tons-a-day output of a proposed $50,000,000 sulphite pulp mill on Lake Melville in Labrador.

Mr. Smallwood said progress on plans for the proposed mill has been temporarily slowed pending completion of a study of ice conditions in the area.

HYDRO PURCHASES

Approximately 77 per cent of Ontario Hydro's purchases are made in Canada. They have averaged $394,000 a day in the past five years.

Lawyers Want to Question Denis on Stonehill Case As Test of His Credibility

OTTAWA (CP)—Who is to be believed in testifying to the Dorion inquiry into attempted bribery charges?

Two lawyers proposed a test Tuesday for the credibility of key witness Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay, who is accused of offering a $20,000 bribe to Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne. Mr. Denis has denied the accusation.

The test would involve questioning Denis and possibly others, including Prime Minister Pearson's speech - writer, about the immigration case of American millionaire Harry Stonehill.

Chief Justice Frederic Dorion reserved decision on the pleas of Ross Drouin, Conservative party counsel, and Yves Fortier, counsel for Mr. Lamontagne, that Denis be examined about the Stonehill case.

Mr. Drouin said he wants to ask Denis whether requests were made for money at meetings last April and July among Stonehill, Vancouver publicity man Al Willson, Hal Donan, the prime minister's speech-writer, and Denis about Stonehill's bid to stay in Canada.

REFERRED TO SENATOR?

He also wanted to ask Denis whether Stonehill was referred to a Senator Gelinas "to make arrangements as they are commonly called."

Senator Louis P. Gelinas, Liberal party treasurer in Quebec, has testified he doesn't know Denis. He has described as a "perfect stranger" to him self-styled Liberal organizer Guy Masson.

Masson has testified he tried to make an appointment with Senator Gelinas to advise that $6,000 was available for Liberal party campaign funds provided the extradition to the United States of Lucien Rivard was blocked.

Mr. Lamontagne, acting for the U.S. government in the Rivard extradition, testified Denis offered him $20,000 to agree to the release on bail of Rivard, wanted as a key figure in a huge, Mafia - run narcotics smuggling conspiracy.

Mr. Fortier, backing Mr. Drouin's demand that the commission test Denis' credibility by examing him on the Stonehill case, called for Mr. Dorman, Mr. Williamson and Stonehill also to be summoned to testify.

Prime Minister Pearson has said Mr. Dorion acted with "perfect propriety" in introducing Denis to Stonehill and Williamson.

SHOULD BE ASKED

Mr. Fortier said Denis should be asked about reports that he said "How much is in it for me —for us?" in discussing the Stonehill case.

He said the latter question referred to the Liberal campaign fund. He contended that the commission should try to find out whether there was a "quid pro quo" to Denis' actions as executive assistant to Mr. Tremblay.

"It is important to know whether Denis was in the habit of doing this," Mr. Fortier said.

Mr. Fortier said Stonehill, who has been expelled from Canada, appeared on a television program recently, spoke of $25,000 or $50,000 and said he had seen Senator Gelinas.

(A transcript of the CBC interview contains no mention by Mr. Stonehill of any amount of money in the context of his reference to Senator Gelinas.

SHOWS REPLY

(The transcript shows that when the interviewer asked him if he had met Senator Gelinas, Mr. Stonehill replied:

("Ze . . . . yes. I met him. Through a mutual friend on another occasion, and I must say that in fairness to Senator Gelinas he never inferred anything improper. I merely explained to him that I wanted to become a resident of Canada, and I asked if there was anything that he could do in my behalf, to hasten action on this. And Mr. Gelinas said that he would look into the matter, and to best of my knowledge, he's never—I don't know what happened about it. He's never approached me, he's never called me, he never said anything.")

Mr. Drouin and Mr. Fortier both argued that the commission in fairness to Denis should take up these widely circulated reports on the Stonehill case.

RCMP counsel Norman Mathews opposed the application of Mr. Drouin, arguing the inquiry would lose sight of its main purpose — the bribery allegations in the Rivard case and the allegations in the Rivard case and the handling of RCMP reports of the investigation of them.

Opposition also was registered by Commission Counsel Andre Desjardins, Francois Chapdelaine, counsel for Masson; Jules Deschenes, counsel for the federal government; and Guy Goerin, counsel for Denis.

RESERVES DECISION

Chief Justice Dorion said he will reserve decision until he examines the transcript of evidence to date to effect one recent judgment that it is improper to examine witnesses in actions which indicate a system or particular intention on the part of counsel.

The motion to question Denis about the Stonehill case came near the end of a day in which the only witness was Guy Rouleau, Liberal MP for Montreal Mercier, who was called to hear Pearson's parliamentary secretary last Nov. 24.

Mr. Rouleau insisted twice that he asked to be relieved of his duties after the Rivard affair was made public in Parliament for the period of the Dorion inquiry. Pearson has said Mr. Rouleau resigned.

Mr. Rouleau testified that he went a letter on the letterhead of the prime minister's office on behalf of Bob Tremblay, serving 22 years for attempted murder in a Vancouver narcotics case.

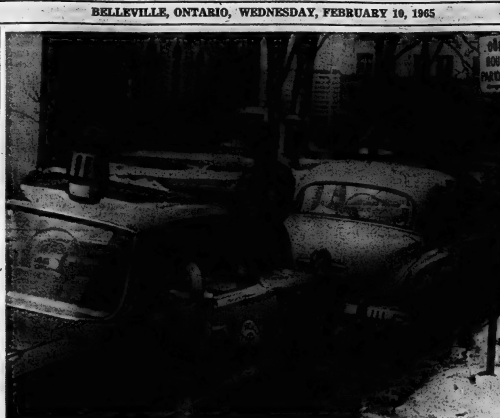
The letter went to the parole board July 17. He had been asked by Rivard June 17 to request Tremblay's parole or transferred to St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, Montreal from the New Westminster, B.C., prison.

TELLS OF INSTRUCTIONS

Rouleau said that since last September or October parliamentary secretaries and executive assistants have been instructed to use ministerial letterheads only when writing on behalf of ministers.

He testified he saw Mr. Pearson almost daily and informed him about his connection with the Rivard affair until Nov. 24, when the Rivard affair was raised in Parliament by the Opposition.

A day was said, he arranged a meeting July 15 between Denis and lawyer Raymond Daoust to discuss the case of Vincenzo Bonanno, a Mafia boss seeking Canadian residence who later was expelled.



New Democratic Party counsel Paul Lamarche quoted from a July 9 letter to Mr. Rouleau saying it was a "malicious rumor" that Bonanno was a Mafia member.

Mr. Jolin asked whether Mr. Rouleau knew that "certain organizations" were concerned in the narcotics traffic.

Mr. Rouleau said he was aware of this but there was nothing to make him believe Bonanno might be a member of such an organization.

GETS SIX YEARS

TORONTO (CP) — William Brian Kent, 32, was sentenced Tuesday to six years in prison after he pleaded guilty to six charges of uttering a forged cheques, one of car theft and one of possession a burglary tool and a mail-box key. Kent had defrauded banks in Toronto Sudbury and Belleville.

NO IMMUNITY — There appears to be no immunity — even for visiting police cars from the neighboring Province of Quebec — as this Ottawa policewoman proves by writing out a parking ticket for this Quebec Provincial Police cruiser. Soviet Marshal Re-emerges From Obscurity

He was Marshal Georgy Zhukov, 68, a popular wartime hero who became defence minister under the former Kremlin leader.

He made his reappearance today when he signed the obituary of a retired general in the defence ministry daily newspaper Red Star.

But he was dismissed from both posts in 1957 on the grounds that he tried to prevent party control of the armed forces.

Asked what Marshal Zhukov was doing now, a spokesman for Red Star said he was a member of the Soviet Union and "marshals never retire." But he declined to say whether he held any particular appointment at present.

China May Have Outwitted U. S. and Russia in War

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The impression is growing in informed British quarters that China, with the help of North Viet Nam, may have outwitted the untried leaders of both the Soviet Union and the United States in the spreading Vietnamese war.

The prospects may be exactly what Peking ordered: A shattering of hope for any friendly East-West conference that may have been in the making and a break-up in any budding friendship that could have developed between the two superpowers — Alexei Kosygin of the Soviet Union and Lyndon Johnson of the United States.

For weeks there had been talk of a possible exchange of visits and television appearances by the two leaders. Both are relatively new and untried in the field of world strategy and diplomacy. Both have hard jobs in stepping out of the shadows of their predecessors, especially Kosygin, who replaces the formidable Nikita Khrushchev.

Now, suddenly, the Vietnamese war has enshrouded both leaders in images perhaps not of their own choosing. Each must show his people at home he is fearless. They cannot withdraw from the increasing rigidity of their predicaments without loss of face.

It now is widely accepted in Western diplomatic quarters the timing of the Viet Cong attack against an American air base at Pleiku in South Viet Nam was deliberate. It coincided with the first visit of Kosygin to Hanoi, a city where his predecessor had tended to ignore.

Western diplomats suggest Kosygin was no more aware of plans for that attack than were the American airmen who were pinned by gun-fire at Pleiku. And it is considered unlikely Ho Chi Minh, the North Vietnamese leader, would have the audacity of involving Kosygin without full consultations and urgings from Peking.

With his own world image at stake, Johnson apparently felt he had no other recourse but to bomb North Vietnamese base. He was fighting a losing war: A war which he had inherited and one which he could not resolve without first reaching a firm and intimate negotiations with the otherside.

Now those prospects of detached and cool-headed negotiations have dimmed. Kosygin, finding himself involved, immediately pledged firm aid to Hanoi. The demonstrations that followed in the Communist capitals were anticipated. But they seemed more fervent and prolonged in Peking than in Moscow.

Johnson cannot let the matter rest. He has made his own position clear. It appears to suggest further military responses against North Vietnamese bases as the South Vietnamese situation continues to deteriorate.

Studebaker Bounces Back

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Studebaker Corp. bounced from a $16,900,000 loss to an $8,000,000 profit a year after selling its auto-making operations in the United States, the firm said Tuesday.

Byers A. Burlingame, Studebaker president, reported net earnings of $8,064,534 for 1964, which he said were the firm's highest in the last five years and second highest in the last 12.

Late in 1963, Studebaker ended auto building operations at South Bend and moved all of its operations to Canada.

"Our four straight quarters of operating earnings in 1964 were the combined results of ending our automotive losses and the profitability of our 10 other divisions," Burlingame said.

The $8,000,000 1964 net earnings provided 85 cents a share on net sales of $261,755,634, he said. This compared with a net operating loss in 1963 of $16,900,000, equal to $1.21 a share on sales of $403,314,089.

Young Gunman Kills Policeman, Two Wounded

OXENHOLME, England (Reuters)—Armed police hunting a gunman who shot a policeman to death here early today, fought a gun battle a few hours later within a man spotted in the wild lakeland countryside nearby.

The biggest manhunt in the history of England's northern lake district fanned out from this tiny village near Kendal at dawn after a gunman shot and killed one policeman and wounded two others in a 3 a.m. affrack at the railway station here.

A report that a man wearing a sheepskin jacket like the gunman disappeared into shrubbery nearby brought 100 police, some armed and using walkie-talkie radios and tracker dogs, in a tight circle round the area.

The policeman killed today, George Russell, 36, a married man with a daughter and baby son, was the fifth British policeman murdered in the last seven years. Of his two companions one was in serious condition after an operation.

The policemen, seeking a man for housebreaking, questioned the man at 3 a.m. He drew a revolver, opened fire, and fled.

Within minutes, roadblocks were set up and tracker dogs brought in to scour the hills and roadsides of this quiet northern England village.

The dead policeman, George Russell, a married man whose son was killed in an accident only a year ago, was the first policeman to be murdered since a bill to abolish hanging for this crime was introduced in Parliament last month.

Ontario's Judicial System Is 'Shameful Anachronism' Liberal Claims in House

TORONTO (CP) — Today is budget day in the Ontario Legislature and Provincial Treasurer James Allan is expected to earmark record sums for education. No new major taxes are in the wind.

As throne speech debate continued Tuesday, a government bill to permit censorship of fraudulent or misleading used car advertising in newspapers ran into such strong opposition in committee that it was steered back to the attorney-general's department for revision.

It was a tough bill lacking safeguards, opposition members said, and Attorney - General Arthur Wishart agreed to review it and possibly give used car dealers the right of appeal.

He ried some members by selling the principles this bill would enable a government official to order a newspaper to cease publishing a car ad misleading advertising. Elmer Sopha (L — Sudbury) for instance, said this would dangerously restrict press freedom.

Mr. Wishart's bill may be continued in the evening session.

Vernon Singer (L — Toronto Downsview) delivered a long and sweeping attack on the attorney - general's department and said Ontario's judicial system is a "shameful anachronism."

He charged that Mr. Wishart's department officials have low morale because of red tape and a general feeling that the department's work is often unimportant.

Mr. Singer urged complete reform of the attorney - general's department to eliminate conflicting and duplicating departments.

He also attacked the present system of bail, legal aid, rehabilitation of criminals and treatment of psychotics.

Stephen Lewis (NDP — Scarborough West) blamed the government for what he said was neglect of emotionally - disturbed children.

Four separate government departments were involved, he said — education, health, welfare and reform institutions.

The department of education should look into slow-learner classes, Mr. Lewis said, although such children often have below - average intelligence. The health and welfare department said few children therefore were consigned to the department of reform institutions. Mr. Lewis charged, saying that the whole punitive atmosphere of training schools flouts all known concepts of rehabilitation.

Ivan Trasher (PC — Windsor-Sandwich) urged the provincial government to finance community recreation centres throughout Ontario to set standards of physical fitness. He envisaged six "recreational and sports villages" to train the province's top athletes so they could perform better at international athletic meets.

Donald Paterson (L — Essex South) called on the Conservative government to create a department to deal with problems of small businesses. He also urged legislation to stipulate minimum standards for ambulance attendants.

Sick Children's Hospital Forced To Expand Again

TORONTO (CP) — North America's biggest children's hospital, made bigger with a bright new wing just last year, is being forced to expand again to meet a mounting clamor for more space.

The Toronto Hospital for Sick Children, healing centre for almost 30,000 youngsters a year and school for most of Canada's pediatricians, announced plans Tuesday to grow by almost one-third if private and public donors help foot a $30,000,000 bill.

Since the hospital opened on its present University avenue site in 1951, director John Law said at a press conference:

1. Bed patients admitted annually from across Canada, the United States and elsewhere has increased by more than 60 per cent to 26,357 admissions last year, a projected 29,275 this year.

2. Out - patient treatments have grown by 35 per cent to about 115,000 treatments a year.

3. Emergency cases have more than doubled to almost 43,000 a year.

4. Teaching obligations have about doubled to the point where the hospital gives brief pediatric training to about 120 general interns a year, in addition to the 60 doctors now engaged in four-year courses leading to accreditation as pediatric specialists.

ADDED 200 BEDS

The new wing, opened last May, added 200 beds for a total of 800, provided new surgical and research facilities and a modern emergency treatment unit.

But this $8,000,000 addition, says Dr. A. L. Chute, chief of surgery, while maintaining Toronto Sick Children's position "as one of the world's major pediatric hospitals," has stepped up the strain on other facilities by attracting more patients and student doctors and opening up essential new fields of treatment and research.

Plans to train more doctors will further stretch hospital facilities.

The expansion, to begin this spring and be completed by 1968, will increase hospital space by 82,000 square feet from 686,000 by adding a five-storey adjunct at the front of the main building and putting up an eight-storey wing on the hospital's southern flank.

Japanese Steel Sparks Boom

Happy Days Here Again For Crowsnest Coal Mines

BLAIRMORE, Alta. (CP)—A new spirit of optimism prevails in Crowsnest Pass coal-mining towns, fed by the demands of Japan's booming steel industry.

It's most evident in Blairmore and Coleman, towns three miles apart along the snow-covered eastern slopes of the Rocky Mountains. New subdivisions, freshly painted homes and spruced-up businesses testify to the spirit.

Residents no longer mourn the passing of the steam locomotive's heyday. They're too busy. Unlike a decade ago when unemployment was high as railway coal markets disappeared, jobs today are plentiful and there's a shortage of experienced workmen.

Blairmore, a town of 2,500, and Coleman, with 3,000, have no empty houses. There is a shabby rire in construction.

The people were "dowuitrodden and felt beaten" 10 years ago, says T. M. Robertson, manager of the National Employment Service office. Now he're hopeful.

Before that coal mining seemed to be dying. Parents were discussing their sons from becoming miners. Prosperity has changed that.

$3B A DAY

"My father was a miner and my husband still is," says Helen Hurik, a Blairmore high school teacher, "and I think it holds as good a future as another type of business. I wouldn't discourage my boys from working in the mine."

Husband Louis, who has spent 23 years in mining, says expert miners can earn more than $30 a day and he wouldn't be disappointed if his two sons, one in high school and the other in elementary school, were to follow him into the industry.

This attitude is reflected in the fact that more young men are joining the work forces at Coleman Collieries and Crow's Nest Pass Co. than for several years.

The companies' own faith in their future is illustrated by the $7,000,000 they have spent on modernization and new equipment.

Between them they employ nearly 900 men and produce more than 1,200,000 tons of coal a year, the most since 1953. Two-thirds of the production is under contract to Japan, the balance going to Canadian and American markets. Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. at Kimberley and Trail in British Columbia is one of the major Canadian consumers.

WORKERS COMMUTE

Coleman Collieries draws most of its work force from Blairmore and Coleman. Crow's Nest, which operates at Michel and Natal, B.C., supplements local workers with commuters from the pass.

Commuting to the B.C. mines is a hangover from the days when the railways switch to diesel power produced massive layoffs in what was then a 2,500-man workforce.

Even then, however, there was no mass exodus from the area. Mr. Robertson says many miners retired on pension, some shifted to mines still operating, others went into different lines of work.

Lumbering, which has grown into a major industry in the region, absorbed many workers. The oil and natural gas industry, which has built processing plants and pipelines in the area, employed many others during construction.

Mr. Robertson says about 100 families received government assistance to move to other parts of the country.

Those who continued their connections with the coal mines came through a period of insecurity marked by layoffs. That problem no longer exists.

BUILT NEW PLANTS

While revival of the coal industry is the basis of the improving economy, the federal government helped by declaring the Crowsnest Pass a "slow-growth area."

Two new companies have been attracted by tax benefits and other concessions, a wire cable plant being built in Coleman and a small electronic parts plant in Baltimore.

However, industrial plants face a problem similar to that of coal. Markets are far away.

Coal companies receive government subventions on freight charges to the West Coast but the aid is limited to 800,000 tons a year. Officials say they could sell more to Japan if a solution were found to the high cost of shipping by rail.

Crow's Nest Pass Coal has an older problem. It affects the employees rather than the market but the solution is just as elusive.

Mined and Natal, adjacent towns 30 miles west of Coleman, lie in a valley choked with coal dust. Buildings, cars and streets are coated with fine black dust that billows from the mines.

For 30 years the company has been pressing employees to move to a new townsite. Lots were offered at $1 each, lumber was made available at cost and mortgage assistance was promised. But residents refused to move. They live in houses built by the company when the area was developing and pay as little as $10 a month rent.

Fewer than 100 have moved to the new townsite. Those who have stayed behind are protected by union contracts stipulating that the token rents on old houses are to be continued.

The company has refused to improve the old houses in hopes of persuading the miners to settle in healthier surroundings.

Daniel Campbell, B.C. municipal affairs minister, says the government is studying a plan to relocate residents in Sparwood with the federal government bearing 75 per cent of the cost under the Urban Redevelopment Act.

Until something of that sort is tried, the residents are unlikely to leave. The towns may look depressed but they know the appearance is not a true reflection of the economic conditions.

Back From 111 Fathoms Trawler Nets Big Haul

VANCOUVER (CP) — When the tides of herring or halibut sweep along the Pacific Coast, the Cape Douglas is just another fishboat sharing the harvest.

Last year she delivered to the canneries fish worth $35,000 to her owners.

But when the boats tie up for the season and there's time to talk along the docks, the fishermen remember her as the ship that came back from the grave.

She's big, 80 feet long, and strong—powered by diesel engines—and when she sank she went down in 111 fathoms off a small island in Puget Sound near Seattle.

That was six years ago.

When she slid to the bull-crumpling depth of 666 feet, skipper Odd John Solnordal and engineer Kenneth Ness made it to shore in a life-raft.

Solnordal, one of her owners, told the company that insured his vessel for $80,000 that the Cape Douglas had struck a submerged object and sank quickly. He submitted a claim.

In the meantime, an aircraft of the United States Salvage Association flew over the area. It spotted an oil slick, about five miles from where the Cape Douglas was reported lying.

Three years passed before a salvage operation began. Diver Leiter Hockett, in a tiny steel shell he designed himself, was lowered to the wreck.

The first trip down was uneventful. On the second, Hockett's diving bell fouled the rigging of the sunken ship. He hung helpless in his breathing gear as winches shrieked 600 feet above him. The rigging snapped and Hockett lived.

A grappling hook was tried. It merely ripped loose more rigging and the nets.

Then a hook was used to snare the hull. After a week of failure and broken lines, it worked.

As soon as the Cape Douglas broke the surface, Federal Bureau of Investigation officers and salvors climbed aboard. The hull was sound, but the sea cocks were wide open.

It was four years after the Cape Douglas went down that her captain was arrested but when the arrest came the charge was barratry, the wilful tampering with a vessel by its master.

Engineer Ness testified that Solnordal had offered him $3,000 to back up his story of the sinking. Others who had worked in the Cape Douglas said Solnordal had offered them money to open the valves at sea.

Solnordal denied everything, but the 38-year-old skipper went to prison for five years.

In 1961, the Cape Douglas—worth $80,000 when she went down and brought back at a cost of $50,000—was auctioned for $9,000.

Say her new owners, Fred and George Cooney of Vancouver:

"We haven't had a bit of trouble since we bought her."

PIGEON OLYMPIAD

SHIP SALVAGED — Vancouver fishermen think of the Cape Douglas as the ship that came back from the grave. Six years ago she sank in Puget Sound near Seattle. The captain and engineer escaped, claiming the ship struck a submerged object. Eighty thousand dollars was paid in insurance. Three years later a salvage operation disclosed the vessel was deliberately sunk. The skipper, Odd John Solnordal, went to jail for wilfully tampering with the vessel. (CP Photo)

Canada Likely To Get Tax Cuts This Year

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Tax Foundation believes the recently-published report of the Economic Council of Canada's goals for 1970 substantially increases the odds for tax cuts this year.

The Canadian Tax Journal, the foundation's bi-monthly publication, says that unless some stimulation is given in the coming budget, Canada will be shy of the mark in the first year of the five-year goals charted by the council.

The council, headed by John J. Deutsch, said in its first annual review published last month that the gross national product of Canada should grow at a rate of 5.5 per cent a year in real terms to achieve the 1970 goals.

The foundation says: "Taking into account the anticipated price increase, this means that an average annual GNP growth of 7.5 per cent in current dollars is required to reach potential. Failure to reach this rate would result in widespread unemployment by 1970.

SIX PER CENT LIKELY

"The consensus at the moment is that about a six per cent current dollar increase in the GNP is likely for 1965. Thus without some stimulation in the coming budget, it appears that the council's annual average target could be missed the first year on the way to 1970.

In its review of the Deutsch report, the foundation cites two ways that a 1970 potential surplus of $2,250,000,000 in the treasuries of all levels of government can be cut down—to increase government spending more than is required for normal growth of government services, or to reduce taxes.

The review says the report makes no specific recommendations on tax cuts, but adds: The implication seems clear that the taxes levied by the federal government, particularly the static personal income tax, would be a likely tool.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

British sports fans saw a strange sight a few weeks ago, and they stopped and wondered what the "whacky" Amers came would come up with next.

It was a football game American style with players "garbed in strange apparel". But they lingered awhile, watched the antics of the helmeted players and liked what they saw.

It was a game played between two United States Air Force teams called the Rhein Main Rockets and the Chicksands Fighting Chicks.

The boys were playing for keeps and according to sideline reports the game had all the frills and smashing fol-de-rols of a brawl between the Green Bay Packers and the Detroit Lions.

He wrote the Rhein Main Rockets reared with a whoosh to the European Football Championship of the United States Air Force at White City yesterday... Their victory over the Chicks and Fighting Chicks by 49 points to nil was crushing, comprehensive and vastly entertaining.

"The setting was right, for a start, with all the glittering glamor of the gridiron—the marching bands, the gaudy uniforms, the uninhibited little troupes of shrilling muppets bouncing and chanting their exhortations."

The Rockets won, the writer penned, because they were more experienced, better drilled and infinitely faster, especially in the backfield and if their superiority was sufficient to mar the flavor of the game for the connoisseur, it had one big advantage for lesser mortals.

"Knowing very soon what to expect one was able to watch for it coming and to enjoy with increasing appreciation the tricky complexities of the play—the dictation of tactics by the quarterback, the slick interchange of possession and direction among the attacking players of one team and the gaining and splaining and hocking the line; the bone-crushing blocking of the men running interference ahead of the ball carriers."

"American football is frequently criticized in Britain because its moves are predetermined and little a left to the initiative of the individual," the writer said.

"All right; but let no man scoff at the man who can thread his way, as these boys do, through a series of imaginary gaps in a wall of struggling beef and thrashing limbs."

"Within five minutes Selby raced over the Rockets, and after the first quarter, Conley ran through the defence to gather in the goal area and raise the score to 15-0."

"Within minutes they were off again, Selby crashing over from the three-yard line. This time they added bonus points, opting to run the ball instead of kicking for a goal. They pulled a swift change of direction and Selby was over like a flash to add extra two points to the score.

"Pullback Perch next burst through for a touchdown and McGee added them a two-points bonus."

"Before the end the Rockets scored twice and it was all over—a magnificent spectacle and the complete answer to those who denigrate the game."

WHAT'S THIS, LYNX STEW?

I'll pass it up but in case it tickles some reader's taste buds, here's the recipe for a nice juicy lynx stew.

Clean the lynx and wipe thoroughly clean with a cold-water cloth. Cut meat into two-inch chunks and dip into mixture of salt, pepper and flour. Brown on all sides in bacon drippings. Add three cups boiling water, three bay leaves and two teaspoons Worcester sauce. Cook gently, adding boiling water to maintain original level. Quarter about five potatoes, cut an equal number of carrots and celery stalks into three-inch lengths, dice a cup of green peppers and add whole small onions. When meat is halfway cooked (1½ hours) add vegetables to pot. Simmer until meat and vegetables are tender. For gravy blend six tablespoons flour with small amount of cold water. Work into a smooth paste. Draw three cups of the pot's liquor and stir into a thick sauce.

Then as far as I'm concerned you throw away the stew and eat the pot.

Racks Up Seven Points

Bobby Orr Paces Generals

OSHAWA (CP) — A seven-point effort by defenceman Bobby Orr powered Oshawa Generals to a 9-3 victory over Hamilton Red Wings in a penalty-riddled Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game Tuesday night.

The 16-year-old Orr scored his 29th and 30th goals of the season to equal the defencemen's scoring record he set last year. He also picked up five assists.

The win snapped a five-game losing streak for the fourth-place Generals. Hamilton remains in last place in the eight-team league.

Tempers flared throughout the game with referee Bob Nadin of Toronto issuing 232 minutes in penalties. Fights erupted on the other.

In the first and second periods Nadin handed out 20 fighting majors and two 10-minute misconducts, plus game misconducts to Gary Doak, Peter Lowless and Fred Speak of Hamilton and Martin Buchar of the Generals.

Ron Buchanan, playing his first game in two weeks, scored three goals and picked up two assists. Buchanan now has scored at least one point in his last 24 games. Other Oshawa goals were scored by Jim Booth, Jim Whittaker, Bill Sandercman and Chris Roberts.

Nick Libett scored two goals for Hamilton and Real Lemieux in the in the first and second periods.

Meet Leafs Tonight ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Hawks Clash With Wings

Blake Shakes Habs; Worsley Benched

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Charlie Hodge will be in the Montreal nets tonight when the Canadiens meet the Maple Leafs in Toronto.

Coach Toe Blake's decision to reactivate Hodge was one of several moves engineered by Canadiens brass Tuesday to snap the Habs out of their worst slump in nine years—a four-game losing streak during which they have been outscored 17-3.

Aside from pulling out Gump Worsley, Blake called up defenceman Noel Picard from the minors to bolster a porous defence, benched rookie Yvan Cournoyer and completely rearranged his forward lines.

In the only other National Hockey League game scheduled tonight, Chicago Black Hawks, with Bobby Hull sitting on the sidelines, play host to Detroit Red Wings.

Only five points separate these top four teams in the standings and it could get tighter. Victorious Toronto and Detroit would cut he gap to three points with Chicago on top with 59, Montreal and Toronto tied at 57, and Detroit fourth with 56.

Worsley replaced Hodge in the nets three weeks ago after the Canadiens lost three straight. Montreal then won six of seven, but have dropped their last four starts including a 6-0 blanking at Detroit Sunday night.

"Worsley hasn't been responsible for losing any of those games but Hodge has a good record against Toronto," explained general manager Sam Pollock.

Picard was called up from Omaha of the Central Pro circuit, where the 185-pounder has been enjoying a successful season. The Habs will dress six defencemen, but seven - goal man Jean-Guy Talbot may play left wing.

The Leafs, winners in four of their last five games, will be at full strength for the first time in months. The last of the Leaf casualties, Ron Stewart, has recovered from his knee injury.

Bobby Hull, who usually makes headlines scoring goals, now is snaring publicity in the Mickey Mantle fashion—with injuries. Torn ligaments in his right knee have become a cause celebre.

"He definitely will miss games against Detroit tonight and Thursday," Dr. Tremaine said. "There is an outside chance he could play in New York Saturday, but I doubt it."

Ontario Women's Curling
Tournament Ends in Two-way Tie

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — A round-robin tournament to declare a 1965 Ontario women's curling champion ended Tuesday in a two-way tie for first, forcing a sudden-death playoff.

Vivian McDougall of Sudbury and Fern Irwin of Toronto will meet today to decide the provincial representative at the Canadian final in Halifax starting Feb. 22. Each finished with 4-1 records.

It was a three-way tie for first going into the fifth and final round of the six-rink tournament Tuesday with Aileen Kelsall of Niagara Falls in contention along with the Sudbury and Toronto Rinks, all with 3-1 records.

Mrs. McDougall came through with a 12 - 10 victory over Jennie Walsh of Kingston and Mrs. Irwin, the 1962 provincial champion, knocked Mrs. Kelsall out of contention with an 8-5 win.

In the other fifth-round game, Effie Hezlewood of Oshawa defeated Elsie Forsyth of Port Arthur 10-8.

Mrs. Kelsall finished with a 3 - 2 won - lost record. Mrs. Hezlewood was next with 2-3. Mrs. Walsh and Mrs. Forsyth, the 1960 champion, were last with 1-4.

In the fourth round Tuesday morning, Mrs. Forsyth got her only victory, an 11-5 triumph over Mrs. Walsh. Mrs. Kelsall stayed in contention with a 10-5 victory over Mrs. Hezlewood.

Mrs. Irwin was in top spot with a 3-0 record going into the fourth round, but lost to Mrs. McDougall 8-6. An 11-win win there combined with a Kelsall loss would have given the Toronto rink the title.

Left Hand Of Ford 'Too Dry'

Ford said Tuesday, when he signed his $60,000 contract, tops in his career, that he no longer perspires on the left side of his upper body after undergoing surgery last November.

"I have small hands. I do really have to have a little moisture on the hand."

He shrugged his shoulders and smiled.

"I guess I'll have to rub my hands together or something."

Ford went to Houston in November for an operation to remove an arterial blockage in his left forearm. The ace southpaw said he had no feeling in the arm after pitching the opening game of the 1964 World Series in St. Louis. "It feels fine now," he said.

Charge 'Obscene Language'
Flyers Lodge Protest

KITCHENER (CP)—Niagara Falls Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series have protested Sunday's 8-7 loss to Kitchener Rangers here on the grounds that audiorium manager H. M. (Bob) Crosby used language that had a detrimental effect on the Niagara team.

The protest, filed by Flyers owner - coach Leyton (Hap) Emms, was received Tuesday by OHA business manager Bill Hanley of Toronto. A copy was also mailed here by Brant Madill, manager of Kitchener Rangers.

Emms accused Crosby of standing behind the penalty bench and using obscene language at Niagara players both on the bench and on the ice. Emms did not accompany the Flyers to the game, but said that Niagara assistant-coach Bill Long's efforts to have Crosby removed from the penalty bench area were ignored by referee Bob Nadin of Toronto.

Crosby denied the accusation that he used abusive language. He said he went to the area of the penalty bench during a flareup in the game to make peace between Flyer's Ed Litzenberger and Rangers' Ron Low.

He said he shouted across the ice to Long for allowing his players to use dirty tactics, but said he did not use obscene language.

Emms wants the game disallowed or replayed.

GUN BOW INJURED

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Gun Bow, regarded as the top handicap race horse in the United States with the retirement of Kelso, nicked a tendon during a workout last week, trainer Eddie Neloy said Tuesday. The injury may force Neloy to declare Gun Bow out of Saturday's San Antonio Handicap and possibly from the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap Feb. 27.

Stay Off Skates Hull Told

Injury Tricky

CHICAGO (AP)—Scoring ace Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks definitely has been ruled out of National Hockey League games with Detroit Red Wings this week because of a knee injury that is responding slowly to treatment.

Hull, who seldom has let injuries keep him off the ice, had insisted he would work out with the Hawks on Chicago Stadium ice Tuesday. But, instead, he was given another series of whirlpool treatments and ordered to keep off the skates.

Ligaments in Hull's right knee were torn Saturday in a game at Toronto. The team physician, Dr. Myron Tremaine said the healing processes for this type of injury are unpredictable.

Tremaine said Hull will not be able to play against Detroit Red Wings tonight or in Detroit Thursday.

"There is an outside chance he could play in New York Saturday, but I doubt it," Tremaine said.

General Manager Tommy Ivan said the injury is too tricky to gamble with.

"Sure, we'd like to have him back as soon as possible," he said. "But you can't tell about a knee injury. If he is rushed back too fast, the damage could become greater than it is."

Hull appeared a cinch to break the league's season record of 50 goals he shares with Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion, both former Montreal Canadien scoring aces. But because of a scoring slump and the injury the record is in doubt. He now has 38 goals.

When Hull missed Sunday's game with Toronto Maple Leafs in Chicago, it was only the ninth game he had missed in eight seasons of regular NHL play.

Two years ago, everyone thought he was out of action in the Stanley Cup semi - finals after he suffered a smashed nose, a bruised shoulder and a fractured cheekbone. Hull not only showed up unexpectedly on his own, but went on to score eight goals in a losing series with Detroit.

Six Teams In Novice Tournament

Half a dozen of eastern Ontario's top clubs will vie for honors here Saturday in the OMHA Novice tournament at Memorial Arena.

Teams participating are the host Belleville Riteways, Gananoque, the Peterborough Church Hockey League, Napanee, the Peterborough Minor Hockey Association and Trenton.

Games are slated to start at eight o'clock Saturday morning with seven games to be played in all. The games are scheduled approximately one hour apart.

Points earned in the tournament are expected to count towards the OMHA novice championship. A meeting of the various team representatives will also be held here during the day.

It was decided yesterday to split the six clubs into two divisions, "A" and "B". Each team will play a round robin in its own section, playing each of the other teams once, and the winner from each division will meet in the tournament final, at about two o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association will serve the players their mid-day meal at the ANAF hall.

Following is the schedule: Trenton vs Belleville, 8.00 a.m.; Peterborough MHA vs Napanee, 9.00 a.m.; Peterborough CHL vs Trenton, 10.00 a.m.; Gananoque vs Napanee, 11.00 a.m., Belleville vs Peterborough C.H.L., 12.00 noon, Peterborough MHA vs Gananoque, 1.00 p.m.; "A" winner vs "B" winner, 2.00 p.m.

W. Germans Lose By 9-1 Score

WINNIPEG (CP)—Aided by sharp close-in passing, Canada swamped the touring West German Fuessen club 9-1 in an International hockey exhibition Tuesday night before a crowd of 6,000.

The loss brought the West German tour record to three wins, three losses and three ties.

The German team, winner of their home country's first - division league for the past three years, meet the Calgary Spurs in Calgary tonight.

Monteith Tops With 65 Goals

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Steve Monteith of the University of Toronto Blues continues to dominate the Senior Intercollegiate Hockey League scoring department.

The right winger currently holds four of the six major circuit scoring marks, has tied the fifth and is threatening the sixth.

During the past week, Monteith raised his league-leading totals to 21 goals, 27 assists and 48 points to bring his four-year career mark to 65 goals, 70 assists and 135 points.

His 65 goals betters the previous record of 62, held by former Laval University star Pierre Raymond; the 135 points surpassed the 126 scored by Michel Legace, also of Laval; his season's points total bettered the 38 by Legace in 1959-60; and his number of assists this year passed the 24 picked up by Bernie Quesnel of the University of Montreal Carabins in 1953-54.

Monteith's 21 goals equals the record set in 1948-49 by McGill University Redmen's Reggie Sinclair and his 70 career assists are only five short of Legace's total. Monteith, in his final season with the Blues, has three games to play.

Monteith's younger brother, Hank, regained second place in league scoring from Montreal's Gilles Lefort, the defending scoring champion, as Blues played two games while the Caradins were idle.

Hank has 47 points on 17 goals and 25 assists while Lefort has counted 12 goals and 22 assists for 34 points.

Napanee Rink Wins Open Spiel Trophy

Curling superbly, especially in the pinches, a rink of Mrs. Bea Roblin, Mrs. Ev Gulley, Mrs. Merle Foulger with Mrs. Marjory Pearce of Napanee, as skip, won The Ontario Intelligencer Trophy at the open spiel sponsored by the women's section of the Quinte Curling Club. Mrs. Pearce and her rink were runners-up in the spiel last year. The presentation of the trophy and the beautiful miniatures were presented to the winners by Claude D. Tice, city editor of the paper.

Mrs. Fran Miller of Kingston, winner of the trophy for three years in succession, was defeated in the semi-final round.

The second event was won by a Quinte rink of Mrs. Marion Salisbury, Mrs. Pat Ross, Mrs. Alleneen Murray with Mrs. Ann Acton as skip. Not taking anything away from this rink was the fact it was put together at the last moment in order to have an equal number of rinks in play. On it was a curler of only one year and one who started this year and they are to be congratulated for their fine showing. Runners-up in this event was a rink from RCAF Curling Club of Mrs. Grace Morrison, Mrs Kay Berglund, Mrs. Elsie Crane with Mrs. Laura Miller as skip.

The third event also went to a Quinte rink of Mrs. Patsy Wamboldt, Mrs. Hattie Dyble, Mrs. Martha Booth with Mrs. Pearl Carr, Mrs. Hilda Calvas, Mrs. Dorothy Bearne with Mrs. Beth Dunfield as skip. This game was decided on the last end.

Mrs. Hazel Blair chaired a committee of Mrs. Jessie Baker, Mrs. Helen McCorquodale, Mrs. Betty Weymark and Mrs. Kae Pinder who conducted the banquet. Mrs. Doris Bannon was in charge of a committee responsible for refreshments and Mrs. Martha Booth was in charge of the committee responsible for the social activities of the spiel.

Between the second and third games on Tuesday a tea hour was enjoyed by the visiting curlers.

Mrs. Mary Mott, president of the women's section of the club, chaired the proceedings when the prizes were presented.

Will Add Five Clubs To Circuit

TORONTO (CP) — The National Soccer League will add five Ontario cities to its Toronto operation to form an 11-team league for the 1965 season.

Windsor Teutonia, Kitchener Kickers, Sudbury Italia and Oshawa Ukrainians have definitely been accepted into the league, president Bill Boytchuk said Tuesday.

Teams in London, Ont., and St. Catharines have also applied for admission to the league, Boytchuk said. They may be accepted before the season begins in April.

The teams will operate on a semi - professional basis. The Sudbury team won the Eastern Canada amateur championship last season.

Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

This may sound hard to believe but the longest shot on which I ever scored was called back and disallowed because of fog!

It was during an exhibition game in Coral Gables, Fla. There was a little fog because the weather was warm outside and it was early in the season.

It probably was one of the best shots I ever made. We were shorthanded at the time. So when I got the puck, I moved out just over our blue line and sailed it at the other net.

The puck never was more than three feet off the ice. It never touched the ice from our blue line until it went into their net.

The goaltender did the splits and missed it. Then the referee called the puck back for a face-off in our end. He said goals didn't count when shot from outside the blue line, especially when there was a little fog!

I guess the longest goal I've ever seen was scored on the Red Wings by Leo LaBine, now with the Los Angeles Blades in the Western League, when he was playing for us.

We were playing Boston, Leo's former team. We were behind one goal and Sid Abel yanked our goalie in the final minute.

Leo dug up the puck behind the Boston net and made a blind pass out in front of the net. Unfortunately there was no one there. I was on one point, Alex Delvecchio on the other. Neither of us had a chance to get it as it went 180 feet into our empty net.

The year after I broke into pro hockey with Omaha, Jake Forbes scored one for Omaha from behind his own net. His team was short-handed. He fired a clearing shot against the boards.

It caromed out towards the opposition's net. The goaltender came out to play it. When he stuck his stick out, it hopped the stick and went into the net.

National Team
Will Ice Two Platoons

WINNIPEG (CP) — The first platoon of Canada's national hockey team leaves Saturday for Europe and the eight-game exhibition tour preceding the 1965 world championships at Tampere, Finland March 4-14.

The team was forced to increase its roster to 33 players and split into two groups because most players could not leave jobs and university studies for the entire 32 days that will be needed for the exhibition trip and the world tournament.

The second platoon—including the bulk of 17 players who will compete at Tampere, including 10 members of Canada's 1964 Olympic team—leaves March 1.

HAS 18 PLAYERS

The 20-man first group includes 18 players, coach Gord Simpson, manager Bud Holohan, Gordon Juckes of Melville, Sask., secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, team physician Dr. Jack Waugh and equipment manager Julian Klymkiw. Klymkiw will also act as substitute goaltender.

Simpson plans to use two members of the first group—goaltender Don Collins and defenceman Bill Johnson—in the world tourney.

The second group will include 13 players. Dave Bauer, first special consultant to the national unit and coach of last year's Olympic team, and CAHA president Lionel Fleury will be in charge.

Seals, Leafs Rack Up Victories

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a winning night for the home teams in the Western Hockey League Tuesday as Vancouver Canucks defeated San Francisco Seals 5-3 and Victoria Maple Leafs walloped the last - place Los Angeles Blades 8-2.

The games left standings in the six-team league unchanged.

Third-place Vancouver had goals by Dune McCallum and Les Hunt to break a 3-3 deadlock in the third period and put the game in the bag. Bill Rogers, Bruce Carmichael and Bob Kabel scored the earlier goals.

LIONS REPORT PROFIT

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions, who set attendance records last year on the way to winning their first Grey Cup, Tuesday reported a profit of $209,000. More than $81,000 of the Lions' profit was given to other clubs in the Western Football Conference under the gate equalization agreement.

Crothers, Snell Feature

TORONTO (CP)—Officials of the central Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada are planning a major international track meet for Toronto in June which will feature a half-mile race between Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., and Peter Snell of New Zealand's great runner.

The meet, which will be held between June 7 and 12, was discussed Monday night after the AAU's annual awards dinner at which Crothers was honored as Canada's top AAU athlete of 1964 and the country's top track and field athlete.

Develop Mountains For Vancouver Skiers

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VANCOUVER (CP)—For the populous Lower Mainland area of British Columbia skiing has long been available on suburban North Vancouver mountains.

Soon it will be easier yet to reach the snow-clad slopes and hitherto almost inaccessible areas will be opened up.

Aerial tramways are planned for Grouse Mountain, a 4,000-foot ski area in North Vancouver, and at Whistler Mountain in Garibaldi Park, about 75 miles north of here.

Grouse Mountain Resorts Limited, a private company engaged in Grouse Mountain development, has announced it has let a $1,000,000 contract for a mile - long aerial tramway capable of carrying 800 passengers an hour up to the ski slopes.

The tramway, consisting of two cars on a sky-wire, will rise 2,750 feet in three minutes and will be patterned after the aerial tramways found at European skiing resorts.

Construction will start in August with completion scheduled for next December.

The tramway, which will supplement the existing chairlift to the mountain chalet, will make one trip to the ski area every five minutes from a huge parking lot accommodating 1,500 cars. The present lift system, which takes about 35 minutes to make the trip, will be kept in operation for skiers and tourists who enjoy the longer trip in the open air.

INSTALL GONDOLA LIFT

Shorter chairlifts will be installed in the ski area and there will be ski tows and T - bars designed to pull skiers to the top of fairly short hills.

Plans for Whistler Mountain are not so far advanced. This is the area that was proposed for the Winter Olympics on a rival application to the Canadian Olympic Committee to that of Banff, Alta. Banff won Canadian approval but lost its bid before the International Olympic Committee.

The British Columbia government has approved an application by Garibaldi Lifts Limited to lease 78 acres of Crown land on the northwestern slope of the mountain.

The company plans a two-stage, 600-passenger - an - hour gondola lift. The first stage will use four-passenger gondola cars to reach the 4,200-foot level. The second section, to the 6,000-foot level, will use a chairlift which will be replaced later by a gondola lift.

Greater Vancouver skiers also have a ski area on Mount Seymour in North Vancouver, run by the provincial government, and a private ski area on Hollyburn Ridge in West Vancouver. Both have chairlifts.

Whistler Mountain now is reached by train or car and a long hike. It has been described by some experts as being unequalled in the world.

The Grouse promoters expect considerable summer business also. A dining room, swimming pool, tennis courts, picnic grounds and hiking trails are to be added.

Caribou Has Population Explosion!

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—Despite marauding wolves and hunters' guns, a population explosion in the Nelchina herd of caribou has the Alaska fish and game department wondering what to do about the oversupply of American reindeer.

The herd, roaming the Nelchina River area northeast of Anchorage, numbered only about 5,000 in the early 1940s. Now it is estimated at 80,000 caribou.

Worried that the massive-antlered beasts might grow beyond the food capacity of the range, the game department banned the shooting of the wolves which live off the caribou.

Jim Brooks, director of the division of game, said the wolf population has stabilized but the caribou still increase.

Shooting seasons have been liberalized and bag limits increased until a hunter can take home four caribou in most areas. Brooks estimated 8,000 animals would be taken from the Nelchina herd before the season closes March 31.

But hunters can't help a lot. The 226,000 Alaskans are far outnumbered by the caribou. The Nelchina herd is only one of several and not the largest. The arctic herd has some 330,000 animals, the steese - forty - mile herd about 50,000. There are two other large herds—on the Alaska peninsula and in the Mount McKinley area.

George Warren, 34, was sentenced to 15 to 20 years for first-degree robbery. He had been sentenced in 1956 to a 15-year term for the Montreal robbery and was paroled in 1963 from penitentiary in Kingston.

Meet The Ski-Flee!

You Fall Off — It Stops!

By HERB JONES

VANCOUVER (CP)—A self-propelled surfboard with a motor that automatically stops when you fall off is being offered to those who like to find their thrills on water.

It's a Ski-Flee, 12 feet long and of fibre construction, invented by Michael Sawchuck of Toronto.

It can reach speeds up to 40 m.p.h. depending on the outboard power used, can carry two persons at a time and is steered by shifting weight.

R. G. Scobie first saw it demonstrated on television and decided to bring it to West Coast thrill-seekers. He now is president of Ski-Flee Boats of B.C. Ltd.

Scobie says Ski-Flee is also being marketed in the Maritimes, on the Prairies and in California. He picked the Marpole Rotary Boat Show here Feb. 6-13 to give it a send-off in British Columbia.

The first Ski-Flees to be sold here will be imports from Toronto but later they may be built here, Scobie says.

RIDE STANDING UP

The little speedster has a sharp, boat-like bow section with a freeboard of about three feet. This tapers back to a water-level platform on which the operator stands, holding rein-like ropes to help him manoeuvre and manipulate the throttle.

The motor—Scobie says anything from six to 18 or 20 horsepower can be used—is mounted through the hull forward. With the propeller well down in the water, Ski-Flee doesn't plane high but simply skims along the surface, leaving little wake.

Scobie, in partnership with two other men in the venture, says:

"She's fast and handling her is tricky at high speed, but that's where the thrills come in. At slower speed anyone can handle her.

"She can also be used as a diving platform, for fishing or as a private sunbathing deck out on the lake or the saltchuck. She's ideal for car-topping."

The package, with six-horse-power motor, is expected to sell here for about $495.

BASEBALL VETERAN DIES

CELINA, Ohio (AP) — Funeral services will be held here Friday for Albert Bruno Betzel, retired major league baseball player, catch and scout who died Sunday in West Hollywood, Fla. He was 70. Betzel was an infielder with St. Louis Cardinals from 1914 to 1918 and subsequently served as scout and coach for several major league teams and as manager of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

Three-year Contract For O'Quinn

OTTAWA (CP) — General Manager Red O'Quinn has signed a new three-year contract with Ottawa Rough Riders, the Eastern Football Conference club announced today.

O'Quinn, who played nine brilliant seasons as an offensive end with Montreal Alouettes, left an executive post with an aircraft firm in 1963 to take the front-office job with Riders.

He was signed to a three-year pact in 1964 but Riders said today they have torn up this contract with still a year to go in favor of a new one. While it's a foregone conclusion O'Quinn gets a boost in salary, no terms were announced.

The Ottawa announcement of O'Quinn's signing said he has done "a wonderful public relations job for the club" and that the directors feel Ottawa is most fortunate in having him.

Seer Sees No Surcease In Sino-Soviet Rivalry

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — A leading Hindu astrologer thinks that the current year will witness an intensification of Sino - Soviet rivalries.

After studying the horoscopes of some 30 Russian and Chinese statesmen and a lot of astrological calculations filling seven 90 - page notebooks Pandit Suresh Chandra Shukla has predicted that the two Red nations "will move even more apart, perhaps into dangerous directions, during 1965."

Shukla is the president of the Asian Astrological Society which claims a membership of some 800 professionals and amateurs all the way from Japan to tiny Laccadives in the Arabian Sea.

"On the whole, the outlook for humanity is hopeful but there are some dark spots," he told an AAS gathering in Lucknow, his headquarters.

Shukla predicted the Russians will try to "wipe out" Chinese Communist influence from Asia and Africa. This rivalry, according to the stars, may well lead in what he calls "a near-dangerous confrontation" between the two Communist blocs.

The astrologer, who counts top Indian politicians among his friends, also predicted some far - reaching changes in the Kremlin leadership.

He ruled out a comeback by supporters of former premier Khrushchev or by the pro - Khrushchev Stalinist diehards but cautioned the West against the possibility of a group of dynamic leaders ousting Premier Kosygin and the present leadership.

Shukla said the Soviet Union will move closer to the West during the coming months. President Johnson, he predicts, will visit Moscow between July and September.

Shukla foresaw a violent anti-Chinese revolt in Tibet "later this year, possibly in October." The exiled ruler of Tibet, the Dalai Lama, "will see his first hopes of returning to Lhasa."

But the actual return may not take place before 1970 and a severe clash between Washington and Peking will intervene.

Shukla said British Prime Minister Wilson's stars were unfavorable. The Labor party will have to face a general election in another six months but Wilson "is likely to be returned to power though once again with a rather tricky majority," he added.

Criminal Libel Of Negro Race Charge Laid

The charge was brought against 64-year-old Russell Roberts, self-identified follower of George Lincoln Rockwell, who calls himself head of the American Nazi party.

Police accused Roberts of trying to induce a 14-year-old boy to distribute leaflets that libelled and slandered Negroes.

Roberts, a machine-designer, was arrested at his home in suburban Farmington. He stood mute on arraignment and was released in $100 bond to await trial Feb. 26.

The charge, on first offence, is punishable by 90 days in jail or $100 fine or both.

Police Chief Maurice Foltz of Farmington said Roberts gave the boy 25 cents to pass around a batch of anti-Negro leaflets Dec. 26 but the boy told his parents and they notified authorities.

Guy Beaulne

His Job Is to Spread Quebec's Theatre Wealth

By MALCOLM REID

QUEBEC (CP) — When Guy Beaulne moved in 1963 from Montreal, where he was a CBC television producer, to Quebec City, where he is a provincial civil servant of a perhaps unique sort, he went from a city of seven professional theatres to one whose sole year-round troupe is semi-professional.

But the shift from the province's artistic capital had a practical purpose. Part of Beaulne's job is to try to spread the theatrical wealth Montreal now monopolizes to the have-not regions.

"I don't see why Sherbrooke and Trécullot can't eventually have their own theatres like Quebec City," says the director of theatre for Quebec's cultural affairs department.

Others have said the same thing, but Beaulne's status in the theatre seems to give the dream more substance. A veteran of 30 years in show business, he has established his reputation to the point where, in Brockville, Ont., May 24-29, he will be the first Canadian to adjudicate the Dominion Drama Festival finals.

RECEIVES GRANTS

The year-round Quebec City troupe to which Beaulne referred is L'Estoc (The Sword), which has a winter program of five plays — two French, two German and one English—in its home, a stone-cottaged stone building next door to the Chateau Frontenac.

The cultural affairs department helps L'Estoc with cash, as it does to other groups functioning in Quebec City in summer, the capital's real theatre season. It is during the warm-weather months, in fact, that L'Estoc serves up its biggest hits, such as last year's Innocence faces The Future's leg the Eggs.

At the same time, in the resort centre of Lac Beauport, French farce of an older school is offered by La Grenouille comedies, the French equivalent of Broadway fare, are put on by La Peniere (The Hayloft) in a barn in suburban Ancienne Lorette.

Cultural affairs department grants are discretionary and the total so far is more than $500,000. L'Estoc's grant is the largest of the three, Beaulne says, partly because it operates year-round but also because it is adventuresome.

AVANT-GARDE CLASSICS

Director Jean-Louis Tremblay won't admit it is a theatre of the avant-garde but it does experiment with the "theatre of the absurd" which has upset the rules of French theatre during the post-war years.

"We do the classics of the avant-garde," Tremblay says.

It also copies what Montreal's Theatre de Nouveau Monde does in an effort to widen its audience. It gives trade union members and students a reduced ticket price.

"Working-class audiences are more open to daring theatre than seasoned theatre-goers," Tremblay says. "They don't come to the playhouse with fixed notions of what should be put before them."

But he admits his audience, and the theatre's generally, remains a middle-class one.

Georges Delisle, who directs La Fenil, says his group has drawn some rural people who had never seen a live play before, but most of the audience drives out from Quebec City.

A more far-ranging attempt to carry theatre to the corners of the province, also backed by the cultural affairs department, is the troupe that Montreal character actor Jean Duceppe organized to take the boulevard comedy Palate on tour from Hull, Que., to the St. Lawrence North Shore.

ACTORS HELPED

One aspect of Beaulne's theatre-building work is the granting of scholarship money to individuals for training, the aim being to build up the province's pool of professionals.

In 1963 he adjudicated the Eastern Quebec Drama Festival and gave top honors to a Sherbrooke troupe, L'Atelier (The Workshop), for its production of Beckett's "absurd" tragi-comedy, Waiting for Godot.

A few months later the production took the top awards at the Dominion Drama Festival in Kitchener, Ont. It was then announced that a Quebec government scholarship had been awarded to one of the cast, Pierre Gobeil.

At the time of the DDF triumph, Godot still had not been seen in Sherbrooke itself. And although this has since been remedied, it served to underline the general situation in theatre in the province.

ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES

In 1963, only three electrical appliances were available — and iron, a toaster and a coffee-maker. By 1939 there were 19 appliances on the market. Today the list of electrical appliances available exceeds 100.

Juliet Hayley Will Play Guardian to Six-Ton Bull

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Another Mills has arrived to grace these shores. She's Juliet, daughter of John and sister of Hayley, and she's here to play guardian to a six-ton bull.

Juliet favors her father in the warm, compassionate eyes and her writer - mother in the red-orange hair. Like the other Millses, she is doggedly optimistic in her outlook and also laded with talent.

She has come to Hollywood for her first American film, The Rare Breed, with James Stewart and Maureen O'Hara. Juliet struck out twice before on chances for American movies.

"Fred Zinnemann tested me for a part in The Sundowners," she reported, "and he wanted me to do it. But I was in the play Five Finger Exercise and I couldn't get out of it. Then Hecht - Hill - Lancaster wanted me for a role in Summer of the 17th Doll, which Daddy did in Australia. But again I was tied up."

She finally made it, thanks to the opportune flop of the Broadway play, Alfie. The British import starring Terence Stamp opened December and closed after three weeks, freeing Juliet for The Rare Breed and a Universal contract.

"I'm glad it closed, because it obviously wasn't going over and it's difficult to dribble on like that," she said. "I'm afraid it was too cockney for Americans anyway; much of the humor didn't translate."

For The Rare Breed, she has been wrestling with a vengeance. Not only does she have to learn to ride a horse western - style, she also must ride it before mentioned bull, her pet in the film.

"Luckily, I grew up on a farm, and I love animals," said Juliet. "The bull is really quite a dear, and very easy to ride, too."

Now 23, Juliet can't remember when she didn't want to be an actress. At 16 she was cast in Five Finger Exercise. The play ran 18 months in London and nine in New York.

SISTER FOLLOWED

Hayley followed Juliet into acting by six months. There is four years difference between them, so they managed to avoid competition of sisters closer in age. They seem entirely different types.

Another difference: Juliet is married. Her husband is American Singer-Songwriter Russel Alquist, who has had success with tunes for pop singers. He accompanies Juliet on her journeys. So does their son, Sean.

"He's only 10 months old, but he's already been across the ocean twice and to California twice," said Juliet.

AT THE PARK — Mary Ann Mobley, former Miss America, and Chad Everett team romantically in Mirisch-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Get Yourself a College Girl," opening tomorrow at Park Theatre. Also in the musical showing are rock-'n-roll comedy in color, spotlighting a group of internationally famous instrumental and singing stars. Among them are The Dave Clark Five, The Animals, Stan Getz and Astrud Gilberto, The Jimmy Smith Trio and Freddie Bell with Roberta Linn and the Bell Boys. Continuous performances from 7:30 p.m. Box office opens at 6:30 p.m.

White Paper on Justice Well Delivered by NBC

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC's White Paper Tuesday night described a dozen cases in which innocent men were convicted of crimes, and accused men denied their rights.

NBC put the spotlight on men who had confessed after long hours of questioning, after beatings and threats to their families. Another man was convicted of a robbery in a city he had never visited because he lacked funds to produce witnesses to prove he was 1,700 miles away from the scene of the crime.

There also were cases in which the prosecutor withheld evidence that would have weakened his case and raised doubts.

Ken McCormick, a newspaper man who helped free an innocent but poor man from prison, said: "I think we have big justice and little justice. I think that if a person has the money to hire high - powered counsel, he gets more justice than the poor guy who takes an assigned counsel."

It was a thought - provoking and disturbing hour, particularly if one held the belief that all men are presumed innocent until proved guilty.

NBC's Mr. Novak was very busy last night reforming a crotchety English teacher, played by Burgess Meredith, so that in a week or so Meredith can saddle-up behind principal of Jefferson High.

In truth, the transformation seemed rather sudden. The middle-aged character was discouraged and bitter one minute and doing a comedy number in the Faculty Follies the next.

Recommended tonight: Danny Kaye Show, CBS, 10-11 EST — with Gwen Verdon; Scope, ABC, 10:30-11—showing portions of Russian TV programs.

AT THE BELLE — Mildred (Kim Novak), a cheap Cockney waitress, sues for all she's got, as Meredith (Lawrence Harvey), a struggling musician from Liverpool, begs her to marry him in "Of Human Bondage" playing for the last time today at the Bells Theatre in Belleville.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — Kim Novak, Laurence Harvey in W. Somerset Maugham's, "Of Human Bondage", 2.25 - 7.20 - 9.25.

$300,000 Check Issued for Missing Gold

LONDON (AP)—A cheque for £100,000 ($300,000) in insurance was paid Monday to the owners of 20 gold bars missing from the liner Capetown Castle when she docked at Southampton last Friday.

Police still are searching the liner for the gold, part of an £8,000,000 ($24,000,000) consignment from South Africa. All they have come up with so far are cached contraband cigarettes, watches and marijuana.

The search, also being carried out at South African ports and Las Palmas, has part of call of the liner, spread to the northern English port of Liverpool Monday. Police there searched the 11,651 - ton liner Apapa, which called at Las Palmas at the same time as the Capetown Castle. Police theorized a switch of the gold from one vessel to the other was a possibility.

Insurance companies declined to disclose who got the money for the missing gold.

Jack Lemmon, Holder of 2 Harvard Degrees, Ranked Second of All U. S. Actors

NEW YORK (AP)—Harvard isn't widely regarded as a leading wellspring of American humor. Any chortles it gets are usually incidental to other purposes.

But one of its graduates has become the second-ranking U.S. film star in the box offices largely because of his ability to make people laugh. He is John Uhler Lemmon III, holder of two Harvard degrees— BA and B.Sc.

"Oftband, I don't know of any other Harvard men who are acting," said Jack who will turn 40 next month. "Several have become producers, writers or directors, but I can't recall any who stuck to acting as a career."

Lemmon long ago discarded his Harvard accent—if he ever had one—but he is still humbly grateful to his alma mater, to the tradition of all Harvard men.

BETTER IN SCHOOL

"Seriously," he remarked, "many young actors think getting stage experience at the start is more important than getting an education.

"But I think they'll do better sitting in college than in a cold-water flat in Greenwich village waiting for the phone to ring.

"An education gives you a broader understanding of the world we live in, and the people we live with. That can only make you a better actor.

"The more things you are aware of, the more equipped you are to play a wider range of characters. The less an actor knows, the less he can interpret. And education gives him more scope."

Jack, who recently completed How to Murder Your Wife, in which he is co-starred with the Italian actress Virna Lisi, has been stagestruck since childhood. At the age of four he appeared in something called Gold in Them Thar Hills with his father, a theatre buff.

Up to his tremmits now in gold as the result of a series of hit film comedies, Lemmon is somewhat bewildered by people who think success came to him overnight. Actually, he appeared in Broadway plays and some 400 radio and television shows before he began his steady climb to the movie heights.

Bright, breezy, sensitive, and as energetic as an automatic yo-yo, Jack worries less about what he'll do with success than what success may do to him. He doesn't want to be regarded simply as a comic, but as an all-round actor.

Jack feels that too many people waste their lives trying to achieve "success" in everybody else's opinion rather than their own.

"We compete too much on levels that produce happiness," he said earnestly. "That makes us neurotic.

"I remember what my father, who was in the baking industry, once told me: 'The day I don't put romance in a loaf of bread, then I'm going to quit.'

"I believe that. You have to love what you do—really dig it. You can't do it just for the money."

County Breeders' Branch Holds Annual Meeting

Fire Destroys Home, Contents In Bloomfield

PICTON (Staff) — Fire, starting shortly before eleven o'clock Tuesday night, completely destroyed a two storey frame house at Bloomfield with the tenants, Mr. and Mrs. S. Kempenaer and family losing their entire household possessions.

The blaze had gained too great a start before the alarm was turned in and the Bloomfield Fire Department was unable to save the dwelling.

Bloomfield firemen, aided by the Picton Fire Department under Mutual Aid, were successful in saving the nearby Harrington Service Station. Wind blowing in the opposite direction aided the firemen's efforts.

After water in pumper tanks was exhausted firemen were forced to run hoses 900 feet to a pond in a farm field.

The Dutch family had moved into the Bloomfield house early in the winter.

After the family escaped from the burning home, Mr. Kempenaer re-entered to rescue a few cherished photographs.

He was unable to retrace his steps in the dense smoke and suffered cuts when he forced his way out through a window.

Opening Date Set For Hospital Wing

PICTON (Staff) — Official opening of the new wing of Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital has been set for Wednesday, February 24 at 3 p.m. The public is invited to attend the ceremonies.

County Breeders' Branch Holds Annual Meeting

PICTON (Staff) — The annual Prince Edward County meeting of Eastern Breeders Inc., was held in Baxter's Hall, Bloomfield on the afternoon of Wednesday, January 27 and with a relatively small attendance. Speakers at the meeting were Dr. Max McLean, Manager Eastern Breeders Inc.; Dr. Bob Smiley, Assistant Manager; and Charles Gracey, Advertising Manager. Bill Potts, Branch Supervisor also spoke briefly. In his remarks, Dr. McLean mentioned that the financial picture of the Unit was much improved as a result of the increase in the service fee last spring. Dr. Smiley commented on the sires that were available for service and mentioned the sire proving programs and the fact that only that 54.5% of the Holstein cows serviced had been bred to the 9 or 10 proven sires in the Unit.

Charles Gracey spoke on the topic "Farming with your Head" and mentioned five points that a farmer should follow: 1. He must use his soil and apply fertilizer according to the recommendation; 2. He must use recommended varieties; 3. He must make high quality hay so that cattle will eat more of it; and supply corn of high requirements in the form of roughage; 4. He must do a better job of feeding his livestock by paying more attention to the feeding requirements of the cow immediately after calving and calving; 5. Use artificial insemination. It was pointed out that A.I. daughters average 400 pounds more production than natural service daughters.

Officers elected for 1965 are as follows: Chairman - Gordon Parks, Pen. No. 3, Picton and Secretary - Ken Hall, Dist. Agricultural Representative.

SHORT COURSE

On February 15th and 16th there is a short course on the Use of Concentrated Air Blast Machines and Power Dusters being offered to farmers at the University of Guelph in Guelph. Fruit growers and custom spray operators are particularly urged to attend this course. The program starts at 9.30 next Monday morning and runs through until Tuesday noon. It is hoped that many growers will take advantage of the course to hear such topics as Principles to Follow in Using Concentrated Air Blast Machines and Power Dusters; The Relation of Particle Size to Velocity, Formulation, to Drift and Coverage Patterns; Field Crop Insects; Fruit Insects, Vegetable Insects; Fungicides for Vegetable and other interesting topics. -

Promoting World Peace Is Slow, Frustrating Ordeal

By JOHN LeBLANC

CLARKSON, Ont. (CP)—Dr. Norman Alcock, a man with his shoulder to the world, said: "Sometimes there are days when I think, by gosh, we're beginning to get the big boulder moving."

Many people think he's up against an immovable object. After 30% years of operation, his Canadian Peace Research Institute is still fending off the wolf at the door with one hand while joining a scattering of organizations and individuals trying to nudge mankind toward the creation of peace by the scientific method.

It's slow, painstaking and frustrating, but the physicist who swapped a high-income job in industry for shiny suits and a try at cubic he'ternal riddle only men go to war, considers the institute is inching along.

"We don't expect to research the way to a penicillin against war," he said. "but we'll come up with some answers."

At CPRI headquarters in the former offices of a bankrupt importing firm in this village just west of Toronto, the 46-year-old Edmonton native and three researchers work in a basic-and-wide team of PhDs and a secretary-librarian-clerk. Two professors are handling projects at universities.

SPREADS ABROAD

The CPRI has Canada's first and only full-time peace researchers, and they are among only two dozen in the world. Dr. Alcock, its president, would like to see 2,000 of the top scientific brains focusing on the problem.

"We're just a blade of grass poking up," he said. "We need a whole field."

However, there have been some recent developments in peace research on the global scene and, while Dr. Alcock is not claiming credit for them for CPRI, he suggests that it has helped as a catalytic agent. These include:

1. At Lima, Peru, in November, there was an "American conference on universities and the quest for peace", with the Canadian as a major speaker. The conference decided for a regional South American peace research institute and for participation in a global university conference to be held at Rome on the subject.

2. In December at Chicago, a meeting of scientists decided on the formation of an American federation for the advancement of peace research, to which the Canadian body would be affiliated. Four Americans and the CPRI head are on the founding committee.

3. A year of quiet ground-work-laying in Europe by a CPRI representative was followed in London during December by the formation of the International Peace Research Association. The continuing committee includes the Communist countries of Poland and Yugoslavia.

"All these things couldn't have happened three years ago," Dr. Alcock said.

SAYS PROBLEM URGENT

About that time, he quit his $15,000-a-year job in industry and tossed in his $20,000 savings to launch a crash program on the study of how to attain peace, on the theory that the world has only about five or 10 years left to get straightened away. The plan is to utilize several sciences — psychology, sociology, economics and so on —to examine the causes of war and develop practical peace-keeping methods.

Apart from helping liven things up internationally—an essential function of the CPRI—the institute has several projects of its own in various stages of progress.

Dr. Jerome Laulicht, a New York sociologist who supplements his meagre CPRI earnings by teaching part-time at McMaster University in Hamilton, has completed an "attitude study"—a deep-digging survey of Canadians' thinking on world issues. It has some eye-opening findings.

William Epstein, Rosenbluth, an economist at the University of British Columbia, is finishing up a study on the economic consequences of disarmament. A widely-held view is that big spending on defence would follow a shutdown of arms production. Major finding: it is not a distinguishing feature of Canada, if planned in advance.

STUDIES UN FORCES

Prof. Elmer Pflanze, a psychologist at the University of Western Ontario, London, is nearing the end of a study of United Nations peace-keeping forces with a view to improving future operations. He has had the co-operation of the defence and external affairs departments in interviewing some members of Canada's Congo and Suez contingents.

The husband-and-wife team, Doctors Alan and Hannah Newcombe, each with a PhD in chemistry, have taken on the job of summarizing written material relevant to the problem and indexing it for consultants in many countries. So far, 15,000 publications going as far back as 1945 have been catalogued and the project is outgrowing the resources of their punch-card system to the point where they have to get the material on computer tape.

With the help of 70 volunteer scouts, doctors and their monthly Peace Research Abstracts has developed into an 80-page digest of world. Subscribers include the UN Library, the U.S. state department, Russia's Institute of World Economics and International Relations, the British foreign office, the Canadian external affairs department and about 70 other high-calibre institutions. The new international association has given it official status.

MISS PAYDAYS

Alan Newcombe was research director of the Hamilton forms firm. His wife, mother of three, was a professional abstractor for an international document service. Like other CPRI workers, the Newcombes have taken a sharp drop in income to work for peace.

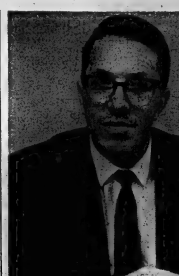
In fact, Dr. Alcock said, some weeks there is no payday at all because there isn't enough money in the bank.

Originally, the hope was to raise $2,000,000 from the Canadian public and business community and try to get the federal government to match this. As it turned out, the CPRI raised $350,000 through some 30,000 individual donations and small foundation grants. This has been spent, and the organization subsists mainly on a trickle of small amounts from continuing donors.

The federal government has given nothing, but the institute currently has a brief before it asking for a scaled-down $105,000. Dr. Alcock says his group is encouraged by "cordial and interested" reaction from government departments. The Commons defence committee also asked for a batch of copies of its attitude study.

DEFER PROJECT

Lack of funds has caused the deferment of what was to have been an early major project of the institute—a study of ways of preventing war resulting from the accidental detonation of a nuclear missile, which Dr. Alcock considers a more likely prospect than the launching of a deliberate nuclear war.



He regards the prospect of war by accident or by the escalation of one another of the recurrent small conflicts as "very real." With the huge current spending on war research—and corresponding tiny amounts on peace research—he says the world is "moving steadily towards the doomsday machine."

Personally, Dr. Alcock considers the probability of war to be greater than the probability of continued peace—by a wide margin of 60 to 40, though some of his colleagues make it about even money.

"In general," he says, "we don't feel optimistic. But we feel that what we're aiming at is worth a damn good try. It's better than just going down the drain."

ELECTRICAL TIMING

National Electrical Week in Canada, Feb. 7-13, has been timed to coincide with the birthday of Thomas A. Edison—Feb. 11, 1847.

RESEARCHES PEACE — Dr. Norman Alcock is a 46-year-old Edmonton native who gave up a $15,000-a-year job with industry to head the Canadian Peace Research Institute, an organization aimed at creation of peace by the scientific method. The demonstration above identifying the characteristics of human speech was presented to district science teachers in a special program, at Trenton High School.

Speech Research Program Demonstrated to Teachers

TRENTON — A new scientific research program on speech is now available to Ontario and Quebec high school students.

For the academic year, 64-65, the program consists of two basic manuals and a variety of test instruments enabling both students and teachers to conduct research work on the physical and biological characteristics of the human voice.

The Bell Telephone scientific aids program was introduced by Belleville manager, D.C. Curry, to a group of teachers at Trenton High School as part of a professional development teachers' day. In his introduction, Mr. Curry explained that his company was vitally aware of the need for basic research throughout Canadian industry. "Our future economic welfare depends on our ability to develop first-class scientists", he said. "We shall consider ourselves fully rewarded if our scientific aids are instrumental in opening new horizons to some of our Ontario and Quebec students."

Bell lecturer, Clifford Quince, a graduate of McGill University, gave the demonstration. Responsible for the program was F.R. Allan, Science chairman for the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, District 3.

Gay Blades Go Really Gay In Stockholm

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — A growing number of teen - age boys in Sweden's capital are taking to lipstick, face powder and long wavy hair—and their girl friends like it.

Adults are finding it increasingly difficult to distinguish between the sexes among teenagers—especially since the girls favor short-cropped hair and slacks.

The new style for young men has created a sensation in traditionally staid Sweden since it was introduced recently. Sociologists say it is a fairly harmless development and will die out like any other fad.

The style so far has not spread to the provinces.

Time to Re-examine UN Says Pearson

Viet Nam Situation Confused

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday it is time to take a "long, hard look" at the United Nations and to think about reorganizing NATO.

In a major speech on international affairs, he also said the Viet Nam situation is "full of danger."

While affirming his belief in NATO and full support for the UN, he said it is time for a re-examination of their roles.

Meanwhile the Viet Nam situation is "confused and dangerous," he told a Canadian Club luncheon.

"The best solution, of course, would be to end foreign intervention and bring about a united, independent, neutral Viet Nam. But what chance has a unified Viet Nam of becoming anything but a Communist Viet Nam, not through popular decision but by Chinese imposition?"

Referring to India's appeal for an end to provocative action "by all sides," the prime minister said he would heartily support this but "only in its entirety."

ISN'T NEEDED

About India's proposal for a conference to seek a peaceful solution, Mr. Pearson said this:

Freezing Rain May Be Back!

Here we go again . . . maybe!

Weather predictions for the Quinte district warn of freezing rain — or snow — beginning overnight, changing to rain Friday morning and ending Friday afternoon.

The warning comes with Tuesday night's freeze-fall, that turned the district into one big skating rink, still fresh in bitter memory.

One thing, may ease the slippery situation. If tonight's nightmarish predictions come true. The weather is warmer. Low tonight is forecast at 30 above.

Angry Waters Spill Over From Rain-filled Rivers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Many areas of southern Ontario were still plagued with flooding today as snow, aided by rain during the last two days, continued to yield to unseasonably high temperatures.

Angry waters spilled over river banks in many communities, trains became clogged and streets that 48 hours earlier had been lacquered with treacherous ice became waterways.

A mother and her three children clung to a rope lifeline Wednesday as they fled their home at Port Williams, three miles west of Georgetown.

In Georgetown itself, basements in more than a dozen homes near the Credit River flooded and residents feared a break in upstream dams that loose a sudden rush of water.

At Port Credit, a policeman and 10 other men struggled through shoulder - deep water to rescue a brother and sister trapped on an ice cake neck-deep in water.

Flooding in Peterborough was described as the worst in 20 years by Alderman Edwin Curtin, who said it had created an emergency.

The Nith River at New Hamburg, about 15 miles west of Kitchener, rose 20 feet in one hour Wednesday night and flooded the basements of 50 homes. The flood was described as the worst in the village's history.

In Dundas, near Hamilton, four ice jams on Spencer Creek pushed water across 200 acres. Four streets, Highway 102 and the railway spur line were covered by up to four feet of water. Chunks of ice floated through many yards and more than 100 basements were flooded. Children were moved to safety.

Public schools in the Hamilton area were closed because of slippery roads and waterfilled ditches.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Another storm in the current series is shaping up in the southwestern United States. This new storm will bring rain to southwestern Ontario late today or early tonight. Rain will cover all of southern Ontario by Friday morning with freezing rain and snow through central Ontario and northern regions. Temperatures are again expected to climb well above freezing over the lower Great Lakes areas Friday.

Dorion Tells RCMP To Supply Counsel With Report Copies

OTTAWA (CP)—Chief Justice Frederic Dorion ordered today that all counsel be supplied with copies of reports by two RCMP inspectra of their investigation into charges of bribery and coercion by ministerial aides.

The instructions were issued as the Dorion inquiry opened its second phase, turning to police hantling of allegations and conduct of the justice department and of Justice Minister Favreau when the reports were made to tnem last year.

ANDRE LETENDRE
. . . testifies Wednesday

Chief Justice Dorion said he has gone over the complete RCMP file — in his possession since last December and has concluded that the police inspectors' reports should all be made available now.

The RCMP's legal opinion and the report of Commissioner G. B. McClellan would be produced at the inquiry after the two police officers had been questioned, he said.

His ruling was on an application by Ben Dewart, counsel for the Progressive Conservative party, that the complete RCMP file be produced so that the lawyers representing different political parties and individuals involved in the case question in advance.

RCMP counsel Norman Matheson said the reports of inspectors J. P. Drapeau and Raoul Carriere would be handed to counsel before the end of the day. Inspector Carriere's report was ready for immediate distribution.

Mr. Matheus noted that the officers made as many as four or five reports, some of them running to 14 and 15 pages.

Also to be distributed is a summary prepared by former RCMP sergeant Ronald Crevier, who testified before the inquiry at an earlier stage.

Up to now the inquiry has been concentrating exclusively on its first phase—allegations by Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne that he was pressured and offered a $20,000 bribe by assistants to federal cabinet ministers.

When commission counsel Andre Desjardins said Wednesday he is ready to begin the second phase this week, Mr. Drouin charged that he and other lawyers were being discriminated against by the RCMP's refusal to make available its full files on its earlier investigation.

He said the file was available to Mr. Desjardins, Liberal counsel Jules Deschenes and Mr. Matheson but not the other 17 lawyers representing various political parties and individuals.

Mr. Lamontagne complained to the RCMP in August that he was being pressured politically to allow bail for Lucien Rivard, a suspected narcotics conspirator being sought by the U.S. government. Mr. Lamontagne represented the U.S. in the extradition proceedings against Rivard.

Although an RCMP investigation "was completed shortly thereafter, it was decided not to prosecute. The Dorion inquiry was assigned to look into the matter after the official brought the matter to the floor of the Commons.

During 21 days of hearings 40 witnesses have been heard. Seven as witness has already been interviewed in the previous RCMP investigation, certain parts of RCMP report are distributed to counsel.

On Wednesday, Court Judge Frederic Dorion said all lawyers had received sufficient time to do their job properly so far.

He promised a ruling on Mr. Drouin's motion in the full, unexpurgated version of the RCMP report questioning on how the case was handled.

There is another ruling expected from Judge Dorion which could serve to extend the first phase. He has promised a decision on the request from Mr. Deschenes and Yves Fortier, counsel for Mr. Lamontagne, that two cabinet aides be alleged to have made the bribe offer be brought back to the stand.

The purpose would be to question Raymond Denis, former executive assistant in immigration Minister Tremblay, about remarks he is alleged to have uttered in an unrelated immi-

Many Jetfighters Hit Red Targets

From Reuters-AP

SAIGON (CP) — More than 128 carrier- and land-based U.S. jet fighters combined with 20 South Vietnamese planes today in two massive raids on military objectives in North Viet Nam.

Reuters news agency quoted a U.S. military spokesman as saying three U.S. Navy jets were shot down in the retaliation action for Viet Cong guerrilla raids on Qui Nhon Wednesday night in which 22 Americans are believed to have been killed.

The Associated Press said three of the navy planes went down, but apparently not directly from enemy fire. Two fell in the sea and one crash-landed at the Da Nang air base. Two of the pilots were rescued.

The spokesman quoted by Reuters said more than 100 navy jet fighters based on three aircraft carriers steaming in the South China Sea and a military barracks area in Chang Hoa, 50 miles north of the border.

He said results of the air strikes according to preliminary results were "quite successful."

The spokesman said one air strike was made by 28 U.S. Air Force F-100 super-sabres and F-105 Thunderchiefs with an equal number of South Vietnamese Skyraiders on a barracks area at Chap Le, 100 miles north of the border.

They struck the largest 1¼ hours after the massive raid by carrier-based aircraft.

Quebec Drought Evaded

MONTREAL (CP)—They say you can't keep a good man down and the same may well apply to a thirsty one.

As Quebec's liquor strike rolled through its 67th day Wednesday, it was becoming more and more apparent that the province's drink-seeking residents had ceased crying in their empty glasses and were finding ways to fill them again.

Retail outlets in eastern Ontario were said to have done an extra $1,500,000 business in recent weeks. Ski resorts in Vermont boasted a 15-per-cent increase in liquor sales. Sibillar stories were heard from northern New Brunswick.

Locally, a surprisingly large number of hotels and nightclubs seemed unable to say anything on despite the drought. The stock answer was that they had managed to accumulate "an extra large inventory" prior to the Dec. 5 walkout of 3,200 Quebec liquor board employees.

As for the individual citizen seeking a bottle or two, in some cases he didn't have to go farther than the right taxicab.

Allan Careful Not To Retard Surging Economy

Expenditures Largest In History of Province

By BOB EKELL

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer James Allan tabled what he called a sunshine budget in the Ontario legislature Wednesday but the fiscal weather was not as appealing to opposition leaders, who said it was the same tired budget the Progressive Conservative governments had been presenting for the last 10 or 15 years.

In a statement that forecast no new taxes, Mr. Allan spoke of Ontario's "surging economy" and said he had tried to bring down a budget that would not interfere with growth.

He called for an outlay during the 1965-66 fiscal year of $1,460,-000,000, largest in the province's history, and forecast that revenues would fall short of expenditures by $141,000,000. Borrowings would make up the difference.

He (Mr. Frost) found a formula for political success and the present government has neither the courage nor the imagination to deviate from this formula," Mr. Thompson said.

Ken Bryden, the New Democratic Party critic, said that "in all its basic patterns this is the same old budget as provincial treasurers in Ontario have been bringing down over the last 15 years."

The only substantial tax change was in the area of incentives. Mr. Allan announced the government will grant a three-year corporation tax holiday to new manufacturing or processing businesses which locate in federally - designated areas in Ontario.

This program will parallel a federal scheme launched in December, 1963. It will exempt new industries from corporation tax in the slow-growth areas of Windsor, Wallaceburg, Chatham, Cornwall, Hawkesbury and Elliot Lake.

Government departmental expenditures will rise across the board in 1965-66—the largest increase being in education. For this year the combined estimates of the department of education and of universities alone total $587,-000,000, up more than $80,000,-000 over 1964-65.

In addition, the government will increase to $100,000,000 the amount being made available through the provincial universities capital aid corporation for construction loans to institutes of higher learning.

For the current fiscal year to end March 31, Mr. Allan said total net and capital expenditures will be about $1,295,300,-

Viet Cong Takes Toll On Highway

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong troops, virtually unhindered by South Vietnamese government operations, have placed a stranglehold on the only overland route from Saigon to the border of North Viet Nam.

Viet Cong, toll booths on arterial Route 1, only 50 miles east of Saigon, have been operating openly and freely since November, apparently with no fear of major government interference.

These toll booths are believed to have financed the Communist offensive at Binh Gia in December. That operation cost government forces 300 casualties. Including 18 Americans. Binh Gia also netted the Viet Cong quantities of arms and equipment.

Nearly all cars, buses and trucks are stopped at the toll points and charged 32 to $1a, depending on the weight of the vehicle, its cargo and so on. Since November, an estimated $40,000 has been collected.

CHECKED CLOSELY

Passengers are checked closely. During the recent holiday season, South Vietnamese soldiers without passes were allowed through the checkpoint but were stripped of their uniforms. Viet Cong were in the area all wear South Vietnamese clothing.

At other times, government officials and soldiers travel at their peril.

For 600 miles, Route 1 stretches from Saigon through jungles and mountains and along the coast of the South China Sea to North Viet Nam.

During the last three years, it has been ambushed or sabotaged almost daily at hundreds of points by the Viet Cong.

For all practical purposes, Route 1 east of Saigon now is a Viet Cong road.

Britain Joins Club of U.S. Satellites in Defence

Only France Now Paddles Its Own Arms Canoe

By ARCH McKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Britain's decision to junk its go-it-alone policy in developing costly new weapons systems—revealing the United Canadian Arrow aircraft program—is another milestone in a continuing trend.

Increasingly, the United States armaments industry is the dominant one in the Western world. Only France, for nationalistic reasons, pursues a more independent course.

One upshot is increasing competition among Canada, Britain, West Germany and other U.S. allies for a slice of the arms-production sharing which lightens the financial burden of modern defence needs.

"Whether we like it or not, the all-British plane is out," Aviation Minister Roy Jenkins said in announcing plans to buy two U.S. versions rather than British machines.

"We are at the end of the road in the production of complicated weapons systems for an exclusive British market."

The same situation—inability to build an aircraft that could be sold elsewhere—broke up the Avro Arrow.

Britain marked its policy shift with an order for $650,000,000 worth of Phantom II jet fighters and heavy transports.

Low interest payments, spread over seven years, lighten the burden. Other arrangements to use British Rolls-Royce Spey engines in the 150 Phantoms, or F-rs, which Canada at one time hoped to produce for itself and Britain.

Negotiations had been held with Britain and the U.S. but U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara rejected the notion.

Ejector seats and some other equipment will also be made in Britain and negotiations continue about the possibility of assembling some of the aircraft there.

Britain also intends to work on co-operative production with France, but the U.S. armaments industry, by its size and role, has a built-in advantage.

McNamara noted, in announcing the British deal and one with Australia worth $350,000,-000, that U.S. allies in the last four years have purchased $4,-800,000,000 worth of arms against one-sixth that value in the four years previous.

This trend, of substantial benefit to U.S. international earnings, reflects some of the dependence on the U.S. by industries in other countries. Canada has been a prime participant in deals parcelling out U.S. production. But as the field has become more crowded, Britain and West Germany have pushed her.

Prime Minister Wilson in his visit to Washington last December worked out with President Johnson the basis for negotiations on greater U.S. - British co-operation in developing new weapons systems.

Germany also has been active.

Defence Minister Hellyer of Canada, informants say, has a good idea what slice of his $1,-500,000,000 five - year program will be spent on U.S. gear, including fighter aircraft.

How much can be paid for by defence-production sharing will be negotiated.

Negroes Forced to March, Seek Protection of Troops

SELMA, Ala. (AP)—Negroes sought protection of U.S. troops in their civil rights struggle after 160 Negro men - ages were forced to march three miles outside Selma Wednesday by Sheriff James Clark.

Still more right-to-vote demonstrators were promised by day and some of the Negro students said they would lie down on the highway if Clark attempted to drive them away again.

Hundreds of aroused parents waiting to hear a renewed appeal for non-violence from Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. voted Wednesday night to ask President Johnson to put Selma under martial rule.

King, returning to the city several hours after the sheriff had compelled the teen - age demonstrators to walk and run three miles into the countryside, warned his followers once more that they "must not return violence for violence."

King related in detail his conference Tuesday night with other high government officials in Washington Tuesday and said he planned to lead another protest next week federal voter legislation.

The integration leader reminded the angered parents that they will have another conference with the registrars Monday. The Dallas County board of registrars meets for several hours in the middle of this month.

He urged Negroes to turn out "in numbers that will let the nation, the world, Governor (George) Wallace and Sheriff Clark know that we do not intend to stop until we can register without any obstacles.

'WANT OUR RIGHTS'

"We want all our rights," he added, "and we want them here and now."

Meanwhile, several students returning from the forced march complained that they were jabbed with nightsticks by deputies who herded them along the three-mile route. The sheriff said he did not see any of his officers use clubs on the Negroes.

Clark said he had arrested the students for truancy because they were absent from school and that he intended to make them walk six miles to a Fraternal Order of Police lodge. He said the county jail was crowded but made no mention of a former armory near the courthouse where other student demonstrators had been taken earlier.

Halfway to their destination, the marching students broke ranks and fled into Negro homes along the roadside. Clark said he and his deputies, riding in cars, were unable to catch the scampering teen-agers.

Minor Softball Body Holds Annual Meeting

The Belleville-Minor Softball Association held its annual general meeting last night, elected a new slate of officers and made plans for the coming season.

The meeting was well attended and hope was expressed for a most successful summer for Belleville's minor softball players.

Gord Hutchinson was elected president; Ted Sprackett vice-president, and Roy Payne, secretary.

Several appointments to the executive were made. Named to the publicity committee were Keith MacDonald and Herb Carveller. . Jim Taylor is the equipment chairman. Dick Ellis was named umpire-in-chief.

It was decided that for the forthcoming season, a one dollar registration fee would be assessed to each player, with a maximum of two dollars per family. The registration fee will be used to help buy equipment. It is also hoped that funds will be available to supply all teams with sweaters.

It was decided to send three B.M.S.A. representatives to the OASA convention in Peterborough on April 2 and 3.

Plan Publicity On Services For Arthritic

The February meeting of the Belleville Branch of The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society was held at the Kiwanis centre with a good attendance.

Mr. Geo. C. Brown newly elected president for 1965, was in the chair. Mrs. Gladys H. MacDonald, secretary treasurer, read the minutes and gave a financial statement.

Mr. A. E. Chetland, a new director on the Board, was introduced and he will serve as vice president for the coming year.

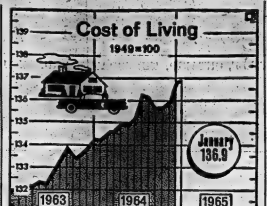
Mrs. Katherine Brown staff physiotherapist, gave her report for the past month. Mrs. Brown stated she had been receiving numerous calls and that these calls indicate the people making them, and many like them were not aware of the services available, provided by the Society.

A discussion followed as ways and means of keeping the public better informed as to the work of the society at a local level and also the services rendered at the rheumatic disease units.

At the present time two arthritis patients are at the Sunnybrook Hospital, University Rheumatic Disease Unit receiving treatment.

It was suggested that a letter be sent to the doctors in the area reminding them of the treatment centre of the Belleville General Hospital two evenings each week, provided by the local branch.

All patients attending the treatment centre must be referred by their family doctor.



It was announced that representatives from the branch in the province would meet with the directors of the Ontario Division Board of Directors when some important details would be discussed as to the report to be carried out by the society.

Miss Hilda Collier gave a report from the Women's Auxiliary of the local branch.

The Belleville Branch of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society is a participating agency of the Belleville United Appeal.

RADIO SAVES LIVES

LEICESTER, England (CP)—Midwives equipped with two-way radios are said to be saving the lives of mothers in the Midland city. Leicester's 37 midwives, each with her own call sign, are in radio contact with ambulance headquarters and in difficult cases a specialist telephones instructions to the ambulance depot which relays them to the midwives. Many cases previously recorded as stillbirths are being saved as a result.

LIVING COSTS UP — Canada's cost of living advanced slightly to a record high in January as the consumer price index reached 136.9 up from 136.8 in December. The January index a year ago was 134.2. The increase in the index, based in most categories on prices in early January, resulted mainly from higher prices for housing, transportation, and health and personal care. The index is based on 1949 prices equalling 100. (CP Newsmap)

Language Rioting Results In Bloody Madras Battles

MADRAS (AP)—Indian Army units moved into Madras and eight outlying cities today to help police combat language rioting which has claimed 30 lives.

Bloody battles raged through out Madras state as thousands of students opposing Hindi as India's official language attacked trains and fought police.

The Madras cities today said "substantial and heavy" units of the army had been brought in.

In Madras city, the state capital on the shore of the Bay of Bengal, students and police battled on train platforms. Most trains were cancelled or delayed by hours.

Students swarmed over the engine of the Indo-Ceylon Express and kicked crew members begging for their lives onto the tracks.

Finance Minister T. T. Krishnamachari arrived in Madras to appeal to the students. Officials closed all colleges and high schools in the state until March 1.

IGNORE ALL PLEAS

The students have ignored all pleas, even from fanatic anti-Hindi groups and organizations struggling for an independent Tamil - speaking nation, and many have gone on looting sprees.

Cases of arson were reported as mobs up to 10,000 strong roamed some areas.

Twenty - three persons were killed by the police Wednesday, 10 of them in Kumarapalayam. Others died in a clash with a crowd of 10,000 demonstrators.

Two police inspectors were burned to death by a frenzied mob in Tiruppur.

At least 36 persons were injured.

Two others died previously in the rioting that began more than two weeks ago when the central government proclaimed Hindi as India's official language. Three persons committed suicide in protest.

At least 3,000 persons have been arrested.

REFUSE TO HALT

Tamil is the common language in South India. South Indian students have refused to call off their opposition despite Prime Minister Shastri's promises that English will remain India's link language to protect the rights of those who don't speak Hindi, the language of about 40 per cent of India's 480 million.

Madras officials are pressing for a constitutional amendment to ensure the retention of English.

As the rioting spread to seven cities in Madras, Shastri announced he would make a public appeal for calm. The cabinet held an emergency session.

Bilingualism Will Soon Be Back in News

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism will be back in the news within a month with the opening of public hearings and the publication of an interim report.

The commissioners spokesman announced Wednesday the dates for the first seven formal hearings to receive an avalanche of 300-plus briefs from organizations and individuals.

The dates are March 1-3 in Ottawa; March 15-17 in Montreal, and March 29-31 in Toronto.

The commission plans to continue hearings in the spring and fall in all provincial capitals and in several big cities in Quebec and Ontario, where many organizations are getting ready to make representations.

About the end of this month or early in March, the government is expected to table in the Commons the commission's interim report.

Say Injured Officer Not Given Attention

WELLAND (CP) — A police inspector injured on duty was left overnight in Welland County Hospital without attention from a doctor, the Welland police commission complained Wednesday.

The commission, acting on a report by Chief D. M. McCarter, asked city council's representatives on the hospital board to take steps to avoid a repetition. The inspector is in hospital with a concussion.

Chief McCarter's report said Inspector C. W. Wright received injuries Monday after he left a vehicle he was attempting to flag down last Saturday night. He was taken to hospital by a constable 15 minutes after midnight.

Chief McCarter said he telephoned the hospital at 2:10 a.m. and again at 3:10 a.m. and was told both times that Insp. Wright had not been examined by a doctor. On the second call, he asked the duty doctor for an immediate examination and was refused, the chief said.

Onderdonk's Hill on the Rossmore-to-Carrying Place Road created some of the worst driving problems in Prince Edward county yesterday, when it became a big, long slide. One of the worst ice storms in 20 years paralyzed all modes of travel for several hours. Late in the afternoon an ice cream truck went out of control on its way down the slippery incline and the crash pictured here resulted despite the driver's every effort to get around a car stalled near the top.

Rules Some Police Evidence Inadmissable

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Mr. Justice John Brooke of the Ontario Supreme Court Wednesday ruled some police evidence inadmissible in the trial of Helen McLellan for the capital murder of her husband.

Fall Ice Jam Showing Signs Of Breaking Up

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) The ice jam in the lower Niagara River, at the base of the Horseshoe and American falls, is showing signs of breaking up, a veteran riverman said Wednesday.

Warm temperatures this week were reported tapping the strength of the ice mounds, which are about 20 feet high. The temperature rose Wednesday to the mid-50s.

"If this warm weather holds and if we don't get a bunch of ice from Lake Erie, most of it could move out by the end of the month," said Charles Blair, custodian at the Maid of the Mist landing at Niagara Falls, across the river from here.

This year's river ice did not form until Jan. 26. A year earlier the river froze Dec. 31 with mounds reaching to 60 feet.

Sauve Suggests Freer Trade On Industry-by-Industry Basis

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Canada and the United States should seriously consider the advantages of freer trade on an industry - by - industry basis, Maurice Sauve, Canadian federal minister of forestry, said Wednesday night.

Addressing the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Sauve said the recently-signed Canada-U.S. automotive agreement "may well be a first step towards better rationalization of our two economies."

"It is clear that governments as well as private groups did some careful and serious thinking about the relative advantages of freer trade between Canada and the U.S."

Mr. Sauve, first foreigner to address the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce annual banquet, said Canada needs greater American awareness of Canadian independence and potential. He likened Canadian-American economic and political relations to those emerging between the French- and English - speaking elements in Canada.

"In both cases the partners are, in terms of strict economic and political realities, unequal.

"However, in both cases the partnership works best in terms of mutual respect, cooperation and assistance when the partners treat one another as equals in the true democratic spirit of meticulous respect for the rights of minorities, with justice and liberty for all men under the rule of law."

Jury Finds Methyl Alcohol Caused Death

PEMBROKE (CP)—A coroner's jury ruled Wednesday night that Isadore Joseph Lair, 55, of Petawawa, died Sept. 1, '64 from drinking methyl alcohol "from an unknown source."

Lair was a janitor at the Atomic Energy of Canada Limited plant at nearby Chalk River, and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. M. D. Lair, testified he told her he was getting alcohol from the plant.

The jury ruled there was not sufficient evidence to establish the source of the alcohol.

Cutter Pushes Huge Ice Floe Into Open Water

BOSTON (AP) — U.S. Coast Guard headquarters reported Wednesday the cutter Eastwind, on duty in Antarctica, pushed a huge ice floe 10 miles into open water when it threatened to close the channel to McMurdo Station.

Pushing the huge ice floe, which measured some six miles long and four miles wide, took two days. The coast guard estimated the floe weighed between 20,000,000 and 90,000,000 tons.

Seamen Feel Unions Doing A Good Job

TORONTO (CP) — A survey among Canadian seamen indicates most of them feel their unions are doing a good job for them.

One-third of those polled said their union is doing an excellent job, half thought their unions are "fairly good," 7.5 per cent are not happy with the way being carried by it and 7 per cent describe their union's effort as "very poor."

The survey covered 496 seamen. The 108-question survey was conducted by the Religion-Labor Council of Toronto and for maritime trusteeship set up by the federal government to oversee shipping unions.

Opinions of the members often ran counter to proposals by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris, who conducted an inquiry into work disruptions on the Great Lakes. The British Columbia jurist's 1963 report recommended prohibition of union hiring halls, and criticized union Do Not Ship lists, which can effectively bar a man from employment.

The poll showed 60 per cent prove union hiring halls. Thirty per cent favored halls run jointly by union and shipping company and 3.8 per cent suggested government-run halls.

Denies Charges Ministers Had Stolen Files

REGINA (CP)—Acting Opposition Leader J. H. Brockelbank Wednesday denied charges that former CCF cabinet ministers had stolen files from government offices a year ago year after they were replaced by a Liberal administration.

Mr. Brockelbank (CCF—Kelsey) said some closed files were placed in the provincial archives.

Point of Procedure

The Canadian University Liberal Association —or that part of it which is hardy enough to withstand the boredom of long meetings—on Sunday passed a resolution to make the governor-general Canada's chief of state in place of the Queen.

The Canadian Press described this resolution as "advocating an end to the monarchy in Canada." We would not be surprised if this draws denials from some of those students who favored the change, but if they can explain what remains of a constitutional monarchy after the monarch ceases to be the formal chief of state we would like to hear them—if for no other reason than to marvel at their ingenuity.

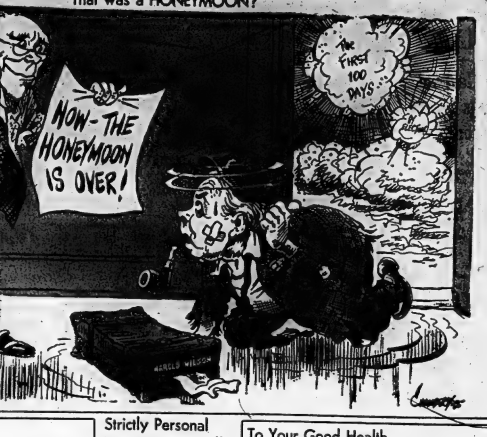
We should also like to know what kind of a system Canada would have if the change were made. Since the governor-general is the representative of the Crown, the elimination of the Crown would certainly change his status. He could not represent the Queen, since the Queen, even if in some magical manner she remained Queen of Canada, would not be chief of state. He would virtually be a president of a republic, yet without the power which we usually associate with such an official.

Is it possible to have a parliamentary system in a republic, but the advantages over a constitutional monarchy are difficult, if not impossible, to discover. On the other hand, at least one disadvantage is obvious. How do you select the president, or governor-general if you wish to retain that name? Is he elected by the people? If so, does his term end when a general election is called? If not, is a special election held at fixed periods? Or is the governor-general chosen by the House of Commons and the Senate, after the French pattern? Or is the governor-general appointed by the government of the day, which is what really happens today in Canada, but which, in a republican state, would unfortunately remind us of nothing so much as the procedure followed in Russia. There presidents are a dime a dozen and the chief qualification seems the ability to be a compatible drinking companion for the prime minister when he makes a trip abroad. What would happen if our prime minister should chance to be a Baptist teetotaller . . . again?

Perhaps, the students who sponsored the resolution had some solution in mind. If so, we are curious to know what it was.

The Miner's Friend

Canadian mining interests have discovered a new, and probably unexpected, ally in General Charles de Gaulle.



Not only are extensive French plans for the peaceful use of the atom providing a large potential demand for uranium which may lift Canadian uranium producers out of the doldrums before the expected increase in world demand in the seventies, but de Gaulle has also issued a call for a new world monetary system. He dislikes the present situation in which the U.S. dollar and the pound sterling divide the world between them. Last fall he proposed a new unit of account, based on the currencies of ten principal trading nations. Now, however, he makes it plain this would just be a stop-gap. Gold, he says, should be evalued on a monetary base which does not carry the imprint of any one country. And he adds, "There is no criterion other than gold which has no nationality." Countries which are large gold producers may be expected to welcome this announcement. Three of the most prominent are Canada, South Africa and Russia.

Wheat Subsidy

Now the Canadian Federation of Agriculture wants the federal government to subsidize the world price of wheat. Why? Because the price has come back to the level it was in 1963, before the big Russian wheat deal. And why has the price come down? Because the Russians are no longer the big buyers they were last year. Wheat farming is a business, a big business. Like any business, it is subject to the basic laws of supply and demand. The wheat producers raised their price when they had a sellers' market. Now that they face a buyers' market, they have to do what every other business must do in the same circumstances, that is, lower their price. It would appear that there is no more reason to subsidize the wheat farmer than there is to subsidize any other business.

Stand up and Be Counted, 'Image' Is the Magic Word

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Big Word with the Ottawa "In-Group" this Winter is "Image," and anybody who wants to appear really in touch with the intellectual currents in the National Capital ought to say it in a crowded room — preferably at one of the ehteh diplomatic soirees or political cocktail parties — as often and as casually as possible.

This is a distinct change from the situation here last year when the identifying Code-Word for the envied "In-Group" was — and what a bore — "Dialogue."

There was the "Quebec Dialogue," otherwise known as the still-continuing sitting of the Royal Commission on Bicuturism and Bilingualism.

Then, too, there was the "Mike and Dief Dialogue," which was the "In-Word" for the Great Flag Debate.

Conversing everything into "Dialogue," eventually became so chic in the Capital's social-intellectual circles that the world collapsed from over-work.

A chat with your wife before dinner over glass-and-tonics became the "Cocktail Dialogue."

Spanking or even scolding the children in the Young Marrieds' set became the "Historic Dialogue between the Competing Generations."

THEIRS WENT BUST

It got so that finally the cab drivers wheeling their political fares between Uplands Air Terminal and Parliament Hill took to talking of the "Sessional Dialogue," which was a handy umbrella-like thing that could cover just about everything going on in the House of Commons from Leon Balcer's Quebec revolt against Conservative Leader Diefenbaker to Prime Minister Pearson's troubles with his Cabinet's involvement in funny furniture deals; buoyancy with assorted characters of the Mafia and playing footsy with various Montreal wheeler-dealers.

The need was clearly for a new Code-Word for the pace-setting "In-Group."

There was a short sharp struggle between "Thrust" and "Image-in-evolution" for the Code-Word crown.

And for a while "Quiet Revolution" seemed to be favored — that is, until those Quebec armories were raided and the Queen was booed, and what was going on in La Belle Province became so noisy that to continue with pleasant fiction of it being some sort of well - mannered French-Canadian folk festival simply was too ludicrous.

So, for the knowing "In-man" the word briefly was "Thrust."

What did it come to mean in the Ottawa sense?

Well, suppose you were at a reception and wanted to leave.

An "Out - Group" man would say to his wife, "Let's go." An "In-Grouper" would say, "Darling, the thrust of my inclination is towards the door, n'est-ce pas?"

Or, in another context, an "Out-Group" wife worried about her husband's overeating, would say, "Better watch your waistline." The "In-Group" wife would put it, "The thrust of your present policy at the table is towards obesity, dear."

IMAGE SHMIMAGE

So, mercifully, "Thrust" like "Dialogue" died a lingering death.

And now, with the "In-Group" the Code-Word signalling to one and all that you are a member of "The Club" of course is "Image."

You don't ask how the Prime Minister is doing with the voters on the Prairies.

You ask about the PM's "Image" in Disenland.

And remember, if you're "In" the "Image" is not inherent, reflected or even cast. It is "projected."

What does French Canada think about the Conservative Leader, you wonder?

Ask then, what "Image" Dief projects with Les Quebecois.

You don't like that but your wife is wearing to the Ghanian High Commissioner's reception tonight? Tell her, then, that hairwise, her "Image" projects like a squirrel's nest.

And tomorrow morning she, in turn, may inform you that in the suit department your somsharp three button, pencil-lapel executive drape is projecting an "image" with all the elegance of a potato sack.

It can be fun, if you don't gyrocrazy first, for not only as a paid-up member of the smart, modern "In-Group" do you use "image" on every and all possible occasions, but in the best bureaucratic tradition contrive never to use one word where two, or better still, two dozen, will do.

If you work it right and impress the "In-People," you could end up as Executive Assistant to the Second Associate Deputy Minister and get to go to all those After-Five-Frolics.

But don't get caught projecting an "Image" when the "In-Elite" is switching the Code.

A report considered to be one of the greatest state papers in the English language was handed to the British Parliament by the Earl of Durham 126 years ago today—in 1839. Durham had been sent to Canada in 1838 as Governor - General and Lord High Commissioner with almost dictatorial powers. His report, which became the "charter" for British colonial policies ever since, led to the union of Upper and Lower Canada. Durham died a year later, five days after royal assent was given to the bill for unification.

Hero Does All Man Can Do And Should Do

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: The more intelligence we have, the more dissatisfied we are with the limitations of our minds and the more eager to expand them; thus, a "smug intellectual" is always a contradiction in terms.

A hero is simply one who does all that a man can and should do; the rest of us don't and this is what makes him a hero, his willingness to actualize the potentiality that is in all of us.

Attending a bad play recently reminded me of Robert Benchley's reaction when he saw a drama critic for The New Yorker having asked the author in front of him to remove her hat when the play began, after ten minutes of watching the blond proceedings on the stage, he tapped her on the shoulder and asked her if she would mind putting on her hat again.

The injustice we grow up prejudiced never ceases to shock us, but merely a fact of nature; for whatever we have known from childhood is thereby "natural" to us.

Grownups who give "sensible" reasons are forever barred from understanding the spirit and personality of a child.

Is there any truth to the rumor that a cigarette company is going to sponsor a television version of Shakespeare's play, "Like You Like It"?

I like the recipe given by the Chop-per Sigfriend of Germany, who, being asked what was the surest way of remaining happy in this world, replies: "Only do in health what you have promised to do when you were sick."

The grim prospect of the 20th twin facts that while medical science is discovering new ways of keeping people alive, social science is inventing new ways of killing them off, the one providing a population explosion and the other an explosion of the population.

To act without impulsiveness, and to wait without anxiety, are the two surest signs of maturity; for neither of these can be done, at the proper times, by the neurotic personality.

Coquettishness is the dull woman's imitation of charm.

Speaking of the relationship between the sexes, it might be said that more than half the art of marriage consists in knowing what to overlook.

Self-diagnosis is perhaps the most prevalent and incurable disease of our time, in both the physical and the psychological realms.

One of the greatest miracles of all, though without dramatic impact, is that the world somehow blunders its way forwards rather than backwards.

Unequal Eye Tension, Main Cause of Strabismus

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am concerned because the left eye of my small son has begun to turn inward. What should I do? — Mrs. B. A.

I'm sorry this is happening but glad that you are concerned. The time to start correcting strabismus (squint, or faultily-aimed eyes) is as soon as it is noticed.

In the first few weeks of life, the eyes drift in odd directions until the baby begins to learn to focus. That's by the time he is, perhaps, three months old.

But after that, if the eyes don't focus, something is wrong. You refer to your "small son," so I gather that he is beyond the infant stage but still is not very old.

Sometimes treatments can be started as early as the age of 12 months; for the best, surest results, the sooner the better.

The basic cause is unequal tension of the muscles which control the eyes. But the underlying reasons vary: Some hereditary fault, injury, disease, or some defect in vision so that the eyes (perhaps near-sighted or far-sighted) try to compensate for a condition which will respond only to medical help.

If the eyes won't focus, the result is that the child sees two of everything. So he learns his odd tricks he can think of, to get rid of one of these images. In a matter of months, Dear Nature may take over and shut off vision in one eye — it is simpler to "see" only one image.

Hence you shouldn't wait, and shouldn't, at some length, unfortunately do, wishfully tell yourself that "it will correct itself later," or "there's nothing to do about it anyway."

There is a lot that can be done about crossed eyes (or eyes that look outward, or up or down, or any way except focussing naturally.) If you start soon enough, nearly all of these cases can be corrected. If you wait until the child is 9 or 10, a good many cases no longer can be corrected. (But some can; if any readers have waited beyond that age, it's still worth checking with an eye specialist now. If the problem can't be overcome entirely, it still may be relieved partially.)

Treatments must, of course, fit the case. In some instances glasses help; sometimes one is sufficient for the whole problem. With some youngsters, one eye is weaker than the other, an eye patch covering the strong eye forces the weaker eye to go to work until it can operate normally with the other one. Special eye exercises can be very useful. Sometimes surgery is best; one or maybe a series of two or three or four operations to adjust the tension of the eye muscles. The surgery is not rare or dangerous, but it must be done by an eye specialist.

I'm informed that some quacks ("kackers" may be a better word) are making a good thing of claiming to be able to "cure crossed eyes." My suggestion for avoiding this pitfall is just to call your regular physician and make sure that you have chosen (or are about to choose) a reliable specialist.

Letters to the Editor

Geo. Orwell's '1984' Threatens Our Lives

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

The Globe and Mail published an article by Dennis Braithwaite entitled "The Berton Era" in the issue of January 28th. This article likens Pierre Berton to Big Brother, but I wonder how many of the readers understand the inference when the article asks the question, "In the Berton phenomenon has that terrifying prophecy, '1984,' at last been fulfilled?"

"1984" is a book written by George Orwell, expressing a warning that is of the most urgent import to the twentieth century. Orwell's world of 1984 contains nothing except the threats of today carried to their ultimate conclusion. The book shows Big Brother as ruler over all, even our thinking and dictating every move of our lives.

This is a book that, I feel our service clubs would do well to read and study. Its implications are far-reaching and we must find the answers to the questions before it is too late. The book, being a satire, offers no alternative or hope but we today know there is a hope for mankind if we act now before all our God-given freedoms are taken away from us by our own indifference and lassitude. Is it worth the effort to save ourselves from a world such as "1984" depicts?

Insurance Officers Supported Pensions

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

In the fourth paragraph of the editorial in your January 15th issue headed "Object to Pension Plan," you indicate that the life insurance companies objected "when it was first proposed that the means test for old age pensions be abolished.

This Association supported the establishment of Old Age Security. The Association's submission to the Joint Parliamentary Committee of 1950 stated in part:

"(The Association) therefore recommends that a federal Old Age Security plan be established in Canada subject to any necessary constitutional amendments and that the benefits should be

1. be payable to all elder Canadians without a means test but subject to a reasonable residence qualification;

2. be paid the same amount to all;

Penicillin production in Canada has so been expanded that present civilian requirements are being met without assistance from the United States, the General Manager of Ayerst, McKenna and Harrison, Ltd., Montreal today.

In an address prepared for delivery before a Service (Rotary) Club, he detailed stages in the history and manufacturing process of the drug and noted a sharp decrease in the price of penicillin since the early days of production.

"Research in the field of mycology, together with many improvements in production methods have resulted in lowering the costs of production, until today the 1,000,000 units which formerly cost the armed services $200 now cost the civilian hospitals in Canada $35, and I should not be surprised if within a year's time the cost will be lower still," he said.

Other employees guessed from 4,000 to 9,000 yards, and the correct quantity was 12,015 yards. Mr. Cooley guessed 12,000 yards."

Designated Areas Overhaul May Be Result of Study

OTTAWA (CP) — A major overhaul of "designated areas" and the government's method of choosing them, may result from a current study by the department of industry.

For almost five months, inter - departmental committees and sub-committees have been considering effectiveness of the program, under which tax incentives are available in designated areas with the aim of attracting industries to areas of high unemployment.

Sources said Wednesday a report likely will be presented to Industry Minister Drury within two months and that suggested changes will probably call for drastic revision.

Industries establishing in designated areas qualify for a three - year holiday from corporation tax and for accelerated depreciation allowances.

Branford and Pembroke, formerly on the list, have been removed because of improved conditions.

The possibility of moving workers to jobs, instead of jobs to workers, is being considered as part of any new program.

Some centres close to designated areas have complained about unfair competition under the present plan. In the Commons last November, Max Saltzman (NDP — Waterloo South), asked Mr. Drury whether changes could be expected "in view of the harm being done to Galt and other communities in Waterloo South because an adjoining city has been named as a designated area. . . ."

New Department Will Cut Costs Says Minister

TORONTO (CP)—A new department of supply to handle purchases for military and civil departments of the federal government will reduce costs and produce greater efficiency, Industry Minister Drury said Wednesday.

Mr. Drury, reporting on the government's transformation of the defence production department into the supply department, said the changes closely follow recommendations of the Glassco royal commission on government organization.

He was speaking to the Purchasing Agents Association of Toronto.

The department will contain four components, based on existing organizations — regional purchasing, warehousing and distribution; specifications and standards; crown assets disposal.

Three components—the supply service with several regional centres across Canada, data management, and cataloguing and quality assurance—are new.

"Specialization made possible by consolidation will bring professional competence resulting in better service," Mr. Drury said.

Ringo and Maureen were married at 8:15 a.m. after the ceremony they left London for a short honeymoon at an undisclosed defiance.

The spokesman said Ringo had to be back in London Monday for movie work.

Also present at the ceremony —which took about five minutes — were two Beatles, John Lennon and George Harrison. Lennon was accompanied by his wife.

Ringo's wedding leaves two Beatles unmarried — Harrison and Paul McCartney.

'Betrayed' Quebec Planning Own Immigration Service

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Quebec government has decided to set up an immigration service shortly under the provincial cultural affairs department.

Gabriel Loubier, Union Nationale member for Bellechasse asked the government Wednesday to establish an immigration service or department.

Mr. Loubier said federal immigration policy is a "betrayal of Quebec" and a "national tragedy." He said there should be a full immigration department eventually which would integrate immigrants into "the French way of life in Quebec."

Pierre Laporte, minister of cultural affairs, having had notice of the motion by Mr. Loubier, announced there will be a new immigration service in his department with a director reasponsible to him.

Mr. Laporte said the example of Ontario in going after skilled men from Britain is good. "Nothing stops us from doing the same thing."

If Quebec wants to develop economically and culturally, he said, it must attract more French - speaking immigrants.

Earlier, Premier Lesage said the "sensationalism of certain newspapers" was probably one of the causes of a heart attack suffered Sunday by Glen Brown (L—Brant), whose name was mentioned during a Montreal preliminary hearing involving a capital murder charge against Robert Gignac.

New Quebec Liberal Party Above Reproach

QUEBEC (CP)—Justice Minister Favreau pledged Wednesday night that the new Quebec section of the federal Liberal party will be "above moral reproach."

"Personally, I shall tolerate no form of corruption or influence - peddling whatever," he said in a speech to the Reform Club.

"The Quebec section of the Liberal Federation of Canada will mirror the image of a party we are all proud of—an honest party for honest citizens."

Mr. Favreau, considered leader of the Liberals' new federal wing in Quebec, said its role will be to bring together the interests of Quebec and Canada.

What Women Are Doing

Mrs. Ralph Ellis Regent of St. Julien Chapter of the Independent Order of the Daughters of the Empire.

The St. Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E. was first organized in September 1915, and was named in honor of the brave men who fought at the battle of St. Julien many of whom came from the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward. This fall the Chapter will be celebrating its fiftieth anniversary and plans are already under way to make this a memorable occasion.

The I.O.D.E. is a Canadian patriotic organization that was founded in 1900 to assist the Canadian soldiers who were fighting in the Boer War. To-day, this voluntary organization has 976 chapters across Canada, raising over two million dollars a year for education, emergency welfare and other community services.

During the war years of both world wars, the members of St. Julien Chapter worked very hard supporting and supplying the armed forces with necessities of all kinds. Since then, they have continued services to war veterans and their families in Belleville, particularly at Christmas time, to servicemen overseas, and to all those in need both at home and abroad. Many knitted and sewn articles for infants and children are made for distribution in Canada and other countries. Books, magazines, toys and games are sent to a hospital in the far north. Locally, assistance is given at blood donors' clinics and at the cancer clinic rooms.

Educational assistance is one of the chief concerns of the St. Julien Chapter. Each year a Grade 13 student of one of the secondary schools in Belleville receives a $100 bursary to continue studies at a school of higher learning. Contributions are also made annually to national and provincial war memorial scholarship funds. A rural school at Eggleton has been adopted, and is supported and encouraged with awards, prizes, parties and gifts at Christmas. The school for retarded children is aided in its educational work by donations of money.

In addition to this, the St. Julien Chapter also awards a grant of $25 to a Grade 13 student in each secondary school in Belleville, who is the child of a naturalized Canadian, and who shows proficiency in the English language. The Chapter breaks interested in this work through its department of immigration and citizenship. At each citizenship court, members of the St. Julien and Argyll Chapters greet the New Canadians and welcome them at a reception in the Armouries following the ceremony at the Court House.

Classes in basic English at the Collegiate are entertained each year and the students urged to take out citizenship papers. Several years ago the Chapter sponsored two International Fairs to introduce the New Canadians and their culture to the people of Belleville. In 1964 and '65 the St. Julien Chapter has proudly presented a program by the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra many of whose members are New Canadians. Belleville can well be proud of the great contribution they are making to the cultural life of this community.

This is the fifth in a series of articles about women's groups and their activities in Belleville.

VALENTINE CAKE IS FUN TO MAKE

For this eye-popping valentine heart cake you need three pieces of equipment: 1) an 8" square pan 2) a round pan 8" i. diameter and 3) a cake plate or tray 18" in diameter.

To make the big heart-shaped cake you bake half of your batter in each pan. When baked, round cake is cut in half and cut sides fitted to two adjoining sides of the square cake. Presto a heart!

THURSDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Homemade Hamburgers de Luxe (see Monday); Tossed Spinach, Shredded Cauliflower, Lettuce and Cucumber Salad with French Dressing; Raisin Bars with Cheddar Cheese (see Tuesday); Tea.

VALENTINE HEART CAKE:

Two-Egg Batter: ½ cup shortening (¼ cup each butter and shortening recommended), 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, unbeaten, 1½ cups sifted flour (preferably cake — soft wheat), 1 tablespoon single-acting baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup orange juice (or water or milk).

Cream together well shortening and sugar. Add eggs and beat until creamy and light. Fold in flour which has been sifted with baking powder and salt, alternately with—orange juice, 1/3 of each at a time, until just smoothly blended. Turn into one buttered 8" diameter round pan and one buttered 8" square pan. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 17 minutes.

Turn out on cake racks to cool.

Transfer square cake to large 15" flat cake plate or silver tray, bringing one corner as near edge as possible. Cut round cake in halves. Fit cut edge of one half along upper left side of square cake. Place other half on other side to form a perfect heart.

Cover with White Whipped Frosting: (repeated from March 6/64). Cook until thick, stirring constantly, 1 cup milk mixed with 2 tablespoons cornstarch. Let cool. Beat in mixer 1 cup granulated sugar, ½ lb. soft butter (do not substitute) and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat until snowy white — 5 to 10 minutes. Fold in cooled milk mixture and beat 10 minutes, or until like whipping cream.

Be generous with this for you must camouflage with frosting the cracks where cakes are joined.

Cut 6 maraschino cherries into eighths — giving you 48 pieces. Arrange them on top of frosted cake in a continuous joining scalloped line, about ¾" from edge of cake.

White Cane Club Enjoys Slide Narration

The February recreation meeting of the White Cane Club was held at Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday evening with a good attendance.

President Helen Wardaugh presided and extended a welcome to all, and special "welcome back" to Reta Coleman.

The names of members celebrating birthdays in February were read by Arlie Scott and the birthday song was sung for them. A game of bingo played on the special braille bingo boards was enjoyed with Vi Watts and Doug Huffman the winners. The musical contest was won by Ted Rowe with George Zimmerle in second place.

Arlie Scott introduced Rev. James Smith as guest speaker. Mr. Smith, who has been assisting at Christ Church for some time, came to Belleville from his home in Tasmania, Australia.

He vividly portrayed, by the use of colored slides, the charm of his native land.

GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION

The graphic description of these beautiful slides was ably given by Reta Coleman for the benefit of those unable to see them. The travelogue began with a view of beautiful Hawaii, from here members were taken to fascinating Fiji, with its thatched grass huts and modern buildings in thriving towns. A jump of 2000 miles to the west took one to Sydney, the gateway to the continent of Australia. The famous new 7½ mile long bridge here spans one of the world's finest harbors. The modern, gleaming white parliament buildings at Canberra, the capital, are especially attractive. The lovely island of Tasmania is the smallest state of the Commonwealth of Australia, and lies about 140 miles off the South East coast. Its lush green fields and rich red soil are reminiscent of Prince Edward Island. Lofty plateaus, mountain peaks, forests, lakes and rivers combine to provide the colorful scenery. Here are many famous beaches along the shores of the island.

The question and answer period that followed was very business like facts about this land of old world charm. Mining is an important industry and there are many apple orchards in the southern part of the island. Fishing, too are an important product.

Hobart, the capital of Tasmania, is Australia's second oldest city and lies in the South East corner at the foot of Mount Wellington.

George Zimmerle thanked Mr. Smith, on behalf of the club, for an interesting and enjoyable evening.

The Kiwanis ladies served lunch, for which Clarence Morris expressed thanks. President Helen thanked the Belleville and Trenton Lions Clubs for transportation.

Church Groups

ST. MICHAEL'S PARISH COUNCIL

The regular meeting of St. Michael's Catholic Women's League was held on Monday evening with a good representation of the membership present.

The president, Mrs. J. R. Rashotte spoke briefly on Catholic press month which is being observed in February. In her remarks, Mrs. Rashotte urged members to subscribe to and read the Diocesan newspaper the Canadian Register. This weekly publication gives wide coverage to current movements within the church, ecumenical endeavors and thoughts provided by the contemporary theologians often in dialogue form with other religious communities.

Mrs. P. Kelly press and publicity convener reminded the ladies of the local events column recently established in the Register and the need for parishioners to submit items of interest to their local reporter, Mrs. Irene Whales.

Several copies of the League magazine will be placed in the library rack in the church to which anyone may avail themselves without charge.

The treasurer, Mrs. D. Moran reported that the bridge marathon has been a success and is a tribute to those convening it. Mrs. J. Gallagher, convener of the marathon is seeking to enlist a few more workers to assist her with the increased attendance.

Mrs. H. Brown, convener of citizenship and immigration reported there would be a Day of Recollection held for all the city parish leagues on March 20 and outined the new format to be followed in its observance. It was also announced that citizenship court will be held Wednesday afternoon, February 24. Some 30 candidates in the parish will be receiving their Canadian citizenship.

SOCIAL ACTION REPORT

Mrs. J. Gallagher reported for the social action committee that some 36 families had been assisted this past month. The structure of this committee has been reshaped recently, which, it is hoped will facilitate the contacting of persons in need in the parish. Many donations of clothing for school children in a northern Ontario mission were brought by the ladies to the meeting. Mrs. J. Boyd is in charge of this mission work.

Letters of thanks from missionaries in India and the West Indies were read to the assembly. They pointed out not only the gratitude of the missionaries but also the dire need of the population for all material needs.

Mrs. J. Sheridan acquainted the members with the progress of the Queen of Hearts Ball. Tickets are sold out and it remains to enlist volunteers to assist with preparations the night of the dance and the day following.

NEEDY FOR GUIDERS

Mrs. J. R. Rashotte spoke of the urgent need for at least three Brownie guiders with a view to taking the one day training course in the Brownie program. Conveners of committees were advised to have their annual report forms ready for the March meeting.

The diocesan convention will take place in Brockville this year on May 18th and 17th.

Badiec will be called shortly to visit the Hastings Manor.

GUEST SPEAKER

Following the business meeting Mrs. J. R. Rashotte introduced Mr. Robertson Collins, barrister, who addressed the group on the subject of wills. He covered the definition, methods and advantages of drawing up a will, and answered many questions from the floor.

Mr. Collins talk was both interesting and replete with practical information.

Mrs. D. Moran thanked Mr. Collins.

WARNING

Dear Susanna: After a near-serious accident in our bathroom when my daughter was shampooing her hair under the shower, I made an immediate investment in some plastic squeeze bottles.

She was using a large, economy size, glass shampoo bottle when it slipped out of her hand and smashed in the bottom of the tub all around her feet. She didn't dare move, and it was not until she could manoeuvre enough to turn off the shower controls that I was able to hear her calls and come to her assistance.

It was all just too scary for my liking, and since then we keep a couple of smaller plastic bottles filled with shampoo from the big glass one. It is also much easier to regulate the amount needed at one time. — Mother

I'm firmly convinced that the same rule that applies to swimming tanks should apply to our bathrooms at home — "No glass containers of any kind allowed in the pool area." — SUSANNA

QUICK TRICK

Dear Susanna: After you have poured the water over your jelly powder and you're afraid it won't be set in time for the children's lunch, add about a quarter of a teaspoon of baking soda. It will set in almost half the time and there will be no appreciable change in flavor. — Tillie.

It's really great — SUSANNA

Floral Arrangements Shown At Horticultural Meeting

A large crowd was in attendance in Moira Secondary School staff room on Monday evening when the Horticultural Society welcomed Miss Marcella Eseko who gave a most interesting demonstration on traditional Japanese flower arrangements.

She spoke on the development of traditional flower arrangements in that country which she said at first was under Buddhist temples. Later the Samurae practised flower arrangement in their ante-rooms. In the 18th century the growing middle class studied the arrangement of flowers. Miss Eseko's grandmother devoted hours to study of the plans. July 7 is the Flower Festival in Japan and lessons all over Japan for the most floral arrangements. There are innumerable schools for the teaching of this art and each has its devoted followers.

GIVES DEMONSTRATION

Miss Endo then proceeded to demonstrate this fine art and continued by stating there were three important steps in preparing a floral arrangement and these are the cutting, trimming and bending. Each spray needs careful trimming so the proper slant might be observed and each stem must be carefully bent so that it might have its proper place in the floral picture. She also added that the Japanese group of flowers are five and seven blooms in an arrangement. They prefer to use flowers of the same variety and the same color in their displays. She made use of pussy willow, bare branches, stems and a type of heath as background greenery for the flowers.

The speaker noted that she prefers a low, flat dish or a tall narrow vase for her arrangements which follow as a rule the triangular pattern.

This dainty little Japanese lady, dressed in her native kimono and obi was introduced to the gathering by Mr. Yamakawa, the Associate Director of agriculture for Canada.

After the demonstration Flt. Lieutenant Grainger thanked the speaker and the president of the Napanee Horticultural Society. Mrs. Barnard added her appreciation. It was most gratifying to see a sizeable contingent from Napanee at this meeting and it is hoped in the future to interchange meetings with other Horticultural Societies.

CNRAA Ladies Auxiliary Marks 17th Anniversary

On Tuesday evening the Ladies' Auxiliary of the CNRAA celebrated their 17th anniversary with a dinner at the CNRAA recreation hall, when approximately 70 members and guests were present.

The tasty dinner was well convened by the president, Mrs. Alice Storms Jr., and the 1st vice-president, Mrs. Gladys Fitzgerald, assisted by members of the association.

The head table was most attractive, decorated with several arrangements of flowers and the candelabra containing 17 red candles.

After dinner there were several door prizes drawn for, and these were won by Mrs. Mary Haslip, Mrs. Bertha McCormick, Mrs. Peg Ronsky, Mr. John Ronsky and Mr. Ted Brandon.

Other prizes were won by Mrs. Annie Haley, Mrs. Elizabeth Lundberg and Mr. Elmer Urch.

Mr. Art Sweet on the violin, Mr. Ron Sweet and Mr. Ross Sweet on the guitar favored with several musical and vocal numbers, and also supplied music for square dancing.

With Mrs. Margaret Campbell playing the piano and Mrs. Gladys Fitzgerald leading, a lively singsong was enjoyed, after which there was more dancing and cards.

BETHEL-ZION U.C.W.

Many Meanings of White Cane Outlined by Field Secretary

"The white cane has many meanings" says D. L. McCallum, field secretary, The Canadian National Institute for the Blind, as he discussed the education period, White Cane Week. Jointly sponsored by CNIB and The Canadian Council of the Blind, the week this year recommends that you "Let the White Cane Introduce Us."

To the pedestrian, the white cane means an invitation to offer a guiding hand or a friendly word. "Sometimes just the description of what is taking place before your eyes can do wonders for the blind," said the CNIB worker. "It does not have to be something exciting, just a description of the store fronts or any eye-catching snowman on somebody's lawn."

To the shopper, a white cane is the sign that its carrier might like a little assistance with choosing her groceries. "Some blind people see a little," the field secretary pointed out, "but not enough to distinguish labels and prices in the supermarket.

To the newly blind, the white cane means one of the great challenges of his handicap. Just learning to use it is often an ordeal. "Even to feel your way down your own front walk is sometimes a real milestone," the speaker said.

He explained how the instructor teaches the skill of white cane travel. "He points out the texture of the sidewalk, grass, pavements and other surfaces that tell their own story. Stores with characteristic aromas prove wonderful landmarks. A tobacco shop, a fruit store, a bakery and many more, literally radiate signals that guide the blind person along the busy street."

"Training goes a long way, but when you give a little friendly guidance, you put the icing on the cake. So, next time you meet a blind person, let the white cane introduce you. Lend your good vision and a pleasant word."

Congregational Meetings

HOLLOWAY ST. UNITED CHURCH

The annual meeting of Holloway Street United Church was held in the hall of the new Christian education building in the form of a family potluck supper. Mrs. T. Posts and Mrs. C. Lowther headed up the committee to serve the supper which a large number attended.

Mrs. Shantz led in the singing of gospel songs after supper was completed. Mr. Victor Skurat and Mr. G. Dobbs led in the devotions.

Mr. William Campbell was the chairman for the meeting, and Mr. R. Dryden recording secretary. Mr. Campbell opened the meeting by reading a section of Paul's letter to the Philippians. The reports were in printed form and were adopted as printed. Mr. E. Keelan gave the report of the nominating committee for the session and Messrs Lloyd Townsend, Davey Branscombe and Gordon Elmy were appointed to the session. Mr. Luther Alyea, E. C. Moynes and G. Dobbs were named life members of session.

Mr. R. Dennes gave the report of the nominating committee for the stewards with only one new member, Mr. Hugh Hubbs replacing retiring William Ironside.

During the reports the young people of the church provided the entertainment with Miss Susan Rutledge singing a selection, and a quartet of the Hi-C members, Suzanne Lowther at the piano, Judy Smith on the trumpet, Allen Chambers on the clarinet and Lainy Dean with the trombone.

Rev. O. Wagar gave the report of the building committee and stated that the building had been under discussion for three years and members could look forward to using it. He stressed that all groups use and enjoy it. He gave a detailed report of the finances of it and felt that it would not be a burden if all worked together on it.

TOUR NEW BUILDING

The meeting was interrupted at this point to allow everyone to visit displays in the rooms of the new building. These consisted of the United Church Women who displayed overseas bale work, Mission study books and a travelling basket of gift items. The Hi-C and Bible Study groups displayed their work in the next room. The Sunday school display consisted of the books and projects used in teaching the new curriculum to the children. The choir were in the chapel with a typical choir practice in progress. The CGIT had a display of their work and the girls looked smart in their uniforms. The Emergetic Club was on hand in the nursery, which is their project and had advertisements printed and displayed for the play they are working on and will present in March. The last room had a display of the Messengers' work and the things the small children of the church are doing.

Many thanks were extended to Mr. Gerald Ackerman who was responsible for having this display of work shown. In the lower hall and on the stage in the main hall were displays of the Scout and Cub work and it made a most excellent background for the meeting.

At nine o'clock all reassembled in the hall to carry on the business of the church. During this period Mr. D. Paisley, Sunday school superintendent, gave a detailed report of the work of the Sunday school. He told of the moving day which took place on the preceding Sunday when the children moved into the new Christian Education building. He extended his thanks to the teachers and staff who had worked with him during the past year.

Rev. O. Wagar extended thanks to Mr. Campbell for chairing the meeting and also for all the work he and his committee had done to arrange for the annual meeting this year.

Mr. F. N. Stephen, clerk of session, thanked the congregation, Rev. C. W. Coleman and the many others who had worked hard during the past year.

Rev. C. W. Coleman spoke to the congregation of the work of the past year and expressed his thanks to all who had worked with him during the years. He spoke especially of the young couples who are working in the church so faithfully and are such a help to him.

U.C.W. Summary Report Shows Successful Year

STIRLING — The summary report of St. Paul's Stirling United Church Woman showed that the year 1964 had been rewarding both spiritually and financially under the leadership of Mrs. J. L. Good There were two afternoon and three evening units and they met regularly for ten months of the year.

Mrs. Jack Bush program convener and her executive planned the first six meetings around the various departments. Members were informed re the United Church creed; a citizenship meeting dealing with language and culture in Quebec; a Stewardship meeting based on the budget and the new curriculum.

The four meetings in the autumn were advocated by the Board of Women and stressed the study of "God and His Purpose." The community friendship convener featured a skit re visiting in the community and lastly the Christmas story. Four units studied India and the study of Trinidad was started. The Bible study centered around the covenant and was presented at three meetings.

A delegate was sent to Bible School at Five Oaks and some members paid a visit to Yorkdale where they met with the Fred Victor Mission, the Supply Depot, and the United Church House.

FINE MEMBERSHIP

There are 163 members and 37 of these are life members and during the year there were two deceased. The visiting committees reported many home calls and visits to hospitals. The sick and shut-ins were remembered and over 100 cards were sent out. Sales were forwarded to Overseas Relief with $50. for overseas charges and $25. to purchase blankets and other items. Gifts were also forwarded to the Fred Victor Mission at Toronto and the Deer Lake Indian Mission.

The fund raising projects included catering for banquets and suppers and the Christmas carnival bazaar. The U.C.W. financed members to attend the Christian vocational conference at Kingston and two girls to junior camp at Quin-mo-Lee. They also re-decorated two rooms in the manse.

REACH ALLOCATION

The allocation was reached in December and a balance of $770. was carried over for 1965. The various projects gave a net receipt of over $2000. The U.C.W. paid their share of the united budget and Presbyterial expenses which were almost $1000. Their share of expenses for the church and manse were over $3269.56.

The officers felt rewarded for their efforts and have begun the new year of 1965 with enthusiasm and friendliness.

Nun Coaches Her School In Ball, Ice Sports

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Hockey practice was in full swing on the open-air rink. As the team milled over the ice the coach shouted:

"Skate right in on the goal, you fellows. Don't stop now."

The coach; a six-footer with a clear voice that carried easily through the five-below-zero air, wore an unusual practice uniform.

It was a long black robe covered by a thick black sweater and topped with a white pointed headdress and bib. On a thick chain hung a rosary that swung to and fro as the coach moved along the ice, sliding on shiny black boots.

Watching her young charges intently was Sister St. Barbara Ann of the Congregation of Notre Dame, principal of Queen of the Angels School and also its baseball, touch football and hockey coach.

"I wouldn't do it if we had a man on the staff," said the stately nun during a break in play. "But I have to admit I enjoy it."

She turned back to her team. Although the rosy-cheeked sister was not wearing skates, she moved easily across the rink, watching the play with an anxious eye.

"Keep that stick down, Tommy. Watch the puck. Don't overskate it."

Finally someone scored a goal and play was stopped for lunch.

HELPS GRADES

A few minutes later, in her sunlit office overlooking the rink, she explained that as principal of the school she feels it's important for the boys to have some activities "to keep them out of mischief."

"The games do not interfere with the school work. I was warned by other teachers that this would happen. If anything, it helps the boys get good grades, as a happy medium of work and play is achieved."

Sister St. Barbara Ann, an Ottawa native who has been a teacher for the last 11 years, began her fiery coaching career five years ago when she became principal of the suburban Ottawa school.

Before that she'd taught at Notre Dame High School in Toronto and St. Patrick's High School here.

"I'm fond of teaching, and I guess that carries over into my coaching."

Besides being principal of the 200-pupil elementary school, she also teaches several subjects including her favorite, mathematics.

But now that hockey season is on, she usually manages to squeeze in several practices a week. The boys she coaches range in age from 10 to 14 and, generally, they take her word as law on or off the ice.

"Sometimes one of the boys will suggest a play, and I'm always ready to try it out."

WATCHES NHL GAMES

Her coaching skills are acquired by constant watching of National Hockey League games on television. "I try not to miss any."

The boys say she emphasizes playing their positions—"that's her strong point," bubbled one 13-year-old.

The sister has always loved sports, and as a girl was especially fond of skiing. She has had to give that up, but still skates with a group of other members of her order after school hours.

From behind her desk, which is topped by a flourishing African violet plant, she pointed proudly to the gold cup "her boys" won for inter - school touch football last fall.

"It was the first cup they'd won—I was really pleased."

This year's main team at Queen of the Angels has a good chance in the Ottawa separate school hockey league.

"I try to instil a sense of good sportsmanship in the boys —for show them that winning isn't everything," says Sister St. Barbara Ann.

"We do like to win, though."

THE MAPLE AND THE BEAVER

In days to be from sea to sea,
One, united Canada,
With peoples pledged in loyalty
To justice and our law;

Chorus
The law of love and friendship
All working for each other
Beneath the poplar, fir and spruce
And maple tree together.

On city street or fields of wheat,
Proud, no matter whence we came,
Carrying on with buoyant feet,
Canadians true to name —

In ship or train, in sun or rain,
This, the common heritage
Enjoined upon our heart and brain,
Ten-fold to encourage —

The beaver shows how good work goes,
Build a home from wandering streams,
And then the population knows
Fulfillment of their dreams —

Foxboro, Ontario.

HUNT FOR HARP

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. William McCarthy, 80, has ended her search for an auto harp. Now 80, Mrs. McCarthy had spent several years looking for the old-fashioned musical instrument. An elderly couple sold her one for $2 and Mrs. McCarthy has spent $30 repairing it. The harp was found in an attic a few blocks from her home.

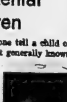
THE LITTLE WOMAN



Successful Living

Should Explain Mental Illness to Children

DEAR DORIS — How and when does one tell a child of having an uncle in a mental hospital? It is not generally known in our community.

A year ago, when our son was 11, we drove to see the uncle (600 miles), and he stayed in the car outside. When he asked what was wrong with his uncle I told him he had diabetes.

He appears quite rational; I do not think it would frighten our son to talk to him, but I do not want him to see the iron doors and so on. They even frighten me. — AT SEA.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR AT SEA — It's the unknown that terrifies. In past centuries the mentally ill were thought of as crazed, dangerous creatures, something less than human.

Now we know that "a mind diseased" can be treated and can recover. And does recover, or improve sufficiently, that 70% or mental patients are discharged from hospital able to resume normal living.

Your son is old enough for you to explain that his uncle has a type of illness which affects his thinking and emotions. That he is in hospital for his own protection and treatment. That your brain interested enough to go and see him will help him to get well.

Ask the social worker who knows his case to talk with you and your son; ask him for the literature which is written for the very purpose of enlightening and guilding relatives.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — About this club for parents that are separated and trying to raise children.

It is hard for a woman alone. My friends are all married and that kind of leaves me on the odd one which is embarrassing sometimes. Is there a club near here? — ODD WOMAN OUT.

* * *

DEAR ODD — Parents Without Partners are flourishing. There are now branch clubs, affiliated with the international organization, in Hamilton, Brantford and Vancouver. To learn more about how to get started where you are, or the address of odd-ets interested, write to Mrs. Dawna R. Sloan, Canadian Zone Director, Parents Without Partners, Inc., 60 Glen Road, Hamilton, Canada.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — These pimples have been a pest on my forehead for about two years. Lately blackheads have been settling down on my nose, cheeks and chin.

What would you suggest I do to get rid of them? — WORRIED TEEN-AGER.

* * *

DEAR WORRIED TEEN-AGER — Send me your name and address on a stamped envelope, and ten cents, and I will send you my leaflet on adolescent acne, which is the medical name of the pimply condition you describe.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — If a while girl married a half-Indian and half-French boy what would their children be? — DOUBTFUL.

* * *

DEAR DOUBTFUL — If parents and children were born in Canada, they'd all be Canucks — possibly some with somewhat darker skins than average.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Whenever I become excited or nervous, especially around boys, my face, arms and chest break out in red blotches. I was given for Christmas a new dress which has a fairly low cut front.

Now Doris, I know that when I wear this dress, I'll break out all over! What can I do? — SPECKLED.

* * *

DEAR SPECKLED — When we are excited we react in different ways. Some girls blush. Others get blotches, others have the hives!

Then there are those bashful violets who get completely tongue-tied. Some stutter, some barge around in a noisy way in an effort to overcome their own nervousness.

The cure for embarrassment with the opposite sex is getting to know them. You compliment a boy when you show interest and friendliness for him rather than anxiety in his presence. I'm sending you the article "Don't Be Shy," along with a reading list which will help you in gaining poise. (Available to other readers for 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am 30 years of age and a shy gentleman. My greatest desire would be to become a popular ballroom dancer, but I have tried taking a few instructions at a local club and have not been successful.

What is your recommendation? I have not given up hope yet. — STILL HOPE.

* * *

DEAR STILL HOPE — Keep right on trying. Even a fellow with two left feet can gradually sort them out, if he cares enough. Try another club. Or try special dance-instruction records with an indulgent friend or another learner, in your own home.

* * *

(Doris is a trained social worker who has studied human behavior and can help you live successfully. Write to her.)

District President Pays Official Visit to River Valley W.I.

RIVER VALLEY — The February meeting of River Valley Women's Institute was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Albert Wilhelm, Rainbow Fishing Lodge along the Trent River. There were 26 members in attendance and several pre-school children and the special guest Mrs. Gerald Harrington president of Hastings West District paid her second official visit.

The president, Mrs. Vernon Harry welcomed the group after which the secretary, Mrs. Ernest Carr presented her report and distributed to the convenors the reports of the F.W.I.O. officers and the winter issue of Home and County to the members. Mrs. Sheldon Clinton was welcomed back to the Institute after a sojourn in the United States.

Mrs. J. B. Donohoe gave a full report of the recent barn sale when about $50. was cleared. She also gave a resume of the expenditures at the potluck supper. She has also forwarded almost $40. fee money to Mrs. Harry Coulter, district secretary. The correspondence included several messages of thanks for gifts received and an invitation to Pine Grove W.I. for the silver anniversary at March Hill schoolhouse building on February 17. A letter was also received from the W.I. adopted child Heinz Zeiher, Lunchen, Unterbergerstr, Germany which expressed grateful thanks for all the assistance given to him and his family during the past year.

PRESIDENT'S LETTER

A letter from Mrs. Leonard Trivers, president of the F.W.I.O. stressed the four aims and objectives of organization and gave a summary of the recent Board meeting in Toronto which covered many phases of the work. This is her last official letter as she has almost completed her three-year term of office. A letter re the officers' conference to be held in May at Guelph Agricultural College was read. This is primarily for Branch curators of Tweedsmuir histories. However, three other officers may be chosen in the order of public relations officer, president or secretary. A copy of the Federated news was displayed.

The convenors' reports were given on health by Mrs. Jack Bowen, citizenship by Mrs. Roy Tucker, historic by Mrs. John Berwick and agriculture by Mrs. Glenn Bush.

F.R.O. MESSAGE

Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave a brief message re Friendship Links and said that 44 visitors signed the guest book last year. This book was a special gift from Abbots Leigh W.I. in 1956. For public relations Mrs. MacMullen briefly outlined the recent meeting of subdivision 8. She stressed the value of a scholarship fund and the need for better public relations' reports. All donations should be itemized under the so called miscellaneous. Branch Institutes should stand on guard for their own organization first before they assist any other organization.

Mrs. Roy Tucker gave a descriptive account of the visit of H. M. Queen Elizabeth II to the Scottish Women's Rural Institutes in Edinburgh, Scotland. The housewives' exhibit was full of interest and good food and the handicrafts delighted the royal visitor.

The summary course for the senior sewing group will be held in Stirling on February 17 and will be open to the public.

The various motions were made, and included a donation of $25 to the scholarship fund; a further donation of $60 to continue the adopted child plan for another year; to forward the pooling fee of $30 for officers' conference and to pay for the dinners of the 4-H Club leader and her assistant at the recent training school.

The next meeting will be held on March 4 at the home of Mrs. John Berwick, Frankford Rd. and will be based on historical research and current events.

VARIED PROGRAM

Mrs. Ross Bush convened the program which she had arranged, along with Mrs. Ross Holland. The convener read interesting poems centred around Valentine's Day, the month of February, Happiness and Friendship. Several selections were sung and readings were given by Mrs. Philip Conley and Mrs. Holland.

OFFICIAL VISIT

Mrs. Gerald Harrington, president of Hastings West District was introduced on this her second official visit. She spoke briefly re the centennial projects which include the restoration of the Adelaide Hoodless homestead, the Canadian mosaic which is a collection of tea books, one for each province in the Dominion. She said that Nova Scotia is stressing the preservation of its wild flowers. Institute members are asked to contribute to the UNESCO program for the Northwest Territories. The speaker stressed that each branch convener send in a report in the district and she outlined a wealth of material for the next year's programs.

Her main theme was a descriptive address centred on Ireland as the ACWW Triennial Conference convenes in Dublin in September. "Working Together" is the appropriate theme which ties in with the international co-operative year. Sixty years ago Sir Horace Plunkett was instrumental in founding a co-operative movement and this September women of many lands will meet in Ireland to pool their knowledge and plan their future.

ACCOUNT OF IRELAND

Mrs. Harrington described their college founded by the Irish Countrywomen and gave a descriptive account of that country, the climate, industries and said that agriculture is their main source of revenue. Truly Irish farmers are more prosperous than ever before and several are owners of 30 to 40 acres of land where mixed farming is carried on. Family life in Ireland is closely integrated and through the years much has been done to raise community and health standards.

Mrs. Vernon Harry voiced thanks to the district president for her informative address and made the presentation of a small gift. The recipient expressed appreciative thanks for the memento.

A Valentine contest followed with Mrs. Harry winner of the prize.

The hostess and lunch committee of Mrs. Philip Conley, Mrs. Gerald Brooks and Mrs. Stanley Irven served refreshments. Mrs. Glenn Bush voiced thanks to all who had contributed to a successful afternoon.

Business Girls O.E.S. 55 Enjoy Social Event

"Business girls" Belleville Chapter No. 55 OES held their February meeting in the form of a potluck supper and euchre party, in the recreation room of H. Corby Distillery Co. Ltd. on Monday which proved to be an extremely successful social evening.

There were 34 members and guests present. The business end of the meeting was withheld until next meeting which will be held on March 17 at the home of Miss Mary Carmichael.

A pleasant time was enjoyed by all playing euchre. First prize was awarded to Mrs. Verna Ashbury; second prize by Mrs. Jean Adams; lone hands by Mrs. Emily Reid, consolation prize by Miss Claire Elliott. Three tables were organized and other gifts given out for various humorous accomplishments, etc., which caused a great deal of good-natured fun!

U. S. Senator Has Misgivings About Car Deal

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—"Great reservations" about the Canada - United States free-trade agreement on autos and new parts were expressed Wednesday by Democratic Senator Albert Gore of Tennessee.

"I'm not sure we are not getting the worst end of this agreement," Gore said at a Senate foreign relations subcommittee meeting.

But support for the agreement — which applies only to vehicles and their component parts at the manufacturers' level—was solidly indicated by government spokesmen, Assistant Secretary of State G. Griffith Johnson and Robert Mac-Neill, deputy assistant secretary of commerce.

Republican Senator George D. Aiken of Vermont and Stuart Symington, Missouri Democratic senator said they are inclined to favor the arrangement signed by Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson Jan. 15. But both said they want to examine it further.

NEEDS APPROVAL

The plan must be approved by Congress although already invoked by Canadian cabinet council. Symington said the scheme seemed better than the tariff - incentive arrangement, which also was designed to increase Canadian exports to the U.S. That scheme died with the agreement for modified free trade.

Gore said the new one might

American planes in the second attacking wave was downed, although six Vietnamese dive-bombers were damaged by small arms fire.

All the planes in the second wave were based at Da Nang, an important U.S. air base ringed by armed Hawk ground-to-air-missiles, about 375 miles northeast of Saigon and 30 miles from the North Viet-Nam border.

The spokesman said Chang Hoa was an important military barracks area and supply point.

The United States and South Vietnamese government announced today's new air attacks in a joint statement.

The statement said: "Since Feb. 6 there have been continued acts of aggression by the Communist Viet Cong under the direction and with the support of the Hanoi regime against the Vietnamese people and installations in South Vietnam and against their American advisers."

CITE AGGRESSIONS

The following aggressive Communist actions in South Viet Nam were cited:

1. The mining of 13 bridges and seven sabotage attempts against railroads, killing or injuring 18 Vietnamese civilians and two soldiers.

2. Attacks on hamlets and villages and kidnapping.

3. A small attack on a U.S. military billet in Qui Nhon resulting in 12 known Vietnamese and American dead and more than 40 wounded and missing.

"Many of the latter must be supposed dead," the statement said.

The statement concluded: "In response to these continued attacks by the Communists, South Vietnamese and American air elements today carried out air operations against selected military installations in the southern part of North Viet-Nam which have been used by the Hanoi regime for training and support of the Viet Cong personnel carrying out these acts."

In Washington, White House Press Secretary George F. Reedy described the targets as "military facilities in North Viet Nam used by Hanoi for the training and infiltration of Viet Cong personnel into South Viet Nam."

AFTER PROVOCATION

Reedy said the air attacks, agreed upon in consultation with the Saigon government, "were in response to further direct provocation by the Hanoi regime."

TESTING BABIES

MANCHESTER, England (CP)—An experiment to test new-born babies for conditions that might lead to mental retardation is being planned by a research team from the Royal Manchester Children's Hospital. Dr. C. M. Kommerer, in charge of the scheme, said it would be the first large-scale screening of new-born infants attempted in Britain.

000. For 1965-66 they will be about $1,430,000,000, or an increase of $164,000,000.

For the current year he forecast a 'pit' increase in the capital debt of $78,400,000, about $27,400,000 less than was anticipated a year ago. Besides that the government had been able to finance 70 per cent of its capital construction programme—highways and public works—out of ordinary revenue.

This was because Ontario's booming economy had resulted in much higher revenues than expected, Mr. Allan said.

"As treasurer I have been extremely gratified by the growth and development that has been taking place in our province."

Robert Nixon, a Brant County farmer whose constituents include many tobacco growers, discounted Mr. Allan's statement that the existing sales tax on cigarettes was being replaced by an equal tobacco tax merely to facilitate tax collection.

QUESTIONS PROBLEMS

Mr. Nixon said he had never heard before that there were problems in collecting the three-per-cent sales tax on cigarettes. "The argument for convenience appears to be a thin one indeed."

The government apparently was imposing the tobacco tax so that it would "feel free in the future to increase it out of line with the sales tax," Mr. Nixon said.

Mr. Allan, meeting with reporters Wednesday, said that in a sense the tobacco tax might be considered a one - in - all, though it did not provide for any additional revenue.

Asked how collection would be made easier, the provincial treasurer replied that at present tobacco in the store is subject to sales tax sold by many small outlets in the province. But in the future the tax on tobacco tax would be assessed against the wholesaler and the retailer would no longer have to be involved in the collection of sales-tax on a single item.

Mr. Allan outlined how the tax was being imposed to provide a stable source of revenue. "That isn't the purpose of the tax," he said, "it's entirely a matter of collection."

Changes will be made in the collection of revenues under the Retail Sales Tax Act, he said. This will involve the coloring of tax-exempt diesel fuels or fuel oils used for farming purposes.

A refund on taxes paid on diesel fuel not used for highway purposes also will be claimed by the user. The coloring will aid the revenue department in assuring that highway fuels are not being used for motor vehicle purposes.

NO EXTRA CHARGE

Mr. Allan said the coloring will be done by a chemical process but the cost of coloring has not yet been determined. The province itself will pay for the coloring and the consumer will be no extra cost passed on to the consumer.

The provincial tax there would be no new taxes levied against Ontario residents this year, the treasurer said. Substantial increase in revenue is expected to stem from existing tax sources.

Ontario's economic growth, combined with an increase in 65 per cent of the revenue from the province's share of income taxes collected by the federal government in Ontario, would provide an added $60,000,000 in 1965-66, Mr. Allan said.

The 1965 corporation and capital receipts are forecast at $1,218,500,000 — up more than $100,000,000 over the current fiscal year. Income taxes will contribute $254,400,000 to the total.

Other major sources of revenue in 1965-66 will be corporations tax $344,000,000; gasoline tax $277,000,000; retail sales tax $207,000,000; liquor $71,000,000 and auto licences and permits $80,400,000.

The balance sheet shows "a very gratifying improvement in our financial position over that anticipated in the budget statement of Feb. 12, 1964," he added.

During the fiscal year starting April 1 Mr. Allan predicted additional costs to the province will be $200,000 compared with $428,000,000 in the current year.

The department of education alone will spend $444,900,000 and the department of university affairs $63,700,000. Adding to this $100,000,000 the government will make available to the universities' Capital Aid Corporation for university construction, the over-all outlay for educational purposes totals $608,000,000.

Mr. Allan said that for the next decade at least education will constitute Ontario's foremost financial problem.

The second highest spender will be the department of highways, for which $329,400,000 has count of our situation here," he said.

"The trade and financial relations between Canada and the U.S. are so substantial that we could scarcely expect the U.S. to take measures to improve its balance of payments which would leave us entirely untouched.

WON'T BE SERIOUS

"However, there does not appear to be anything amongst the president's proposals that will cause Canada serious difficulty."

Mr. Gordon said an exemption for all new issues of Canadian securities from the U.S. interest equalization tax "remains intact."

He told Mr. Dillon that Canadian policies "will continue to be directed towards general stability in our foreign exchange reserves."

"It is not our desire or intention to increase our reserves through the proceeds of borrowing in the U.S. under the exemption."

Government authorities said President Johnson's measures today "make no recognition of Canada's special position and problems. All the new moves might affect U.S. investments, business investment and U.S. tourist expenditures in Canada, however, their effects may have been softened by recent developments.

HASN'T BEEN DRAIN

The Canadian position is that Canada has not been a drain on the U.S. balance of payments.

In the 15 years from 1948 to 1962 Canada had a current account deficit with the U.S. of $15,000,000,000. American capital investment in Canada was about $7,500,000,000 in the same period, leaving a net Canadian deficit — or a U.S. surplus — of almost $8,000,000,000.

This was the argument that prompted Ottawa to make an exemption for new Canadian issues from the interest equalization tax.

Foreign direct investment in Canada—of which U.S. investment makes up about 80 per cent—dropped off to $240,000,000 in 1963 from $850,000,000 in 1960. In the first nine months of last year it amounted to $155,000,000, the latest figure available.

Writer Fled From Husband Who Was Too Attentive

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS — You won't print this but I'm writing because I want to get something off my chest.

You received many letters roasting the woman who undresses in the closet but you didn't get even one letter in her defence. I'd like to speak up in behalf of that woman because we have a great deal in common.

I don't undress in the closet. I undress in a different house. For over a year I was mauled, pinched, squeezed and patted until I was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. No matter what I was doing, how I looked, what my mood — happy, sad, sick or well, my husband always showed no hint of his enormous carnal appetite before marriage; was breathing down my neck — leering, panting, pawing, until I couldn't stand the sight of him.

"Night and Day" was written for him, but it meant only one thing. Sex. A knot on a tree reminded him of a women's shape. Mentally he undressed every woman he saw, and he never failed to tell me in detail of his reactions. You would probably say he is sick, but so far as I know he is still running around loose.

I had enough sex in one year to last me a lifetime. I had to leave him to save my sanity. Now you can throw this letter away, but I feel better for having written it. — STATUE OF LIBERTY.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR LIB — Your ex-husband's morbid preoccupation with sex is indeed sick. But you have a problem, too. Obviously, you don't like sex and you liked your husband even less. Some women would have adored at least some of that attention. Ah! The unfairness of it all.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Roger and I plan to be married soon. We will be living with his mother. She has a large and lovely home which is taxi everything a person would want.

How can I let my friends know I will not be needing any appliances or household items. I don't want to be crass or commercial about wedding gifts, but I am a practical person.

Any suggestions for a — BRIDE-TO-BE.

DEAR BRIDE — You don't intend to live with Roger's mother for the rest of your life, do you? Well, don't instruct people to send you this or send you that. Accept with grace whatever you receive. Put away the appliances and household items which you will not be needing now. Later they will come in mighty handy and you'll be delighted that you have them.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — You told Mrs. H.W.R. it takes about $25,000 and $38,000 to become a doctor. You are right about the 14 years and my cheque will tell me you are off on the figures. The actual cost is much closer to $50,000.

I am proud and happy that my son is a doctor, but it's a long and expensive road and in addition to the schooling, don't forget to include the cost of clothing, transportation, which means cars, not a three cars, and last but not least, "spending money" for 14 years.

May I ask Mrs. H.W.R. how she'd like to be an intern for $12.50 a month and on 24 hour call? Or, how she'd like to be connected with a maternity centre for seven months, often working for 72 hours without sleep? The life of a doctor may seem glamorous to the public but it is unequal in very hard work and it takes many years and plenty of hard money to get there. — A DOCTOR'S FATHER.

• • •

DEAR DAD — Congratulations on your son, the doctor. And thanks for setting the record straight, although it sounds as if you put your son through on a much grander scale than most fathers could — or would.

• • •

Parents are people — they can be right and they can be wrong. To help understand their viewpoint and to promote harmony at home, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

CLASSROOMS COSTLY

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) St. Catharines Separate School Board has decided that portable classrooms are too expensive. Rent of $303 a month for one year or $188 a month for five years was the figure from the Nova Scotia manufacturers at which the board balked. The department of education makes no grants for classroom rental, although grants for school construction amount to nearly 70 per cent of separate schools' approved costs.

GUIDE TO DEEPS

HALIFAX (CP)—The Canadian Hydrographic Service has begun to market new charts of the sea-bed between Sydney and Sable Island. Fishermen working the Banquereau and Misaine banks off the Nova Scotia coast feel the charts, priced at $2, will help them increase the offshore fishing harvest. Old charts became obsolete when fishermen took to deep sea trawlers instead of staying near the shore, in the areas mapped previously.

"Technically speaking, such a meeting is not necessary, because the conference and agreement of 1954 made adequate provision for the independence of the countries of former French Indo-China.

"Nevertheless, if the circumstances envisaged by the Indian government, in which neither side would be exerting military pressure on the other, a conference of the kind indicated took place, the Canadian government would be glad to take part in it as we did previously."

Mr. Pearson said the United Nations should be re-examined in the light of the changing world.

"What we will soon have to decide is whether the UN is to become merely a social, humanitarian and assistance organization, with political and security problems only for debate, not resolution.

"Or whether, by revising the charter or by agreement between the more important members, the peace - keeping functions of the United Nations can be made reasonably effective. The issue of decision is approaching."

DIFFICULTY GROWS

Mr. Pearson, a former president of the UN assembly, said it is becoming increasingly difficult for a limited group of middle powers to carry the burden of peace-keeping operations "while others of greater resources and power continue to refuse to pay their share of the cost but insist that the operation itself is illegal under the charter."

That is why any small committee set up to find a solution to the current dues - payment crisis, he suggested at the UN that Mr. Pearson be a member—"should also be asked to look into the whole question of the organization of peace-keeping operations under the charter."

Even if the current dues-paying dispute were solved, the underlying financial amount is little more than papering over cracks.

About NATO, he said Canada will have to consider "very seriously" the future contribution to the organization if making the best use of the country's resources for the defence of peace.

"It is not a matter of default-glamorous or otherwise—to contribute to collective defence. It is merely a matter of how best we can continue to do it as conditions change."

He said the bond of collective defence for collective security is becoming weaker as conditions change.

This should lead to a re-examination of the organization.

"The best result would be to come closer together, organically, on the old treaty basis. But that is impossible at the moment if we wish to include the France of General de Gaulle, and certainly in Canada it is impossible to contemplate an Atlantic coalition without France.

"Alternatively, we may have to consider new arrangements by which Europe takes responsibility for the security of one side of the Atlantic, North America for the other, with interlocking co-operative arrangements for mutual assistance against attack."

School Board Hears Reports On 'Showcase'

DESERONTO — The School Board meeting Tuesday evening got off to a smashing start when due to lack of a car belonging to one of the trustees slid into the car of the Truant Officer, causing slight damage.

Two of the trustees attended the Canadian Educational Showcase at the Toronto Exhibition grounds. They were extremely impressed with many technical innovations for teaching facilities. One of the outstanding features was educational television and the use of closed circuit television in the schools.

The principal reported attendance in January was 91.07%. He also reported that the school has quite a number of pupils having difficulty with their work, and he suggested the possibility of adding special classes for slow learners be discussed by the trustees and the inspector. These classes are available in many other places in Ontario.

Upon recommendation of the principal and the property committee, it was voted to purchase a "Dry Copy Machine" and a new overhead projectors, with screens for each room. These machines are to be used in conjunction with the new visual aid programs.

A letter was received from Mr. W. G. Smith thanking the board for the January bulletin.

Clarke Rollins, MPP, replied to a letter from the board asking him to find out what could be done to enforce the law which prevents cars to stop behind a school bus with lights flashing.

His reports were brought in by two education committees, dealing with school costs in adjacent areas.

gration case involving American millionaire Harry Stonehill. The point of the questioning would be to test Denis' credibility on certain parts of his testimony.

Of the seven persons who testified Wednesday, two had been on the stand before.

Guy Masson, who testified three weeks ago he was "errand boy" with an offer of $60,000 for the Liberal party election fund, was asked again about certain telephone calls he previously had denied making.

The calls on the night of July 20-21 were verified by Bell Telephone records but Mr. Masson said he still could not recall them. One was from Maxime's Lounge, Montreal, to Mr. Masson's room at the Chateau Laurier Hotel in Ottawa and the other was from Mr. Masson's room to Robert Gignac at Maxime's.

Gignac testified earlier in the inquiry he was with Maxime's that night with Rivard's wife.

The night in question is one during which Mr. Masson says he received threatening calls about Rivard's ball application.

RECEIVED CALL

Masson has testified he received a call in Ottawa the same night from Rivard and two lawyers in Montreal and there also has been evidence that calls were made from Maxime's to Mr. Lamontagne's summer residence at Chicoutimi.

Completely new ground was turned Wednesday with testimony about phone calls made on an earlier occasion by Masson.

Herman Falls, manager of the Chateau, said hotel records show that on July 14 Masson had a call from his room at the hotel to government local 99-26261. The number has been listed since in the name of the department of industry, trade and commerce for the RCMP directorate of air intelligence.

Masson was not asked whether he made the call or to give any explanations about it.

That call was followed by a call to Denis' office in the basement of the House of Commons.

HAD WARNING

Andre Letendre, 35-year-old executive assistant to Justice Minister Favreau, testified that he was warned in advance, by the minister that he would be interviewed by the RCMP.

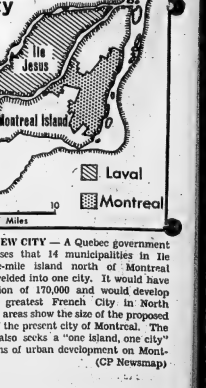
Mr. Favreau had told him Aug. 19, the morning of the RCMP interview. Letendre said the minister told him that Commissioner G. B. McClellan had given permission for Favreau to tell his aide that he would be an interview but not what it would concern.

Mr. Letendre said the interview had reaffirmed his faith in him and counselled that he tell the whole truth."

Mr. Letendre denied Mr. Lamontagne's allegations of pressure on his part during a telephone conversation Aug. 11.

Another witness, Montreal lawyer Jean Salois, 28, testified he heard rumors last summer that Rivard was willing to pay a "very high fee" to any lawyer who could get him released on bail.

Pope Appeals For Peace in Southeast Asia



VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Pope Paul today made an urgent appeal for peace in Southeast Asia.

He asked all persons concerned, on whatever side they are, to "save innocent populations from new trials and new tears."

Addressing pilgrims in a public audience, the Pope warned that the world, after a promising easing of tensions, "seems to be threatened by fresh conflicts."

Mr. Letendre said almost impossible that, while the memory is still alive of the horrible scourge which caused so many victims and such suffering, while the wounds which it opened are still not completely healed, there are people who dare to harden their minds to thoughts of war.

"Have the torments of anguish which were suffered, have the immense ruins which were amassed, have the cruel massacres taught nothing?" the Pope asked.

PROPOSED NEW CITY — A Quebec government commission proposes that 14 municipalities in Ile Jesus, a 98-square-mile island north of Montreal Island should be welded into one city. It would have an initial population of 170,000 and would develop into "the second greatest French City in North America." Shaded areas show the size of the proposed city and the site of the present city of Montreal. The city of Montreal also seeks a "one island, one city" solution to problems of urban development on Montreal Island. (CP Newsmap)

Labor's White Collar Drive Now Is Showing a Profit

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor's drive to organize the elusive white-collar worker is taking on new urgency this year.

Launched quietly by the Canadian Labor Congress about four years ago, the campaign is just beginning to develop into its payoff stages. Much of the early pessimism that developed among union leaders has been overcome.

Larry Sefton of Toronto, district director of the United Steelworkers of America, and chairman of the CLC's national committee on white-collar organizing, says a definite trend towards union organizing has become apparent in white-collar ranks.

"We are gaining some of the bridgeheads we need, and we are gaining them much faster than the optimists said was possible just a few years ago," he told a conference in Toronto recently.

The campaign that has been mounted is a far cry from the rush-in-and-sign-'em-up attitude that unions used to depend on in this field, an attitude that failed in most cases.

A modern approach has been adopted, breaking the problem into four stages. These are: Research, co-ordination, programming and service.

PROGRAM STRESSED

Most of the research has been completed. It has entailed identifying the number and location of white-collar workers, their working conditions and their needs.

Next came the task of coordinating the work of the various unions involved, defining the jurisdiction of each union and assessing its ability to contribute to the total program.

Current emphasis is on the third stage, laying out the program for attack. This entails training the right kind of people in the right kind of techniques, developing on-the-job organizers and preparing special literature.

The final stage will be to make sure that a high level of union service is maintained.

Mr. Sefton calls it a new era in trade unionism. "We are no longer just talking about white-collar workers, their problems and their status within industrial society. We are beginning to act and they are beginning to act."

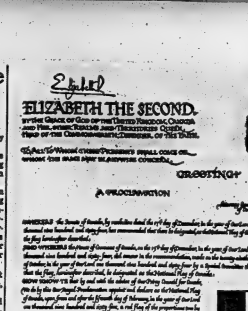
During the last two years unions have made slow but steady progress in the white - collar field, recruiting perhaps 4,000 a year. Most of this has been among government employees and office staffs in industries already organized at the blue-collar level.

FIELD WIDE OPEN

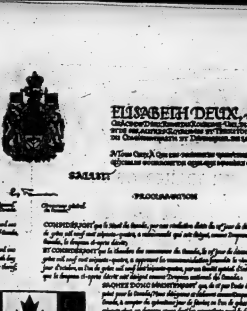
One of the areas Mr. Sefton and his committee intend to tap is the trade and finance industries where less than one per cent of the huge clerical force is organized. Banks and insurance companies are expected to be the toughest customers, but their 240,000 employees represent a major portion of the white-collar force.

Mr. Sefton said the idea that white-collar workers are not interested in unions is rapidly being dispelled.

"The truth is that they are interested and they are joining unions in larger numbers than ever before," he says.



"The experience of my own union, the Steelworkers, along with the Auto Workers, the Canadian Union of Public Employees, the Office Employees International and many others is that conditions have never been brighter for white-collar organizing."



Worry about automation is not as big a factor as some believe, he adds.

"Many of the established privileges of white-collar workers—sick pay, pensions, vacations and security — now are rights enjoyed by most production workers. But while production workers have attained these rights, they have also achieved a much higher standard of living. Office employees have been left behind."

William Dodge, executive vice-president of the CLC and its chief of organization, is enthusiastic about the progress but cautions that "it is still a fairly long-term project."

"It won't show results overnight. But we are convinced that anyone can be organized if we can create among them a realization of what unions can accomplish and accurately digi-fied working conditions."

1942... Suspicion, Bitterness

Canada's Uprooted Japanese

Lethbridge's centennial project is a Japanese Garden, a tribute to the 2,800 Japanese uprooted from British Columbia and moved to southern Alberta by government order in the months after Japan struck Pearl Harbor in December, 1941. The displaced Japanese became hired hands at southern Alberta farms. This story tells of their heartbreak and success.

By ALLEN SACKMANN

Lethbridge, Alta. (CP)—Suspicious farmers met bitter Japanese on an April day 23 years ago with nothing more in common than the very platform on which they stood.

In the anxious months after Pearl Harbor, when 2,800 Japanese were evacuated by government order from coastal British Columbia to camps in Alberta, the Orientals were viewed as a relief to the critical labor shortage on sugar beet farms.

Few could have imagined that in time mutual respect and understanding would replace the suspicion and bitterness.

Japanese families were picked up by wagon or truck at the railway station and taken to makeshift homes that the farmers were obliged to provide.

"He (the farmer) was clean, cleaning the chicken coop when we arrived," says Stan Kanegawa, 44, of Vauxhall, now a prominent potato farmer. "When we said we wouldn't live among chicken lice, he let us stay in a shack abandoned by bachelor laborers.

"I had never been bitten by bedbugs before. There was no water and the farmer led us to a pond. He told us that would do."

TRAVEL RESTRICTED

Mr. Kanegawa, his 55-year-old father, his mother and three other children all worked in the beet fields — the hardest work his parents had known since coming to Canada in 1928.

Housing and water supplies were only two of the early difficulties. Suspicious and hostile communities passed bylaws prohibiting the Japanese from living in urban areas. They couldn't own firearms, and travel was restricted to a 40-mile radius of the farm on which they worked.

"It was hardest on the older people," says Taber dentist George Sakamoto, 53, when the family came to Alberta. "They weren't leaving their life's work, their homes and their friends. For us younger ones, we had to start some place and we didn't mind so much."

Mr. Kanegawa's father received $3,000 for a Vancouver boat-building business he valued at $25,000.

From Strathcona, 40-year-old Coaldale farmer, says his father received $800 for a 10-acre Fraser Valley farm he had bought 10 years earlier for $600, uncleared and unbroken land. Koyanagi, assistant editor of the weekly Taber Times, had paid $2,000 for a grocery business, built up his stock and sold it for $1,000.

MOVED WITHOUT NOTICE

"I was lucky," he said, "I had a month's notice. Many people got less than 24 hours before they were moved."

"It was discrimination," says Mr. Koyanagi who was 21 when he moved. "The Japanese were singled out while the Italians and Germans were left alone."

It was the predominant feeling among the 24,500 Japanese ordered 100 miles inland from the west coast by the B.C. security commission. But to those who moved to southern Alberta, "it was a blessing in disguise."

"We didn't know it then, but it was one of the best things that could have happened in many respects," says Mr. Koyanagi.

They weren't looking for hidden blessings, however, as they thinned, weeded and harvested sugar beets on a contract price of $28 an acre—big enough to get by.

Gerald Snow, a Canadian Sugar Factories placement officer, says that although the Japanese were frightened and bitter, it was evident they planned to make the best of their misfortune.

ADAPTED WELL

His 1942 report said, in part: "The initial reaction of the Alberta communities was definitely unfavorable." But, about the Japanese, it said: "Generally speaking, the Japanese adapted themselves very well to their new work which is the more remarkable when one considered the changes in environment and worktipe conditions. In a short, they did an excellent job."

William Andrews, B.C. security commission agent in Lethbridge, says: "On the average the Japanese accepted their situation much better than we would have under similar conditions. None complained, nor did the beet growers."

They soon earned respect for their industry, the very attribute that made their coastal neighbors suspicious and hostile for many years.

While parents and older children worked on the fields, the younger ones attended school with their occidental neighbors. They were accepted readily and without reservation, says Mr. Tsukishima, who attended classes south of Lethbridge.

As the war drew to close, their parents, too, were more readily accepted, and when the B.C. commission relinquished its control in 1946 the Japanese were again free.

RENTED LAND

They continued to work hard for their employers but set a goal of economic freedom and never lost sight of it.

Dr. Sakumoto says his family's progress was typical. From a small plot of land and provided the equipment. Proceeds were shared on 50 - 50 terms with the farmer.

He studied at school and at home before enrolling in the University of Alberta where he received a degree in dentistry.

Mr. Kanegawa's family scraped up enough money to rent a small farm that was the beginning of Kanegawa Farms Limited, an enterprise now operated by Stan and brother Richard, which covers 1,600 acres of sugar beets, potatoes, peas and grain. They raise 600 head of cattle and 800 hogs annually.

Ten men work for him year round, some of them Indians. "I feel sorry for them and try to help each family I get." He has been employed by the Hutterian brothers for three years.

Four Shigechiro brothers farm 760 acres which grew from a small farm their farmer-employer sold to them "cheap and on good terms." The farmer built them equipment the first few trying years.

PEOPLE FRIENDLY

The Japanese feel integration is almost complete.

Dr. Sakumoto says: "My practice is cross-section of all races. We integrated faster because Prairie people are by nature friendlier than those in other areas. They accepted us."

Newspaper man Walter Koyanagi says: "The natural aggressiveness of the Japanese was recognized as a trait of good citizenship. We're accepted as equals—look at the number of inter-marriages."

The degree of respect and admiration for the Japanese is demonstrated by the City of Lethbridge which is building a $200,000 Japanese garden as a tribute to the 5,000 Japanese living in southern Alberta.

But the tribute of Bery Allen, a former RCMP officer and Lethbridge probation officer, is probably more cherished by the Japanese.

"It's a rare day when you find a Japanese person in trouble with the law—you can count them on the fingers of one hand."

Independent Africa Spends $800 Million on Armies

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Africa's fledgling armies are flexing their muscles, rapidly becoming a major force in the continent's countries.

African governments are becoming more aware of dependence on the military and the threat created by their growing power.

Independent Africa with a per capita income of $122 yearly, supports an 400,000 armed men grouped in 35 armies. South Africa, with its white government and army, is not included in the statistics.

Total estimated military budget of the independent African nations, without South Africa, is close to $800,000,000.

There are an estimated 1,500 war planes in Africa, many manned by foreign pilots in the service of African governments.

The quest for prestige and fear of conflicts with neighbors are the main motives behind the creation of armies by the struggling African nations. But with the armies usually comes the threat of military coup.

Over the last four years, a dozen military uprisings shook the continent. Some were successful and some were quashed with the help of the former colonizers.

The most dramatic is the case of Togo, whose president, Sylvanus Olympio, was assassinated in 1963 by disgruntled soldiers demanding an increase of the tiny nation's token armed force.

In East Africa, British commandos and airborne troops quelled revolts by the fledgling armies of Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika. The governments were kept in power but the problem remained.

In the West African country of Gabon, a French paratroop task force reinstated in power President Leon Mba after a brief military revolt.

In Dahomey, a military junta took over but subsequently turned the power over to civilians.

There were attempted assassinations and revolts by the military in Tunisia, Niger and Liberia.

Many governments decided to build the independent African military as the best possible formula of survival. Such are the armies of Kenya, Uganda President Ahmed Ben Bella leans heavily on Defence Minister Houari Boumedienne and the army and Morocco, where King Hassan II has appointed two generals to his cabinet.

Almost everywhere in Africa, young officers are clamoring for holding of troops, for action. Frontier disputes between African nations have sparked brief wars in which among them African armies tested their mettle.

The continent's armies vary from such comparative giants as Egypt's 130,000 - man force, backed by Soviet-made tanks and jet bombers, to Chad's 400 troops.

After Egypt, Algeria follows, with some 70,000 men, then Morocco with 45,000 and Ethiopia with 34,000.

Threats to Canadian Dairy Industry Seen After Trip Of Farmers to New Zealand

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND (CP) — Fears that New Zealand might invade the Canadian market with vast supplies of milk in tankers have been dismissed here as groundless. But milk treatment experts say widespread marketing of reconstituted milk, indistinguishable from fresh milk, is much more likely.

The possibility of threats to the Canadian dairy industry were raised by J. L. Gray, public relations manager of Canada's Fraser Valley (B.C.) Milk Producers' Association, during a tour of New Zealand.

Gray, who led a party of 20 Canadian farmers on a 12-day agricultural tour of New Zealand, said in an interview that the Canadian dairy industry could be completely eliminated if New Zealand were to develop a trade in sterile cold milk and ship it refrigerated in tankers.

New Zealand, with its high yield an acre, could export dairy products to compete with Canadian products at a cheaper price. The possibility of tanker transport of sterile cold milk was causing some concern in Canada, he said.

NEWS TO INDUSTRY

New Zealand dairy marketing circles know of no plans for such bulk shipment of liquid milk in tankers.

Recent demand for butter and cheese has been so keen that the industry has been stretched to capacity to maintain shipments. But such export promotion to new markets as has taken place has concentrated mainly on reconstituted milk.

In the far east and other areas where refrigeration is scarce, milk solids are sold first in powder form, and butterfat shipped in large cans, are reconstituted with water by a process which keeps the milk fresh indefinitely without cooling. Milk bottled this way will keep in full sun, even in the tropics, for months.

Reconstituted milk has met a ready demand in Hong Kong, Singapore and other big eastern cities and the demand is increasing.

Routine improvements in processing have been made and suggestions have been made by milk experts that the break-through in creating natural milk able to keep indefinitely will bring a revolution in dairy changes in milk-supply patterns.

Agriculture Minister R. E. Talboys of New Zealand has given suggested reconstituted milk will soon make winter milking obsolete.

NEED NOT WORRY

Commenting on the position, the New Zealand Herald says editorially:

"Canadian dairy farmers are worrying unnecessarily if they fear that New Zealand is likely to export milk in refrigerated tankers. Years ago New Zealand farmers embarked on a much more ambitious and economic venture—the production of skim milk and buttermilk in the powdered form which can be conveniently stored, transported and marketed.

"Today New Zealand is one of our fastest-growing industries. Because of the care being taken to ensure first-rate quality and uniformity, about 70,000 tons of powder are being sold annually at a premium over all others on world markets.

"Technologists could be on the threshold of dramatic developments in reconstituted milk — developments that will make the tanker notion seem quite fantastic. The ultimate product could take the meal table by storm, just as quick-frozen vegetables are doing.

"Canadian farmers can rest assured that New Zealand milk will not be arriving in tankers, but they need it in packages on the supermarket shelves."

High Cost of Education Paramount Ontario Problem In Next Decade Says Allan

TORONTO (CP) — The high cost of education will be Ontario's paramount problem during the next decade, says Provincial Treasurer James Allan.

As he presented the legislature with education estimates of $308,000,000 — not including $100,000,000 being made available as loans for university construction — Mr. Allan said school enrolments are increasing at all levels.

"Education will remain our greatest challenge and the financing of it will add materially to our ever-all need for revenue," he told the House.

Expenditures by the department of education are estimated at $444,800,000, up $62,600,000 over 1964-65. The increase represents 38 per cent of the total increase in the 1965-66 budget over the current year.

More than $63,000,000 has been budgeted for the newly-created department of university affairs. Last year about $46,000,000 was set aside in the department of education's estimates for university grants.

UNIVERSITY LOANS UP

In addition, capital construction loans to be made available through the Ontario Universities Capital Aid Corporation will be increased to $100,000,000 from $35,000,000 and all of the money will be spent in one year.

Mr. Allan said the operation of the Ontario Tax Foundation Plan, instituted last year, has resulted in increased costs of $972,800,000 over two years. The foundation plan regulates grants to elementary and secondary school boards.

One of the main reasons for the increased cost of the new grants formula was to provide substantial relief to home-owners and farmers from the burden of taxation on their property for school purposes, the treasurer said.

He pointed out that elementary and Secondary school enrolment has doubled in the last 20 years and probably will double again in the next 20. University and college enrolment has tripled and would triple again.

Meanwhile, demands were being made for higher standards of service and for education in the commercial and technical areas.

"We are thus faced with a future of rapidly increasing expenditures on education and at a rate well above that of the general level of our economy," Mr. Allan said.

"For the next decade at least, therefore, education will perforce be Ontario's No. 1 problem."

With education costs reaching such a high plateau, the minister said, it has become essential that full value is received for every dollar spent.

Ontario Road Expenditures Will Increase

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government's expenditures on roads and municipal roads will reach $438,000,000 in the coming fiscal year, an increase of $84,000,000 over the current year.

Provincial Treasurer Allan, giving the figures in his budget address to the legislature, announced that out of the total the municipalities and unincorporated townships will receive $104,200,000 for roads.

The totals for the fiscal year starting April 1 showed increases in the major categories. Of $329,400,000 to be spent by the highways department, $227,000,000 will be for new construction and $92,100,000 for maintenance. This year, the department is spending $201,900,000, divided between $215,000,000 for construction and $86,900,000 for maintenance.

Road subsidies to the local governments will increase to $104,200,000 from $97,900,000.

During 1964, Mr. Allan said, highway building—including reconstruction—amounted to 461 miles of paved highway.

START CANAL TUNNEL

Major new projects would include the start of work on tunnels under the Welland Canal at St. Catharines and Thorold and a start on the Kitchener-Waterloo Highway. The start of the Trans-Canada Highway would include the remaining section of the Ottawa Queensway, widening of Highway 7 west of Ottawa and reconstruction of Highway 17 north of Sault Ste. Marie.

Under the roads-to-resources program, the Lake Nipigon Savant Lake to Ignace would be completed and 25 miles added to other roads.

Construction on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway would include work in Metro Toronto, a new section between Gananoque and Brockville and widening of the remaining two-lane section east of Iroquois.

The department planned to push ahead with the approaches to a high-level bridge over the Bay of Quinte, realigning of Highway 11 from Orillia to Gravenhurst, the Atikokan highway and the Sudbury-Timmins Highway. Reconstruction would be carried out on Highway and the Sudbury-Mattawa, on Highway 105 and on a new section of Highway 614 south of Manitouwadge.

BOOM BUDGET — Ontario Provincial Treasurer James Allan brought down a boom budget Wednesday of $1,460,000,000. Forecast expenditures of almost $1,500,000,000 are the highest in the province's history. Mr. Allan reported Ontario in a strong financial position.

Another Healthy Expansion Forecast in Public, Private Investment in Budget Talk

TORONTO (CP) — Further rises in Ontario's economy and the living standards of its people were forecast by Provincial Treasurer Allan in his budget speech to the legislature.

"Another healthy expansion in private and public investment is scheduled," he said.

"Consumer demand for non-durables and services will continue to increase, while the market for durable goods will be supported by residential construction, the affluence of the expanding number of young adults and a strong replacement demand.

"Exports of raw and processed materials, as well as secondary manufactures, should remain buoyant."

Reviewing 1964, Mr. Allan said there was a rise of $1,400,000,000 in the gross provincial product to bring it to $18,500,000,000. There was a rise of 89,000 in the number of jobs, more than taking care of an expansion of 70,000 in the labor force.

In manufacturing, shipments went up by $1,062,000,000 in the province. This was $220,000,000 more than the increase for all the rest of Canada.

EXPORTS ON RISE

Dealing with trade, Mr. Allan said figures for the first seven months of 1964 showing Canadian exports rising faster than imports show the importance of the Ontario government's efforts to expand manufacturing exports and compete at home with imports.

"The appropriate conclusion," he said, "is surely that secondary manufacturers must continue to press their advantage in export markets, by increasing their sales efforts and improving their productivity and cost advantages. The Ontario government will expand its efforts to assist businesses to achieve these aims."

He said that in 1964 the economics and development department sent 16 sales missions abroad and in the coming year the number would be increased. Also, trade offices in the United States and overseas would step up activities to attract foreign investment in the province and provide opportunities for Ontario investment in foreign countries.

To Make Grants Due to Pension Funds' Deficits

TORONTO (CP)—The provincial government will make special payments this year into the public service superannuation fund, and the teachers superannuation fund, to help correct actuarial deficits.

Meeting with reporters before he brought down his budget in the legislature, Provincial Treasurer James Allan said the payment to the teachers' fund will be $2,088,000—equal to five per cent interest on $41,761,000 actuarial deficit.

The payment to the public service fund will be $4,130,000, also based on five per cent interest on the deficit of $82,618,-000.

The payments were recommended by George Spence, provincial auditor, in his annual report for 1963-64. He warned that special $1,000,000 contributions the province has been making to the funds in previous years were not sufficient to keep the actuarial deficits from increasing.

Mr. Allan said the payments were made in line with the provisions of the province's Pensions Benefits Act, which makes it mandatory for all private pension funds in Ontario to be properly funded. The act came into effect June 1.

Actuarial deficits represent the amount that the retirement fund would fall short in meeting their liabilities should the fund cease to exist at a given time.

IS UNDER PRESSURE

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage told reporters Wednesday he has been under some "pressure" to return to the federal political scene. But he said he considers it his duty to continue as Quebec premier "for a long time to come."

Province Wants Bigger Share Of Tax Fields

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will continue to press the federal government for a "more realistic" share of the major tax fields, Provincial Treasurer Allan said today in his budget address to the legislature.

Mr. Allan said larger shares of individual income tax and succession duties which the federal government made available this year under tax-sharing arrangements will be helpful but "will not be sufficient to meet our future revenue requirements."

Ontario would continue to press upon the federal-provincial committee studying the national tax structure and the federal government itself the need for a larger share and for "giving top priority to investment in human capital."

"At this crucial stage in our development," he said, "it is imperative that there be changes in the allocation of our revenue sources be made to ensure that all levels of government can fully and effectively carry out their respective responsibilities."

STUDYING PROGRAMS

Mr. Allan said the provincial government is studying the federal government's offer to provinces to contract out of certain programs. He said it raises questions as to the future role of such programs in the federal field.

"These programs have had a unifying effect and have been highly successful in developing common standards of services throughout Canada.

"There are few programs that could be replaced by equivalent tax abatements in the individual income tax field, and before adopting such a change as a permanent part of our arrangements we should be confident that it would be in the best interests of our province and nation."

Mr. Allan concluded by saying that recent federal-provincial negotiations have been marked by an increased spirit of co-operation and more respect and understanding for regional conditions, though many questions still remained.

"We can be optimistic," he said. "about our ability to find mutually acceptable solutions to our current problems."

Name Archivists For Medical Science Project

KINGSTON — The requirements of present day medical education make it essential that all Canadian medical society headical. In these units unexcelled treatment of patients is achieved. Student doctors learn and learn by participating as members of the team in patient care and research."

Every school of Medicine is confronted with a host of alternatives, Dr. E. H. Botterell, Dean of Medicine at Queen's University, told a medical society conference called to announce the appointment of architects and planners for the proposed $8,500,000 Medical Sciences building. The firm of architects, Marshall and Merrett, has been commissioned to develop plans for this building which will be the start of the new Health Sciences Centre at Queen's. It is expected that about four years will be required to complete plans and construct the building.

The building of the Health Sciences Centre was assured when Hon. John Robarts, Prime Minister of Ontario, last October, announced special grants for faculties of medicine and for hospitals affiliated with them.

The grants are both to increase the numbers of doctors graduated by Faculties of Medicine in Ontario and to provide more extensive scientific facilities for this education.

MARKET VACCINE

NEW YORK (AP)—a new one-shot vaccine against common measles—reported to be 99 per cent effective in children—was put on the market Wednesday. The U.S. public health service licensed the new live-virus vaccine Tuesday. It is the fifth measles vaccine to be put in doctor's hands since the first produce appeared in 1963.

Ontario Hospital Insurance Premiums to Stay Same for Next 3 Years Pledges Allan

TORONTO (CP)—Hospital insurance premiums in Ontario will remain at their present levels for another three years, Provincial Treasurer Allan announced in his budget.

The premiums were boosted by more than 50 per cent in Mr. Allan's last budget a year ago. Further increases, he said, will be obviated by continuance of a provincial $30,000,000-a-year subsidy to meet costs not met by premiums or by federal government contributions.

The premiums are $6.50 a month for a family and $3.25 for a single person.

The budget contains no provision for medical service insurance.

Mr. Allan told reporters he does not know when a medical plan might come into effect. If it should be in the fiscal year covered by the budget—starting April 1—early expenditures would be given approval in legislation covering the plan.

Mr. Allan announced that grants provided in the coming year through the Ontario Hospital Services Commission for hospital construction, renovation and expansion will be $15,600,000. This is an increase of $3,500,000 over the current year. The minister would also be $9,500,000 available in low-interest loans for hospital construction in areas where the need for accommodation is urgent.

In the field of mental health, Mr. Allan said, facilities for an additional 750 beds are in the planning and construction stage.

It was proposed to spend $2,300,000 on the year-old program of placing mental patients in private homes when they no longer need psychiatric treatment. This might help render it unnecessary to build more mental hospitals.

Total expenditure for the mental health branch will be $74,500,000, up $4,800,000 over this year.

The whole expenditure of the health department — including the $50,000,000 contribution to the hospital care plan—will be $166,918,000. The total last year was $163,438,000 this year.

In welfare, the government plans to spend $84,400,000, up by $12,300,000. No new programs were announced, and the increase was due mainly to growth of population.

Chamber of Commerce Approves Approach Revealed in Budget

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Chamber of Commerce Wednesday at sessions of Provincial Treasurer James Allan's $1,460,000,000 budget which call for increased government expenditures in education and industrial development.

D. H.-W. Bath, chairman of the chamber's committee on finance and taxation, said in a statement the chamber agrees with the approach shown in the budget regarding that economic growth is based on increased labor productivity.

However, he said, "the chamber believes that both the federal and Ontario governments should give careful consideration before encouraging industries to locate in areas which may not be competitively advantageous."

Mr. Bath commended the government for making more capital available for vocational training, job retraining and post-secondary education.

He said that while the chamber is pleased to see the government has recognized that undue taxation can be "self-defeating," it regrets that no effort has been made to follow the example of the United States in reducing taxes to maintain an adequate rate of growth.

Allan Not Sure If Budget Last

TORONTO (CP)—Provincial Treasurer James Allan declined to say Wednesday whether the record budget he presented to the legislature would be his last.

"I have made no final decision," he said when asked whether his future duties will mean his leaving the Ontario cabinet.

Say Grants Insufficient To Prevent Fees Increase

TORONTO (CP)—Many Ontario university professors said Wednesday education grants announced in the provincial government's budget are insufficient to prevent tuition fee increases.

Operating grants average seven to eight per cent lower than what the universities had requested.

"This is quite a blow to us," said S. G. Mullins, president of Laurentian University, Sudbury. "Our request for $1,031,-871 was cut by more than $81,000.

"We've got to find the money somewhere and will consider raising fees."

Provincial Treasurer James Allan, in bringing down his budget Wednesday, said operating grants follow recommendations of the select committee on university affairs which were based on expectations that there would be no fee increases next year.

ISN'T ENOUGH

Murray Ross, president of York University in Toronto, said that while the budget recognizes the need of physical expansion of the universities through increased capital loan allowance, it does not provide enough in operating grants for staff salaries, research and libraries. He said "it is a short-sighted budget" in those respects.

Queen's University President J. A. Corry said his university will have to operate on a deficit this year and said the grant to Queen's "falls seriously short of meeting the needs."

Davidson Dunton, president of Carleton University in Ottawa, said tuition increases can be required and that he is not happy with his grant which "is less than we need."

ASKED FOR MORE

J. G. Hagey, president of the University of Waterloo, said he asked for more money but will not have to raise fees next year.

J. A. Gibson, president of the new Brock University in St. Catharines, said he did not wish to comment on his grant because it was Brock's first year of operation "and we should be grateful for what we have received.

Claude Bissell, president of the University of Toronto, said the grants demonstrate that the government has a proper concept of the dimensions of university problems.

Other university presidents either declined comment or could not be reached for comment.

St. Pierre Today

Rum-Runners Are Gone, Tourists Now Embraced

By DAVE BUTLER

ST. PIERRE (CP) — During the Roaring Twenties, when prohibition turned the American speakeasy into an institution, a veritable river of liquor flowed to the United States from the French islands of St. Pierre-Miquelon.

Schooners took aboard 30,000 cases a day of good bootleg liquor delivered from Europe to these islands off the south coast of Newfoundland.

Bootleggers who spent a few days here waiting for shipments to be loaded went home telling of the old-country charm and easy pace of life in St. Pierre as well as the inexpensive food and drink.

Today it is the tourist who is going home with the same stories. And as the warm weather approaches, the people of France's last North American possession are looking forward to what they hope will be their best tourist season ever.

Anyone who has ever shelled out $12 for a bottle of imported champagne in a Canadian restaurant is likely to wince when told by a returning tourist he could do the same here, surrounded by the proper atmosphere, for about $4.

The greatest expense of a vacation in this town of 5,000, among people who have retained their European identity, is the price of a plane ticket. Air St. Pierre charges $72 return from Sydney, N.S., 185 miles away.

LOW-COST LODGINGS

The best hotel on the island of St. Pierre, the Ile de France, provides a pleasant room overlooking the old port and serves guests three meals a day with wine for a total of $8.50 a day. It's possible to live here for a week for $60, although the low prices for such French products as perfume, wine and rugs make it almost inevitable that the visitor will add to the cost by buying something to take home.

Although air travel is the fastest way of getting here, the most popular is by sea from Fortune, Nfld. In season about 60 tourists a day board the Schooner Spencer II for the three-hour, 20-mile voyage for only $15 return.

Visitors begin to feel the old-country charm the moment St. Pierre comes into view. Meeting the boat are representatives of every hotel in town who jostle each other in an effort to be first to pass their cards to tourists.

A taxi ride — most of the drivers are women—can be a harrowing, if inexpensive, experience. Rates are low and the only alternate transportation is by motor scooter which can be rented.

St. Pierre is laid out on the plan of many French coastal towns. Most streets spread out from a large public square that lies along the waterfront, named La Place de General de Gaulle, the square has only one permanent structure, the customs house where tourists are whisked through with a minimum of formality. Passports aren't needed and even a rent receipt is ample identification.

The price of partying—an institution among the people—is inexpensive almost to the point of being ridiculous. The best scotch sells for 30 cents if mixed in a drink, 25 cents on the rocks.

Apéritifs and fine brandies may sell for as high as 40 cents in some dining rooms but the usual price of any drink in most bars is 30 cents. Hundreds of varieties of beers from many countries sell for about 15 cents a pint.

A party of six can attend one of the nightly dances—usually dress affairs—and sip champagne for hours for about $10.

Summer temperatures run from the high 60s to the low 80s. Nights are cooler but the temperature seldom drops below 32 except when the North Atlantic fog descends for a day or two.

Little English is spoken but the French is easy to understand for someone with even a smattering of the language.

One way to get a rise out of a resident is to ask if he'd like the islands to become part of Canada.

"Perhaps Canada would like to become a province of France," said one.

Chinese Retaliation Unlikely

By JOHN CANTWELL

HONG KONG (AP)—Analysts in this British colony doubt that China, despite its belligerent warnings, will retaliate against United States air strikes on North Viet Nam.

Two reasons are cited by American, Commonwealth and Nationalist Chinese sources in this trading centre and international listening post on China's south flank:

1. China, despite its manpower and its recent explosion of an atomic device, does not have the resources to wage a major war with the U.S.

2. Peking believes such a war is unnecessary, as it considers that the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas are winning their fight to take over South Viet Nam.

A Chinese Nationalist expert said Wednesday the Mao Tse-tung Communist regime cannot financially afford a confrontation with the U.S.

"During the Korean War, this point was driven home very firmly to the Chinese Communists," he said. "Chinese Communists troops were told that each shell fired during this war was worth an ounce of gold. They were instructed not to fire unless they absolutely had to.

SET BACK PLANS

"The Korean War put Chinese Communist plans for development of resources back at least 10 years."

Commonwealth experts said they believe Peking is playing a game of poker with the United States. One remarked:

"To tell the truth, America seems to be doing the same thing.

"America seems to be attempting to see how far it can go without incurring Chinese retaliation."

American sources said they believe Peking's warnings were meant at least in part for the Russians. One explained:

"It seems that, as well as being a warning to the United States, they are also a warning to the Russians and the North Vietnamese that the Chinese Communists have not forfeited their stake in the area."

Little Smuggling At Halifax Docks

By ED WALTERS

HALIFAX (CP) — The heartbeat of commerce ripples daily through the Long Room of the customs house here.

The general office, or Long Room as it is known in all Canadian customs houses, is headquarters for a force of 113 men and two women whose main job it is to see that goods coming into Canada through this port are properly entered and duties and excise taxes paid.

J. F. Kenzer, collector of customs for the port of Halifax, says there is little attempted smuggling.

The customs men sometimes accomplish a fantastic amount of work, particularly in winter when ships of more than 80 lines call regularly here.

Each ship must enter through customs and have ready a manifest, or list, of all its cargo and stores. A manifest may run to 90 or 190 pages, Mr. Renner says.

Then the customs men must go through the ship checking items against the manifest and later compute the amount of duty payable.

Immigrant ships always mean a sudden rush of work. Passenger ships arrive frequently with immigrants to Canada from Mediterranean ports, sometimes up to 750 people in one load.

REVOLVER SEIZED

All their baggage and belongings must be checked and it is frequently necessary to find interpreters if questions have to be asked. Mr. Renner said local groups such as the YMCA or relatives of the immigrants usually act as interpreters.

It is aboard immigrant ships that some smuggling attempts may be uncovered, said Mr. Renner, but often it is a case of a foreigner not knowing Canadian law.

He told of one outright smuggling attempt when a revolver was discovered hidden inside a soldered tin that was itself inside another tin. The gun was seized.

The customs operate two stills so they can occasionally check the percentage of alcohol in imported liquors. Duty is paid on proof gallonage, or the amount of alcohol per gallon.

Cargoes of oil brought here in tankers for the four oil companies are checked by gaugers for specific gravity on which duty is payable.

Any suspected cases of outright and large-scale smuggling are turned over for investigation and search to the RCMP's preventive section, Mr. Renner said.

AN RCMP spokesman said the preventive section was unwilling to tell of its work because any disclosures might be of aid to potential smugglers.

TRAWLERS NOT EXEMPT

The spokesman admitted, however that "on occasion we would not say if money was made available to pay informers or whether they operated in Canada or overseas.

In addition to collecting duties, the customs issues entry and clearance papers to ships. Every vessel entering port must show clearance papers from its last port to be granted entry. Upon departure the ship is given clearance papers from Halifax.

Even trawlers bound for the fishing grounds must clear and enter through customs. Because the trawlers operate outside Canadian territorial waters they are allowed to carry bonded stores the same as passenger and cargo ships. This means the crew may buy aboard duty-free cigarettes and, in the case of European ships, beer and liquor.

The ships' bonded stores are sealed while in port and only enough left out for the masters' entertainment needs.

The goods examined by customs officers here include virtually everything possible to think of, from electronic parts for a satellite tracking station to Ceylonese tea.

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — For right-wing Tories, the ugliest four-letter word now is P.E.S.T., which stands for Pressure for Economic and Social Torytism.

P.E.S.T., new left-wing Tory ginger group, started life by offering party leader Sir Alec Douglas - Home advice that boiled down to one word: Go.

Michael Spicer, 22 - year - old Cambridge graduate and journalist who is founder of the research group, made the usual disclaimers of any antagonism toward Sir Alec, the former 14th Earl of Home.

But Sir Alec imparts a "one-class image" to the party and millions of people think of him as just "Tories, lined who knows nothing about their problems," said Spicer, an editorial assistant on The Statist, economic weekly.

"We want a fundamental change of heart at all levels ... that people of ability get to the top, and not just people who went to Eton, Harrow and Public schools," Spicer, himself a public school product, urged in his conference.

"It is not so much Sir Alec as the men behind him elected as leader that we are attacking."

P.E.S.T., which draws support from the young set and the universities, was the first Tory pressure group in Eight years. Hi-me's departure but there have been many unofficial suggestions that it disband.

The case of Sir Alec became a curiosity of British politics with the week, when he returned hardly a day, passing without comment, coming under embarrassing public questions, interviews, television and radio. Should Sir Alec be "let go" and "Sir Alec to go" (or pushed) by May" were typical questions.

Much of the speculation arose from a policy review undertaken by Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor government to choose a party system for the purpose of behind-the-scenes planning that brought Sir Alec and his predecessors to the top.

Warfare raged within Tory ranks as to whether the leadership of Sir Alec should or should be put to the test of a secret ballot by Conservative MPs. Many of the recommendations of the new system should come into play only after the present chief has retired.

They argued that for Home to stand again for the leadership, against a new contest, would implicitly admit that his original selection to succeed Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in October, 1963, was misconceived and did no. really reflect party wishes.

Randolph Churchill, the writer son of Winston, reported with his usual asperity after talking to the "front end of the party and borne" that a lot of poppycock was involved in all the speculation. The Conservative Party leadership over then-foreign secretary R. A. Butler.

Where politicians feel Butler was stabbed in the back and it may also be significant that he is the only one of P.E.S.T.'s stalwarts this fits in with his reputation as a developer of new blood and ideas in the party.

Observers saw P.E.S.T. as an important if unofficial rival of the Bow Group, another organization of young Conservatives who make studies and publish pamphlets but take no collective stand on political matters. Bow Group is the breeding ground for many Tory MPs.

Started at Cambridge, P.E.S.T. has spread to Oxford, London, Bristol, Durham and Southampton and additional branches are being organized. With a central committee in London, it emerged on the national scene by publishing a pamphlet entitled "Will the Tories Lose?"

P.E.S.T. members are worried about what they term the intellectual and social isolation of the Tory party, lack of coherence in progressive Tory thought, especially in economic and social matters, and the party's lack of contact with the colleges.

P.E.S.T. believes that unless there is a fundamental change of heart inside the party there now is a strong possibility of another defeat in the next election, greater than the one suffered last Oct. 15 at the hands of Labor.

The New York World's Fair shows this prediction of a future Electronics classroom. Columnist Jack Hutton says the same may appear in every home by 1995.

Teen-age Canada Electronic Calendar Will Be in Use in Next Decade

By JACK HUTTON

The scene is your own home, although you might not recognize it. We're looking ahead a few-decades. The electronic calendar reads: Feb. 16, 1965.

Dad looks up from his book. "How many hockey goals did that player, Bobby Hull, score in 1965," he asks. "Where's our film on early hockey history?"

As he rises from his chair mother speaks up. "Now dear, you know I was just about to look up the avian flight of the order Passeres. I saw a jay today."

The simple pressing of a button rolls back a door and we instantly see the living-room opens into a larger second room. The far wall contains the electronic calendar be used either for films to project incoming television programs.

At the side of the room is a giant electronic console, capable of recording, playing large or small records or switching into an untold number of radio channels.

Dad strides to the side of the room where several dozen cans are filed neatly on shelves beside labels. "Here we are," he says, lifting a roll of film from one can. "The Ancient History of the National Hockey League."

UNBELIEVABLE

Unbelievable? It isn't, you know. A growing number of experts forecast today that at least one room in every home of the future will be devoted to learning.

Not this week, thank you, I replied. But it is still a sobering thought. What other advances will be unknown gadgets in our homes before we're all much older?

The only way we can find out is by living a little longer. But just be prepared.

THE EARLY BIRD

Thinking about that summer job yet? I mention this only because the experts are predicting a rough time for students who wait till the last moment this spring before looking around.

"Is this the summer to try a "worthwhile" job, one that won't pay much money but will give you a look at a field you may want to try someday? Let me know if you have less you'd like to pass on to other readers.

Jaycee Driving Tips

Driving the freeway. . . . is different. Entering a freeway is very different from entering an ordinary highway or street. On a highway you do not stop and wait until the way is clear - rather you merge with the faster moving traffic as quickly as possible to the freeway traffic. Drivers already on right lane and accelerate as quickly as possible to the freeway speed. Drivers already on the freeway must also make allowance for those who are entering to see that merging is safe and smooth. Leaving a freeway at an interchange, watch for your signs and choose the correct exit. Be in the right-hand lane and signal your intention to turn off. Reduce your speed in the deceration lane on the right, not on the freeway lanes. On the exit ramps, safe speeds are usually indicated. If you miss your exit, do not stop. Make lain speed and leave at the next exit. Do not stop. Do not back up. Do not turn around.

Transport Cost Blocks Crowsnest Coal Boom

By ALLEN SACKMAN N

BLAIRMORE, Alta. (CP)— Coal companies in the Crowsnest Pass face a tantalizing situation.

Government freight-rate subsidies enable them to compete with other producers in the rapidly expanding Japanese market.

At the same time the subventions are limited to 800,000 long tons a year and this automatically becomes the effective limit on export production.

With the Japanese steel industry continuing to grow, and with it the demand for coal, the mine operators feel they could sell more, but only if they can somehow bring down the cost of moving the coal to Vancouver.

Officials of Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. and Coleman Collieries Ltd. say negotiations have started for a review of shipping rates.

They emphasize that a better deal would benefit not only the companies but the whole economy of the Crowsnest Pass.

F. J. Harquail, president of Coleman Collieries, says the firms are also looking at the "unitized train" system employed for hauling low-priced bulky materials in the United States.

Shippers buy specially designed rail cars and the railway supplies an engine, permitting fast integration of production and delivery.

Mr. Harquail says such an arrangement would reduce the turnaround time on a 700-mile trip from Coleman to Vancouver to seven days from 21. It would also substantially reduce shipping charges, now $5.13 a ton plus 80 cents dock charges.

"It is a new concept and we hope to make some progress with it to enable us to get a bigger share of the Japanese market."

Canadian mines provide only three per cent of the Japanese volatile coal needed by Japanese steel mills. This percentage will probably increase as the new blast furnaces opening this year raise Japanese requirements by 6,500,000 tons for the first six months of 1965.

"Everything is big over there and we're willing to lose our small share of the market we now have because of the small amount we can sell," Mr. Harquail says.

He estimates his company alone could sell 800,000 tons of coal a year to Japan if freight rates were low enough to make it possible to compete without subventions.

In the 12 months ended June 30, 1964, the firm shipped 368,497 tons, with Crow's Nest Pass selling more than 400,000 tons to Japan.

Another matter of concern is that subventions have not been granted on a three-year basis. This means no long-term contracts could be signed, legislation to set a subvention policy for a five-year period now is being considered.

This would provide added incentive for the mines to develop a part of the Japanese market until other uses of coal become practical.

Meanwhile, the Japanese sales have given the companies their brightest outlook since the railways forsook coal for diesel power more than a decade ago.

Coleman Collieries, for example, produced 725,000 tons in the 12 months up to last June, the most since 1953 when 725,000 tons were turned out.

Revenue, too, is rising. In 1953 it was $4,538,790, it dropped to a low of $1,364,000 in 1958. Last year it hit an estimated $3,000,000.

Both Coleman and Crow's Nest have undertaken major modernization programs. Coleman has spent $3,000,000 and Crow's Nest $2,000,000. Labor-saving equipment has enabled Coleman to improve efficiency 60 per cent, says Mr. Harquail.

An example is specially-designed trucks to haul coal from the company's strip mine to the mine proper in Coleman. With a capacity of 42 tons each, the trucks have cut hauling costs to 50 cents a ton from 90. Conventional trucks have a capacity of 20 tons.

While the Japanese market is of immediate concern, the operators are also looking to development of thermal electric power as a future market. Its two could in time mean improved profits—now limited to 7½ per cent by federal tax freight-rate subsidies—and an increase in the work force, now about 900 men.

Toronto's Coolest Club Inspired by a Basement

By DAN BJARNASON

TORONTO (CP) — Rompin' Ronnie Hawkins, popular rock 'n' roll singer, was decorating his recreation room at home in the style of a Viking hangout when he got an idea.

"Why not do a night club that way too?"

The result is the Hawk's Nest, a club for the 20-and-under crowd where soft drinks are the strongest beverage served. Located on Yonge Street among some of Toronto's liveliest downtown night spots, the teen club is decked out as a huge Viking hall.

It has battle axes, paintings of Viking warriors and a Viking ship on polar bear furs nailed with wooden spikes to the rock - like walls, shields, swords and rough-hewn tables and chairs.

The idea is to offer entertainment in an adult atmosphere at prices teen-agers can afford. Membership cards are $1 and the admission charge is $1.50.

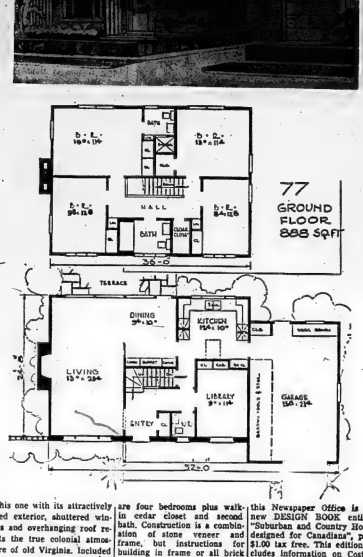
"We'll have someone on the door at all times," says Rob Scribner, the club's promotion manager. "We insist on neat dress and adult behavior. The doorman will turn away anyone who doesn't look presentable."

OPEN TWO DAYS

The club, open only Friday and Saturday nights, presents a different band each week.

Since the club opened early this year, operators estimate, it has catered to 500 to 600 customers a night.

Hawkins, who says he spent $40,000 converting a bowling alley into his Viking palace, performs regularly at a night club next door but plans to appear at the Hawk's Nest occasionally.



"The project is an opportunity for us to do something for today's teen-agers who dress well, act friendly and enjoy meeting new friends while having a good time," he says.

A lunch counter decked out as a Viking ship dispenses soft drinks at 15 and 25 cents and sandwiches for 35 to 50 cents. The band plays from a drawbridge.

Washrooms, as might be expected, are labelled Hawks and Chicks.

Upstairs there are four bedrooms plus walk-in cedar closet and second bath. Construction is a combination of stone veneer and frame, but instructions for building in frame or all brick are supplied. Garage could easily be enlarged if so desired.

P.U.C. Council Discuss Fire Building Ownership

CAMPBELLFORD — The regular meeting of Campbellford P.U.C. was held Tuesday evening. Chairman W.G. Vandervaeter presided. Commissioners H. MacArthur and E. Steele were present also Mayor Tanner. Commissioner J.-O. Benor was absent until 9.30 p.m.

Minutes of a special meeting were read in which a motion by Mayor Tanner and Commissioner Steele had been made to the effect that the P.U.C. get legal advice as to ownership of the building occupied by Campbellford Fire Department also that Council contact the town solicitor on the same issue, also that Campbellford Council and Seymour Township Council be invited to attend the February meeting.

The dispute which has arisen over the past few months occurred over the P.U.C. storing equipment in the firemen's recreation part of the fire hall.

P.U.C. clerk read a letter from their solicitor outlining his views which in essence had little or no effect to calm the troubled waters. As explained by town clerk R.M. Ibey, later in the meeting, the land had been given to the town, and known as Lot 7, along with other lots on what at that time was known as Mill St. by a Mr. Cockburn. Two lots 8 and 9 which Mr. Cockburn held were later picked up by the town on tax sale.

More

USED SALVAGE

The building in question was built by the P.U.C. out of bricks and timber salvaged from two old houses purchased by the commission and torn down to make a parking lot. Thus the corporation owned the land and provided the material; the P.U.C. doing the work in erecting the building. The building is attached to the pumping station and was used for storage by the P.U.C. before taken over by the fire department.

F. M. Ruthrford was present and explained that during the period he was chairman of Fire, Water and Light Commission of council he had researched the P.U.C. in regard to a switch in location of the fire truck which was housed in the pumping station.

He suggested that the P.U.C. take this location and in turn let the fire department have the other building in question. The deal was carried out, considerable improvements were made, such as new wiring, new ceiling, painting, heating, etc. Mr. Rutherford said he believed there was no one on the present P.U.C. or town council who knew the circumstances except himself, and clerk E. M. Ibey. He termed the whole issue a tempest in a teapot, stating that an action leading to upset the morale of a small town fire department could result in disaster, as the intention was to have a recreation quarter so that some of the firemen would be on hand as much of the time.

This, he stated, was very essential and had proven on many occasions that fire calls were responded to almost immediately when firemen had a room which they could use.

Reeve A. Brown, chairman of fire, water and light commission in town council was present with committee members, Councillors Hughes, Torrance and Mabee. Representing Seymour Township were Councillors Maurice Brunton and Carlton Rowe.

Reeve Brown addressed the P.U.C. asked them to remove the stored equipment claiming the P.U.C. had taken the initiative in storing the equipment without discussing it with the fire department.

He felt the action of the P.U.C. in going to the expense of legal advice was premature.

Chairman Vandewater explained that the manager placed the large water pump and hose along with other equipment in the building because of its delicate nature. Reeve Brown did not agree that a large pump motor and base was delicate equipment.

Manager James McMullen said it would probably be two months before the pump would be installed in the new pumping station.

WILL MOVE EQUIPMENT

A motion was passed directing the equipment be taken out of the present location within 14 days.

Arriving late at the meeting Commissioner J. O. Benor moved for the previous motion to be rescinded. The motion was allowed but was turned down 3-2. Negative votes were cast by Steele, Vanderwater and Tanner. Affirmative votes being registered by McArthur and Benor.

Commissioner Benor said he would resign and left the meeting.

Manager James McMullen asked that a letter be sent to town council advising that it would be entirely responsible for any frozen hydrants or damage if council continued to use the hydrants to flood outside rinks.

An account totalling $207 for digging and work relative to a water leak at Colin Collins Jewellery store and paid by Mr. Collins was discussed. The commission decided to have their solicitor take the matter up with Mr. Collins and offer settlement of $90. Manager McMullen felt this was a matter for legal decision.

Manager McMullen advised the commission that Mr. Farmer, Mr. Featherstone and other representatives of the Department of Transport along with Hydro representatives would be in Campbellford, Friday, February 12th to discuss water levels and controls relative to the town power plant.

Railway a Last Link For Divided Berlin

By HANNS NEUERBOURG

BERLIN (AP)—Your train is nearly empty as it speeds through the dark. You rush through deserted stations where no passenger has waited in years. You hurry past grey-uniformed soldiers ready to fire their tommy - guns at anything suspicious moving in the tunnel.

You are riding the S - bahn, Berlin's city railway and one of the last links connecting the divided former capital. Using the S-bahn, you can cross behind the Berlin wall and back again into Western sectors without having to pass any red controls. If you have a pass you can get out in East Berlin. The 20 - pfennig (five cents) underground ride from Anhalter Bahnof, American sector, to Gesundbrunnen, French sector, cuts across a bulge-shaped part of East Berlin. Four of the stations en route have been closed to make sure that no refugee gets aboard during a possible emergency stop.

The West - East - West train halts only once in the East. That stop is Friedrichstrasse, once the heart of one of Europe's largest entertainment districts. Passengers who haven't a Communist permit or a foreign passport cannot leave the underground station.

A few minutes later, the S-bahn—short for stadtbahn (city railroad)—is in the West again. REDS RUN IT

The S-bahn, whether in East or in West Berlin, is under Communist control, and Communist - paid officials. This is the result of agreements drawn up when Berlin came under four - power occupation rule after the war.

The S-bahn network, some underground but mostly elevated, is almost as large as the Paris Metro. In West Berlin alone, its facilities, including 75 stations, occupy an area totalling more than 2,000 acres.

In recent decades of its almost 100 years' history, it has never made money.

Up to Aug. 13, 1961—the date when the Berlin wall ended free movement between both parts of the city—an average half-million Berliners crossed every day between East and West. The revenue from West Berliner users was estimated to total $500,000 a month. This was reported almost equal to the sum paid to the more than 5,000 West Berliners employed by the railway.

When the wall went up, the anti - Communist trade unions called on West Berliners to retaliate by boycotting the Communist S-bahn. Pickets were posted at stations and people who continued to use the S-bahn were accused of being pro-Communist.

The bulk of the commuters shifted to the modern, Western-operated U-bahn (underground) and to swiftly-installed bus lines — all of them costing at least double the cheap S-bahn fare.

S-bahn revenues are believed at much less than they were before the wall was built, making the S-bahn a costly drain.

Kosygin Flies To North Korea From Peking

TOKYO (AP) — Soviet Premier Kosygin flew to North Korea today from Peking after talking with China's Mao Tse-tung. It was their first meeting since Kosygin became premier.

A New China news agency broadcast said they met at a reception Wednesday night which was attended by Premier Chou En-lai, president Liu Shao-chi, Foreign Minister Chen Yi and other top officials.

No details of their discussion were disclosed.

Kosygin stopped overnight in Peking en route home from a four - day visit to North Viet Nam. While in Hanoi, he promised the North Vietnamese Soviet military aid.

North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung greeted Kosygin on his arrival at Pyongyang, capital of North Korea.

There was no indication how long he would stay in Pyongyang, 90 miles north of the 1953 Korean cease-fire line.

The visit to North Korea was interpreted by some observers in Moscow as an attempt to influence another of China's Far Eastern allies in the Moscow-Peking ideological dispute.

The Soviet Union and North Korea signed a treaty of friendship and mutual assistance in 1961. But the Pyongyang regime supported China in its criticism of the Soviet leadership.

Non-Communist observers in Moscow doubted that Kosygin would have much success in Pyongyang. The North Koreans have been even more loyal followers of Peking in recent years than the North Vietnamese.

Cleanliness Next To Homeliness on Red Research Ship

By ED WALTERS

HALIFAX (CP) — Spotless tidiness and colorful reminders of home are the two most noticeable things aboard the So viet navy's 6,000 - ton oceanographic ship Fityus.

The ship visited Halifax this winter in company with the 2,100-ton oceanographic vessel Nicholai Zuhov. It was Fityus's second visit to this port in 18 months.

Not even a cigarette butt marred the pine-planked main and boat decks and every rope, derrick wing and wire topping lift was belayed and coiled on its proper cleat.

In cabins, passageways and mess - rooms below deck the antiseptic look prevailed. Five of the ship's 20 laboratories visited by reporters were surgically clean.

Gay p a t t e r n, photographs, signs and carpeting cancelled out what otherwise would have been a clinical atmosphere in the crew's living, recreational and eating quarters.

PHOTOS OF LENNIN

In the cabin occupied by the ship's two bootswains both pictures had been framed and hung head - revealed the universal love of sailors for two things—ships and women. Beside a photograph of an East German sailing ship was one of a young woman wrestling on a beach, her skirt "blowing around her thighs. The senior bootswain said it was his brother-in-law's sister.

Posters in passageways depicting an exhibition were done in striking reds, blues and yellows. Signs in Russian were painted in bright red on cream bulkheads.

In evidence throughout the ship were larger-than-life photographs of Lenin, Brehmev and Walter Ulbricht, leader of East Germany where the Polyus was built.

Capt. Georgy Bochkovsky, 38, said about 20 per cent of his 60-man crew are members of the Communist party.

The captain and his five officers are naval personnel, the rest are li made up of merchant seamen. Also on board are 40 scientists, some from the Soviet Academy of Sciences in Moscow.

Capt. Bochkovsy is a trained hydrographer and said he had never served in a fighting ship.

Divided among the crews of the two ships are 28 women, some of whom are technical engineers, the rest cooks and mess-girls.

NOTHING HIDDEN

The first mate, obviously a professional seaman, proudly showed reporters around the ship and ended the tour with the hope, as expressed by the interpreter, that the Canadian reporters "would not curse us for coming here."

During a press conference earlier in the officer's dining saloon Capt. Bochovsky said information collected by Soviet oceanographic ships was channelled into Moscow where it is available upon request to Western scientists.

Lt. - Col. Eugen Quartalnov, scientific leader of the two ships, said their work was a continuation of studies started by the Soviet Hydrographic Service in the International Geophysical Year, 1957.

Polyus, which in Russian for Pole Star, left Kalingrad in November. She visited St. John's, Nfld., then continued work along the northern edge of the Gulf Stream, studying its contents, salinity, bottom and atmospheric interchange with water.

Ottawa Woman in Himalayas Snow-bound Geologists Held Their Own Congress

By BRENDA LARGE

The Ottawa geologist, who works with the federal department of mines and technical surveys, wasn't able to get to the congress when she and 99 other geologists from many countries were snowbound in remote Kashmir while on a field expedition.

Kashmir, the tiny, mountainous state which has been the object of a long and bitter dispute between India and Pakistan, is a geologist's dream land, Dr. Rimsaite says.

"A valley set high in the Himalaya Mountains, it has rock formations dating from the pre-Cambrian age right up to the present."

All the geologists who signed up for the field excursion to see the formations were warned that it could be cancelled at any time if a heavy snowfall made both travel and rock - sighting impossible.

"No one seemed to worry about the consequences if the snow came while we were up there — but that's exactly what happened."

The field trip, organized to precede the main congress at New Delhi, was supposed to last six days. Instead, it lasted 16.

"Everything was fine for the first two days we were there. We flew in over the mountains and then did a lot of climbing. On the third day, the snow started to fall."

CAUGHT BY STORM

The disappointed geologists retired to their hotel in Srinagar, the capital, a city of about 200,000, to await the end of the blizzard.

"It was the heaviest and earliest snowstorm they'd had in Kashmir for 50 years. Cars and trucks froze in the streets, making movement impossible.

"Of course the airport was snowed in and later, when the snow ended, a thick fog hanging over the high mountain passes made air travel extremely dangerous."

Meanwhile, back in New Delhi, congress officials began to worry about the 90 stranded scientists.

"Phone communications were wiped out for a couple of days, so we had to send telegrams back and forth, but soon we realized that we weren't going to make it to New Delhi in time for the congress."

The group set to work organizing their own meeting. Many members of the Kashmir expedition were specialists with scientific papers to deliver at the main congress. They did the next best thing, delivering them in Srinigar.

"It really turned out to be more interesting than the main program might have been. Since there were only 90 of us, compared to several hundred at the main meeting, we were able to spend more time in discussion."

SANG NATIONAL SONGS

Although they could not leave Kashmir, the geologists suffered no physical privations. They lived and held their meetings in acomfortable hotel.

There were about 15 women in the party, including several other geologists like Dr. Rimsaite and the wives of geologists.

The party of scientists entertained themselves in the evenings by singing songs of their countries—over 20 different countries were represented, including the Soviet Union. "We got to know each other very well in those 16 days."

On the outside, attempts went on to get them out of Kashmir. Canada's high commissioner in India, Roland Michener, and members of the United Nations mission in India were consulted. At one point, it was suggested that Indian army troops be dispatched to bring the international group out.

"Finally, a small group decided to drive out by car through the high mountain passes, although the danger from landslides was great. When they passed through successfully, the rest of the group followed."

Dr. Rimsaite confessed that she and most of the other geologists were secretly delighted to have to leave Kashmir by car, rather than by plane.

"It gave us a terrific chance to see the rock formations in the passes at close quarters."

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)— Some of the world's best known impressionist paintings were sold at auction Tuesday night with a New York lawyer acquiring $908,000 for an undisclosed client.

Top price of $250,000 was brought by Van Gogh's The Sower. It was bid by the lawyer, Stephen C. Oresman, who would not identify the purchaser.

Oresman also bid $190,000 for Monet's Juan - les - Pins, and $130,000 for Renoir's Enfant en Blei.

Indian Govt. Readies Charge-Sheet for Communists

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — The Indian government is busy preparing an elaborate "charge - sheet" against the pro-Chinese wing of the Communist party of India.

It will be presented as a parliamentary white paper in mid-February, say reliable sources. Home Minister Gulzarilal Nanda said at the time of charge of internal security, is said, be giving top priority to the subject.

More than 300 members of the party's pro-Peking or left faction have been so far arrested and jailed in various parts of India following a charge by Nanda that they had been planning an armed insurrection.

Some Reds have gone underground and the police have launched a vigorous hunt for them. It is expected that by the time the Indian Parliament convenes for its budget session in the third week of February more than 1,200 will be behind bars.

The government's action against the Communists has created a country-wide controversy.

By and large, the firm manner in which nearly two moves has been lauded by Indians. Many non - Communist opposition leaders have met the prime minister and expressed their approval.

But even those who have supported the roundup are asking why the government should have taken nearly two years to put down the pro-Chinese wing of the Communist party. It has been known that this faction has been indulging in hostile activities since the Chinese invasion of India in 1962.

CHARGE SUPPRESSION

Some leading columnists, including the editor of the authoritative New Delhi Hindustan Times, have charged the government with suppressing vital information about the subversive activities of the Chinese and their agents in India.

The government is also being criticized for what some newspapers and opposition leaders described as its "softness" towards the pro-Moscow or right section of the Indian Communist party. They argue that the government's faith in the bona fides of the right Communists is "misplaced, unrealistic and harmful to the true interests of the nation."

The Freedom party and the Jana Sangh, both right-wing groups, have demanded a ban on all Communist activity in the country.

On the other hand, not all non-Communist and anti-Communist Indians appear to support the government's view that the pro-Peking wing poses a serious threat to the country's security. One leading newspaper said the minister's reasons for the roundup were insufficient, if not unconvincing."

A group of New Delhi lawyers has expressed disquiet over the arrests on the ground that the action might abridge civil rights.

Barometer for Middle Age

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Here are some more ways to tell whether you are middle-aged:

The most fun you have all day is taking off your shoes when you come home from work.

You don't like to see movies that have sad endings.

The dentist tells you that seeing him twice a year isn't enough.

You don't have to let out your belt when you eat, but you feel more comfortable if you do.

Everytime you buy anything in a men's store you give the salesman a long lecture on how much more expensive things now are than they used to be.

The girls in the office quit giving you a kiss on your birthday.

You spend more time visiting sick friends in the hospital and going to funerals.

The list of things you shouldn't eat is longer than the list of things left for you to eat.

You're the only one in your family who can remember what Mary Pickford looked like as a girl.

The days seem longer but the years go by on roller skates.

When you break a shoelace, instead of throwing it away you tie it together and go on using it.

The fellows around the office want to confide in you but to have newer jokes than you do.

You begin to notice how much older everybody else looks.

It used to take you 20 minutes to get a haircut. Now you can get one in 10.

You get just as tired worked when you have to bend down to tune the television set.

If you read a good book review, you see no reason for reading the book.

You have to give up chewing gum as you find it sticks to your dentures.

14,000 Troops Engage in 'Alaskan War'

FORT GREELY, Alaska (AP) — Under the coldest battle zero, more than 14,000 U.S. and Canadian troops are manoeuvring across the vast Alaska interior in a rugged mock war.

Exercise Polar Strike, largest manoeuvres ever held in Alaska, is designed to test men and equipment under arctic battle conditions. This time only the bullets are make-believe.

Bitter winds Tuesday accompanied the cold. Vehicles froze, and ice fog delayed planes, carrying rations and supplies.

The mercury has been down around 40 to 50 degrees below zero but rose to -30 as soldiers set up their tents in the open. Part of the time they ate frozen food.

The manoeuvres, scheduled to end Feb. 17, are a combination of air assaults, guerrilla exercises by regular forces, overland pushes, parachute drops and psychological warfare.

Troops are split into aggressor and friendly forces, with the former composed mainly of U.S soldiers from Fort Richardson, Alaska, and the 2nd Battalion of the Canadian Regiment, London, Ont. Men from the U.S. 4th infantry division at Fort Lewis, Wash., and other units are assigned the defence role.

One U.S. paratrooper was killed last week when his thread lines became entangled in a tree during a jump. There have been 26 frostbite cases and entries from influenza, burns and accidents.

Hawks Thump Wings ★ ★ ★

Leafs Hand Habs 5th Straight Loss

★ ★ ★ Extend Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's said in professional sport that when a team's star is sidelined the lesser lights make a greater effort to fill the gap.

Chicago Black Hawks proved the point Wednesday night as they opened up a four - point margin in first place in the National Hockey League by downing Detroit Red Wings 5-2.

At the same time, Toronto Maple Leafs walloped Montreal Canadiens 6-2 to move into a second - place tie with Montreal in a game highlighted by a brawl in the second period.

The loss was Montreal's fifth straight, a string that has dropped them from first place to within three points on fourth place, the last playoff spot now held by the Wings. The string is the longest the Habitants have suffered in 15 years.

Kenny Wharram slapped in two goals while Glen Hall held them out for the Hawks as the league leaders played without scoring leader Bobby Hull, out with a bad knee.

The Hawks were ahead within a half minute of the start on a goal by Phil Esposito and Wharram connected for his first tally half-way through the period.

MAKI GETS 18TH

The Hawks added three more in the second frame. Chico Maki got his 18th and second of the night.

Bruce McGregor spoiled Hall's shutout bid early in the third period and Ron Murphy banged in the Wings' second goal near the end of the game.

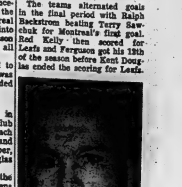
The Leafs already had a 3-0 lead over Canadiens with slightly more than five minutes gone in the middle period when the major brawl erupted. At one time there were 14 Canadiens on the ice and 10 Leafs —a good sign for NHL coffers as the Canadiens and four Leafs are subject to $25 fines for coming off their bench to join the fracas.

Leafs were storming around the Montreal net when referee Bill Friday signalled a delayed penalty to John Ferguson of Canadiens for hooking Frank Mahovlich.

Mahovlich lit the fuse when he propped Canadiens defenseman Terry Harper against the boards behind the Montreal net. Ted Harris plowed into Mahovlich to help Ferguson out then fights broke out all around.

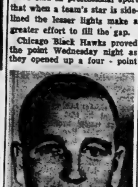
Eventually fatigue seemed to overtake the fighters, order was restored and penalties handed out.

CAKED PENALTIES



Friday called 31 minutes in penalties against each club with Harris and Mahovlich each getting a minor, major and misconduct. Ferguson, Harper, Pete Smemkowski and Douglas each got a minor penalty.

When it came to hockey, the Leafs were all over Canadiens and outshot Montreal 37-26.



Ron Ellis, one of the outstanding rookies of the season, led the Leafs with two goals within 26 seconds of the second period and both on assists from Mahovlich.

The two tallies followed a first - period effort by Bob Pulford. Dave Keon put the Leafs ahead 4-0 before the second period ended.

The teams alternated goals in the final period with Ralph Backstrom beating Terry Sawchuk for Montreal's fifty goal. Red Kelly then scored for Leafs and Ferguson got his 13th of the season before Kent Douglas ended the scoring for Leafs.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Camille Henry, all 150 pounds of him, is the chicken bone in the meat-and-muscle stockpot at the Chicago Black Hawks.

The little guy who wouldn't look much out-of-place size-wise in a novice team has the happy faculty of being able to score goals which should fit quite nicely into the Hawks' scheme of things.

Punch Imlach, the ebullient coach of the Toronto Maple Leafs, says the Rangers traded away a 21-goal man—and got four goals in return. "They also weakened their power play and broke up their biggest scoring line."

Dink (Montreal Star) Carroll opines that Henry, now 32, has a chronic back weakness and risks permanent injury by continuing to play, which may have been a factor in the Rangers' decision to trade him.

But there's as much sentiment in professional hockey as there was in the old western gunfights—and to other players in the circuit Henry is just another player! —Fair game at any time of the season.

"He is just that to me—and I'm a friend of his," Bill Gadsby of the Red Wings is quoted as saying. "He knows his condition and if he goes out on the ice then he can expect the same treatment as anyone else."

"They don't call him 'The Eel' for nothing," says Gadsby. "If I eased up on him he'd have the puck between my skates and he'd be around me just like that. Then if he scored he'd give me one of those 'Where-were-you-Buster' looks that make a defenceman burn inside."

"Once in Detroit," Gadsby recalled, "I gave Camille a push—just, with my hand—and down he went. I thought he was dead. But he came back before the end of the game. No sir. He gets the same treatment as the others."

But Henry doesn't let the possibility of permanent injury worry him. He once said: "Can you tell me any business where the hours and the pay are better? Am I scared? Most of us are scared a little. I know I am at times, but if you start thinking about it you can't play."

"You get cautious about what might happen to you," Henry is quoted as saying, "and you've had it. I've still got a few things to do."

And one of them probably is bolstering the Henry bank account. Camille is reported to be pulling down in the neighborhood of $18,000 and if the Black Hawks finish in the top brackets Camille should be depositing healthy chunks of bonus money later on.

As we noted, Henry has now joined the biggest meat-and-muscles gang in the NHL. At least he won't have to dodge such chunks as Elmer Vasko and Bobby Hull. "What's the big guys hit me for? I'm small. It hurt and it does. I weight 150 but if I let that bother me I would never have got started in this business. I don't look for trouble, I try to hold my own."

The little guy, however, has taken his share of the rugged punishment.

He helps score goals with the aid of a piece of bone from one of his legs. A piece of shinbone once was removed and grafted to his right wrist. The story goes that a surgeon borrowed a bone from someone else's back and substituted it for a broken one in his arm.

Henry never did find out who the generous donor was. He wishes he did because he would like to thank him.

"I was in the hospital waiting to have the arm fixed up about four years ago," he recalls. "When the doctor told me, 'I'm operating on another patient now. I'll have to take a bone out of his back. I'll just transplant it in your arm and it will save using a piece from your leg'."

Crothers Out For Record

NEW YORK (AP)—Canada's Bill Crothers may warm up with a record.

The 24 - year - old Markham, ont., pharmacist, who has said he'll try for an indoor record of one minute, 49 seconds in the half-mile at tonight's New York Athletic Club track meet, also is scheduled to compete against Peter Snell of New Zealand at Los Angeles Saturday.

Snell, the Olympic gold medallist at 800 and 1,500 metres, is making just the one stop in the United States this winter, said his projected meeting with Crothers at 1,000 yards looms as one of the highlights of the indoor track season.

But Crothers may be forced to a record in the NYAC half-mile by Tommy Farrell of New York, who pushed him to an excellent 1:09.3 in the 600 at Boston two weeks ago, just 1-10th of a second off the record.

Should Crothers be forced to the record, it's just one of several world marks that could be established by an indoor field assembled for this 97th NYAC games, this country's oldest indoor meet.

Included are 14 Olympians from eight countries, seven gold medallists and nine holders of world records.

Good Chance for World Hockey Here

Russian Opinion

By JOE NEEST

MOSCOW (CP) — Canada stands a good chance of being selected to play host to the 1967 world hockey championships, says Roman Kiselev, Russia's representative on the Council of the international Ice Hockey Federation.

Kiselev commented in an interview on the decision of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to bid for the world championships as a Canadian centennial project.

"I think Canada would stand a good chance because the championships have never been held in Canada," said Kiselev, deputy chief of the international department of Russia's central sports organization.

He declined to state specifically that Russia will support Canada's application after it is presented to the federation during the world championships in Finland next month. The Soviet position will have to be worked out, he stated.

ONLY A MONTH

Asked to comment on the CAHA's proposal to accommodate only the A round of the championships in Canada, with the B being held in Europe, Kiselev said the Canadian association must have good reasons for suggesting such a division.

"Evidently they would like to see the best in Canada."

Kiselev appeared less than enthusiastic about the idea of a new five-nation international league which the CAHA has decided to propose to the world federation. The league would comprise teams from Canada, the United States, Sweden, Czechoslovakia and Russia.

He thought the new league would be "a bit much" coming on top of the world championships and European championships. However the Canadian proposal merited thorough discussion and consideration.

Kiselev said in reply to a question that the Russian national team is "very anxious" to test its skills against a National Hockey League team. However, such a game or games would have to be arranged through the international federation, the CAHA and the NHL.

White Rink Faltered

By CLAUDE D. THE

COBOURG — Despite a large contingent of rooters from the Quinte District, the rink of Bill Henderson, Al McCullam, Rod Benn with Mac White as skip playing in the Ontario finals for the British Consols silverware and against seven of the best rinks in the province, would not come up with the best effort and dropped both games in the first day.

There are only five more draws and it will be necessary to win them all to have a chance for the big prize, Saskatoon in March to play in the Dominion.

John Ross of Parkway Club, Toronto, was the only rink to win two games, the other six clubs having a one and one record.

In the first game, White met Ross of Parkway and they got off on the wrong foot by having a three-ender scored against them. They recovered well in the second end to even the count but Ross would not be denied and in the course of game scored two more threeenders. At the end of 10 ends the Toronto rink was on top 8-4 and the Quinte rink called it day.

In the second game the rink ran up against Ray Grant of Unionville and for seven ends White was on top but a couple of misses put the rink in the hole and Grant scored three deuces to put the game beyond reach of the Quinte foes.

The rink generally curled well enough to win the ordinary game but faltered slightly in the pinch. The rink was by no means disgraced and belonged in the company they were playing with but picked a couple of favorites to ruin it all in the first two draws. Bob Mann of Hanover, winner of the title last year will still be tough to beat in the games to come despite his loss in the first draw.

Peewees Edge Kingston; Bantams Beaten

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Rollins peewees edged Kingston 5-5 in a see-saw overtime thriller while the Oddfellows bantams suffered a 6-1 thumping at the hands of their Kingston counterparts at the OMHA "A" playdowns got under way here last night.

Games were the first in two of- three affairs with return fixtures slated for Kingston on February 20. Belleville won the flip for a third peewee game and Kingston for a third bantam encounter, if they are necessary.

Similar series between the two centre's midget and juvenile teams are scheduled to start here next Wednesday night.

In the peewee game, Rollins ran hot and cold but finished with a bang to snatch the well-earned victory. It was 1-1 after one period and the home squad improved to 4-2 after while moving ahead 4-2 after two more.

Kingston netted the only two goals of the third period, the final one coming with 21 seconds left in regulation time and the Kingston goalie on the bench in favor of a sixth attacker. Bill Muchmore was the scorer, sinking his low shot through a maze of players to send it into a ten-minute overtime tied 4-4.

Ron Blanchard cut through centre to give Kingston a 5-4 lead after only 50 seconds of overtime play.

Rollins responded to the challenge however and at 2.26, Rick Meagher's shot fooled the visiting goalie to make it 5-5. Less than a minute later, John Mulvihill combined with Sickle to give Belleville the victory. His shot deflected in off a Kingston player's skate.

The teams went all out over the remainder and Kingston pulled their goalie for a sixth attacker with 28 seconds left. This time Rollins protected their one-goal margin.

In the first period, Terry Meagher scored on three-man corner pass play with Fred Sickels and Mulvihill. Muchmore's first goal tied it. Joey Fowler stole the puck to put the visitors ahead early in the second but that was brief.

Mario Venutti bagged a pair of goals, Rick Adamson helping on one. Cliff Janitsch and Rick Meagher on the other, to give Rollins a 3-2 lead. The Meagher brothers upped the lead, Rick sinking Terry's return pass on a pretty play. Then came the all-out Kingston attack in the third.

Referees Gord Gregory and Fred McMillan called just six minor penalties, three to each team.

Goalies on both sides missed a couple of easy shots but on other occasions pulled off key saves, especially Paul Muldoon in the winners' net.

The bantam Oddfellows, undefeated in group play here against lower classification teams, found it was a different story against the flying Kingston squad.

Kingston netted single goals in each of the first two heats and Ron Jury's play in the Belleville net helped keep the score down. The Oddfellows were unable to muster any kind of sustained attack.

After Kingston built a 5-0 lead midway through the third frame, Belleville broke the shutout bid. Ted Watie was the trigerman, slapping it home from point-blank range on a three-way scrib with Bill Royea and Joe Lumsden.

Minutes later, Kingston star Dave Gilmour connected on a similar slap shot while one of his own men was off. That was Gilmour's third goal of the game and killed any hopes of an Oddfellow rally.

Gilmour's initial goal, in the first, came on a power play while Brent Childerhose made it 2-0 on a long shot late in the second period. Goals by Gilmour, Joe Brown and Michael Niedbala upped it to 5-0 in the third.

Janitsch twice had good close-in chances for Belleville, once breaking in all alone, but was unable to beat Kingston goalie Terry Legarry.

Kingston drew eight of the game's 14 minor penalties but Belleville defending helped prevent any serious clashes.

The bantam game was played in three 20-minute periods while the peewees played extra five-minute stanzas, plus the extra ten.

The Rifles May Be Homeless

TORONTO (CP) — Quebec Rifles, Continental Football League entrants, planned to move to Toronto for Montreal in search of a stadium in which to play. They may not find it here.

University of Toronto's athletic directors have voted against negotiating the rental of Varsity Stadium to the Rifles.

With Varsity out and the Canadian National Exhibition field committed to Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference, this leaves only Maple Leaf Stadium. However, baseball is played at the stadium well into the football season.

A spokesman for the stadium said yesterday that none has yet approached him to discuss the stadium's use by the Rifles.

Bob Flood scored three times for Queen's as they upset the second - place University of Montreal Carabins 7-3 while Graeme Taylor netted three goals for McMaster in their 8-3 romp over Bishop's - place Waterloo University Redmen.

The win left the two clubs tied in fourth spot with 13 points apiece. Queen's has one game in hand.

Women's Curling

Toronto Rink Ont. Champs

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Fern Irwin of Toronto came from behind for a 9-7 victory over Vivian McDougall of Sudbury in a post - tournament sudden-death playoff here Wednesday to win the 1965 Ontario women's curling title.

She and her rink — Regina Richardson and third, Vera McDonald at second and Erva Law, lead — will represent the province in the Canadian final at Halifax Feb. 22-26.

The rinks finished in a tie for first with 6-1 records after a two-day, six-rink round-robin in this Lakehead city.

Mrs. Irwin appeared on the verge of victory after the third round of tournament play with a 3-0 record. She was alone in top spot.

However, Mrs. McDougall of the Sudbury Granite Club upset her 9-4 in the fourth round to open things up.

SCORES TWO

In the seesaw playoff, Mrs. Irwin, the 1962 provincial champion, got two in the first end, but Mrs. McDougall tied it in the second.

Trading singles, Mrs. Irwin led 5-4 after seven ends, but Mrs. McDougall cracked a three-ender in the eighth to go ahead 7-5.

However, Mrs. McDougall of Club rink rebounded with a three of its own in the ninth to lead 8-7 coming home.

In the 10th, Mrs. Irwin bumped a stone in the house behind an array of guards, but accidentally opened things up with her last rock.

Mrs. McDougall tried to draw in through the gap for a tying single, but her rock stopped short of the house.

Aileen Kelsall of Niagara Falls, who shared the fourth-round lead with the Toronto and Sudbury rinks, finished in third spot with a 3-3 record. Effie Herzlewood of Oshawa was fourth with 2-3.

Last were Jennie Walsh of Kingston and Elsie Forsyth of Port Arthur with 1-4 records.

Hornet Scores 3 In 6-2 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If Wednesday night's three-goal performance is any indication, it won't be long before Murray Hall gets another whirl at the National Hockey League.

The 24 - year - old Kirkland Lake native shares the season record of 63 assists in the now defunct Eastern Professional Hockey League with Cliff Pennington, and last year assisted on 40 goals while playing in 28 games with St. Louis in the Central Professional League.

Hall, now the property of Detroit Red Wings, was given a 23 - game trial with Chicago Black Hawks last season but could only beat NHL goaltenders twice.

But Hall became the first Pittsburgh player this season to score three times in a single game when he sparked the Hornets to a 5-2 American Hockey League victory over Providence Reds Wednesday.

In other AHL action, Rochester Americans and Buffalo Bisons battled to a 5-5 overtime tie, and Hershey Bears defeated Cleveland Barons 3-1.

POOL SCOUTING

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros announced Wednesday the establishment of a pooled scouting agreement with Chicago Cubs and Kansas City Athletics. The agreement is limited to an exchange of information on free agents.

Boxer Kicked In Groin

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Willie Richardson raced across the ring Wednesday night at Oakland Auditorium and kicked California State heavyweight champion Roger Rischer in the groin before their scheduled 12-round fight for the title.

The 182-pound Richardson was disqualified by referee Vern Bybee, then suspended indefinitely by the State Athletic Commission.

Rischer, 198, of Oakland, was standing in the middle of the ring with Bybee waiting for the referee's instructions when Richardson rushed at Rischer and kicked him a number of times.

The $4,603 gross gate receipts will be refunded to the approximately 2,000 fans on hand, promoter Don Chargin announced afterward.

Richardson was given tranquilizers after being taken to his dressing room, said Boo Turley, athletic commission chief inspector.

"Being more the pro, itscher got to Willie psychologically," said Richardson's co-manager, Bob Francevic. "He keyed him up just before all this happened by calling him a punk. Then Willie lost his head."

Thinks Better TV Programs Should Be Shown Earlier

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—This is a frantic and critical time when a comparative handful of men —network and advertising agency executives—are deciding what television program viewers will watch next season.

It would be pleasant if the planners considered some small changes that would enhance the pleasure of viewers.

For instance, this year most drama programs are relegated to late evening hours. One of the most frequent complaints received in letters to this column is that "all the programs I like best to watch come on at 10 p.m. and that's just too late for me."

Certainly The Danny Kaye Show would be a welcome addition to the early evening because Danny is a great entertainer of children.

The Defenders had larger audiences when it was in an earlier time period and there seems no real reason why the interesting and action - packed Fugitive could not be seen earlier.

Recommended tonight:

The Defenders, CBS. 10-11 EST—Brandon de Wilde comes as a conscientious objector who wants to be excluded from the military draft.

'Nkrumahism' Now School Doctrine

ACCRA (AP)—The classroom classics of reading, writing and arithmetic are being coupled with "Nkrumahism" in Ghana's educational system.

Nkrumahism is Ghana's version of socialism as expounded by President Kwame Nkrumah. It calls for tight state control of most areas of Ghanaian life.

"Too many of our teachers and students are quite ignorant of the simple underlying principles of Nkrumahism," the government's Accra Evening News says.

The regime decreed that all university students report for indoctrination at the Kwame Nkrumah Ideological Institute in Winneba. All students going to college overseas or entering one of Ghana's three universities must receive two weeks training both before and after their studies elsewhere.

Civil servants and new ambassadors also take such courses as "the essence of capitalist exploitation" and "Nkrumahism—theory and practice" at Winneba.

The institute's syllabus says it aims "to provide ideological education to activists and freedom fighters in Africa in the struggle against imperialism, colonialism and neocolonialism. . . ."

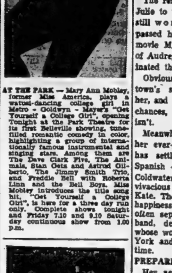
Ghana's 7,000,000 people have a more elaborate educational system than those in most other African nations. The country gained independence from Britain in 1957 with the highest literacy rate in black Africa.

Primary education is compulsory through the eighth grade, but many classes are taught by persons who themselves have only a primary education.

Indians Have Better Business Practices!

VICTORIA (CP) — Desire de Tremaudan agrees that the Indians of today have a better business sense than the ones who sold Manhattan Island for $24 and a trunkful of trinkets.



Mrs. de Tremaudan sells her top offer is $5 for 10,000 beads.

Beads are Mr. Tremaudan's specialty. He buys them for sale to Indians and others. A couple of big outlets for his wares are the Indian affairs department and the Hudson's Bay Company.

The beads come from Italy and other central European countries, purchased in lots of 12,000,000. White beads are by him $2.50 a pound. Reds and tops at $5. A major use is to decorate moccasins.

AT THE PARK — Mary Ann Mobley, former Miss America, plays a waitress-dancing college girl in Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's "Get Yourself a College Girl", opening today at the Park Theatre. Also in the first Belleville showing, tuneful romantic comedy in color. Highlighting a group of internationally famous instrumental and singing stars. Appearing are the Dave Clark Five, The Animals, Stan Getz and Astrud Gilberto, The Jimmy Smith Trio, Chad Everett, Joan O'Brien, Tom Lisa and the Bell Boys. Mimi Mobley introduces the title song "Get Yourself a College Girl", in here for a three day run only. Complete show tonight and Friday 7.10 and 9.10 Saturday continuous show from 1.00 p.m.

AT THE REGAL — A bit of feminine persuasion — in this scene from Paramount's "Living It Up", Jerry Lewis tries to convince Janet Leigh that she should work opens today at the Bells Theatre. Elvis Presley, as a carnival handyman and midway entertainer, woos (so he thinks) Joan Freeman, the carnival manager's daughter. Along with Presley and Miss Freeman, the "Roustabout" cast includes Barbara Stanwyck, Joan Freeman, Leif Erickson and Jack Pennick. Shows at 1.00, 3.00, 5.00, 8.10 at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — Elvis Presley, Joan Freeman, Barbara Stanwyck, in "Roustabout", in Technicolor, 2.00 - 7.10 - 9.10.

AT THE PARK — In color — "Get Yourself A College Girl", Mary Ann Mobley, Stan Getz, Astrud Gilberto and Jimmy Smith Trio, 1.00 - 7.00 - 9.10.

Golden Globe for Julie, Best Duo Star of the Year

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Julie Andrews took another step toward the pinnacle this week by winning a Golden Globe as best musical or comedy star of the year.

She did so in delightful style, rocking the semi-bored Cocoanut Grove audience by thanking Jack L. Warner, "who made all this possible."

The remark further endeared Julie to the film crowd, which still wonders why Warner passed her up as star of the movie My Fair Lady in favor of Audrey Hepburn. Julie originated the role on the stage.

Obviously, Julie has the town's sympathy riding with her, and that is scornful of her chances, but the wise money isn't.

Meanwhile, she is pursuing her ever-growing career. She has settled down in a cozy Spanish - style hacienda on Coldwater Canyon with her vivacious two-year-old, Emma Kate. Her only flaw in domestic happiness is that she is too often separated from her husband, designer Tony Walton, whose work keeps him in New York and Europe most of the time.

PREPARES FOR TV

Her activity at the moment is preparation for her CBC television special next season.

"I'm terrified about it," she admitted. "It's one thing to guest on someone else's show and come off marvelously. It's something else when you have your very own show and face the possibility of rising or falling with it. I haven't done anything on my own since I appeared as a single on the variety stage a long, long time ago."

After the special she plunges into Hawaii, for which she will spend much time in the islands, plus a possible location in New England. Her co-star, Max Von Sydow, Swedish actor who plays the lead in The Greatest Story Ever Told.

"I'm terribly excited about that," she said with typical Andrews enthusiasm. "I feel just a little smug about the fact we had with leading men so far. Think of them: Rex Harrison (My Fair Lady), Richard Burton (Camelot), Dick Van Dyke (Mary Poppins), Jim Garner (The Americanization of Emily), Chris Plummer (The Sound of Music) and now Max Von Sydow!"

With the release of Mary Poppins, for which the foreign press correspondents gave her the Golden Globe — Julie has lost the anonymity she enjoyed. She is accosted by fans everywhere.

Managers Meet In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Meetings between the men who run Canadian professional football started a day late in the capital today.

The eastern and western conferences were to hold separate sessions in the same downtown hotel, on Friday to come together for the two-day annual meeting of the Canadian Football Council.

General managers from the nine professional teams were scheduled to kick off the football sessions Wednesday, but poor flying weather delayed the arrival of them until late Wednesday night.

Without them the six managers have held informal discussions. No decisions were made.

Joe Ryan of Edmonton Eskimos said there could be two rule changes to benefit the running game.

He said there was "a good chance" that all backs would be permitted to block next season. Now only backs positioned outside the ends are permitted to do so.

The second proposed change would allow blocking on punt returns — strictly banned now.

'Tis All for Love
Why Liz Taylor Drops Her U.S. Citizenship

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—What's really behind Elizabeth Taylor's recent renunciation of her American citizenship?

At the moment, she is getting the blast from some of the Hollywood press. One columnist even compared her with Charlie Chaplin.

Both Chaplin and Elizabeth were born in London. Chaplin never became an American citizen because, his critics say, he hoped—and still hopes—that the Queen will knight him some day. She contend it's the dream of a comic whose boy hood in the London slums made Oliver Twist look like the Bobbsey Twins.

Elizabeth and Chaplin both made their fortunes here.

Other columnists say that Elizabeth's decision is due to a desire to escape the American taxes.

Both she and Richard Burton are Swiss residents, which makes them about as economical as the income tax bracket as it is ever possible to be—U.S. or British.

Richard now is doing The Spy Who Came in from the Cold in Ireland while Liz visits on the set. He probably will then come here to do Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?

If she gets her British citizenship solely by then, then she will have to pay both U.S. and British taxes.

So what's the real reason? You don't have to explain it to most of the girls who married GIs overseas. They do it all the time.

It's love.

Elizabeth is so much in love with Burton that she even is fighting with her studio producers to have her billing changed to Elizabeth Burton, instead of Elizabeth Taylor. And if you know actresses, that's real love.

Liz' talk nowadays is flavored with such British expressions as "luv" and "bloody."

She loves the United States as much as anyone. She loves Britain, too, especially Wales.

But she loves Burton most of all. It's all very simple. Women will understand.

USSR Rolls Out Its Heavies Against MLF

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet Union has trundled out its heaviest propaganda guns to blast the West's proposed multilateral nuclear force.

It has also aimed broadsides at the idea of a conference to delt being sown on West German territory just inside the border with Communist East Germany.

The fact that the Atlantic alliance is in disarray over the nuclear-force plan, and that the United States has denied there is any link between the public mire belts, hasn't stemmed the frothy oil denunciation by Soviet press and radio.

If, as some experts say, you can always tell by the loud cries when a Western initiative has really upset the Russians, the muting should be left at home.

Scarcely a day goes by without a major attack in one of the big Moscow newspapers, the general theme being that MLF is a stratagem for giving West Germany access to nuclear weapons.

The typical editorial attack tries to exploit whatever fears may exist about what will happen if West Germans have a finger on the West's nuclear trigger.

It contrives to convey the impression that whatever other countries are represented in the force — including the United States which would supply most of the nuclear hardware—German influence in it would be significant.

SIDES WITH FRANCE

A Jan. 18 article in Izvestia, the government newspaper, said that if MLF is formed, West Germany will have an opportunity to "influence the decision of the decision on the use of American atomic weapons concentrated in Western Europe."

As in many other questions, the Soviet press seeks to capitalize on differences between France and the U.S. on the MLF concept. The Izvestia article, for example, approvingly quoted French Foreign Minister Couve de Murville as saying the aims of the MLF are "contradictory."

A Jan. 17 article in Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, indicated how the Communists supported a world - wide peace front is being mobilized to campaign against MLF. Among cordial messages to parades and demonstrations have been held are West Germany itself, the Soviet bloc countries of Eastern Europe, France, Greece, Britain, Italy, Scandinavia and The Netherlands.

As for the atomic mine belt, the Soviet government recently presented formal notes to the West German and U.S. governments—with copies sent on to Washington going to Britain and France — denouncing the proposal as a breach of the Potsdam agreements and warning of the possible consequences.

A denial by a state department spokesman that plans for such a belt existed was brushed aside by Izvestia which said the spokesman was either misinformed or misquoted.

The newspaper preferred to believe the Western news account based on gleanings obtained at the December NATO meeting in Paris.

Army Man Has Own Centennial Project

By JOHN MOSHER

FREDERICTON (CP) — Revival of public cruising on the scenic St. John River is planned by Major Peter Rubie of the New Brunswick army area headquarters here. A long, colorful history of riverboating on the St. John ended in 1946 when the vessel D. J. Purdy made her family trip.

It's a private centennial project, without financial backing by centennial authorities, and a tourist - attracting venture. A steamwheel boat resembling those used in 1867 and an air cushion craft will examplify old and new navigation methods spanned by a century.

Maj. Rubie, 47, who came to Canada from Britain in 1949, has organized St. John River Cruises Limited and a complementary Sternwheel Riverboat Boosters Club.

He hopes to start the sternwheeler cruises June 1. Blueprints from the designer, marine architect Geoffrey Blake of Esquimalt, B.C., have been submitted to the Saint John Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company Limited. Mr. Blake designed similar vessels for Victoria Harbor and the North Saskatchewan River.

PLAN DAILY CRUISES

Estimated cost of the 90-passanger, 65-foot, two-deck sternwheeler, diesel engine-powered is about $80,000. But exceeding 100 gross tons, it would qualify for the vessel depreciation of 35 per cent of the construction cost.

Regular daily and special cruises, at 10 miles an hour, are planned for 25 miles downstream below Fredericton and then return to the Fredericton base. Adults will be charged $2 each for regular trips and children under 12, $1.

Boosters club members are entitled to free cruise tickets and the right to try for a $50 prize in a riverboat naming contest. Membership applications have come from as far away as Winnipeg.

Cost of the six-seat air cushion craft, designed for 50 miles an hour, is estimated at $30,000. A prototype has been completed on England's Isle of Wight and the vehicle is expected to be in operation this year.

New System Can Assist Students Organize Mind

TORONTO (CP)—One way to help improve homework habits is to give yourself a daydream rating, says a Toronto guidance counsellor.

L. R. Stewart, head of the guidance department at Oakwood Collegiate Institute, says that whenever your mind wanders you should put a little black mark on a chart, then go back to work.

If you make yourself aware how often you drift into a daydream, it may help you break the habit, he suggests.

Mr. Stewart has compiled a set of guidelines to help students organize homework and discover for themselves what their difficulties are. Created for use in his own school, his study has been published and is available at 25 cents a copy through the Guidance Centre at the Ontario College of Education, Toronto.

He emphasizes that it's not possible to devise a system that applies to every individual. "It's going to be adapted to individuals and paper routine, and there is a place for exercise and fun."

Start by giving yourself a test on the efficiency of your study habits, he says. Ask yourself such questions as: How often do you think you're too tired to study? Have you too many interests to get down to study? Do you tend to daydream?

MAKE SCHEDULE

When you have found where your main troubles lie, prepare to make up a schedule that takes into account your particular problems.

Begin by taking any week and keeping a record of how you really spend your time. Then decide which activities you can cut down, which ones can keep until after the homework is done.

Then draw up a realistic weekly schedule which includes enough working time.

Make a deal with your family to cut down on interruptions. Don't accept a phone call during study periods. If it's important, you can call back.

Make a deal with yourself to cut down on distractions. You probably aren't really concentrating if you have the TV or radio on. If there is a program you feel you don't want to miss, schedule it and do your homework before or after.

Choose a place where you can study with a minimum of interruption, and try not to make it too comfortable.

A trick of organization that helps many students, Mr. Stewart says, is to start homework with your best subject. That makes it easier to get down to work. Then do your hardest subject while you're still fresh, and the next hardest until you are finished.

KEEP LIST

A businesslike approach to assignments will help keep you out of trouble for forgetting one. Keep a list of assignments in your notebook with the date they are due, and tick them off as you do them.

You may think you'll remember the due date when given an assignment, but you may easily forget if a couple of weeks go by. Check your list before you leave school and when you begin your homework.

Mr. Stewart says the student who always does his homework and still does badly on exams and tests may be failing to consider his approach to work.

"Take individual assignments and decide how you do them so that they are useful to you. A good idea is to ask yourself if you could teach the work to someone else. If you could, you know it is homework."

Mr. Stewart says he emphasizes homework planning for junior high-school students "if you get good habits established in Grade 9 they will carry over"—but it's never too late to start.

Counterfeit Dismissal Is Appealed

FREDERICTON (CP) — The dismissal of a charge of possession of counterfeit money against Donald Ross Albrecht of Bridgewater, Nova Scotia magistrate's court in December was appealed Wednesday to the appeal division of the York-Sunbury-Kings Supreme Court. Decision was reserved.

Albrecht, charged after three counterfeit United States bills were discovered in local John stores, had told Magistrate H. S. Prince he received the money from a radio operator aboard the Cuban vessel Camaguey in exchange for Cuban money.

Albrecht, employed by a cat tle exporting firm, said he had been a passenger aboard the vessel after taking a shipment of cattle to Cuba.

Precise Products For Science and Industry

Canadian Optics Go World-Wide

Nancy Morcom of Midland, Ontario, checks and cleans six-inch condenser lens.

As Canadian research grows apace in government and private industry, as complex technology merges with rapidly-increasing manufacturing facilities to produce wide varieties of intricate equipment and products, a highly-skilled domestic source for special optical systems is of vital worth. In Canada, complex optical products, from the Leitz company's plant at Midland, Ontario, are exported to 80 countries around the world. With demands for fine lenses growing in the fields of commerce, industry and science, this vigorous factory has doubled in size several times over in the past dozen years to become one of North America's leading manufacturers of lenses and optical instruments. Among the lenses they have designed and developed in Canada are a world-famed, extremely-fast wide-angle lens and a high-speed, medium telephoto lens. Other special optical products include systems for microreproduction, infra-red, television, lase and data-processing equipment. Modern science combined with delicate artistry, fine senses of human creativity combined with extremes of engineering precision — these are the essentials in developing optical systems for today's sophisticated technology. For new Canadians who brought generations-old skills from Europe a decade ago, for many others who have joined them in their fascinating art, the Canadian production of precise lenses and optical equipment has become a rewarding science — for the nation's industrial progress, a vital and valuable tool.

Delicacy in assembling components follows strict engineering precision in manufacture of optical systems. Inge Klinck, above, works intently on sight units destined for export.

Production engineer, A. Dellori and tool designer M. Erb of the Leitz optical works discuss fixtures for turret lathe.

Teaching Self-reliance In a World of Silence

By DON LeBLANC

AMHERST, N.S. (CP)—The world will remain silent to many of them but employment opportunities seem likely to increase for the deaf of the Atlantic provinces. They're being educated as never before.

The Interprovincial School for the Education of the Deaf, a modern structure with all the facilities necessary for its 290 students, stands atop a hill overlooking this northern Nova Scotia town of 19,000.

Here the deaf are taught various academic subjects, how to lip-read, speak, compete with others and act socially.

They will get an additional educational boost in the fall when a two-storey, $310,000 vocational school is scheduled for completion. It will mean another two or three years training for students who would normally graduate at 17 or 18. For many, it may make the difference between work and unemployment.

"It will give the students a much better chance," says Peter O. Freemantle, the school's principal, who took charge when K. C. Van Allen retired last July after 25 years as principal.

CAN STUDY TRADES

"At 17, students will be assessed for their academic potentiality," says Mr. Freemantle, who taught at schools for the deaf in Derby, England and Vancouver before coming here.

They will then study one of the nine available trades for which they are most suited—from auto body repair and printing to dress-making and cooking.

The Interprovincial School constructed as a joint venture by the Nova Scotia and New Brunswick governments at a cost of $3,000,000, uses the oral method of teaching together with auditory training—the use of microphones and earphones.

Sign language, th natural means of communication among the deaf, is not taught, "but the young students soon pick it up from the older ones," says Mr. Freemantle.

Since the admittance of six-year-old Mary Jane Veinot in 1906, the school has accepted the responsibility of educating the deaf-blind.

Despite her double handicap, Miss Veinot, who now lives at the Home for the Blind in Lancaster, N.B., was taught to speak intelligibly and converse with both deaf and hearing people.

She was taught to use a Braille writer and a typewriter and, the school's records say, she was "intelligent, inquisitive and happy."

Roberta and Kerry Wadman of Glace Bay, N.S., Jean Watts of New Glasgow, N.S., Marion Day of Newfoundland, Marjorie Golinsky of Alberta and Charlie Crane of Vancouver are among the deaf-blind who have graduated from the institution.

Completed in 1961, the present school is a direct result of an interest William Gray took in the deaf more than a century ago. With two students and a small room in the back of a house in Halifax, he began the School for the Deaf in 1856. By the end of that year he had 12 students.

It was also in that year that Nova Scotia became the first province to acknowledge the claims of the deaf through a grant of £300.

The school soon acquired a house in Halifax and J. Scott Hutton of Edinburgh was appointed its first principal.

To encourage the education of the deaf Mr. Hutton began annual tours through the Maritimes; accompanied by two or three of his students. He made his first visit to Newfoundland in 1876 and seven deaf mutes from the area enrolled the following year.

DAMAGED IN BLAST

The school had moved to a new building after a sharp increase in attendance but only a few years had passed when the problem arose again.

Mr. Hutton proposed a new institution and in 1885, four years after his death, a fully-equipped 3½-storey building was ready for occupancy. The student body grew to 90.

Although severely damaged, the school survived the 1917 Halifax explosion without a casualty. But principal James Fearon died a year later, his death attributed to strain and exposure suffered during the disaster.

By 1950 the school would accept no more than 20 students from Newfoundland. Others had to be sent to the MacKay School in Montreal.

Plagued with over-crowding, the school's assembly hall contained three classrooms and two others were on either end of the second floor hall. The supervising teacher's office was in the main first floor hallway.

Then, amid considerable opposition, the school was moved to this central Maritime location after 105 years in the Nova Scotia capital.

Newfoundland now sends 50 students here but a school for Juniors has begun in St. John's. Gradually, all Newfoundland students will attend classes in their home province.

Many Reindeer Are Starving

GAELLIVARE, Sweden (AP) About 20,000 reindeer are starving in this area 60 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

Unusual weather and snow conditions have made it impossible for the animals to feed on lichens. The reindeer, owned by Lapps, are worth probably $500,000.

Hundreds of reindeer, straying afar in their search for food, have been killed by cars and trains. Owners get legal indemnity from the state railway company—$28 for males, $20 for females.

The owners have started a big operation with trucks to transport animals to less ice-covered areas, but the remaining animals are threatened by wolves, wolverines and lynx.

Wallbridge

WALLBRIDGE — Wallbridge U.C.W. held their monthly potluck dinner on Wednesday. Quite a number enjoyed a hot dinner with the school teachers and pupils.

Mr. Allan Lott is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Ben Acker of Oshawa and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Acker of Springbrook visited Mr. and Mrs. Ed Spencer recently.

Church service was conducted by the Young People's group on Sunday morning when a large number attended.

Oh What Fun It Is to Ride Two-horse Troika

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — A troika sleigh ride with only two horses?

Troikas, as any Russian knows, are three-horse vehicles. So, strictly speaking, ours was only two-thirds of a troika.

But the effect on a frosty winter day was the same—exhilarating.

It was at Moscow's permanent industrial exhibition where for 30 kopecks (36 cents) you can get a short, exciting ride in a sleigh behind three fast-stepping horses.

It was like something out of a scene from War and Peace or Doctor Zhivago—a tang in the January air; colorful sleighs; drivers in sheepskin coats called armyak with red sashes about the waist and a hint of Mongolia in their heavy contours.

For extra flavor there was an accordionist who played soft Russian tunes as the customers bundled aboard the sleighs.

It wasn't until we were under way that we noticed our own troika had only two horses. We asked the driver about this—and discovered that he spoke, not Russian, but German.

Since our German is rusty we could only speculate on what combination of circumstances brought a German to Moscow to drive a troika for the amusement of Russians.

HORSE SICK

We did manage to find out in a painfully disjointed conversation that the third horse was sick that day.

As if to make up for this shortcoming he decided to take us around the half-mile track a second time — "zweimal" — instead of the standard once-around.

He drove the sleek, dark horses at a furious pace, turning around every now and then to shout something we didn't understand. The sleigh heaved and lurched; trees and buildings near the track flashed by.

End of the second lap. "Dreimal"—three times—shouted our swashbuckling driver, obviously intoxicated by the stimulating winter air.

Despite the startled look of the supervisor at the starting gate, he prodded the horses to another burst of speed and started round again.

Hikes May Get Civic Blessing

VICTORIA (CP) — Long-distance walking may be adopted as a civic project in this capital of British Columbia.

The Greater Victoria Celebration Association approved of the idea, contained in a letter to a member from Maj.-Gen. John Rockingham, officer commanding the army's western command.

Maj.-Gen. Rockingham suggested the 100-mile marches, to be called the Victoria marches. The idea was for the winning unit, probably about 150 men, to bring up the rear of the Victoria Day parade, this city's biggest annual celebration.

The project would be patterned after the Nijmegen marches in The Netherlands. The object there is not to race but to cover a route within a given time in good order.

Three-year-old Child Welfare Report Tabled

TORONTO (CP) — Welfare Minister Louis Cecile tabled in the legislature Wednesday a report on child welfare services which he received more than three years ago.

Mr. Cecile commissioned the study Dec. 10, 1958. He received the committee's report Dec. 22, 1961, but withheld it until Tu. was pressed in the legislature by Stephen Lewis (NDP — Scarborough West) to make it public. The committee studied standards for children's institutions.

During the 1962-63 session of the legislature the government introduced the Children's Institutions Act, which was based in part on the committee's report. However, some of its recommendations were ignored.

The committee recommended that children's institutions provide a minimum of one staff member for each three children in care. It said no worker should have more than 10 children under his care at any one time.

It also suggested the department of welfare should employ sufficient personnel to investigate all institutions and foster homes covered by child welfare legislation to see how they are carrying out their duties.

The welfare department was called on to pay up to 75 per cent of the costs of maintaining children in Children's Aid Societies, whether they were wards of the societies or non-wards.

Mr. Lewis said none of these measures are in effect.

Mr. Cecile said outside the legislature that the recommendation pertaining to the government's share of the costs was the only one not implemented since 1961. These contributions vary from 50 to 90 per cent, he said.

He added that the report has always been available but that none had ever asked for it.

"I never had any objection to making it public," he said, noting that it was strictly an advisory matter for his personal consideration, unlike a royal commission or select committee report.

Mr. Lewis said he asked that the report be tabled because references were made to it in the later report of the minister's advisory committee on child welfare.

The government has indicated that it plans to introduce a re-written Child Welfare Act during the current session of the legislature, based on the report of the advisory committee.

WOOLER — Mr. and Mrs. P.D. Smith and little daughter Ann returned home on Saturday after spending a week in Nova Scotia to attend Mr. Smith's brother's funeral.

Mr. and Mrs. A.C. Austin are spending a few days in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. L.E. Dorland and Mr. H.B. McCall spent a day recently in Toronto.

Mrs. N.N. Haggarty left on Friday to spend a couple of weeks in Nassau.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Dorland and children spent the weekend with his sister Mr. and Mrs. Jack MacDonald and family in Markham.

Scouting activities

Belleville District Council for Scouting met in regular monthly session in St. Thomas' Parish Hall, February 8, with President A. Glover in charge.

While less than half the groups in the district were represented (and many of these by executive members only) and quite a number of executive members were unable to be present due to bad weather conditions, progress was covered. With the number of activities planned for 1965 it appears the 1,275 boys and leaders registered in the district are in for a busy season. Activities high on the list are as follows:

Scout Week — February 21 to 28 with Scout Sunday February 21st.

Basic Pack Scouters' Course — February 26 - 27, St. Thomas' Parish Hall.

Scouters' Get Together — February 22nd.

Provincial Conference, Peterborough — April 2nd and 3rd.

Paper, Bottle and Basket Drive — April 30th.

International Camp Eng. — July 31 - Aug. 7.

Sailing Regatta — Aug. 8 -13.

Campercave — D.C. in charge — No date yet.

Cobaree — Tom Smith —No date yet.

In reporting for the Ladies' Auxiliaries, Mrs. Betty Fort thanked all concerned for the scout hats donated to the Fort Albany Eskimo Scout Troop. Mrs. Fort reported on the workshop held at Eastminster United Church on the 1st of February where the new cub uniforms were displayed. Plans for assistance in training activities and for a publicity get-together later in the year were also mentioned.

INVESTIGATE LACK

D.C. Arthur Fort reported a lack of interest in the winter camping course. He felt some curtailment of camping would result from this lack of training.

He also corrected an error in the report of the January meeting. The Scout receiving credit for a First Class Journey was Ricky Loynes, not Ricky Lloyd, as reported.

Application forms are now available for Wood Badge courses for Pack and Troop Scouters, for Woodland Trails, Blue Springs, Opemikon (Ottawa), and Elliot Lake.

An Area Training recommendation list is being prepared and Basic A and B courses are planned for later in spring.

D.C. Fort personally thanked the Ladies' Auxiliaries for the success of the January salvage drive—the weather was against them but the people of Belleville were helpful and considerate of the efforts. Supplements covering record changes in Wolf Cub badges are available for a nominal charge.

Mr. Andrews reported interest in swimming at high level with some 200 boys being instructed during January.

Help is still required. If you have a spare hour Saturday at the YMCA come out with your swimming trunks' and give a hand—it will be appreciated.

Icy Conditions Hazard to Firefighters

PICTON (Staff) — Extremely poor weather conditions which prevailed over Prince Edward County and much of the surrounding area yesterday added to the hazards of firefighters as well as motorists. Two fires, both houses, were totally destroyed.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Domanski of R.R. 1, Cherry Valley, burned Wednesday morning and the fire of the Kemenasy family in Bloomfield Tuesday night. The Domanski fire was not responded to because of near impossible driving conditions. The Picton Army Camp fire department was called but it was decided not to chance the five mile trip in the time limit on Wednesday morning. There were no injuries reported and the vehicles involved only received minor damage.

Milford Club Will Sponsor Art Exhibits

PICTON (Staff) — The Milford Art Club has announced that in conjunction with the Art Institute of Ontario it is sponsoring a program of art appreciation the evening of Monday, February 22nd, at 7.30 p.m.

Mr. Paul Bennett, B.A., B.S.W., M.Ed., Director of the Art Institute, is visiting Picton. He will be carrying a collection works of art. These paintings will range from landscapes painted by Arthur Lismer and J. E. H. MacDonald, members of the group of seven, to an abstract painted by Harold Town.

This collection has been secured from public galleries such as the Art Gallery of Toronto, private collections such as the Charles S. Band Collection, and industries such as Imperial Oil. The value of this collection will exceed ten thousand dollars.

Mr. Bennett will lecture on these paintings and illustrate his points by means of slides, and by other works of art by the same artists. He has requested that the local artist bring their own paintings to the meeting and he will be pleased to meet with this group after the public lecture and give a criticism of these works.

SEEKS NEW LEASH ON LIFE — Jacques Rossingol literally ran for his life at Dompierre-Les-Eglises, France — trying to prove his innocence of complicity in a murder. Investigation fixed the time garage owner Raymond Vignaud was slain last Dec. 18 at 7:30 p.m. Police arrested Rossignol and two others, but he claimed he was in Montmorillon, about 32 miles away, at the time. One of the defendants said he drove Rossignol to Montmorillon. He then had to cover 32 kards on his bicycle to reach the home of a witness who saw him at 7:55 p.m. An automobile covered the distance between the two places in 28 minutes, 15 seconds. Then Rossignol, roped and paced by a gendarme, ran the rest of the way in four minutes. He said this proved him innocent. But a magistrate demurred, saying the slaying perhaps was 10 minutes before 7:30 p.m. That would ruin Rossignol's alibi. (AP Wirephoto by cable from Paris)

Calls for a Moratorium On Debate PC Troubles

OTTAWA (CP) — Gordon Churchill, Conservative leader in the Commons, has called for a moratorium on public debate about the party's troubles.

Mr. Churchill said in an interview Wednesday all Progressive Conservatives should "cease and desist" from talk about the leadership issue and concentrate instead on "planning policy and action."

He said it is difficult for the party to "stand recurring episodes of this nature without weakening itself."

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Conservative Lieutenant Leon Balcer said Wednesday he will announce his future plans early next week.

"I'll make my position known at the beginning of the week," he said in a telephone interview from his Trois - Rivieres home. "I'm afraid that's all I can say at this time."

He declined comment on speculation that he may remain within the Conservative party in light of recent developments in his drive to force a leadership convention to replace Progressive Leader Diefenbaker.

A request by Mr. Balcer and Quebec's nine other PC members for a convention was rejected last weekend by a party executive meeting in Ottawa. Some reports speculated, however, that the former transport minister drew enough support from across the country at the meeting to remain within the party and continue his anti-Diefenbaker drive from that position.

Paul Martineau, MP for Pontiac - Temiscamingue and close associate of Mr. Balcer, said Wednesday he is hopeful no Quebec members of Parliament will find it necessary to leave the party.

Mr. Martineau said consultation is continuing among the party's 10 Quebec MPs although no formal caucus of this group is planned at present.

BURKES FALLS, Ont. (CP)— The Parry Sound - Muskoka Conservative Riding Association has approved a vote of confidence in Gordon Aiken, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for the riding who has spoken in favor of ousting Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker as head of the party.

A statement released Wednesday said the association's 40-member executive approved the move at a special meeting Tuesday night which Mr. Aiken attended. Mr. Aiken said Wednesday: "I am not taking part in any revolt and I am not leaving the party. I will continue to support both the party and Mr. Diefenbaker as long as he is leader."

Coroner Says Diagnosis Right

KITCHENER (CP)—Coroner Dr. Gerald Lynne-Davies states there was no error in diagnosis by either Dr. M. D. Williams, chief of staff at Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital, or Dr. John B. Talion in the emergency treatment of Mrs. Homer Pequegnat before her death, Dec. 22, of injuries in an auto accident position.

In its report Monday of the coroner's inquest the previous night, The Canadian Press erroneously stated that the doctors did not correctly diagnose Mrs. Pequegnat's fatal injuries.

Quebec Premier May Return To Federal Politics

Pearson Says Session May End in 3 Weeks

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—Amid growing speculation that Jean Lesage may return to federal politics, Prime Minister Pearson said Friday that the Quebec premier would do a "fine job" if he did come to Ottawa.

"He's doing a fine job in Quebec and if he came back he'd do a fine job here," Mr. Pearson told a press conference.

The prime minister faced a series of questions on the possibility of Mr. Lesage returning to federal politics after the Quebec premier had said he was under pressure to do so.

Did the pressure come from Mr. Pearson?

"No pressure, of course," said a smiling prime minister.

He said he had a "very interesting chat" with Mr. Lesage when the two were at nearby vacation resorts in Florida last month. He has been reading "with great interest that Mr. Lesage might come back."

SERVED IN CABINET

Before entering provincial politics Mr. Lesage served in the Liberal cabinet of former prime minister Louis St. Laurent.

The Quebec premier's future plans were among a number of subjects discussed by Mr. Pearson following the final cabinet meeting before Parliament resumes Tuesday.

In the course of the questioning, he said he hopes the current session will end in about three weeks and a new session will begin. Ministers had already contributed a great deal of material for the throne speech.

The interim report of the royal commission on bicultural ism and bilingualism would be tabled shortly, he said. It was lengthy and "very interesting indeed," but Mr. Pearson did not hint at its contents.

The second report of the royal commission on health services would also be tabled, probably Wednesday or Thursday.

The Canada Pension Plan, the labor standards code and optical-goof legislation would be brought before the current session, along with some non-controversial bills.

WILL BE HELD

Some other major pieces of legislation, including bills on the railways, a tax on foreign magazines and a national anthem, also would be held over until the new session.

The government house leader had already met opposition house leaders to outline the government's legislative plans so "we can finish the current session at the earliest date possible."

The prime minister steered away from any protracted discussion of controversial resolutions passed by the Canadian

PR Men Under Scrutiny

TORONTO (CP)—Robert Gibson, Liberal member of the legislature, objected Friday to the amount of money being spent to create a bright and shiny "Hollywood-type of build-up" for Premier Robarts.

Mr. Gibson (L—Kenora) told the house that expenditures for public relations men have increased 100 per cent during the last four years to create an image of infallibility for Mr. Robarts.

His remarks came during a consideration of estimates for the prime minister's department of $253,000 for the 1965-66 fiscal year.

The premier was asked by Vernon Singer (L—Downsview) whether it was his department which ran the government information service.

Mr. Robarts denied there was any such thing. Funds exist in each department for the dissemination of information.

ASKS WHO PAYS

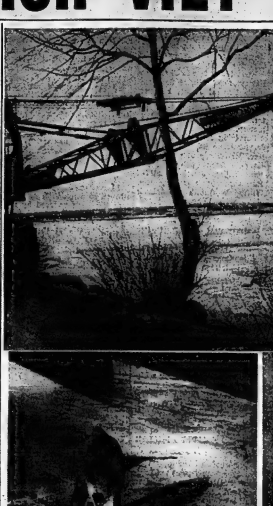
Mr. Singer then asked the premier which department pays the salary of Don Fairbairn as public relations man who prepares weekly radio and television tapes on government news and distributes them free throughout Ontario.

The premier said he did not know but would be able to supply an answer later.

In another debate on a budget expenditure for the office of the lieutenant-governor, James Trotter (L — Toronto - Parkdale) suggested the office be abolished.

He said perhaps the chief justice of Ontario could serve as the Queen's representative in the province. Amid hoots from the Conservative benches that he was advocating a republic, Mr. Trotter said the office was a holdover from colonial days. The lieutenant - governor no longer enjoyed the same support or respect.

Premier Robarts said that after hearing Mr. Trotter speak he could only assume the Liberal member was against spending $33,000 for the office and would vote against it.



Eddie Sargent (L — Owen Sound) congratulated Mr. Trotter for speaking his mind.

MENTION 'HOCUS-POCUS'

"Many members have mentioned to me the hocus-pocus that goes on with respect to this lieutenant - governor business," he said.

Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree

ICE-WRECKERS work at Moira River mouth. Mobile crane heaves weight against ice; worker (above) hacks away with power saw and dynamite blast adds punch.

Cold Weather Eases Flood Danger

Any possibility of a flood threat to Belleville from river ice jams slackened off today.

Uneasiness that a combination of mild weather, rain and ice might swell the waters over the Moira River banks, placed emergency crews on standby watch overnight.

Today, they were reinforced by the most significant figure of all - the weatherman.

As predicted, cold weather cut across the district and the rain threat dried up - - freezing the feared menace within a wide margin of safety.

The last official reading at 2 a.m. today at College Street, showed the river had risen only two inches in the past 10 hours, Emergency Measures co-ordinator Colonel Angus Duffy reported this morning.

"Unless it starts to rain, or something unforseen happens, we feel a lot happier than we did yesterday."

ATTACK ICE

Meantime, the city mounted a full-scale ice-breaking operation at the mouth of the river off Victoria Park.

Against a background of rumbling decolition charges, hydro works crews backed, smashed and blasted away at clearing a channel into the Bay of Quinte throughout the morning.

Implements pressed into service ranged from hand-held axes to a power saw, to a mobile crane hefting a massive iron weight against the ice layers—reported two feet thick in spots.

Preliminary blasting attempts with dynamite proved fruitless yesterday afternoon. After painstakingly laying a string of charges south of the C.P.R. bridge, demolition crews found they were merely pitting the ice with holes.

Then, they switched from dynamite to ditching powder, which lays its blast in a pattern designed to crack the ice over a wide area.

Through the night, EMO volunteers, police, firemen, public works crews, and Moira Conservation Authority officials — who first sounded the alarm Thursday night — were on standby duty.

Focus of concern were ice packs at the Upper Bridge and Carnifton. Had the weather threat held good it was feared these conceivably might have been freed and sent hurling down river to form a formidable barrier in the downtown area.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Colder weather is easing the threat of flooding in most of Ontario, but some communities still were faced with the fear of rising waters today.

More seasonable temperatures, coupled with snowflurries, were forecast for the southern part of the province that has been beleaguered by floods.

Residents along the Grand River from Cayuga to Caledonia were warned that flooding could still occur as ice jam along some islands backed up water.

A section of Highway 3 in Cayuga was under two feet of water for 100 yards, roads near the river were strewn with ice that broke up at Brantford Thursday and several trailers and homes were abandoned.

Flood waters still feared in communities such as Chatham and Thamesville along the Thames River, which was 11 feet and one inch above normal for the time of year.

Thirty men working in shifts were trying to restore telephone communications Friday on 21 between Kitchener and London. The Nith River tore up 10 poles and cuts from both Toronto and London had to be rerouted via Montreal over the microwave system.

Communications were expected to be back to normal today.

At Brantford, the Brant county health unit warned Friday that wells in the area affected by flood waters may be polluted.

Lower temperatures brought more than 14 inches of snow in the Timmins area of Northern Ontario in the worst storm of the winter. The temperature was zero and winds reached 30 miles an hour.

All Air Canada flights at the North Bay Airport were cancelled when freezing rain hit that area.

The storm also affected the Peterborough district, where 8,000 children in 24 schools were unable to get to classes, and Bracebridge, north of Orillia, where school buses were halted by road conditions.

Fifteen miles southwest of Orillia, the Beaverton bypass on Highway 12 was closed because of flooding.

THE WEATHER

Today's Chuckle

These days when a man has two wives to support it does not necessarily mean that he is a bigamist. He just has a son who got married. .

However, they have not specified what form Chinese support would take.

People's Daily, the main Communist party newspaper, featured pictures today of Chinese militia armed with rifles demonstrating in support of North Vietnam.

China reported that militiamen stationed in a province bordering North Viet Nam pledged Friday to support North Viet Nam "with actual deeds" against U.S. attacks.

Peking's New China news agency did not elaborate on the statement, made by about 1,500 militiamen after a meeting in Pinsiang, Kwangsi province.

The agency said militiamen in Nanking, Kiangsu province, paraded with rifles, light and heavy machine-guns, and a placard reading: "Ready to go, can fight will win."

Cabinet Member Goes To Moscow To See Gromyko

May Act as Go-Between In Thant's Parley Bid

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP) — A British cabinet minister will meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko here Monday and diplomats speculate he may act as a go-between for UN Secretary-General U Thant's call for peace talks on Viet Nam.

A British embassy spokesman said today an appointment with Gromyko has been arranged for George Thomson, British minister of state for foreign affairs. He will fly back to London after the meeting.

Thomson, the No. 2 man in the British foreign office, arrived in Moscow Friday to sign a cultural agreement and government spokesmen in London sought to discourage speculation on a Viet Nam initiative from Thomson.

(A British embassy spokesman in Washington said Friday night Thomson took no proposal of any kind on Viet Nam to Moscow, "though naturally he would be prepared to listen to Russian views if the subject arises in the course of his contacts with Soviet leaders."

TO DO WHAT IT CAN

(Other British officials said Thomson's trip "should be seen in the light of the British government's proclaimed desire to do what it can to contribute toward a solution in Viet Nam.")

Diplomats at the United Nations speculated the British minister may act as a go-between for Thant's proposal that both sides in the Vietnamese conflict get together over a conference table.

Britain, which has diplomatic relations with Peking, is considered the logical power to act as liaison in any effort to get a Viet Nam conference under way.

Roughed By Police Says M.P.

OTTAWA (CP)—Gilles Grégire, deputy leader of the Creditistes, is expected to make a strong protest next week before the Commons that he was "manhandled and abused" by three RCMP constables who took him into custody Friday.

The Creditiste member for Lapointe was arrested on two outstanding traffic warrants and held at the Carleton county jail before until payment of two fines.

Mr. Gregoire was placed in a police car by the three constables on Parliament Hill grounds after he refused to accept a warrant for the offence because they were not issued in French.

Pearson Juggles Cabinet

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson juggled his cabinet Friday in an attempt to lift the immigration department out of its recent troubles and fill the gap created by the resignation of Works Minister Jean-Paul Deschatelets.

John R. Nicholson, 63 who entered politics on a dare from the late C. D. Howe, was moved from the post office department to head immigration, a post that Rene Tremblay and several of his predecessors found too hot to handle, Mr. Tremblay was moved to post office.

Mr. Deschatelets resignation for personal reasons resulted in the switch of Lucien Cardin, who gained experience as associate minister to Paul Hellyer in defence, to works, and the entry into the cabinet of Terrebonne MP Leo Cadieux to take over Mr. Cardin's former job.

The prime minister told a press conference that Mr. Deschatelets' departure had prevented him delaying cabinet changes until the report of the Dorion inquiry into charges of bribery and coercion is received.

Mr. Pearson—and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker seconded the statement—expressed regret at Mr. Deschatelets' decision, in a letter to the prime minister Mr. Deschatelets said it was prompted by the "tragedy and sorrow of the death of our beloved daughter."

DAUGHTER DIES

It was the second resignation of a Quebec cabinet minister in three weeks. Yvon Dupuis, 38, quit three weeks ago shortly before a newspaper story linked his name to an alleged race track application scandal.

Mr. Nicholson, 62 the change to post office should mean less controversy than immigration, where he took stiff opposition criticism for his handling of the department and certain immigration cases.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who described the cabinet changes as insignificant, said Mr. Tremblay's move was an admission by the prime minister of the validity of criticisms of the minister and that department."

The opposition leader said Canadians are entitled to an assurance of a complete clean-up.

India Ready to Make Concessions To Stop Bloody Language Riots

From AP-Reuters

NEW DELHI (CP)—The government appeared ready today to make new concessions to southern Indians in an attempt to stop the bloody riots that have swept the area since Hindi was declared the official national language.

Fearing for the unity of the country, the government sent emissaries to Tamil - speaking Madras state where the language riots have claimed at east 50 lives.

Parliamentary Affairs Minister Satyanarayan Sinha told reporters the government will consider putting the southerners' language demands into law if looting, rioting and arson stop.

Hindi became India's only official language Jan. 26 under a 15-year-old provision of the constitution. A separate bill says English "may" continue as an alternative for 10 years. The southerners fear this will subject them to linguistic, economic and cultural domination by northerners.

Police opened fire today on demonstrators who set fire to a post office at Arni in the North Arcot district. The arson set off telegraph and telephone lines and police reinforcements were rushed to the area, the reports said.

Madras city was quiet after three days of trouble, but police maintained their guard on public buildings and vital installations.

Buses were running with police escorts after Friday's stoppage, but rail services were still

As anti-Hindi rioting spread, prime Minister Shastri gave repeated verbal assurances that his government does not plan to impose Hindi on anyone. He has refused, however, to put the guarantees into law.

Many in New Delhi are fearful that Mr. Shastri may have waited too long. Some expressed doubts that the government can negotiate with near-hysterical mobs of 10,000 or more running loose in a vast region of the country. Students, who started the protests, no longer are in command of the mobs.

It is apparent that loot and arson have replaced the language grievances—are the object of many riots.

Continued Air Raids Could Draw Russians Into War

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP) — Continued American air raids on North Viet Nam could drew the Soviet Union into at least a limited war with the United States, says a neutral diplomat who has had access to Soviet thinking at high level.

The diplomat said Friday he had talked Soviet leaders into angry and worried that the Viet Nam situation might explode into something bigger than a limited war.

The diplomat, who declined to be identified, had unusual opportunities to talk with top Soviet leaders after the American air raids Sunday and Monday and with a high official after Thursday's raids.

The diplomat quoted the official as saying the first two raids left some hope here that the situation would calm down as it did after the Tonkin Gulf incidents last summer.

But Thursday's raids and talk in Washington of continued raiding created a feeling in Kremlin circles that the Soviet Union is being forced to take strong action, the diplomat reported.

He quoted a Soviet leader as saying China wants the Soviet Union and the U.S. to fight, but Moscow does not want war.

MISSION 'OUTDATED'

The mission of Soviet Premier Kosygin in North Viet Nam and the agreement he announced there for help to strengthen North Viet Nam's defences already have been outdated by the Thursday raids, the diplomat said he was told.

The possibility of sending Soviet jet fighters to help protect North Viet Nam was mentioned to the diplomat, he said.

It was not clear to him whether Soviet Air Force pilots would fly them, he said, but clear statements that the present course of developments would lead to war with the U.S. indicated Soviet pilots might be used.

The diplomat said Soviet leaders argue they cannot control the Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam. The American air raids have been made in reprisal for guerrilla attacks on American and South Vietnamese installations there.

The Russians suggest, the diplomat continued, that North Viet Nam cannot control the guerrillas either—a point Washington denies.

So, Soviet leaders argue, for the Americans to retaliate against North Viet Nam for actions it cannot control is taking a risk—in the face of Soviet promises of help—that seems provocative, the diplomat said.

University Liberal Federation last weekend. One called for the governor-general not the Queen to be head of state in Canada. The other asked for the resignation of Edmund Asselin (L — Montreal Notre-Dame-de-Grace).

About the constitutional proposal, he said: "I am quite happy with our present constitution — the Queen, the governor - general and Parliament."

He was asked how he reconciled his views on morality with the views of the federation on Mr. Asselin.

WON'T TRY

"I am not going to try to reconcile what I have said and what has been said about a certain member of Parliament, particularly when he is not here."

He added: "Mr. Asselin himself feels there is no irreconcilibility in what I have stated and what he has done."

The prime minister said that university students, whether Liberal or Conservative, are famous for their frank expression of views.

(A royal commission last year studied the case of Mr. Asselin's land dealings with the Provincial Liberal Party board of Greater Montreal while he was a member of provincial city council and before he was elected to the Commons. It said points made by Mr. Asselin were "objectionable, inconscionable and immoral.")

On the Asselin dispute within the Conservative party, a reporter asked Mr. Pearson how he felt Opposition Leader Diefenbaker remaining at the head of the party.

With a smile he said, "The House of Commons wouldn't be the same without Mr. Diefenbaker."

He touched briefly on the Viet Nam situation when he said there is a danger of it growing into a large-scale war. There also was danger in any hurried negotiations to end the fighting. An ill - prepared conference could result in South Viet Nam falling under the control of Communist North Viet Nam.

Firemen Busy But No Damage Is Reported

TRENTON — The firemen of the Trenton brigade had a busy evening and early morning answering alarms, but none of the calls were serious and there was little loss.

At 10.30 Leonard Street late Friday night, A. F. Cormier was working on a car motor, when it caught fire but he got out under control when the firemen arrived. After the blaze the fire department was called out to a chimney fire at the home of H. Lamers on the York Road, and while they were away from the hall answering the call, came from a house fire at the home of Wayne Kelly, 72 Louis Street.

There was little damage at either fire.

Public Works employees have been busy pumping out the basements but the pressure has been relieved by the cold weather that has set in. At Frankford the residents were warned to use as little water as possible due to flooding of the treatment plant.

Finally in the news from Trenton a deer was killed near the service centre on Highway 2 when it was hit by a car. It was that did not stop. It is believed that the driver was unaware that he had hit anything.

Industrialists Protest Sewer Charge

TRENTON — On Thursday, five local industrialists met with Trenton's mayor, controllers and Councillors Duncan McDonald and Edward Todd to protest the proposed system of levying the sewer charge, instigated by council at the first of the year.

John Owens, Eben James, J. B. Harder, Ben Kroon and Arthur Quickert presented their objections to the committee, and at the end of the session, the mayor suggested it might be to everyone's advantage if other industries voiced their objections, if any, to the system.

The main bone of contention was that industries will be paying the charge based on their highest water use bill for the year. Some of the town's industries do not use town water, and some only for part of the year, so any quantity into the sewers. In the case of seasonal industry, which may perhaps only two months of the year, the charge is for six months of the year.

Province May Pay Big Share Of Storage Pond

TRENTON — Following a meeting in Toronto this week with the Hon. R. H. Simonette, minister of energy and resources, Mayor James McCormick said he was "reasonably sure" the town would get a 75 per cent grant on engineering costs for the building of a water storage pond beside the new development road in Murray township.

Estimated cost is around $100,000."

The township council of Murray has agreed to permit the town to use the land for a water storage pond — provided the town bear all costs in connection with the building of the pond and a residential drive — and provided the Trenton Public Utilities Commission provide 10,000 gallons of water a day for a projected new area school to be built in the vicinity of the proposed pond.

WILL KEEP JOBS

The minor changes indicated that for the time being at least Justice Minister Favreau and Secretary of State Lamontagne are to retain their jobs.

Mr. Favreau, appointed last year as Mr. Pearson's Quebec lieutenant, was under fire for almost a week late last year for failing to consult his departmental officers before denying against laying any charge against Raymond Denis, who was accused in the Commons of offering a bribe to Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne.

The lawyer's allegations that Mr. Denis tried to persuade him to allow bail for Lucien Rivard, wanted in the U.S. for narcotics smuggling, are being investigated by a judicial inquiry under Chief Justice Frederico Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court.

The secretary of state, and Mr. Tremblay, were criticized for purchasing furniture on credit from a now - bankrupt Montreal firm.

The new minister, Mr. Cadieux, is 58. After working as the Canadian Army's co-director of public relations overseas from 1941 to 1944, he became a war correspondent for the Montreal La Presse.

A graduate of the Commercial College of St. Jerome and the seminary of St. Therese de Blainville, he has been prothonotary of the Superior Court in Terrebonne district, mayor of St. Antoine des Laurentides and president of the St. Antoine des Laurentides school board.

Mr. Cadieux, a quiet, non-controversial MP, was on the Commons special flag committee that produced the single red maple leaf design. He first entered the Commons in the 1962 general election.

Mr. Nicholson was also elected first in 1962 for the Vancouver Centre riding. Coming to Ottawa with the reputation of an able administrator and a senior executive of the Crown-owned Polymer Corporation and the Brazilian Light and Power Company, Mr. Nicholson immediately entered the cabinet as forestry minister.

He said his decision to enter politics resulted from a conversation with his friend, the late C. D. Howe. After complaining about the calibre of Canadian politics, he was told by Mr. Howe to stop talking and run for office, he says.

During the last year when postmaster-general, Mr. Nicholson's pet project has been Canral Mortgage and Housing Corporation. He has put forward new legislation to provide low-cost housing for lower income families.

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Nicholson has "done a good job indeed" on housing but was unable to say whether he would retain his post while holding down the onerous immigration portfolio.

Mr. Tremblay, 42, has experienced a difficult year in immigration, and an aide said Friday he was happy with the change.

He has an impressive scholastic record, and the young economist was looked upon as one of Mr. Pearson's bright, young prospects in Quebec.

But the continuous controversy about his administration of the department, the allegations about his former executive assistant Raymond Denis, and later criticism about his furniture purchases on credit were viewed as reasons for his shift.

Because Mr. Dupuis headed no department, Mr. Pearson said there was no need for an immediate successor.

Mr. Cardin, a 45-year-old lawyer, etched himself a role under Mr. Hellyer in a post that has frustrated many. He helped Mr. Hellyer in the task of reorganizing the armed forces and was spokesman for the department in the Commons on many areas of policy.

Mr. Deschatelets was one of the most respected ministers from Quebec, and Mr. Pearson was clearly disappointed to see him depart.

TRIED PERSUASION

An exchange of letters released by the prime minister said that as late as last Sunday Mr. Pearson tried to persuade him to remain with a less onerous cabinet post.

Mr. Deschatelets considered this request, but on Wednesday wrote the prime minister:

"It is with very great regret that, for personal reasons I must ask you to accept my resignation from the government.

Those personal reasons, which arise out of the tragedy and sorrow of the death of our beloved daughter, I have already explained to you in some detail —orally and in writing.

Mr. Cadieux who will be sworn into the cabinet at 3 p.m. EST Monday, said he was "a bit surprised, but extremely pleased" by the appointment.

"It's one of those opportunities to serve your country that don't come to you very often. I hope I can do a good job. I am certainly going to try."

Wrecking Crew Dismantles Burnt-out Building When Timbers Crash to Street

Police hastily cordoned off downtown Front Street at the height of the Friday-night shopping rush last night when timbers from the facade of the hers from the burnout West Robertson Block crashed three storeys to the street.

The timber broke off from the facade of the block's attic, weakened in last Saturday's million-dollar fire that burnt the building.

The alarm was raised when several heavy planks, tore loose by gusting winds, crashed onto the roofs of cheap cars.

"Fortunately" said a police officer, "no pedestrians were hit."

However, declaring the situation a public hazard, officials blocked off the street between Campbell Street and the Four Corners, and called out work crews to dismantle the burnt-out top-floor frontage.

Wreckers worked for nearly three hours to place a big mobile crane with a grab bucket against the building and began rooting out the tottering timbers.

The work was carried out without incident while police directed pedestrians and traffic through a public address system.

porters in the Parliamentary Press Gallery. Mr. Gregoire said that while he was being taken into custody he told the officers he wanted to see Justice Minister Favreau. He said the request was denied.

"One of the officers seemed to lose his head completely," Mr. Gregoire said.

SAYS ARM TWISTED

"He twisted my arm behind my back and while another held the door open he put a knee in my back and sent me flying across the back seat of the car, across the back seat of the car, almost through the other door."

Mr. Gregoire said his watch was torn off his wrist.

The traffic offences occurred in October and Mr. Gregoire was convicted, in absentia in magistrate's court Jan. 22 of a charge of driving 55 miles an hour in a 35-mile-an-hour zone on the road to the Ottawa airport and of parking in a no-parking zone on Parliament Hill. He was fined $30 on the first charge and $5 on the second.

Mr. Gregoire said he was "accosted" about 2:15 p.m. EST just as he got to the bottom step at the base of the Peace Tower.

When he arrived at the jail, Mr. Gregoire said "they were about to throw me into the showers" when he was rescued by the governor, Lt.-Col. Ollivier.

At this point he was allowed to phone Mr. Favreau. He said he told the minister he would go to jail for seven days rather than pay the fines, unless he was served with warrants of committal in French rather than English.

Mr. Favreau undertook to have his own office staff translate the documents. After paying the fines and $3.50 in costs, Mr. Gregoire was released at about 6:30 p.m.

An RCMP spokesman said the force has received no complaint from Mr. Gregoire. He said that if one is received it will be investigated.

tree attempted to gain a statement from Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson on just what was the policy of the Opposition regarding the Queen's representative in Ontario.

Mr. Thompson replied only that he was pleased the Conservatives were calling on him to make policy statements for them.

Later he said that certain members of the house wanted to cause levity, controversy or misrepresentation in regard to Mr. Thompson's statement. Surely a member could express an individual viewpoint without hysteria resulting in the government benches.

In other business:

Municipal Affairs Minister Wilfrid Spooner said changes in the Planning Act will take effect May 3.

The changes, approved during the last session of the legislature, relieve municipal planning boards of some of their powers, and vest them in local committees of adjustment.

The major purpose of the changes is to remove from planning boards the responsibility of dealing with applications for consents to sale of lands, on mortgages and long - term leases on land located within an area of subdivisional control.

CRITICIZE SYSTEM

Both opposition parties criticized the system of auditing government accounts.

Stan Haidasz (L—Algoma-Manitoulin) said the provincial auditor has not the same independence or detachment as the federal auditor-general.

Ken Bryden (NDP—Toronto Woodbine) said the powers of supervision and control over spending by the elected representatives of the people, have not kept pace with the growth power of the executive branch of government.

Leaders of the two opposition parties agreed to a suggestion by Premier Roharts to adjourn the Monday and Tuesday sittings to permit members to attend an Ontario - sponsored regional development conference here.

Woman Given Four Years For Slaying

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Helen Reta McLellan, 41, of Brockville was sentenced Friday to four years in the women's penitentiary at Kingston for the shotgun slaying last November of her husband, Walter, 41.

Mrs. McLellan was sentenced after a 12-man, Ontario Supreme Court jury reduced the charge to manslaughter from capital murder. The jury heard evidence for four days.

Mrs. McLellan told the court Thursday her husband died shortly after "almost all that I thought was the floor" when he tried to force her to commit indecent acts with him.

No Surrender In Viet Nam Says States

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration was officially silent today about proposals for a negotiated settlement of the Viet Nam war. Moreover, the climate appeared chilly.

Officials said privately the U.S. has never ruled out peace talks and that it is up to North Viet Nam and China to halt guerrilla attacks on South Viet Nam.

Still, there is hope that the Communists will come to regard their attacks on South Viet Nam as too expensive an undertaking to run the risk of further reprisals and will decide to co-exist peacefully with their neighbors.

Officials maintain the U.S. cannot discuss terms that will amount to surrender of South Viet Nam to the Communists. As one high source put it: "If they want us out of South Viet Nam, a good way would be to call off their guerrilla and leave the country alone."

White House Press Secretary George E. Reedy refused to comment on a proposal by UN Secretary-General U Thant Friday that both sides in the Viet Nam conflict begin talks preparatory to negotiations.

Kosygin Real Target?

Walter Lippman believes the Viet Cong raid on Pleiku, which took such a heavy toll of U.S. lives and planes, was "closely related to Prime Minister Kosygin's visit to North Viet Nam."

He thus shares the view of the Pentagon and President Johnson, for it was announced that the retaliatory U.S. raids on North Viet Nam installations were in reply to a "politically timed effort" by the Viet Cong.

That, though, may be as far as Lippman's interpretation of events coincides with that of the Johnson Administration.

Most of us, reading the press statements of U.S. officials, had presumed that the U.S. believed the attack on Pleiku was intended to impress or influence the Soviet Premier.

Lippman's view is that it was made to discredit him, or in the alternative to discredit the U.S.

"It is hard to believe," he writes, "that Mr. Kosygin would have picked the day after his arrival in Hanoi to touch off the raid. He was in no position to help the Viet Cong to carry out the raid nor to protect North Viet Nam against American retaliation. It is most probable, therefore, that the affair was ordered and directed by men who intended to spoil Mr. Kosygin's mission in Southeast Asia and to interfere with his role as a principal power in bringing about a negotiated settlement."

Who would want to discredit Kosygin? Lippman's answer is the Chinese communists.

Some may read into this explanation of events the suggestion that the U.S. was tricked, that it should not have responded by attacking North Viet Nam installations. Lippman does not take this view. "Had the United States refrained from retaliating, the Chinese and their supporters in Asia and elsewhere would have called it a demonstration that the United States is a paper tiger, and it would therefore view the Soviet policy of peaceful coexistence is unnecessary and absurd," he writes. The belief the U.S. is a paper tiger, he says, would be "the greatest delusion on which our adversaries could possibly gamble."

So, in his opinion, the retaliatory raids were the correct policy. But the Chinese still were the winners. The U.S. raids showed "that in Asia the Soviet Union is a paper tiger unable to defend its clients."

This is as far as Lippman carries his argument. It seems to us, though, that there must be a corollary to the last statement. Unless the Chinese aim to discredit themselves equally with the Soviet Union, then it is essential that the Chinese create the impression, in some way, that they are not similarly totally unable to protect their allies from the U.S. This would mean that some violent reaction by the Chinese is in the making. The world will wait uneasily to ascertain whether this is true.

Meanwhile those people who have been viewing the Vietnamese war with western eyes might do worse than reread an article by Malcolm W. Browne, Associated Press correspondent in Saigon, which appeared in Thursday's issue of The Ontario Intelligencer. Browne tells an almost unbelievable story of the manner in which the Viet Cong imposes tolls on the country's only overland route from Saigon to the border with North Viet Nam, how South Vietnamese soldiers on holidays are permitted to travel the road on payment of $2 to $10 per car or truck and the surrender of their uniforms, and how the Viet Cong has collected $40,000 in this manner since November.

Since this is the first time we have been informed of this novel method of financing a war, a toll on the movement of the troops of one's enemy, perhaps we may be permitted to wonder whether we have any real understanding of what is going on in Viet Nam.

Bowel Movement Pattern Is Extremely Unusual

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 27 years old. My bowels move once every two weeks. This has been the pattern for as long as I can remember.

However, I have never consulted a doctor or worried about this, as I never have noticed any bad effects. Is my pattern abnormal, or is it beginning to be my health? — R. C.

I'd say your pattern is extremely unusual; I will not say that it is abnormal or dangerous.

There is no set frequency. True, for most people a movement once a day or every two days is natural and correct. They should stick to this pattern or rhythm.

But I have known others for whom a slower rhythm was correct — every several days or for some once a week. I can't say that I know of any longer span than that, but I'm not ready to call it impossible.

However, because of the once-a-day myth, some people try to a panic if they go longer, and begin tampering with their systems with physics and enemas. Some of them create real problems for themselves by trying to force the body to accept a rhythm it doesn't need or want.

In the once-in-two-weeks pattern, if there is no discomfort and there are no symptoms of trouble, I don't think we dare say, without further investigation, that there necessarily is any harm to your health.

There are, however, several possible factors leading to this condition. Some people of long, lean build have a ptosis, or dropping of the abdominal organs. The colon may be unusually dilated, or lack good muscular tone. Hence it may retain a large amount of waste material before finally discharging it. (I certainly know enough people with "nervous colons" or colitis who would gladly exchange their condition for yours!)

You may, perhaps, have fallen into the habit of ignoring the urge for a movement. In such cases a bowel gets into the habit of not providing a strong urge until it absolutely must. A good rule for anyone is never to ignore a bowel urge.

Finally food (and fluid) intake has a great deal to do with it. If you habitually eat foods with inadequate bulk, it takes longer for enough residue or waste to accumulate. The person who habitually eats a lot of high-residue foods (fruits and vegetables, especially those containing a lot of fibres; bran, nuts, etc.) will accumulate more cellulose "bulk" or waste.

Inadequate water or fluid intake can result in sluggish-ness.

Thus, in your case, R. C., I would want to know a good deal more about your build, your habits, what and how much you eat and drink.

An X-ray of your colon would be most helpful in determining its size and noting whether any abnormality exists.

If, for example, movements are hard and painful, I'd certainly try different eating habits. Observation of any possible signs of vitamin deficiency would be in order. If you eat a diet too low in residue it may mean you are not getting enough vitamins.

Your extremely slow rhythm, I should think, would be well worth some observation by your doctor. But if he can't find anything wrong, I'd just put you down as an unusual case and let it go at that. But if something is wrong — you're young. Get busy and modify your habits or diet. Don't however, assume that once-a-day is correct for everybody. It isn't.

Letter to the Editor

Suggest Auditorium Centennial Project

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

Do the citizens of Belleville realize that they are losing the opportunity of having a 1,200 -seat auditorium within the next two years because of a lack of about $21,000 of the required cost?

An 800-seat auditorium, properly designed for the performing arts, is being planned for the new high school. This minimum is the minimum requirement for a school of its size and will hold only slightly more than half the student body of the school. Though the local Council voted to pay its share (about 64 per cent of the amount required for an additional 400 seats) to enlarge the auditorium to 1,200 seats (about 9 sq. ft. per seat, costing $17.50 per sq. ft.), four townships in the school area voted against it. No doubt this auditorium could still be enlarged if the additional money required were raised.

It seems that this enlarged the new school auditorium would be an excellent Centennial Project, and one well within the city budget for such a project. The cost of constructing a separate auditorium of this size now or at a later date would be beyond the finances of the community.

We realize that improvement of Zwick's Island as a park is the proposed Centennial Project. However, as the citizens of Belleville voted to retain the Parks Board last December, city money will be available each year for parks, including improvement of Zwick's Island. But money for a project such as an auditorium will not be forthcoming.

We all know the inadequacies of the only auditorium in the city—the Belleville Collegiate auditorium. Those who attended the Ballet performance last Saturday evening will heartily agree with us on these inadequacies! Though it is planned to equip the new auditorium with a proper stage and accoustics for the performing arts, its small capacity (800 seats) will prohibit, from a financial standpoint, many out-of-town companies from playing here. Even now, the National Ballet Company loses money every time it performs in this city because of the small seating capacity of the auditorium (approximately 1000 fans.)

Immediate action is necessary to take advantage of this opportunity to enlarge the auditorium to 1200 seats, as at this moment the architect is drawing plans the new school with an 800-capacity auditorium. If it is too late for the city's Centennial Project, possibly such energetic organizations as the Chamber of Commerce, Belleville Labor Council, University Women's Club, Theatre Guild, Ballet Guild, and the many Service Clubs in the city would like to make the raising of $21,000 for enlarging the school auditorium their 1967 project. In Brantford, it is the Lacker Council that is doing the merchandising service of providing its city with a greatly-needed auditorium.

New Twist To Old Game

Hamilton Spectator

A cocktail party game gaining popularity in Hamilton is one that has been well-known to children for as many years as there have been children's parties.

It is asking riddles — but with a difference.

These riddles amount to a play on words and are often quite funny.

Here are a few samples, the result of intensive research:

Q. What is the difference between Goldilocks and a geneologist?

A. A geneologist is interested in forebears.

Q. What do you do if you catch a dog eating a dictionary?

A. You take the words right out of his mouth.

Q. What is the difference between a bird with one wing and a bird with two wings?

A. A difference of a pinion.

How Long Can Pearson Keep Lid on the Scandal Can?

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — This could be a Session of Parliament which, when over, most Canadians might wish had never happened.

Malaneholy rumors continue to circulate that more, much more, is to come of scandal in high places.

Understandably, because gossip is difficult to deal with, the whispers have gone undenied.

But they have been loud enough that this very lack of denial, becomes disturbing.

Prime Minister Pearson, and what is overwhelmingly a majority of Liberals have been appalled at how wide the smear of the breath of scandal has become on the face of the Government.

The prime minister, publicly proclaiming that he won't tolerate what he has called "a dirty establishment," has been doing some quiet housecleaning.

There have been resignations of a few second echelon men, Parliamentary Secretaries and Special and Committee Assistants. And a Cabinet shuffle, on a major scale, is in the works.

But the prime minister, promising a thorough housecleaning only, as he has phrased it, when the need for it is clearly demonstrated, has been taking his time.

His colleagues and confidantes say that he is waiting for Mr. Justice Fredrick Dorion's report on the politics involved in the Mafia conspiracy.

WORRIES PEOPLE

But some of the Young Turks among the Liberals, becoming impatient, have pressured to wait while, case after case, the stain of scandal seems to spread.

In reprisal they are hinting darkly of spilling the scandal beans on the Conservative opposition.

They say they have cases of improprieties and indiscretions among the Conservatives in Ontario, years they were in power which would match, or maybe more than match their own.

Documented, too, they insist. The very idea that they are sitting on the lid, specifically forbidden by the prime minister to go into that area, has some Liberals plaster the Conservatives as they themselves have been plastered, the Canadian voting public, already disturbed by this talk, rumor, gossip and some evidence of a lowering of morality, will be revolted beyond endurance.

If it turns out that the Conservatives in their days of power were tarred with the same scandal brush as the Liberals now in theirs, the taxpayer will be relieved to the point of disowning both Old Parties.

The political reaction of scandal piled on scandal would be that of "A plague on both your houses," with the voters denouncing the two old parties and turning, in disgust, to the New Democrats.

There is some early evidence of this already, with the Liberals and Conservatives alike suffering severely, while the NDP has been gaining substantial support in many of the metropolitan areas the two Old Parties used to consider their private preserves.

NDP TO POWER?

Should this early trend, unchecked, become more evidence of political immaturity giving it added escalation, alarming many governments and lives and Liberals warn that the election of an NDP administration to Ottawa or to Queen's Park in Toronto would be quite possible.

One of the odd developments in this current disillusionment with the two Old Parties — aggravated by the continuing and unsettling minority government situation — is that Social Credit, which has been making a pitch on the theme of political virtue, hasn't been noticeably benefiting.

It has been NDP Leader Tommy Douglas, an Old Guardsman in Federal politics dating back to the days of M. J. Coldwell, and not New Reformer of the snow white political image, Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson, who Liberals and Conservatives agree has been picking the pockets of public approval.

So far, by and large, the prime minister has anything to do with it — and up to now, he has had plenty, confidence and confidantes — will remain tight on whatever garbage can of Conservative scandal there may be.

But some of the ambitious Young Liberals, the New Young Men on the Government side of the Commons, are getting terribly restless. Fired up over the way some of the men in the Administration, and particularly the Quebec ranks, smeared by scandal, they are now in the mood to advise a besmirch back in respectful return.

Question: How long can the PM hold them in line?

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

Second Glance

By Viva Richmond Graham

A HEART'S SONG

"The month of February is a snow-lace valentine God sends from His heart to yours and mine." —
Billie Shoecraft.

Do you recall the novel and movie "Grand Hotel"?

"You can live down any number of failures, but you can't live down a great success," is the way the author Vicki Baum describes her regret that she is almost solely known by this book. Few realize she has written some ten novels. (I've thrown away at least twice as many").

A HEART'S SONG LIT

Quite accidentally we learned this. While at the Corby Public Library recently, by chance we picked up Vicki Baum's autobiography "It Was All Quite Different" (Funk and Wagnalls Company, Inc., N.Y.), written in her seventieth year (she quotes Princess Metternich's "My dear, serenity isn't old for a cathedral. But for a woman — ah, mon Dieu . . .") and regret to say she died at the age of seventy.

Her autobiography reveals a remarkable, lively, vibrant and brave woman of great charm and wit. "I submit one can learn to swim against the current instead of drifting with it. One can live and act not "because" but 'inspite of'. It may take a bit stronger moral fiber in the beginning but it is no harder to develop that, than it is to train your muscles to play ball or brain to work out problems". She speaks from deep experience of a childhood in Vienna filled with loneliness and misery — "a hell too hot to bear" — yet in spite of all, she became a concert harpist under Mahler. After a marriage which ended in divorce, she became the wife of the well-known conductor Dr. Hans Lert, mother of two sons and one of Germany's most successful young editors and popular author. Her novel Grand Hotel, a "literary landmark of the '30's "brought her and her family to America where she remained and became a citizen.

MATTERS OF THE HEART

The following are some excerpts from her book concerning matters of the heart, which as an author of novels dealing with love she handles with deft authority. As we are next door to Valentine's day, they seem quite apropos.

ON LOVE:

"It is the prerogative of youth to be in a mess all the time. Everything happens to you for the first time . . . O youth, oh, for those cursed blessed first times . . . In my generation love cut deeper, was not so widespread and shallow. We did not analyze each word, movement, subconscious thought and emotion like characters by Sartre. We went at love naively, wholeheartedly. We were simply not afraid of getting hurt by loving as youth appears today."

"I hope I won't lose my need to love some one, something. The more and the deeper, the better. To be in love, to love and be loved is my need. Fortunately, I never lacked this to this day. Andre Gide once wrote: 'Here is some advice I give to the young, although I have not always followed it myself: Hold on to those things that have cost you the greatest effort to achieve'."

ON HAPPINESS

"It seems to me that every fulfillment carries with it a drop of disappointment. The lovely thing about real happiness is that it is there all of a sudden, unexpected, weightless as a little summer cloud and just as radiant and intangible."

"In the final summing up everyone of us receives the same amount of happiness . . . that clear sharp fluid, floating, singing, overwhelming feeling that is so rare and lasts such a short while.

"Happiness cannot be forced or coerced or commanded. It comes all by itself and everyone of us has a share. But our share may be a little bigger if we are ready to be happy; ready and willing to recognize the rare bird when it slights in our hands."

ON KEEPING ONESELF LOVEABLE

"Not to take myself, nor the world perse, as too important that has been the leitmotiv of my life. It's part of the philosophy the ants taught me . . . I can assure you that fusing our individual and cosmic unimportances is healthy training.

"(This feeling of importance) is as malignant as sickness as the tendency of the present generation to endow their little egos with an importance out of all proportion. It is a road that leads to breakdowns, drug addiction, alcoholism, mental disease and a general softening of will power, intestinal fortitude and brain . . .

"This much I know: if you think yourself so important it follows that your toothache will be very, very important under ache indeed and hurt like the devil . . . Everything gets enlarged and twisted out of proportion — your ambitions, your success, your failures, your marriage, your vices, neuroses, aberrations and guilt — as well as your supreme goodness and virtues, your joys which by nature are always in the minority, and your sufferings that your self importance makes unbearable. 'Watch out!' I feel like shouting from the roof, 'you're not so important, so, not important at all!'"

ON MARRIAGE

"There is nothing easier than to ridicule a love when it is past. It would save us a lot of despair if one could apply the same humorous detachment to a love that's still present and alive."

"I had not yet learned that mature male, real men, can give only a small part of themselves, their time and thought to women and love. Believe me, ladies, the great lover is no bargain in the long run."

"There is a secret . . . the difference between a love affair and a marriage. Speaking as an impassioned gardener: love affairs are annuals: once they have bloomed and died they are finished forever. Marriage on the other hand, is a hardy perennial, if you only wait its time; it will bloom again and again. Amen."

Reading of Sex Literature Does Not Cause Children To Commit Sexual Crimes

OTTAWA (CP) — Reading so-called pornographic literature does not cause children and adolescents to commit sexual crimes, says an American psychologist.

But Dr. Sol Gordon, chief psychologist of the Middlesex County Mental Health Clinic, New Brunswick, N.J., says the negative reactions of some teachers and parents to a child's normal curiosity about sex can cause the child to become insecure and neurotic.

He suggests that parents who are unsure about the proper way to deal with their child's questions on sex should consult the Canadian pamphlet, Sex, What Should I Tell My Child. It is distributed free of charge by local and provincial health departments.

Writing in a special supplement to the current edition of Canada's Mental Health, a federal health department publication, Dr. Gordon gives this example of an improper reaction on the part of a teacher.

WRONG APPROACH

"Jimmy, a nine-year-old, is caught drawing a 'dirty' picture. The teacher gets very excited. She rushes and tears the picture from the boy's desk.

"Apart from harming Jimmy, the teacher has indicated to the class that she is threatened by her own sex problems, and the class then takes revenge on the teacher.

"She rushes the boy to the principal who also gets very excited, indicating that he, too, is threatened by the question of sex. Now I ask you, just what kind of 'education' is this?"

The psychologist says he has experimented with children by having to interpret them in pornographic literature. "They were just not interested and wouldn't read it."

He believes the children in greatest danger of committing sexual crimes are those who do not know how to read or who do not read at all.

"I have yet to hear an authenticated case of a child or adolescent who, because of reading pornographic material, engaged in a sexual crime.

CURIOSITY AT FAULT

"If you examine the cases of these children you find that it is the wild curiosity, the inability to gratify any of their sexual needs in any way whatsoever, that is responsible."

Dr. Gordon says the delinquents he treats get better when they start to read so-called pornography — if they start to read at all.

"Of course, we are not supposed to say things like that. It's not nice—but it's true, I am not for pornography. I am against it as much as anyone else, but I am not going to attribute to pornography the sum total of social evil people can be attributed to it, because it simply isn't true."

He warns parents not to be preoccupied with cleanliness.

If children feel their thoughts are dirty, their ideas dirty and their behavior dirty, they end up feeling guilty and insecure.

"They are well on the road to delinquency and mental or emotional breakdown, and eventually become the statistics of social pathology studies and reports."

HOUSEWORK COURSE

EDMONTON (CP) — The Northern Alberta Institute of Technology has begun a 72-hour course to provide trained homemakers to fill job vacancies offered by public agencies and individuals. Knits Quickly Achieve Status of Dress Classics

By MARGARET NESS

TORONTO (CP) — Relative newcomers to fashion, knits have quickly achieved the best status of wardrobe classics. Stretch girdles and the growing popularity of travel are two of the reasons.

They're so widely accepted now, in fact, that it's sometimes difficult to remember that not so many years ago they were considered downright dowdy.

All knitted clothes are descendants of the sweater. In the 1920s, when shirts were short it was inevitable that someone would knit a sweater so long it became a dress.

These early sweater - dresses were shapeless and the fad died. Then someone knitted a sweater and matching skirt. The idea caught on. They still tended to sag and bag, however, and it wasn't until precision knitting machines took over that they began to surrender the dowdy look.

Even then it was some time before they reached the top brackets of fashion. Much of the credit for the eventual emergence goes to the Italian designers. Confined at first to exciting simple lines and vivid colors, their knits later invaded every fashion except last-day clothes.

Ten years ago Oleg Cassini took the knit plunge in North America but found little response. In fact, he says, he became known as the "knit-wit."

ABANDONED LINENS

He dropped them just as other American designers were deciding to jump on the knit bandwagon. Cassini relentlessly stated them, and they now are almost his trademark.

The late Claire McCardell, noted for her casual clothes, gave knits another boost. And trend - setter Pauline Trigere placed cotton knits high on the fashion charts with her promotion in the spring of 1956.

The travel bug kept the trend going and 1 h e handbook on travel, f a s h i o n authority Eleanor Lambert wrote:

"Knit dresses were made for travel. They're no packing problem because they never show wrinkles. There are knits for every climate — cotton knits, silk knits, woollen knits and if your knit dress has a jacket so much the better. But choose with care because knits cling and can look fattening if too tight or moulded."

Much of that difficulty now has been eliminated by the new stretch girdles. Boned under garments were stiff and did tend to reveal ridges. The two-way stretch girdles allow for ease of movement, e v e n in knits.

SWIM IN KNITS

The popularity of knits has even reached into swimwear, in the Canadian spring collection previewed recently in Montreal there was a swimsuit, inspired by Cassini, in coin-dot, double-knit jersey with a long body and short ruffled skirt.

Gernreich also continues his skin-patterned knit dresses. His cotton knit dress with matching shirts with extremely short skirts, in tobacco-tone, m a g e n t a horizontal stripes worn with vertically striped stockings, is a case in point. He even featured cotton knit ground-crew overalls like those in vivid stripes and in lemon-and-violet-stripes.

Burlington Mills, in its showing in connection with the New York Couture Group exhibition, devoted an entire scene to what it called "Americana knits." Included were a blazer, look in a brown - and - white striped knit, a jacket knitted of orlon, a white blazer, blue pants and shell all knitted of orlon, a vivid stripe pants-skirt and jersey of orlon and wool, and a man's pale gold-and-bronze shirt knitted of spun and dacron, to be worn with dark-brown slacks.

Going Places

Malacca Is Living Museum With Relics of Many Nations

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

MALACCA, Malaysia — Malacca is a strange continental breeze in the Asian-British atmosphere of Malaya.

From 1511 when it fell to Portuguese Alfonso d'Albuquerque, to 1824, when the Dutch swapped it to the English for a piece of Sumatra, it was one of the key ports of the Far East. As early as 1400 it was a great city where the Chinese traded silks and camphor for parakeets, tin and gold dust.

Today, in the day-long sunset of Malaya's west coast, Malacca sleeps on the ruins and memories of its fierce and busy centuries, a living museum of Oriental, Portuguese, Dutch colonial history.

The people remain mostly Malay and rural, the ladies mincing gracefully through the streets in their ankle-long sarongs and lace bodices, twisting bamboo-and-paper parasols over their shoulders.

An exception is a tiny anachronistic Portuguese fishing village. Where Phoenician boats line the stony beaches, and swarthy men with names like Da Silva and Santa Maria, speaking an archaic Spanish-Portuguese patois, drag for tiny shrimps.

The Duke of Albuquerque ordered a mighty fortified walled city and raised palaces and cathedrals to Malacca. Today, only the Old Fort Gate remains near the city centre. The rest was destroyed by Dutch bombardment in 1641.

TUNNEL SEALED FOREVER

From the Old Fort Gate a mysterious tunnel once led to the hilltop Church or Our Lady and onward to St. John Hill. In this church St. Francis Xavier preached and later was buried for six months. It is said the tunnel afforded him private access to the great hill. The British tried to explore it in 1867, but when investigators disappeared in its depths, the tunnel was sealed forever.

Relics of St. Francis — a fingernail and piece of skin — remain in another Malacca church. But his memory lives more palpably in the city Cross, the predecessor of which was planted by the saint in the harbor, on a rock never touched by high tides. The harbor since has been filled for a green and graceful park that sets off the dreamy charm of the city's seaside setting.

St. Francis' church long since has lost everything save its walls, which were consumed with a mixture of ground sea shells and the whites of millions of birds' eggs, found on the beaches. Inside still rest, side by side, the tombstones of Dutch and Portuguese officers who fought each other for the city.

It was the Dutch who gave Malacca most of its color. Their terra cotta bulbous roofs still stand around the central square. The Stad Huis (municipal building), still used as such, has a perpendicularly Dutch balcony for public proclamations, looks as if it were lifted bodily out of Little Old Nieuw Amsterdam.

So does the old Dutch Church like all the other buildings the color of cream of tomato soup. Its tile roof is supported by great beams, each cut from one tree. The church is noteworthy for its neat, simple Dutch Reformed style as often found in old churches in New York, and its assortment of memorial plaques. One of them eulogizes William Milne, who first translated the Protestant Bible into Chinese.

Alongside the main square is the Malacca River, below where the coastal streamers once tied up. Today there are only sampans.

The influence of the Malays and the ubiquitous Chinese never far removed. Malacca boasts one of the largest Chinese cemeteries outside of China. It has a 20-acre spread — carefully selected by professional site-seekers for its propitious location — on a sprawling hillside dotted with the tile arches of graves and stone wings of mausoleums.

EXPLORE CURIOUS WAYS

Malacca is one of the few places in Malaya where the visitor can explore the curious ways of the Babas, or Straits Chinese. They are a mixed Mandarin ways but speak Malay. The city is full of their middle class homes, some of which are open to tourists. Their facades are pierced by lattice screens and great ebony doors covered with ornate brass characters.

The typical Baba home extends from one street to the next, a long series of rooms full of valuable artifacts and ways. The entrance hall usually has a Buddhist ceremonial altar covered with scrolls, candles, bowls of fruit, and joss sticks. The room may be separated by carved ebony doors. The furnishings are ebony tables and chairs inlaid with marble, the floors marble.

Somewhere in the middle is a tiny court open to the sun. The walls of the both usually are lined with proud family photos — portraits of unsmiling ancestors, wedding scenes, massive family reunions. In an inside room is always a shrine for ancestor worship in the confused way of the Taoist - Confucianist way of the Chinese; the altar may bear fruit, cigars, and cigarettes. Invariably, there are cupboards full of priceless painted porcelain crockery, the kind an Anglique dealer's drool to get their hands on, but which are sold only by the desperate.

As usual, the Babas are the country people. Just outside of town, and north towards Negri Sembilan, the busy and picturesque provincial capital of the State of Seremban, the countryside is full of delightful old houses. Their elaborate tile stoops and brightly painted facades offer a sense of permanence in a land where conquerors and monsoons all too often have made architecture temporary.

MATERNITY CENTRES

Picton Couple Observes 50 Years Wedded Life

Many relatives and friends called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Markland, Picton, recently, to extend good wishes on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Markland were married February 1st, 1915, at the Anglican parsonage by the Rev. Barber in Picton.

Mrs. Finlay Markland, now deceased, were their attendants. They recalled the day, heavy snow falling and cold.

Mr. Markland was born in Prince Edward County, son of the late William A. Markland and the late former Emma Leavitt; Mrs. Markland the daughter of Francis Barney Braden, and the former Lenora Matilda Brown. They have both spent their lives in Picton.

Mr. Markland has two sisters living, Mrs. Bert Algar, and Mrs. Kari Smith, both of Picton, and brothers, Clayton and Bernard Markland, also of Picton. One brother George is deceased. Mrs. Markland has one sister, Irving, Mrs. Fannie Leavitt of Oshawa and two brothers, Percy Braden and Lenox Isabel.

A family supper was held Saturday evening in the Anglican parish hall when 50 relatives gathered to enjoy time with them. Mr. Bert Algar, Bill Markland and Clifford Belch proposed toasts to "the bride and groom."

For the "At Home" on Sunday, Mrs. Markland greeted the guests in a teal blue double knit suit with a corsage of yellow roses. Granddaughters Lynne Markland and Donna Parks opened the door to the guests. Mrs. Fannie Leavitt poured tea at the table which was covered with a lace cloth centred with an anniversary cake and golden candles. The rooms were decorated with yellow gold, and blue and white 'mums and gladioli. The couple's granddaughters, daughters-in-law and daughters served refreshments.

Messages of congratulation were received from Prime Minister Lester Pearson, Mr. Diefenbaker, Premier John Robarts, Mr. Allenbrook and Mrs. Whitney. A scroll was received from the Province of Ontario.

Neighbours of Mr. and Mrs. Markland presented them with a lovely decorator clock. Many more gifts and cards were received. Messages were also received from relatives in New York and Syracuse.

Members of their family are: Mrs. Allan Hennessy (Agnes) of Bloomfield; Mrs. Ernest Brough-ton (Annie) of Downview; William of Kingston, Earle, Harold and Howard of Picton, and one son, Jack, deceased. They also have 15 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

U.C.W. Meetings

BRIDGE ST. U.C.W.

The U.C.W. of Bridge Street United Church gathered for a general meeting recently, with the president, Mrs. J. B. Leslie in the chair.

During the business session the finance convener, Mrs. A. Fairman, presented the 1959 budget for $7,113. The executive brought recommendations concerning the regular meetings of the year and the monthly-rating events. Special attention was called to the tea and hat show that is in the final planning at present.

Two members of Evening Unit 2, Miss O. Elson, and Mrs. Ken Kemp, took the worship service, centred on the theme "The Good Samaritan Rides Again."

Mrs. G. Moore introduced Rev. C. R. Rudd of Peterborough, who spoke to the Canadian Bible Society for the Day of Quiete District. Prior to his present appointment Mr. Rudd held pastorates in the United Church for 15 years.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE

In his illustrated lecture, Mr. Rudd showed a recent film, "Freedom in Their Souls"—produced in Africa for the Canadian Bible Society. National Film Board considers this modern film so highly that they suggest it be entered in the National Film Awards competition.

It gives a picture of Africa today, with the revolutionary changes that have come so rapidly. Most of this has in short period of 25 years. Education and industrialization are the two revolutionary forces. But nothing has done so much to set the African free, as the Bible.

And because the Bible must speak in their own language, good translations are essential. In this field there has been splendid co-operation between the United Church and the Canadian Bible Society. In this connection, Mr. Rudd visited Hosue, a missionary well known to U.C.W., has made an outstanding contribution.

Freed of the old superstitions, there is an urgent need for something to fill the void. Good literature, in large supply is one of the answers.

Mrs. A. May conveyed to Mr. Rudd the thanks of the

No Infantile Behavior An Asset to Marriage

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My fiance, Bob, and I are both 20. We have been going together for two years. Bob wants to be married next May. My problem is that I don't know if I should marry him. Here is an example of what bothers me.

Friday night we planned to go to the movies. The last complete show started at 10:58. We arrived at the box-office at 10:15 and found it closed.

ANN LANDERS

Bob was so furious he pulled out of the parking lot like a maniac and careened down the street at a dangerously high rate of speed. He kept saying "I have to get this out of my system."

Finally he swerved off to a side-street and drove into an alley. He brought the car to a screeching halt and put his head in his hands and cried. I sat silent for about 10 minutes while he sobbed. Suddenly he changed the subject and was extremely pleasant as we rode back to my house.

I'm afraid Bob may take his erratic temper out on me after we are married. What do you think? — DESPERATE.

DEAR DESPERATE — A 20-year-old man who deals with frustration at an infantile level is the worst possible husband material. This boy needs psychiatric help, not a wife. And you need to go with others for two years at least, to see if the young man is ever going to grow up.

The letter below is from a woman who married such a man. Please read on:

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Can you help me? My husband has a TNT temper. I try awfully hard not to rile him — ever! In the short while I have memorized a list of things I must not do, or subjects I must not bring up.

It is useless. One wrong word and the table or chair gets a kick or I am in for a terrible tongue lashing.

On the highway he is forever cursing the other drivers, trying to pass them if he feels they have passed him "for spite." He takes everything as a personal affront—a chance shove in a crowded area is always "on purpose." If it rains out a day he had planned to do some gardening he just sits and sulks for hours — won't even read.

Worst of all is his violent temper. He explodes over nothing and now I am the target. What can I do so his outbursts do not hurt so much? Thank you for any help you might give. — FLORADORA GIRL.

DEAR GIRL — Your husband's inability to deal with frustration demonstrates that, emotionally, he is still in knee pants. He needs professional help. If he refuses to get it, I hope you will handle his childish behavior as you would a child's tantrum. Let him blow himself out and ignore him.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a 16-year-old girl who has just started to date. I need some answers to a few questions which have been bothering me.

One certain 17-year-old boy comes over almost every Friday evening to watch TV. He always gets tired and wants to lie down on the sofa or floor. Then he pulls me down next to him. Before I know it he is getting very comfortable with his head in my lap.

I don't know if this is wrong or not. When I suggested that maybe he should not lie down he told me he needs to relax after a hard week in school and if I won't let him relax at my house he will find a girl who is not so formal.

Please tell me if I am being prudish. — UNCERTAIN.

DEAR UNCERTAIN — Any 17-year-old who is so tired he can't sit up when he goes to visit his girl should be sent home. I have stated my rules for necking. "Both parties sitting up — four feet on the floor, and all hands on deck."

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Economical Liver Dish (see Friday); Corn Popovers; Glazed Carrots; Cream Cole Slaw; Maple Rice Delnty (see Friday); Tea.

ORANGE NUT "BREAD (sugarless):

2 cups sifted flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon baking soda, ¾ teaspoon salt, 1/3 cup skim milk, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 tablespoon sucaryl solution or 24 tablets, crushed, ¼ cup diabetic orange marmalade (see below), ¼ cup chopped walnuts.

Combine flour, baking powder, soda and salt in a mixing bowl. Combine skim milk, egg, butter, sucaryl; add to flour mixture. Stir only until all flour is dampened. Fold in marmalade and chopped nuts, mixing as little as possible. Spoon batter into lightly greased 9 x 5 x 3" loaf pan. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour and 40 minutes. Cool before slicing.

SUGARLESS ORANGE MARMALADE (repeated from February 1/63):

Three large navel oranges are washed, then cut in halves crosswise, squeezed on squeezer to remove the juice, which is reserved in a covered jar. The white pulp and membrane are scraped from the inside of the skins with a strong spoon. The rinds are sliced wafer thin with a sharp knife. To the scraped-out pulp in a bowl add 1 cup cold water and let this stand overnight, covered. To the sliced rind in a bowl add 1 cup cold water and let stand overnight, covered. Store the covered orange juice in refrigerator overnight. In the morning strain the water from the white pulp into the rinds, pressing it firmly through sieve. Discard white pith. Simmer rinds in water, covered for 1 hour. To the squeezed-out orange juice add 1½ tablespoons best quality gelatine and let it soak while rinds are cooking. When rinds have cooked 1 hour add to them the orange juice containing the gelatine and 2 tablespoons pure glycerin, 10 or 12 sucaryl tablets and ¼ cup water. Stir over low heat until sucaryl tablets are dissolved and mixture boils all over for 1 minute. Remove from heat and pour into sterile small glasses and seal at once with hot new paraffin, taking a second hot coating when first is cold. Cover with clean lids. I do not think that you should expect this to keep at room temperature, for it is chancy business trying for a perfect seal with paraffin, but I know it will keep for at least a month when stored in the refrigerator. The reducers can go to town on this one.

Mrs. Moorcroft answered many questions from interested parents.

Mr. Nix thanked Mrs. Moorcroft on behalf of the executive and parents.

Electric heating costs far less than you may think

$130.70 is all Mr. and Mrs. J. Reist, of Ayton, near Walkerton, Ontario paid last year to heat their three-bedroom home, including the basement. "If we were building another home," says Mr. Reist, "it would be electrically heated because of the low operating cost and the comfort."

$161.28 is all Mr. and Mrs. MacLellan of Hanmer, near Sudbury, Ontario paid last year to heat their six-room house. "Our cost is below our neighbours' who have an identical-size house with another kind of heating," says Mrs. MacLellan. "We'll never go back to any other system."

$117.56 is all Mr. and Mrs. S.R. Warnica paid last year to heat their 1200 sq. ft. home in Grimsby, Ontario. "It's even less than the estimate Hydro gave us," says Mrs. Warnica. "We like it because it's quiet, gentle heat. You never hear it."

$214.27 is all Mr. and Mrs. R. Moyer paid last year to heat their 2348 sq. ft. home in Woodstock, Ontario. "We're very happy with the cost," says Mrs. Moyer. "We could definitely put electric heating in if we built again," adds Mr. Moyer.

$125.23 is all Mr. and Mrs. G. Angus of Scarborough, Ontario paid last year to heat their six-room house. "I'd never go back to any other system now," says Mrs. Angus. "We are very comfortable and it's so economical it's just fantastic!"

$127.69 is all Mr. and Mrs. M. Pal paid last year to heat their home in Maitland, near Brockville, Ontario. "Hydro rates have dropped twice since we installed electric heat," says Mr. Pal. "The complete lack of maintenance saves us money, too," adds Mrs. Pal.

Electrically heated homes, insulated to Hydro standards, cost no more to heat than homes with other systems.

Flameless electric heating is dependable, safe, and completely clean, since there is no combustion to produce dust, dirt, film or soot. No wonder so many people are turning to electric heating for the comfort, cleanliness and economy they want in a heating system.

Electric heating is one of the many features of the famous Medallion all-electric homes. For full information, consult a qualified electric heating contractor, or your Hydro.

A Lift for Living

Take Notice How Significant Little Differences Can Be

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

In recent weeks much of North America has suffered from uncommonly severe winter weather. These sub-freezing nights and days when snow spirals almost unendingly through the cold blue silences, are critical times for our wild neighbors. Winter is the season of narrow margins of safety. These are the days when only five or ten degrees of temperature, a few extra feathers, a small surplus of fur, an additional bit of food and a little spare fat around the ribs mean much to the creatures of field and forest. Those that perish will die because they had almost, but not quite, enough warmth, food and stamina to take them through the winter. The deer that will starve are those animals that are only slightly smaller than other members of the herd, and cannot quite reach the browse that an inch or two above their cutbangs tantalizingly close, only stretched muzzles.

The origin of much of the adventure and drama of life can be found in its narrow margins, its brinks, verges, and breathtaking climaxes. Before statistics put a stop to the practice a few years ago, at least 25 people attempted deathdefying stunts at Niagar Falls, some seeking to pass through mighty waves in small boats, others venturing over the falls in sealed barrels or balls, and still others attempting to walk a tight-rope over the deep gorge. Many of these perished. These sensationalists were not seeking death, but aiming to come as close as possible to it, knowing that there is incomparable excitement for the participant and the spectators in a hazardous escape.

NARROW ESCAPES

But there are other narrow escapes that are tragic rather than thrilling and plentiful more or than rare. They are the hairbreadth margins by which the best, rather than the worst, just missed. For example, here is a promising young man with a little family. He has recently moved from a small community to a big city to practice his profession. There he was raised and married he was well known and highly respected, but where he now lives he is almost lost in a world of crowds. Neglecting to establish himself in a fellowship of people whose high standards would lend support to his own, he soon finds himself attempted to desert the old, familiar moral values. He almost remains true to the high ideals of his youth. He nearly clings to an early decision that selfless service is better than mere money-making. He comes close to saving his self-respect. And he almost remains faithful to the woman he married . . . almost.

. . we fail at being what we ought to be and doing what we ought to do, isn't our failure usually by a small margin? The spectacular failures are few. The slight failures are plentiful. We know some of them — the people who almost win promotions, nearly become leaders, narrowly miss being winsome or even saintly.

The differences between the great achievers and the mediocre performers is small, but that little "edge" distinguishes them. The world-champion one hundred-yard dash sprinter can run that distance only a few seconds faster than second best. A boy can run it. The world's best high jumper can leap only a few inches higher than some high school athletes you know. Men have won the Presidency of the United States by receiving only a few thousand more votes than their opponents. And how consequential the little differences can be!

MORE THAN REQUIRED

Those who live abundantly do for their world far more than the law requires, giving more than the minimum. In the community they are not content to bear the name "citizen" when they have merely paid taxes. They work for the general welfare far beyond the call of duty. In marriage they do not insist "I will go half-way and that's all. Marriage is a 50-50 proposition."

Instead they behave as if marriage were a 100-100 proposition, where each partner is solely responsible for its success. And the welfare of their souls is nourished by more than a mere trickle of meditation and prayer. Their spiritual roots grow deep into inexhaustible springs of wonder, reverence, gratitude, trust, joy and peace, resulting in more than enough vitality and power for all their common days and for any emergency life can offer.

The welfare of the spirit, like that of the body, rests upon having more health than is absolutely necessary. This is what we mean by resistance . . reserves of health beyond the demands of ordinary everyday life. We are constantly pelted with germs from our environment, but probably more than 90 percent of the germs that fall upon healthy human beings die and make it were sent home.

CONSIDERABLE FLOODING

The heavy rain caused considerable flooding in people's basements including the Sunday School rooms of Trinity United Church which was covered with five inches of water. Pumping was necessary to pump it out.

Two Madoc Hilltest, Mr. Percy Naylor and Mr. Percy Derry are in hospital with broken hips. Some suffered from falls on the ice.

There were several minor motor accidents, the worst of which took place early Wednesday evening when two cars driven by Mr. Ed Thompson and Mr. Doug Pogue, were in collision at the corner of St. Lawrence and Bridge Streets. Considerable damage was done to both cars.

COUNCIL MEETING HELD

The regular meeting of Madoc Village Council was held in the Council Chambers this week. Those present were Reeve Thomas Burnside, councillors Irene Wright, Olive Acre, C. B. Hagerman and R. F. Dafoe.

The following correspondence was received and filed, Dr. G. L. Mullin, Monarch Machinery Co. Ltd., Dept. of Highways, Kingston, Neill, Counsell & Co. Nesbitt, Thompson & Co. Ltd. The usual membership to the Ontario Good Roads Association to the amount of $15.00 be paid. That the Dept. of Highways of Ontario be requested to approve the transfer of $2,894.60 from road maintenance to bridge and culvert construction within the approved limits of 1964, road expenditures, and that $6,940 and adjustment of the supporting road program as follows:

An increase in salary of $300. and $200. increase in car allowance be granted to Constable McCann retroactive to January 1st, 1965. His report for the month of January was accepted. Councillor Olive Ashe reported that with two exceptions, all photos of ex-reevves of the village have been received, and these will be put in the present proposed addition to the Madoc Memorial Library.

White and Dafoe — that the council adjourn to the call of the reeve.

Lines on Life

Leaders Must Sometimes Refuse to Bow to People's Will

By Dr. STUART E. ROSENBERG

Every day, in many ways, we face the problem of leadership.

As parents, our authority is tested: will we be able to lead our children wisely and with maturity in having them follow us without coercion, love us without fear? As teachers, as friends and neighbours, our character is tested in similar ways. As citizens of a community, as members of associations, and congregations, organizations and groups, we are called upon to decide which is the right way to vote, which the proper road to follow, which leaders to admire and respect.

Moses has led his people from Egypt towards the Promised Land. They went, many of them unwillingly, because they were afraid of the new road and the freedom which beckoned. In a sense, Moses had to force them into freedom, as a wise father often has to force his children against what seems to be their own will, to a higher plane of decision and a higher road of living.

But the marks of coercion leave scars. The generation of Israelites who were forced by Moses to leave Egypt never really grew up to their full maturity. In a very profound sense, they really did not desire freedom—for they did not know how to use it, and what to make of it. This is perhaps why they died in the wilderness and never reached the land of promise.

GREAT PARADOX

Here is one of the great paradoxes of the free society; one of the reasons why the democratic communities of the world will be continually faced with the threat of possible dictatorship. Not only democracy is more than anarchy, more than mob rule, more than irrational centering on the lowest common denominator, will freedom offer man its greatest fruits.

Moses was challenged by the remnant of the slave mentality which still clung to some of his followers, like Dathan and Abiram.

"And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab; and they said: 'We will not come up; is it a small thing that. hast brought us up out of a land flowing with milk and honey, to kill us in the wilderness, but thou must needs make thyself also a prince over us? Moreover thou hast not brought us into a land flowing with milk and honey, nor given us inheritance of fields and vineyards: wilt thou put out the eyes of these men? We will not come up!"

Here, we have revealed in its simple form, the cruder elements of false democratic aspiration. These men speak as if for the whole community, challenge Moses, but their words reveal that they are pandering to the lowest in man, not to the highest. They enjoy stirring up the irrational fears of the group rather than to encourage them in the greater strength.

They tell Moses that he is, in fact, a liar. He had spoken of Palestine in the land flowing with milk and honey, but he is a deceiver. It is Egypt, say these men, which is the land flowing with milk and honey, not Palestine. And Moses took the people out of "Paradise" for his own glory, for his own private purposes. They should really go back to Egypt.

DENY TRUTH FROM FEAR

The irony of their comment is clear. When we refuse to be rational about the problems which thrust us, we tend to deny the truth and to call "black" "white," and "white" "black." We are left at the mercy of measurement when we measure the solution to our problems by our fears and by our lusts.

The basis of democracy, where everyone has a right to speak his mind, is an inviolable trust. One need not contradict this in order to suggest that before we follow people who speak from mind, we must be perfectly sure that they have a "mind to speak with." Too many tongues are unattached to the intellect and they lure us into wrong decision-making, by reducing us to the lowest level of the common dissension.

In the long run, we are better served by men like Moses who was quite willing to take the slander, the gossip and the rumour mongering of his offended, but who refused to turn his back upon the future of the people. He refused to bow to the people's will — for the sights were higher than their lowly fears.

Bad Weather Conditions Cause Various Mishaps

MADOC — Motor traffic in and around Madoc has been extremely treacherous due to recent freezing rain which covered the roads and sidewalks with a slippery coat of ice. Rural mail carriers in parts of the township did not make their usual deliveries.

Madoc Township school was closed on Wednesday and Thursday when it was obvious that it was impossible to operate school buses. Only half of the Centre Hastings Secondary School buses ran. The attendance was so poor that classes were suspended on Wednesday afternoon while the pupils who did make it were sent home.

CONSIDERABLE FLOODING

The heavy rain caused considerable flooding in people's basements including the Sunday School rooms of Trinity United Church which was covered with five inches of water. Pumping was necessary to pump it out.

Council Confers With Engineer On Road Costs

SIDNEY TWP. — Sidney Township Council members, Reeve Jack Bush, Horace Wright, Burrell Hamilton, and Gordon Willman conferred with Mr. Fred Flight on the estimation expenses for roads and bridges for the coming year.

Mr. French lives in Kingston and his appointment as municipal engineer is to help him advise the township council how much of the estimate will be subsidized by the Department of Highways. Road construction costs were estimated at $40,000 and road maintenance costs at $50,000. These amounts are still subject to the approval of the Department of Highways.

A county improvement road will be built by the Province of Ontario connecting the No. 62 Highway at Frankford with the 401 Trans-Canada Freeway. Sidney towns h i p will be responsible for rights-of-way costs, fencing and maintenance.

Mr. Clarence Bird, former assessor for Thurlow and present assessor for Tyendinaga has been appointed by the Thurlow county council as assessor for Sidney Township. A new system is being set up and assessing will be done on the county level for greater efficiency.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Why in the world are you stopping in this desolate spot?"

Lighting The Way

By Walter S. Crone

TRAPPED BY HIS PRAYER

In Kansas City, Missouri, a policeman, patrolling his beat, heard a burglar alarm ringing and responded. It led him to a well-known tavern. Entering the building and looking around, he saw no indication of anything wrong. Everything seemed to be in perfect order. Then he heard what he thought was some person muttering in a low voice. Following this sound, he came to the head of a staircase leading to the basement. Descending the stairs and flashing his light around the basement, he found a young man kneeling in a corner. "What are you doing there?" the policeman asked. "I was praying," the youth replied. "I prayed if you didn't catch me I was going to put the back." The man contained $151 taken from a drawer in the tavern. The youth drew a prison sentence, being charged with burglary.

Praying does not always indicate piety. Religious exercises are not always a demonstration of sincerity. This young man's insincerity enabled the policeman to find and arrest him. In Jesus' day, He was not fooled by the insincerity of the Pharisees, say more than God is fooled by ours today. Eventually we find that we have fooled no one but ourselves. Some may not think that honesty is the best policy, but it is always the best principle!

Shastri Seeks Out Common Man's Beefs

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri has launched a quiet program to find out what Indian citizens are thinking about his nine-month-old administration.

Officials of the Indian government's sprawling information and broadcasting ministry have been told that it is their job not only to publicize official policies but to relay to New Delhi the grievances of the common man.

The ministry is setting up a special department to tabulate the grievances and forward them to the respective government departments for "expeditious action."

The officials — known variously as field publicity officers, five-year plan officers and information officers—have been assured that in relaying the grievances of the people they need not fear punishment for bringing in unfavorable tidings.

In the past, some officials who displayed initiative in writing to their bosses about public discontent were told to mind their own business. One dedicated rural officer was reported to have been reprimanded by a visiting minister for "pretending to be a spokesman for disgruntled elements."

Prime Minister Shastri has made it known that he does not want sycophants around him. "It is the duty of government officials to give the administration a correct picture of the state of public feeling," he told a meeting of officials in New Delhi.

He has also asked his cabinet colleagues to establish more intimate contacts with the Indian peasantry. Ministers have been told to include more and more rural areas in their tour schedules instead of merely confining themselves to the big cities and urban centres.

Shastri himself has been taking time out from his crowded program to pay brief visits to hamlets around the capital. During one such visit he told a meeting of farm workers:

"My heart is in rural India. I wish I could govern the country from a village instead of from New Delhi where I feel almost an alien."

Meanwhile, the information and broadcasting minister, Mrs. Indira Gandhi—daughter of the former prime minister has come under fire for failure to make the state-owned broadcasting network an effective instrument for bringing the masses closer to the administration.

Some leaders of Shastri's Congress party and a section of the press feel that All India Radio cannot play its intended role as long as it is controlled by the government.

At least one cabinet minister, Railway Minister Sadashiv Kanoji Patil, is known to be pressing for loosening the bureaucratic grip over All India Radio.

Patil is reported to feel that one sure way to establish closer liaison between the government and the common people is to turn the air over to a publicly-owned corporation on the model of the BBC.

Opposition leaders argue that one reason why people are reluctant to believe the government's word as put out by the air is its massive, multilingual broadcasts is that the broadcasting organization is "under the thumb of the New Delhi secretariat."

Witch Doctors Lead Therapy

LIMA (AP)—Peruvian psychiatrists say witch doctors don't know an aspirin from an antibiotic but are effective in group therapy treatment for mentally disturbed patients.

"Primitive witch doctors in the jungles are years ahead of us in some phases of group therapy," said Dr. Moises Lemlij.

He complained good-naturedly that these "curanderos" often have more patients at their doors than do trained psychiatrists.

The curandero, Dr. Lemlij said, uses every trick in his black magic bag to win the confidence of his patients and get them to reveal their symptoms.

In the jungles the witch doctors dance wildly around their patients, giving them sips of tranquillizing potions and encouraging them to shed their inhibitions by singing to weird sounds.

Afterward, it is easier for the witch doctors to pry into the troubled thoughts of their patients, Dr. Lemlij added.

In Lima and other South American cities witch doctors often play the part of fortune tellers, reading tea leaves or cards and using their intuition to find out what is on their patients' minds.

SIMPLY

Dr. Max Silva, another Lima psychiatrist, commented:

"Witch doctors are usually big, middle-aged extroverts who talk in simple language which appeals to their patients."

Their offices are sometimes filled with religious pictures and statues, jungle plants and live animals, such as guinea pigs, which create an atmosphere that appeals to the superstitious.

"The potions they prepare for their patients sometimes contain tranquillizing drugs unknown to medical science," Dr. Silva said.

LBJ Faces Bitter Facts of Press Life

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson, like many a leader before him, is facing the fact that good press relations are a sometimes thing.

How he will react is just one of the unknowns at the start of his full four-year term.

But it is already plain that Johnson the president is being called sternly to task for continuing press practices used as Johnson the interim president and Johnson the political candidate.

The powerful journalists in Washington — and no other world capital is geared to their operation—want to meet him offener and on their own terms. They are writing and broadcasting that Johnson has been having things too much his own way.

Heretofore, Johnson has leaned heavily on plenty of contact with reporters but contact of his own special kind.

He has tended to call short-notice press conferences likely to attract only a handful of the 1,000 - odd domestic and foreign correspondents with White House press credentials.

He has led the press corps on long walks around the White House grounds or his LBJ ranch where questions can be put on the run, with the hazard of missing the answer.

Johnson has always liked the friendly chat-type contact with a handful of reporters, sometimes in passing, over a drink and sometimes by invitation to a select few, known in the press corps as The Friendlies.

The demand now is for more of the standup-brand of meetings, with the press, where the president can speak his piece and then field queries from the assembled reporters.

This is the format that has evolved from Franklin Roosevelt to Harry S Truman, Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy. Television as a new factor was absorbed into the format.

Criticism of Johnson was building up when he called—with 37 minutes' notice—his last full-scale press conference Feb. 11. That was minutes after President de Gaulle of France had made one of his carefully-rehearsed and long - scheduled press statements.

The Johnson summons attracted 127 reporters to quarters which proved barely adequate for that number.

American journalists like to think that the full-fledged press conference, adequately heralded, is a suitable substitute for the daily parliamentary question period in Canada, British and other countries with similar political systems.

Congress has no such machinery.

Short-notice or limited press conferences, Johnson critics say, give the president opportunity to provide pre - cooked news without full journalistic right of digging into that news.

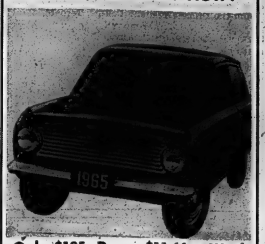
'Jail' Key Fits Cure

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Keys in prison—which actually don't fit—are being handed out these days by a Rhode Island Superior Court judge "in appropriate cases."

Judge William M. Mackenzie presented a key to Robert R. Tutalo, 22, of Johnston, R.I., convicted of possession of a lottery slip.

"I have a key to present to you," Judge Mackenzie told Tutalo. "It has the letter P on it to let you know that prison is where you are going if you violate probation."

Judge Mackenzie added this suggestion: "Put it in your pocket every morning. It's your key to the front door of state prison."



The judge said he obtained a supply of old keys—none of which fits the front door of astte prison—from a locksmith.

Bomb Explodes At Paper Office

MONTREAL (CP)—A home-made bomb exploded in a lane behind the Montreal Star building in downtown Montreal Friday night and set off the fire alarm system in the newspaper.

A patrolman of a private police agency employed by The Star told police he saw a man place the bomb at a fire exit door and gave chase but the man got away.

The bomb did only slight damage to the building.

Const. Rene Grenier of the Montreal police bomb squad told reporters at the scene that the bomb contained a liquid explosive, probably gasoline. It was activated by an alarm clock and dry cell batteries.

There was no immediate indication of the reason for the bombing.

The agency policeman said he returned to the fire exit door after losing sight of the fugitive and found one of his fellow patrolmen had discovered the bomb.

Both men stood clear, and the device exploded shortly afterwards.

Red Maple Leaf Flag Will Replace Red Ensign Monday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

". . . We do by this Our Royal Proclamation appoint and declare as the national flag of Canada, upon, from and after the 15th day of February, in the year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred and sixty-five . . . ."

Those words of the Queen will be read in Ottawa and at ceremonies across Canada Monday as the red maple-leaf flag replaces the Red Ensign as Canada's official emblem.

Above the din of controversy surrounding the birth of the new flag the Royal Proclamation signed at Buckingham Palace Jan. 28 in the presence of Prime Minister Pearson states:

". . . Our loving subjects and all others whom these presents may concern are hereby required to take notice and govern themselves accordingly."

In Ottawa, the new flag will go up atop the Peace Tower on Parliament Hill at the stroke of noon accompanied by a 21-gun salute.

The banner is described in the proclamation as "a red flag of proportions two by length and one by width, containing in the centre a white square the width of the flag, bearing a single red maple leaf. . . . In heraldic terms, described as gules on a Canadian pale argent a maple leaf of the first."

IS CENTRAL FIGURE

Governor - General Vanier will be the central figure in the Ottawa ceremony attended by Mr. Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, the chief antagonist in the parliament-ary flag battle that spanned seven months of 1964.

The ceremony in the capital will be only one of hundreds marking the occasion.

The tone and emphasis in ceremonies at other levels and in other areas vary greatly.

A certain reflection of the controversy engendered last year is the emphasis certain ceremonies give the outgoing ensign.

In Vancouver, a stronghold of British tradition in Canada, an army band will see the Red Ensign down to the sentimental chords of Auld Lang Syne.

WILL FLY TWO FLAGS

In Newfoundland, a British dominion until 1949, the British Union Jack may never completely be ensign. Premier Joseph Smallwood has ordered that at midday all provincial government buildings will have two flagpoles—one for the new flag and one other for the Union Jack. At Monday's ceremony they will be raised simultaneously.

The Prince Edward Island ceremonies will be held at the Charlottetown armories in the morning. The New Brunswick ceremony at Fredericton will see addresses by both Premier Robichaud and Opposition Leader G. B. Jones followed by a 21-gun salute.

The Nova Scotia ceremonies will be in the Red Room of Province House with Canadian clubs taking part.

In Quebec the new flag has been flying unofficially for several weeks. Premier Jean Lesage plans a public ceremony at the main entrance of the legislature. Lieutenant - Governor Paul Comtois will read the guard of honor. Most Rev. Maurice Roy, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Quebec and Cardinal - designate, and Anglican Bishop Russell Brown will attend.

In Ontario, a letter has gone out from the department of education to all school boards suggesting they too raise the red maple leaf flag Feb. 15.

LAND CEREMONY

Premier Roberts, saying "the Canadian people can and should join ranks in support of our new national standard," plans a ceremony at the legislative buildings to coincide with the Ottawa flag - raising. He said that later the new flag will be flown over government office buildings throughout the province.

The Winnipeg ceremony will feature official presentation by Premier Duff Roblin of the Red Ensign to a color guard made up of the three armed services. It will be raised on a special flagpole in the legislature library as a backdrop behind the list of war dead.

At Regina, there will be a fly-past of aircraft from the RCAF base at Moose Jaw to coincide with the flag - raising at 11 a.m.

Premier Manning will officiate at the Alberta ceremony. As in Newfoundland, the Union Jack will fly on a separate flagpole. In this case, it will serve as the symbol for Lieutenant - Governor Percy Page whose office is in the legislative building.

The military will be prominent in various ceremonies also honoring the retiring of their military standards — the blue and white ensigns.

WILL FIRE SALUTE

Off Vancouver, the navy will fire a 21-gun salute and the ships at sea will mark the change to the maple leaf flag with ensign ceremonies.

In co-ordination with the Ottawa ceremony, the new flag will go up on federal properties abroad. At posts abroad, at the United Nations and NATO headquarters, ceremonies will be conducted by Canadian representatives at noon local time.

The Yukon territorial council, currently holding its winter session in Ottawa, will meet at 11:42 a.m. EST Monday to permit members to watch the Parliament Hill ceremony.

When the council resumes at 2 p.m., the two Red Ensigns at the head of the table will be replaced by two maple leaf flags by Territorial Commissioner G. C. Sivertz and John Goodall of Fort Simpson, dean of the council.

SPENDING RISES

OTTAWA (CP) — Gross current expenditures of Canadian municipal governments rose to $7,418,265,000 in 1964 from $2,288,810,000 a year earlier, the bureau of statistics reported Friday. Gross debenture debt increased to $5,281,478,000 in 1964 from $5,458,688,000 in 1963.

New Immigration Minister, Hon. Jack Nicholson, Is No-Nonsense Administrator

By FRASER MacDOUGALL

OTTAWA (CP) — Cabinet changes announced Friday by Prime Minister Pearson — one new minister and three portfolio changes—fell far short of fulfilling recent speculation that major shifts would occur before the parliamentary session resumes Tuesday.

But, in announcing the changes, Mr. Pearson seemed to hint more are to come.

In an apparent reference to the Dorion inquiry, he spoke of a situation that "prompted me to delay" cabinet changes he might wish to make. But the resignation of Works Minister Deschatelets made immediate action necessary.

The Dorion inquiry into accusations of influence peddling and attempted bribery against ministerial aides may last another two weeks, possibly more. There is no indication as to when Chief Justice Frederic Dorion will submit his findings to the government.

Political observers look on appointment of Jack Nicholson as minister of immigration as probably the most significant of Friday's changes.

IS THIRD CAREER

He is a no-nonsense administrator who comes to politics in third major career. The native of New Brunswick practised law at Vancouver from 1924 to 1941, when the Second World War thrust him into a business career. During the war he was deputy controller of supplies for the federal department of munitions and supply.

Mr. Nicholson, of citizenship and immigration ranks as one of the most sensitive in the government. Certainly, over many years it has produced more than its share of political controversy.

Mr. Nicholson, 63, will be the third minister to preside over the department in less than two years the Pearson government has been in office. The first was Guy Favreau, of the public minister, the second Rene Tremblay, 42, who now replaces Mr. Nicholson as postmaster - general.

All told, the department has had five ministers since 1960.

Appointment of Lucien Cardin, 45, as minister of public works to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Jean-Paul Deschatelets, also is big news as a move up for the 45-year-old Sorel lawyer who has been in the House of Commons since the Pearson government was formed.

In addition Mr. Cardin is reputed to have shown considerable talent as an administrator, which is no small item of detail.

CADIEUX POPULAR

The new associate defence minister, Leo Cadieux, 56-year-old Liberal MP (Provencher), is said to be one of the most popular members of the Liberal caucus. Admirers say he has considerable middle ground among Quebec Conservatives and Creditistes as a so - called old guard nor the younger, new wing.

Mr. Trudeau, a new-wing Quebec Liberal, solidly identified with the forces behind the Pearson campaign to the ousting of the Union Nationale from power in the province. His intellectual and economic, Mr. Tremblay entered the Pearson cabinet in 1963 as minister without portfolio. He was slated to become eastern minister of agriculture under the Liberal plan — never put into effect — of having eastern and western ministers for the agriculture post, but the reorganization a year ago when Mr. Favreau became justice minister.

ONLY HAPPENS ONCE

TORONTO (CP)—The sharp rise in demand for stainless steel razor blades last year will not be typical, the executive director of the world's second-biggest stainless blade manufacturer said Friday. A. G. H. Damerell of Wilkinson Sword Ltd. of London said his company's blade sales increased in 1964 by 300 per cent. He said about 80 per cent of blade shavers in Britain and Canada use stainless blades.

MOVED TO IMMIGRATION — Former postmaster-general John R. Nicholson has been moved to the post of minister of immigration. It was announced in Ottawa by Prime Minister Pearson yesterday.

Theatre Guild Starting Afresh After Fire With Warm Civic Response

Outside the West Robertson Block a mobile crane and clamp bucket, lit by spotlights, was ripping the facade from the third-storey loft, declared a public hazard.

Once the roost of countless roosting pigeons, it also had inspired the name of the Belleville Theatre Guild's Loft Theatre, immediately beneath.

But while the pigeons were gone for good, a phoenix was raising itself immediately across the street.

Housed in temporary quarters donated by the city's Elks Lodge, the Belleville Theatre Guild last night continued rehearsals for its upcoming Spring production uninterrupted.

From the windows of their rehearsal hall its members had a prospect of their old home — a fully-equipped little theatre, now part of the repairs of last Saturday's million-dollar fire.

Other prospects were more promising however.

The Guild could also look back on a week of warming community response to its appeal for aid in rebuilding costumes and properties destroyed in the fire.

Assistance had been pledged to more. At the start it faced the gravest challenge to its existence in a community endeavor that seems to have a tenuous grasp on functional survival at the best of times. By last night, it looked like the crisis was being resolved.

LOST IN MINUTES

Close to 15 years' toil was boiled off in fire and smoke in the blaze.

The props, scenery, library and equipment carefully collected through that period were lost in a matter of minutes.

"We had just reached the stage where we were fully satisfied with our facilities, when we lost them," a Guild official said.

"We had tested its possibilities and corrected the flaws during the past year or so, and were all ready to roll with a full schedule of events."

The experiment came in a series of minor presentations, mostly workshop plays during that time. However, the Loft Theatre had proved its theatrical potential with one full-scale production last year — "Thurber's Carnival" — which introduced such imaginative equipment as a portable revolving stage.

Immediately after the blaze, the membership called an emergency meeting and sat down to blueprint their stage comeback as a community group.

Most crucial need was for temporary rehearsal quarters for the upcoming production "After My Fashion" and some one-act productions for a special workshop next week with Norma Springford, national theatre authority. All these sessions the Guild, with the blessing of the Ontario Department of Education, plays host for this port of the province.

This helped clear the decks for a community-wide appeal for replacement of Guild properties.

MANY OFFERS MADE

The appeal now seems destined for success.

Offers of help have ranged far afield—in assortment and distance.

A barn near Foxboro was proffered as a new home. At Frankford, another donated cash, another a costume. At Smithfield, another donor gave a chesterfield (a well-bred play is ever without one.) In Belleville the response is just as varied: a starting pistol (prop), a top hat there; a piece of furniture, all the bazaar-like collection that looks bizarre until fitted into its pertinent stage role.

Meantime, of course, the hunt goes on for a new, permanent home.

"We've had a flood of suggestions—and we're still checking out possibilities," one member last night. "All we need is the space, we can work the transformation ourselves."

If they get the break there's little doubt the fire was only a rest. Work is the common denominator of all members in such a community endeavor.

At the moment the cry may not be "Lights and Action." But neither is it "Curtains!"

Viet Nam Crisis Shows Weakness of United Nations

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Peking's demand Friday for "thorough-going reorganization" of the United Nations strikes a note of bitter irony in view of the Vietnamese crisis.

Attention at UN headquarters in New York over the Vietnamese fighting was seen in some circles in Britain and elsewhere as the weakness of UN weakness in all its nakedness.

This depressing view has been fostered by the world body's continuing deadlock over finances and Indonesia's recent departure from membership, developments clashing harshly with International Co-operation Year and the UN's forthcoming 20th anniversary.

SURVIVES STORMS

Officials note it has become almost customary among critics to write off the UN with every new emergency—yet it has survived the international storms of two nuclear-age decades.

They are confident countries have too much at stake to let the UN go the way of the League of Nations. Certainly no one British Prime Minister Wilson's government predicts the doom of the UN.

Source, said positions between the United States and its Communist antagonists over South Viet Nam have been "immovable" for so long that the chances of the UN breaking the impasse would be slim even if it was in a position to take a hand.

The Peking People's Daily, main newspaper of the Chinese Communist party, said Friday said Friday the UN has assisted the U.S. in committing "evil deeds" and brought crisis upon itself.

"If this international organization hopes to discharge its responsibility for safeguarding world peace, it must correct its mistakes and carry out a thorough-going reorganization," it says.

The newspaper is merely following the line set in a speech by Premier Chou En-lai, who Jan. 24 spoke of the possibility of setting up a "revolutionary united nations." That project may have lost steam when no country followed Indonesia out of the UN.

The newspaper also seeks to establish a link with French president de Gaulle's call Feb. 4 for a Geneva conference of the great powers, including Peking, aimed at "recovering the balance" of the UN.

Observers in London feel there may well be a hiatus in UN affairs—excluding the agencies—for six months or so while a new, continue diplomatic efforts to clear the decks for international peace-making arrangements. Opposition by the Soviet Union, France and some other countries to present arrangements have brought the UN to bankruptcy.

It is thought a review of the world organization, envisaging the entry of Red China as a member, is inevitable but this is not seen as an early development.

Bilingualism Creeps Into Dorion Inquiry as RCMP Constable Gives Testimony

OTTAWA (CP) — An undercurrent issue in the Dorion inquiry — bilingualism — swept suddenly to the surface Friday.

All reports of RCMP investigations into allegations of attempted bribery and coercion by federal ministerial aide in the Lucien Rivard affair have been submitted to the Dorion inquiry in English only though nearly all the interviews with persons involved were conducted in French.

This is apparently because all reports within the RCMP are written in English. And the RCMP Constable Gilles Poissant testified, "that's the way it's done in the force."

Norman Mathews, RCMP counsel, is the only lawyer at the inquiry who speaks English only and he has complained several times that he has to labor under the "handicap" of the translation system.

Bilingual counsel have frequently asked witnesses whether RCMP English - language accounts of interviews with them accurately reflected what they had told the police in the French language. Many French - speaking witnesses have complained that the RCMP reports contained inaccuracies through indifferent translation or through misunderstandings.

RAISED ISSUE AGAIN

Paul Jolin, New Democratic Party counsel, raised the issue again Friday when he asked Commissioner Dorion if he was prepared to take evidence in French.

Mr. Mathews said he wondered what Mr. Jolin was trying to "dig up" and whether the NDP lawyer shouldn't be appearing before the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

Chief Justice Frederic Dorion said he may have some comments to make in his report to the government on the point raised by Mr. Jolin.

Mr. Jolin added that the Dorion commission must find out whether the RCMP has the means to put questions in French.

The judge said: "If they don't have the facilities now, I can tell you they will have them before long."

INVESTIGATE RCMP

(Outside the inquiry, it was learned that the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism is considering an investigation of RCMP practices, or lack of them, in the RCMP).

The Dorion inquiry was still hearing testimony from Insp. Carriere when it was adjourned until Tuesday. At that time, Chief Justice Dorion will announce whether the commission will investigate the connection of Raymond Denis with the immigration case of Toronto millionaire Harry Stonehill who has been expelled from Canada.

If the commission does go into the Stonehill affair, former executive assistant to Rene Tremblay, shifted to the Post Office from the immigration portfolio Friday, may not be the only witness.

Others include Stonehill himself, Al Williamson, a Vancouver public relations man, and Prime Minister Pearson's speech-writer, Hal Dornan. Mr. Pearson has said Mr. Dornan acted with "perfect propriety" in introducing Denis to Stonehill and Williamson.

Mr. Tremblay is probing the allegation of Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne that he was offered $20,000 by Denis to agree to Rivard's release on bail.

ACTING FOR U.S.

Mr. Lamontagne is acting for the U.S. government which is pressing for the extradition to Laredo, Texas, to face charges of quarterbacking an international narcotics smuggling conspiracy for the Mafia crime syndicate.

The language problem also sprang to the fore Friday when Mr. Mathews asked that Insp. Carriere delay replies to questions by other counsel until the translation system relayed the full question to him in English. He said he might want to raise objections.

Ross Drouin, Conservative party counsel, offered to switch to English for his questioning and did so. Some other counsel also questioned Insp. Carriere in English while others continued in French.

Before the switch, Mr. Mathews said the officer had originally decided to testify in English but "for some reason he's against it."

After 23 days of sittings during which 43 witnesses have been heard, the inquiry has reached the stage of investigating the RCMP's handling of the case.

It still has to hear Inspector J. F. Draper, who conducted the RCMP investigation from G. B. McClellan, Justice Minister Favreau, Mr. Tremblay and officials of the justice and immigration departments.

WILL SUM UP

After the testimony is completed, the some 29 lawyers will be permitted to present summations on behalf of their clients.

Insp. Carriere said the statement he took from Mr. Lamontagne Aug. 12 was dispatched to RCMP headquarters over to Commissioner McClellan.

He supported Mr. Lamontagne's testimony that why the lawyer waited until Aug. 11 to report to the RCMP the alleged bribe offer by Denis of July 14.

He said Mr. Lamontagne told him that when Denis offered the alleged bribe as soon as it was made he thought that had ended the case.

After the lawyer had received threatening telephone calls July 20-21, he had gone to his employer, Antoine Geoffrion, who had told him not to take the matter further unless there was further pressure.

Insp. Carriere said he believed that Mr. Lamontagne went to the police because of rumors he had accepted a bribe. Mr. Lamontagne was familiar with Rivard's record and if he didn't deliver after supposedly being bribed some "misfortune" might befall him.

Former RCMP Sgt. Ronald Crevier has testified that Mr. Lamontagne feared he might end up "at the bottom of the river."

Insp. Carriere said he himself had heard during last summer that there was a "considerable amount of money available" to bail Rivard in his extradition case.

Quebec Liquor Stores to Open On Wednesday

QUEBEC (CP)—Shops owned by the Quebec Liquor Board, will be closed for 19 weeks, will probably re-open Feb. 17.

In announcing the to the legislature Friday, Premier Lesage said negotiations in the strike were hampered by difficulties in dealing with the union and the implementation of new rights.

The 3,200 employees acted under a labor code passed by the legislature last year, said Mr. Lesage.

"The board for the first time has tried to deal with employees for a package of working conditions which involved a serious preliminary study."

The employees voted Thursday night to accept a new contract which provides for wage increases of $8 a week the first year, $3 the second year and $7 the third. They originally had asked an over-all increase of $25.

The contract, now formally approved by the government, also provides that employees affected by automation will be transferred to other government jobs instead of being laid off. Average salary had been $57 a week, said spokesmen for the government group, an affiliate of the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

Some points in the contract remain to be settled. They include questions of vacation, sick leave, and pension rights.

CRANES MULTIPLY

REGINA (CP)—The world's whooping crane population increased by more than 25 per cent in 1964 and now numbers 50, says Ernie Paynter, director of the Saskatchewan wildlife branch. Mr. Paynter said 11 new nests were added to the population' "was the largest increase in whooping cranes reported for many years.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

From one European paint of view, the main thing wrong with Canadian and American amateur hockey players is—they do not get paid enough.

That is what a Dutch journalist at present touring the National Hockey League centres in this country and the United States says.

Two well known gentlemen, steeped in amateur lore, Avery Brundage, world Olympics pooh-bah, and J. W. "Sonny" Ahearne, British travel agency tycoon and president of the International Ice Federation, will recall in more or less stimulated horror when they hear that.

But the travelling Dutch scribe has another jolt for the two gentlemen who see to it that the world amateurs' pinkies are not soiled with the filthiness of lucre—or anything it can purchase for services rendered.

Frans Henrricks, the journalist in question, from The Netherlands, told a New York luncheon meeting recently that Sweden's top hockey player, Sven "Tumba" Johansson is an amateur who earns $50,000 a year.

That's only a few thousand shekels less than Gordie Howe and Bobby Hull would amass if they tossed their annual puck-bucks allotment into a joint cauldron.

We met Tumba on that 1958 European junket with the McFarlands and the blonde Svenska giant was one of the nicest guys the Canadians contacted over thataway.

Besides having all the attributes of a nice friendly chappie, he was a hockey player, too. By that I mean he was about the only European star of that age that could come anywhere near National Hockey League requirements.

Perhaps Johansson could have made the NHL in those days, but for, say, at 1959 rates, $30,000 annually in Swedish Iron men was not to be sneezed at.

Besides look at the occupational hazards. You don't get struck a muscle nor break an arm rubbing hair-tonic on your thatch. You don't require a half-dozen stitches after showing television viewers the great qualities of shave-foam, razor blades or any "Superstar" can help Ignace to go and lick some guy three times his size.

Or have some sexy feminine remove your glasses, stroke your hair, clinch you in a torrid embrace and murmur: "Have you the nerve to try it?"

Brother, I know a thousand guys who would go through that desperate situation for nothing, let alone get paid for it.

However, according to the Dutch scribe, Tumba's income apart from television and endorsements, points up the United States' and Canada's weakness in International amateur hockey.

He said that Europeans find it hard to believe that the calibre of U.S.-Canada National Hockey League play is equal to that of the Russian, Czech or Swedish national teams.

"If it were," he says, "you would send the NHL players to the Olympics."

He said that Europeans took a jaded view of the amateur athlete—"they really don't believe there is such a thing." That's the only thing they do have right about the amateur-pro situation on this side of the pond.

"Why," he declared, "the Russians are more professional than your top NHL players. If they send their stars to the Olympics, you can send your top players, too."

Tak, tak mynheer, I'm afraid you have a lot to learn about the amateur situation over here. Besides that Russian "pro" stuff is old hat in Canada. All you have to convince are Messrs. Brundage and A'Hearne. Besides you have yet to learn, it is assumed, that the best the 1965 Russian national team could do against a half-dozen out-to-pasture Canadian pros and an equal number of juniors was beat them 3-2.

Nationals Rally To Top Juniors

WINNIPEG (CP) — Three power-play goals helped the late-starting Canadian national team to a 7-2 exhibition victory Friday night over a Manitoba Junior Hockey League all-star team.

The all-stars led 1-0 after the first period and added another goal midway through the second before the nationals went ahead 3-2 at the end of the second.

Centre Roger Bourbonnais scored all three Nationals goals in the second period. Tom Marshall with two, Gary Begg and Marshall Johnston rounded out the third-period outburst.

Bill Scott and George Anderson scored for the All-Stars, chosen from the four clubs in the all-winnipeg MJHL.

Unionville Rink Wins Ontario Title

★ ★ ★ Quinte 3-4

By CLAUDE D. TICE

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — A rink skipped by Ray Gast of Unionville won the Ontario curling championship Friday and will be Ontario's representative in the Canadian curling finals in Saskatoon next month.

It will be the third time Grant has represented Ontario.

Northern Ontario rinks play their finals in Sudbury this weekend. The winner of that competition will also go to Saskatoon.

Grant and his rink — Al Clancy, Ray McGee and Keith Jewett — defeated Reggie Rawson of Orillia 8-5.

Joe Gurowka of Dixie was in a position to tie Grant and force a sudden - death playoff Friday night, but he dropped a 10-8 decision to Mac White of Belleville.

During the three - day, eight-rink competition Grant finished with a record of six wins and one defeat, at the hands of Gurowka.

Gurowka, with five wins and two defeats, was second.

John Ross, representing Toronto Parkway, finished third with a 4-3 record while White, Ken Watts of Hanover, last year's winner, and Bob Kemp of Hamilton all had three wins and four losses. Rawson and Russ Miller of London had records of 2-5.

Grant had a tough game against Rawson, finally going ahead in the 11th end when he counted four to add another in the final end for the win.

Minor Hockey

Two novice and three tyke games were played at Memorial Arena Friday evening. No bantam or peewee B.M.H.A. games being played today due to the novice tournament which got under way early Saturday morning.

The final game of the tourney, between the "A" and "B" division winners, is scheduled for two o'clock this afternoon.

NOVICE

Jeepes whipped the Generals 11-4. Bobby Salisbury and Billy Coughlan scored three goals apiece. Bobby Howes, John Venutti, Wally Dalnard, Chris Huff and Doug Cole added the other markers. Wayne Jouda triggered three for the Generals with Billy Leitch getting the other one.

TYKE

Connor Crawford came up with another sparkling performance to give the Leafs a 5-3 victory over the Canadiens. Crawford scored all five Leaf goals. Scott James bagged two and Stephen Soutry one for the losers.

Rangers whitewashed the Hawks 2-0. Barry Marsh and Kevin Woodman scored one goal each for the bluebirds.

Bruins and Wings played a 1-1 deadlock. John Ross fired the Wing goal and Bruce McIntyre had the Bruin counter.

Streit, Manley Maintain Lead In U. S. Mixed

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Hobart Manley of Savannah, Ga., and Marlene Stewart Streit of Foothill, Ont., maintained their lead Friday in the U. S. United States mixed invitational golf tournament by shooting one over par in gusting ocean winds.

Their 36-37—73 gave them a third-round total of 212.

Billy Goodloe of Valdosta, Ga., and Marge Masters of Ottawa were fourth with a third-round 76 and total 221.

Halter To Remain? CFL Schedule To Open July 30

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—Some promising items remained today as the Canadian Football League entered the final day of its two-day annual meeting.

The session will end speculation on the future of Commissioner G. Sydney Halter. There have been reports that the tall, Winnipeg - based boss of Canadian professional football is ready to call it a career.

But despite the rumors, the best is that delegates will approve a new two-year contract for Halter.

The Eastern Conference has yet to say yes or no to a Western request that it change its scheduling system to a best-of-three. The West earlier went half-way in making CFL playoffs standard by dropping the one-game semi-final used in the East instead of its two-game total-points series.

Today's gathering also was to deal with recommendations from the Football Hagues. Commissioner Halter said the new season opens at Edmonton July 30 with the Eskimos hosting Calgary Stampeders—one of them concerning a joint scouting plan for the nine teams.

Topping the agenda was a request to approve the terms for reference of a two-man committee to look into consolidation of administrative affairs of both conferences.

APPROVE SCHEDULES

Delegates Friday approved schedules for the 1965 season.

Halter also said that the American Football League has turned down as not feasible a CFL request for an all - star game between the two leagues.

Rule changes eliminating the five-minute signal from referee in the second and third quarters and cutting the penalties for offensive pass interference were approved Friday.

Put over until next year was consideration of allowing blocking on punt downfield. It was expected by some to be adopted. The pros decided to see how the new rule works out in college football this season before making a decision.

No longer will a referee give five blasts on his whistle indicating five minutes to go in the second and final quarters. The three - minute signal remains, and after it sounds the clock will stop after each play, resuming only after the referee spots the ball for the next one.

MAY BE MORE PLAYS

Halter said this could mean more plays could be run in the last three minutes of each quarter. The three-minute signal for the field clock would be the signal for the time out to give the television sponsor its 60-second commercial.

Penalties for offensive pass interference were reduced to loss of 10 yards. Previously, if the offence occurred in the area where the ball was thrown, the offending team lost the ball. If it occurred in another area of the field the penalty was 15 yards.

The rule changes also call for an automatic first down at the point of the last scrimmage for contacting the kicker rather than a 15-yard penalty. Penalty for roughing the kicker was stiffened to an automatic first down and 15 yards, instead of just the yardage.

Other changes:

—The five eligible pass receivers must be side-by-side on the wing-line nearest the ball with designated pass receivers on each side. Backs are now allowed to move up to an end position and players are also allowed to move from backfield to wingline or from the line to the backfield regardless of sweater numbers.

—The rule which provided that a player was put outside after having been passed by the kicker was deleted.

—The penalty for an ineligible pass receiver was reduced to 10 yards from 15.

—Penalty for illegal substitution was reduced to 10 yards from 15.

—Minor third down offences such as offsides and illegally putting the ball into play, will now draw a five-yard penalty reduced from 10 yards.

—On punts blocked into and through the end zone and last touched by the blocking team touched by the blocking team the defending club will be awarded first down at the point of the last scrimmage. Previously, the defending team was awarded to points if the kick as made from the end zone and one point if the kick was made outside the goal line.

Crothers, Snell Meet Tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP)—World record holder Peter Snell of New Zealand and Bill Crothers of Canada meet in the 1,000-yard run tonight in the feature event of the annual Los Angeles Times indoor meet.

A sell-out crowd of 12,735 was set to see an impressive collection of international track and field stars compete on the boards at the Sports Arena.

U.S. champions, plus such invited foreigners as Piotr Brumal and Igor Ter-Ovanesyan of the USSR, Mary Rand of England, Iolanda Balas of Rumania, Witold Baran of Poland and John Davies of New Zealand are on the program.

The 26 - year - old Snell says this will be his only indoor competition of the year and this will be his last year of competition.

Snell took off Crothers in the 800 metres in Tokyo but says the Canadian is better runner on the boards. Snell's unusually long stride is not suited to the sharp curves of an indoor track.

Snell holds the unofficial indoor 1,000 yards record at 2:06.0. He set it in this game meet in 1962.

Snell was doubtful that he is at top shape and recalled:

"When I set the record in 1962, I was in top shape. Now I had set a world record of 3:54.4 for 1,500."

Tommy Farrell of New York's St. John's University, who upset Crothers in the 880-yard race Thursday at the New York Athletic Club meet, is entered in the 600-yard run.

The Globetrotters got single-goal efforts from Yvon Blanchette, Jim Bell, Frank Lewis and Harold "Bugs" McDonald.

There were few penalties.

The Globetrotters fly to Nova Scotia today where they will play a return game with the RCAF Greenwood Bombers.

'Board Of Ex-Officials' Blasts NHL

Offers Few Facts

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TORONTO (CP)—Three former National Hockey League referees and a lineman Friday reiterated charges of manipulating games—they refused to say games were "fixed" or "rigged"—and presented evidence, but few concrete facts of pressure put on game officials by the league.

The referees—Eddie Powers, John Mehlenbacher and Dalton McArthur — and linesman George Hayes stood up before a packed press conference, tabled about the charges made March 22, 1963, game at Boston, the pension scheme and about reference-in-chief Carl Voss and league president Clarence Campbell.

Much of it was a rehash of statements made at various times in the past.

They did, however, give some new first-hand evidence that they said occurred before and during the Boston game which the New York Rangers won 4-3 that wrapped up a Stanley Cup playoff spot for the Blueshirts.

Powers, who resigned Feb. 14, 1963, from NHL officiating staff, said last week he had given NHL governors tangible evidence of what he considered to be an attempt to manipulate the outcome of the Boston game.

WERE OFFICIALS

McArthur, fired in 1963, and Hayes, let out last week when he refused to take an eye test ordered by Campbell, were officials in that game.

McArthur and Hayes said NHL referee-in-chief Carl Voss entered the officials' dressing room and said, in effect, that this was an important game to New York, that the Rangers hadn't been in the playoffs for a few years and to call only "good" penalties against New York.

Both quoted Voss as saying that the last-place Bruins were not going anywhere but home after the regular 70-game schedule.

Rangers led 4-0 after the first period and in the second session McArthur said that captain Don McKenney of the Bruins skated over to him and asked: "What are you trying to do? Throw the game?"

McArthur added that he skated over to Hayes, told him what McKenney had said, and remarked: "I should give him a misconduct but I can't because that's almost what I'm doing."

The two officials said that Voss later went into their dressing room, told McArthur he wanted to see him in his hotel after the game. He was with Voss about an hour, later met Hayes in a bar and said Voss had told him he would not officiate in any playoff games.

McArthur and Hayes said they talked the situation over and Hayes said he suggested that they "turn in Voss now."

McArthur told the conference he had called the worst game of my career," handing out 13 penalties — seven to Boston. Each team got a minor in the first period, the Bruins received a 2-minute bench call in the second and Rangers received three and Boston two in the final.

The Bruins scored their goals in the second period.

Powers, Mehlenbacher, McArthur and Hayes said in a statement read to the conference:

"We contend that by eliminating the official malpractices we feel the game will be improved —and that the NHL owners owe it to their fans to make absolute minimum obligation. If our efforts help bring this about, we'll be satisfied."

Mehlenbacher, who said he hasn't been inside an arena or watched a game on television since he was fired eight years ago, said that when Chicago had a tough time filling its roster "I was definitely told by Voss to look after Chicago."

"I never did. I was told by Voss never to call double penalties on Chicago."

Hayes, who said linesmen were not allowed into the NHL pension plan until three years ago, said he had asked Campbell "a number of times about the pension" and claimed he was told that the players "didn't want us in."

In Montreal, Campbell said he would make no statement on the charges made by NHL governors were being polled for their reaction.

In reference to Hayes' claim that he held on to his job this year by officiating well down in the Globe and Mail quotes Campbell as saying in an interview that this is definitely not so.

"He forgot to read you my reply to his blackmail letter.

"I wanted only an assurance that he would obey the rules and regulations laid down in the officials' handbook, perform his duties faithfully to the best of his ability and not go against the authority of the referee-in-chief.

"I sent him a copy of a statement to this effect together with his contract Aug. 25. He returned both, signed, on Aug. 27.

Overtime Highlights AHL Play

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Timekeepers in three American Hockey League cities collected some extrime last night and the fans didn't mind a bit.

Lowell MacDonald's goal at 8:31 of an overtime period gave Pittsburgh Hornets a 7-6 victory over Cleveland Barons and a 35 point lead in the third and final playoff spot in the western division.

Meanwhile, Len Lunde's bouncing shot past the Providence Reds goaltender after six minutes of overtime gave Buffalo a 3-2 win and left them 12 points back of the western division leaders; Rochester Americans.

But, in Springfield, the timekeeper had to work the full 10 minutes of overtime as the Indians rallied four times in regulation play to tie Hershey Bears 4-4. Baltimore Clippers edged Rochester 4-3 in the only other game.

Howie Glover scored twice for Cleveland while Dave McComb, Bob Murray, Bob Courcy and Wayne Larkin added the others. Vic Stasiuk, Ivy Spencer, Ron Harris, Jerry Toppazzini, Don Hills and Autry Erickson scored for Pittsburgh.

Art Stratton scored the other two Buffalo goals while Len Ronson and Moe Bartoli netted the Providence markers.

Jimmy Anderson's second goal of the night with 30 seconds to play in regulation time gave the Indians the tie. Dale Rolfe and Brian Smith added the other Springfield goals while Mike Nykoluk, Myron Stankiewicz, Pete Conacher and Michel Harvey scored for Hershey.

Oaks Win In Final Minute

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oakville Oaks had to wait until the last minute in overtime play before they won their Ontario Hockey Association senior game against Guelph Regals Friday night.

Woodstock Athletics won theirs in the second period against Welland Blacks.

The Oaks defeated first-place Guelph 5-4 when Carl Hymers scored in the last minute of the overtime period. They overcame a 4-2 deficit in the third period. The win gave the Oaks 33 points and snapped a five-game Guelph winning streak. Art Sullivan's three goals helped Woodstock down last-place Welland 8-4 in Woodstock to remain five points ahead of fourth-place Oakville.

Other scorers for Oakville were Wayne Mahew, Doug Hillman, Bob Hawkins and Bob Bowman.

Guelph scorers were Dave Hall with two and Pete Retlel and Don MacGregor with one each.

The Flower scored two Woodstock goals while Tom Tilson, Gerry Stringle and Bernie Marshall scored each. George Montague accounted for three of the Welland goals while Bob Seager added the fourth.

Blank Picton 3-0

B's Shake Slump With Shutout

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Shutout goal-tending by replacement Wayne Brant and alert play around the opposing net by Bobby Boyle helped the Belleville "B's" snap their seven-game OHA Eastern Junior losing skein here last night.

Belleville blanked the slumping Picton Merchants 3-0. It was Picton's fourth consecutive setback.

The triumph boosted Belleville into third place, one point behind Picton and one up on Trenton. The "B's" visit Gananoque on Sunday and Napanee on Monday.

A meeting to arrange playoffs, for both the boys's "B" and "C" clubs will be held at Memorial Arena here next Wednesday at 8.00 p.m.

Brant, picked up from Napanee as a replacement for the injured Bob Moon, kicked out 23 shots to earn his shutout. Not that many of them were tough as the Merchants' attack lacked finish but the youngster was calm, cool and collected when he had to be and deserved full credit. He came back after being hit in the face by a stray stick during a first-period goal-mouth play.

Neither club could do anything right in the opening stanza and it ended up scoreless. Belleville fired 47 shots at Larry Holmes in the Picton cage during play, and the massed goalie stood out all the way. He was by far the best of any inept seven-some.

The "B's" broke the twin goose eggs midway through the second frame when Bob Boyle scored the first of his two goals. He also had an assist on the third. Situated near the corner of the Picton net, Boyle tapped in Roy Maracle's blueline shot when Holmes was unable to smother the rebound. Rutherford also assisted on the play.

Holmes robbed Rutherford all night and did it twice around the 14-minute mark. Then Jones was chased and Boyle was again right on the spot to whack Harold Townsend's rebound after a sprawling save by Holmes.

The "B's" hit the post twice in the first 30 seconds of the third period and finally made it 2-0 on Rutherford's pay goal at 6.55. Jim Rutherford banged home a quick passout from behind the net on a play with Grant Hagerman and Boyle. Holmes had been penalized at 4.50 for delaying the game when he caught and held a shot on goal.

Three of Belleville's five penalties followed but Brant and his mates had little trouble protecting the shutout. Paul Jones broke in alone on him at 12.00 but he was waiting to cut the outside of the rigging. Picton also collected five minors in the quiet contest.

"B's" coach Gordie Bell said that Moon will not be able to return to the nets before March 1. He also announced that defenceman Bob Ethier is no longer with the club.

Statistics Tell Story

Henry Most Accurate NHL Shot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Believe It or not, the most accurate shot in the National Hockey League belongs to one of the smallest players in the game—Camille Henry.

The New York Ranger with a corset before each game to prevent further damage to already painful injuries, has 40 goals and teammates Ted Taylor and Gordon Labossiere scored the others. Ralph Keller, Jim Pappin and Don McKenney scored for Rochester.

Camille Henry

—Detroit Red Wings had the most shots (34.6 a game) but Chicago had the best average per 60 minutes, 158 goals on 1,450 shots.

—Boston's Ed Johnston was the busiest netminder, facing an average of 34.3 shots a game, while Detroit's Roger Crozier was the busiest tormented, handling an average of 27.9.

—Hull was on the ice for 86 of Chicago's 158 goals, almost two-thirds, and was present for one-half his team's 29 power play tallies.

—Detroit has the most potent power play, scoring on 18.5 per cent of its advantages, and Montreal had the best penalty-killing unit, successfully defending 88.0 per cent of its penalties.

But final scores, not averages, are what really count and scores will be of primary importance this weekend with six games scheduled and the standings threatened with another major face-lifting.

Montreal Canadiens, Boston, Chicago plays at New York and Detroit battles with the Maple Leafs at Toronto for third place today. Sunday, Montreal travels to Chicago, Toronto plays at Boston and New York visits Detroit.

KENNEDY OUT

BOSTON (AP) — A fourth player, forward Gates Kennedy, was added Friday to the list of Boston players sidelined for the rest of the National Hockey League season by injury. Kennedy suffered a broken collarbone in Thursday night's 7-1 loss to Montreal Canadiens. Other Bruins out for the season are forward Dean Prentice with a broken hand; Defenseman Leo Letter with a broken left arm and goalie Ed Johnston with a broken right hand.

Defeat Napanee

BCI Cagers Sweep Three

By DAVID TEMPLER

Friday night saw the BCI Collegians snatch a triple victory from visiting Napanee Kiwanis-COSSA high school basketball.

The seniors overwhelmed a tall but inexperienced Napanee squad 60-36. Fast accurate passing gave the juniors their 57-42 victory. The bantams had no trouble piling up 51 points to the visitors 19.

Ron Walsh led the seniors offensively and defensively scoring 28 points. Murray Sheen playing a superlative defensive game, scored 10. The Collegians "second" five were a lot of action in this game and conducted themselves admirably. The smooth precision of the Collegian squad rarely faultered and split-second passing play nearly penetrated Napanee's defence.

After being out-scored 13-9 in the first quarter, BCI came back and led 30-19 at the half. From then on the outcome of the game was never in doubt.

The other scores for BCI were Mott (6), Parks (4), Reddick (4), Desaulnier (4), and Hurst and Gullis with two each.

For Napanee the four high scorers were Silason and Rigby with eight and Webster and Boone with five.

In the junior game, fast-breaking tactics by both teams made a fast, exciting game.

Rebounding and passing by Chalmers and Sheridan coupled with the fast-breaking Ray Brownell accounted for "nearly half of BCI's points.

The scorers were Bouma (11), McDonald (9), Chalmers (8), Lornie (8), Sherridan (7), McFarlane and Thibeau four each and Hardee and Lopez two.

After the first quarter the score was tied but in the remainder of the game BCI had a definite edge.

The scorers for Napanee were: Tailor (12), Smith (12), and Forbes (10).

In the bantam game, offensive rebounds netted Cass and Drum, 13 points and ten points respectively. Shea with six points was invaluable in defence. The other scorers were Bouma (9), Hollinger (6), Lockin (4) and Ling (3).

For Napanee Wrightman got seven.

Can Block on Punt Return

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union has approved a one-year experiment which will permit blocking on punt returns in college football games this fall, an official said Friday.

Jim Farmer, University of Western Ontario's representative on the college rules committee, said in an interview the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association is expected to ratify the change soon.

The new punt return rule, which also will affect Ontario high schools, will permit blocking by the receiving team after the ball is caught.

Farmer said the rule change was put in to help open up the game by allowing longer runbacks.

Farmer said a timing rule change also has been approved. It will come in the last three minutes of the fourth quarter. Unlike the CFL, the colleges will continue to observe the five-minute whistle at the end of each half.

The colleges now will permit all backfielders to block all the way down field providing they line up outside the end and cross outside the end. Previously, only two backs on each side lined up outside the end were permitted to block all the way down field.

The CIAU also liberalized the rule on backs' knees touching the ground on punt returns. Now, if there is "incidental contact" such as a punt receiver letting his knee hit the ground while trying to field a low kick, the play will not be blown down.

To Control 'Fly-in' Fishermen

OTTAWA (CP) — The Northwest Territories Council clamped strict controls on "fly-in" sports fishermen Friday after receiving warnings that northern lakes and streams are being fished out.

The council gave swift approval to an ordinance giving Territorial Commissioner B. G. Sivertz wide powers to license and supervise all northern tourist establishments and recreational areas.

Officials said the new laws are aimed particularly at non-resident fishermen, most of them wealthy American businessmen, who fly to remote camps for one or two weeks of intensive fishing.

The ordinance authorizes the commissioner to license the construction and operations of hotels, motels, fishing and hunting camps, tent camps, camping and trailer lots and tourist homes.

Wall Holds Big Lead In Panama

PANAMA (AP)—Art Wall, Jr. whose game thrives in south-of-the-border sunshine, has forged a six-stroke halfway lead in the Panama Open golf tournament, first stop in this western five-tourney Caribbean swing.

Wall, over-all champion on last year's tour and holder of eight Caribbean records, Friday scored a four-under-par 68 and his commanding margin over runner-up Don Stickney. Wall now has 131 after an opening round 65—one stroke above the course record.

The closest Canadians—Wilf Homenuk of Winnipeg and Brian Bigras of Ste. Dorothee, Que.,—were 14 strokes off the pace at 145. Homenuk dropped to a 72 Friday after Thursday's 73 but Bigras added to a 76 after a first-round 69.

Next in line is Phil Brownlee of Toronto whose 146 includes rounds of 72 and 74.

Campbell Waits For Voss Report

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Friday he is awaiting a report from referee-in-chief Carl Voss before deciding what fines as a result of Wednesday's donnybrook in Toronto.

He said he already has talked to all three game officials and coaches Toe Blake of Montreal and Toronto's Punch Imlach. Films of the game also have been examined, "although they didn't show much."

"As soon as I get Mr. Voss' report, I'll be in a position to announce a decision," said Campbell. "It will probably be the first of the week."

The NHL president is bound by league rules to impose an automatic $25 fine on all players who left the bench to take part in the second-period brawl, which tied up action for more than 20 minutes. It is within his jurisdiction to fine the coaches should he decide, they did not take adequate steps to restrain their players.

Know How To Treat Transmission

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Sensible driving plus occasional service attention is a must if you are to minimize wear and tear on the automatic transmission — and on your engine. Never get careless about driving habits . . . such as jamming hard on the gas pedal in order to speed up shifting and achieve quick pick-up and get-away. Yet, don't become too deliberate. It's wasteful to poke along so slowly as to delay upshifts.

Learn to avoid straining the transmission, too. Shift to the correct gear when climbing grades . . . and descending them, too. And, even if you never need to use the information, be sure you know how and when to shift if your car must be push-started.

As far as service is concerned, there's little attention needed. Have the transmission fluid level checked at least every 1,000 miles, and report any unusual tr ansmission noise, roughness, or power loss to your mechanic as soon as you notice it.

From V. McM.: "I regularly travel over a long gravel road and my experience has proven that a car will stop faster on concrete than on gravel — yet, I find it hard to convince others of this."

You are right. A car travelling at 50 m.p.h. can be stopped approximately 40 yards sooner on concrete than on gravel.

H. Z. writes: "You've blamed faulty ignition cables for stalling troubles when the weather is wet or rainy. Wouldn't damp spark plugs also cause this?"

Yes — and so would a cracked distributor cap — but defective cable insulation is the leading cause.

A.G. asks: "There's a rattle in my engine which I'm sure is from the fan, but the belt is new, the blades are clean and unbent, and the bracket mounting is tight." How about fan bearing trouble?

From F. H.: "I was in a used car lot and noticed one man checking the oil dipstick on several cars. At first I thought he worked there, but found out he was a prospective buyer. What was he looking for?"

Perhaps he was checking to see if the oil was especially thick or heavy and might have been put in the crankcase to cushion a noisy engine or slow excessive oil burning.

140 Cars Compete
Winter Rally Under Way

TORONTO (CP)—The 13th annual Canadian winter rally got underway Friday night with 140 cars heading off at two-minute intervals on a 1,200-mile, two-day test of driving skill.

The weather office forecast dropping temperatures, snow flurries and winds up to 30 miles an hour for most of the triangular route, running east to Kingston, northwest through Bancroft to North Bay and then back to Toronto.

Officials of the British Empire Motor Club, organizers of the rally, said the event will feature difficult road conditions with routes in some areas made treacherous by mud lying under slush and snow.

Driver-navigator teams competed against the clock between checkpoints losing one point for each minute early or late arriving. Teams caught speeding to make up time will be disqualified. The team with the lowest number of penalty points wins.

ONE CHECKPOINT KNOWN

The only checkpoint known to the drivers is at North Bay, where the competitors will be given 10 hours' rest Saturday night. Other secret points have been set up along the route by the club officials.

Last year's winning team, Lou Lalonde and John Jones, both of Toronto, has entered again this year in a Corvair, the same make they won with in 1964. Second place went away Friday night was an all-girl team of Dianne Carter and Rennie

Poor Crowd, No Bout
Ballroom Boxing Big Flop

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) Boxing tried to take a step up the social ladder Friday night, but the rung broke.

It came tumbling back to earth after only minutes before Sugar Ray Robinson was to demonstrate his art to a well turned - out audience in the carpeted ballroom of a Clearwater Hotel.

Robinson and he had not been paid and there was no one to guarantee that he would get paid and that he was not going to fight. He didn't.

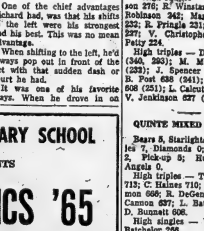
It was the last of a series of ho-hum bouts fate had been throwing all day.

Promoter Al Bing, who had decided that boxing's social status could be improved by attracting women to ringside, and that women could only be attracted if the ring were in the right sort of place, collapsed at the last minute and was admitted to hospital.

Sonny Moore, the little-known Cincinnati fighter, who was to meet Robinson, came down with flu. The landing of Tampa was substituted.

About 1,200 places were laid out for dinner and were surrounded the ring in the centre of the ballroom. But there were few customers up. Even fewer paid the $15 tab.

The meal was eaten and the preliminaries fought, the 10 minutes before the main event, reporters were called to a room above the ballroom where Robinson explained his position.



Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

Not many hockey fans seem to realize that Rocket Richard was a left hand shot, playing on right wing. Ordinarily, a left hand shot will be stationed on left wing.

However, there are several advantages for a left hand shot to be playing on right wing. Similarly, there are many more disadvantages.

For instance, it is very, very hard for a right winger to receive a good hard pass if he is a left-hand shot. Elmer Lach, who centered the Rocket many years, has stated on a number of occasions that he would throw the puck to the left behind Richard off the boards, so the Rocket could pick it up on his forehand and go in.

One of the chief advantages Richard had, was that his shifts to the left were his strongest and his best. This was no mean advantage.

When shifting to the left, he'll always pop out in front of the net with that sudden dash or spurt he had.

It was one of his favorite plays. When he drove in on

'Petticoat Junction' Will Likely Return Next Season

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This is the time of peril on the sound stages of television where executives are alert for the descending whistle of axes.

At this season the networks decide which shows are to survive and which are to become re-runs. One series which seems certain of pressing on is Petticoat Junction, by reason of its consistently respectable ratings. Still, Bea Benaderet isn't certain.

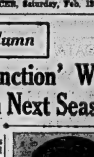
"You never know these things until they happen," she reasoned. "And I'm the last to find out. I usually hear the news from the prop man, who comes to know everything that is going on."

There is cause for Bea's unwillingness to believe that Petticoat Junction is a cinch for renewal. She still has trouble believing that the series actually happened.

WAS SUPPORTING ACTRESS

For many seasons, Bea Benaderet was a top supporting actress and comedienne.

She had played the outlandish cousin Pearl Bodine on Burns and Allen, Blondie, so when Paul Henning planned a new series about a rural family with three daughters who runs a whistle-stop hotel, he sent for Bea.



"It was entirely his idea," she says. "Never in my wildest dreams had I thought of such a role for myself starring in a show."

Bea, with a 25-year-old son who works on Petticoat Junction and a daughter, 18, in college thrives on the role. Says she:

"Sometimes I think, 'Goodness, this business is happening in every scene of the script is too much work.' But let a script come along in which I'm not in all the scenes, and I go, 'Eeeeee.'"

Monteith Adds To Goal Record

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Both Steve Monteith and Grant Moore of University of Toronto Blues set records Friday night but its doubtful Moore will wear any souvenirs.

Monteith, who last month set a new record for career goals in the Ontario-Quebec Intercollegiate Athletic Association with 83, scored his 22nd and 23rd of the season in a 12-4 whipping of University of Waterloo Warriors. The goals eclipsed the record of 21 set by Reggie St. Clair of McGill in 1948-49.

Meanwhile, Moore picked up nine minutes in penalties, giving him 78 on the season and the dubious honor having six more than Terry Ruskin received with McGill in 1958-59.

The win left Toronto in first place with 26 points, six more than University of Montreal Carabins.

UWO TEES LAVAL

In other action, third-place Western University Mustangs tied Laval University Rouge et Or and fourth-place Queen's University Golden Gaels shut out Guelph University Redmen 5-0.

Post-election Pakistan
Stability at the Top -- But Discontent Below

By IQBAL BURNEY

KARACHI (CP)—Neither the opposition nor the party in power seems to have learned any lessons from the hectic, dramatic presidential election which shook Pakistan as nothing else in its 17-year history.

President Ayub Khan's near-landslide victory Jan. 2 means his regime is here to stay. Only unforeseen and extra-political factors could remove it.

Yet the regime is as far removed from grassroots support as ever.

The uninspiring prospect for the next five years is one of stability at the top with layers of discontent beneath. The social-political structure continues to rest primarily on a pedestal of vested interest.

President Ayub obtained 62 per cent of the votes cast by an electoral college of 80,000 "basic democrats." The regime was for the first time legitimized.

It had come to power in October, 1958, ostensibly as the least, extra - constitutional means, it now has emerged with constitutional mantle from the stormy period of martial law.

A crucial question shaped itself after the overwhelming electoral victory: Will the regime move toward liberalization or the reverse? It is here that the regime seems to have learned no lessons.

FAIRNESS QUESTIONED

The opposition received about 38 per cent of the vote; 48 per cent in East Pakistan, the eastern wing, also. It showed that opposition-tip Ayub does exist.

The fact remains that the regime has espoused a system of "guided democracy" — a euphemism for a one-party authoritarian philosophy of government), and that the administrative machinery worked just as consciously for the re-election of President Ayub as for the party, and that the elections were less fair than they were free, the opposition showing acquires added significance.

Neither President Ayub nor his administration pretend party is, however, prepares to concede this.

In an election-night broadcast he seemed to be moving in the right direction when he said the opponents he had proved the cause of democracy. This statement if meant was not, however, borne out by action.

The regime gave an almost comical impression of its unchanged mentality two days later when its political supporters, fearing a repeating of Karachi, took to arson, looting and murdering innocent residents of the city's outlying colonies.

HOMES BURNED

The victims' only sin was that they—like almost all—had voted for the opposition candidate, Fatima Jinnah, 71-year-old sister of the late founding architect of Pakistan.

For four days burned there was no law and order in the city as the ghastly political vendetta raged through the afternoon of Jan. 4. The administration simply looked the other way.

Nearly 50 died, hundreds were injured and thousands rendered homeless. Compensation on demand for a judicial inquiry was summarily rejected by the regime.

Next, the regime made it known it considered its victory decisive enough to prove there was no opposition in the country, except for a few political groups as lawyers and students.

The president was reported to have said the lawyers were displeased because his reforms had deprived them of the opportunity to make money and while the students were a difficult lot anyway. If there was any political opposition it was because he had made "the people work harder and they do not like it."

ATTACKS OPPOSITION

In post-election speeches the president has kept up the refrain that the opposition parties were out to mislead the people and create chaos.

In short, the opposition's legitimate role has yet to be conceded and acknowledged by the regime.

No wonder, therefore, that immediately after the elections scores of political workers were arrested in East Pakistan.

In the National Assembly a bill aimed at disciplining the lawyers (who as a class had supported Miss Jinnah) and controlling the bar association was passed post-haste.

In the West Pakistan assembly an amended press ordinance was pushed through. The press, already controlled and curbed, now is under a tighter government fist.

The performance thus far indicates not even a perceptible trend toward liberalization. Rather the contrary. And there may be more to come.

Elections to the national and provincial assemblies are to be held in March and April respectively. It may be that only a strong opposition representation in the assemblies will prevent further inroads on personal and political freedoms.

OPPOSITION SPLIT

The opposition itself, a combination of five parties ranging from far right to extreme left, has on the other hand given no indication of its ability to rise to the occasion.

As leaders began to recover from the stunning defeat, the cry of a "rigged victory" went up. It was true only to the extent that the regime had created a fear psychosis and that it was utilizing the administrative machinery to the fullest extent possible.

It's at least eight of the administrative districts which are backward and governed under a semi-tribal system, opposition candidates polled not a single vote.)

The fact is that the courageous "lady with a lamp" (Miss Jinnah's election symbol was a lamp) could not be defeated because of the indirect voting system which, functioning just perfectly as it was, was designed to, filtered out the anti-regime upsurge.

The 80,000 members of the electoral college belong to the democratic and middle class and they voted for continuing the status quo.

The opposition was unable to project the image of a viable, alternative leadership in office. It turned out to be a middle class coup for security. It was also a vote for self-interest. Three elections are a privilege of class, responsible for real self-government and development programs. This involves both prestige and the opportunity to profit financially.

FACES DILEMMA

The defeat brought the opposition face to face with a bitter dilemma—whether or not to boycott the coming elections under a system whose legitimacy would be further compounded by the landslidwagon effect of Ayub's victory.

Not participating would mean a walk-over for the party in power. It would also leave the recourse to extra-constitutional measures of dubious value.

In mid-January the opposition parties called their first post-election conference in Karachi and wrangled over strategy for five days. A majority vetoed total boycott in civil disobedience and this was decided upon Jan. 26.

But an image of disunity and indecision had already been projected. And it was already at a head-on clash with the opposition having scored a majority in only five of 68 administrative districts.

Opposition plans to create a more integrated party structure appeared failed to crystallize. Miss Jinnah will continue to lead a loose coalition but with every party having the right of veto.

An opposition spokesman gloomily summed up the situation:

"President Ayub is more lucky than he is bright. Things are moving his way, aren't they?"

Successful Living

Hubby Blind—Cannot See Wife's Weakened Condition

DEAR DORIS — I married at 18 — had to. I wanted to be his wife more than anything.

Now I find that my father was right in saying my husband is too much of a money grabber. He never cared too much about my health as long as I could help him earn money.

I have had lung infections and varicose veins. But still I helped my husband with outside work like milking cows. Now the doctor says I have to take things easier.

My husband and his mother say I am just lazy. He says "Your family is too much for money and not enough for work." And he says he hasn't the money to hire a man. What do you think? — HURT.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR HURT — That some healthy types are stupid about illness. That he'd better heed the doctor unless he wants his little boys to be half-orphans. Stand your ground and press your medical man to talk man-to-man to this work horse of yours.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — My guy was wonderful to me, taught me to drive, took me everywhere. We talked about getting married. We are both 18.

Then he just quit coming to see me. I cried myself to sleep every night. Even though I go with someone else it's not the same and I end up crying.

My mother says he's not worth my tears. He drinks a lot. He's out working now at a camp in the bush. Please help me.— HEARTSICK.

• • •

DEAR HEARTSICK — Dry your tears, little girl. Don't let a dead romance ruin your future. Obviously your guy got scared of his own bright plans.

Next time you go out, pay your date the compliment of your full attention. Forget about love and think about friendship for a while.

Never, never insult an escort by crying over someone else in front of him.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — My 13-year-old daughter is my problem. She openly sneers and makes fun of me (because I've put on weight). I also become a bit out with my husband and the children. Actually I have no life of my own. Their father doesn't like me being away from any of them unless I'm with him.

She won't wear any of the dresses we pick out for her. They aren't tight enough, or they don't short enough, and I've had to give them away. She won't come home on time. She says we should let her run her own life. — WORRIED MOTHER.

• • •

DEAR WORRIED — Your daughter is doing her best to jump the gun and be all grown up. And making a bad flat of it.

If she wants to run her own life, would she like to buy her own food, cook it; clean her own room, pay for the "way out" dresses she wants to wear? Talk it all over with her.

As for sneers, these mean she'd like to be proud of you. Could you make a pact to study styles, take off weight, plan your routines together? Challenge her to prove she is growing up!

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Husband's Pattern for Living Proved Unsuitable for Widow

By THOMAS COLLINS

"I have done what most older widows would never do.

"At the age of 63 I have gone contrary to almost all the major instructions my husband gave me before he died. I have done it not out of rebellion and not out of foolishness —I loved my husband dearly and respected him. I have done it instead because his instructions do not fit the widowed life I have been left with.

"My husband could not have foreseen what circumstances I would face with him gone. Nor could I. And if he could come back tomorrow and see what I had done with his advice I think he would understand."

The first thing this widow did, contrary to her husband's instructions, was to sell her home. "I did this for two specific reasons," she says, "The first was that he was still there, in his special chair, his bed, at the table, everywhere. I was living with a ghost because the memory of him was in every inch of the house. The second reason was that a home that had been convenient and happy for a couple was neither for a widow."

She sold her house for $14,500 net, and bought a small, new one about two miles away for $12,000.

HAD DRAWN PATTERN

"My husband had drawn a pattern of living for me. This, too, I found I couldn't live with. He often told me—and he fully believed it—that I was far along in years and that I should live a quiet old life. Husbands a few years older than their wives often think this, did I didn't feel old. I didn't look old. I could not bear the thought of sitting by a window with my knitting and doing nothing but remembering. Once I was a widow and on my own I came to feel I had no right to do nothing."

She obtained a job as a stock clerk in a neat little industrial plant not far from her home, and wound up liking it a labor union. She had been left $140 a month from her husband's pensions. She was getting an additional $55 a month from investments her husband left. This was adequate, but her job, at $62 a week added some luster to life.

"My husband had invested virtually all our savings, about $23,000, in a small local company where his family had been associated for years. He thought it was loyal and safe investment. It paid less than 3 per cent. He wanted me always to keep the savings there.

"I grew nervous about this. Small family companies are all right if you're on the inside, or if there's sentiment involved. I was an outsider now. I went to three people — a stock broker a friend in the bank, and a well-to-do-man in town I had known many years. All three advised me that, with so many failures and mergers going on, I would be wise to take my savings out of the company. Each gave me a different, but similar, advice on other investments. . . .

DID OWN INVESTING

She put $10,000 of the money in an insured account at a savings and loan association at 4¼ per cent, and $12,500 in a conservative common stock that her three advisors all agreed was reasonably safe for a widow.

"Occasionally, I had twinges of conscience as I did these things. But always my common sense told me that my husband had given me his instructions just to protect me. And he loved me. If now, in the strange world of widowhood, I found my welfare and protection were better served by my own decisions, he would understand. . . ."

In only one instance has the widow broken her husband's wishes. In his will he had stated that if there were no male issue, his sister and not his widow died, he would like for $10,000 to be left to a certain civic organization where he had been an officer, and $5,000 left to a sister. He didn't "order" this, as the sister and the organization seemed to think, but merely expressed a wish. Both the sister and organization completely forgot the widow after the husband died. So she went on her own, leaving the organization $2,000 and the sister $1,000 and granting the remainder to her church.

Separatist Can't Get Job

MONTREAL (CP) — Former separatist leader Marcel Chaput says he can't get a job.

He says that he won't work for an English-speaking employer and that he finds that French-speaking firms don't want to hire "the worn-out villain named Marcel Chaput."

The result, he says, is that he's down and out.

"Three years ago, I had a house, a car, security, savings and a future," he says in a two-page statement outlining his problems. "Today I have nothing.

"Is this the fate reserved for French-Canadians who have the courage to preach independence?"

Mr. Chaput left the federal Defence Research Board three years ago to become a full-time separatist organizer.

He has a doctorate of biochemistry from McGill University and says he has no regrets over his actions.

Galapagos Revisited
Evolution Still Afoot In Darwin's Old Haunt

By DON HARVEY

TORONTO (CP)—A little bird inhabiting the Galapagos Islands 600 miles west of Ecuador may help psychologists learn how animals—and later men—solve problems.

The woodpecker-finch, a subspecies of the Darwin finch family, has completely changed its eating behavior and diet since Charles Darwin first identified it during a visit to the Pacific islands in 1832.

Dr. Lester Beck of Los Angeles, a research psychologist with the Oregon state system of higher education, said the woodpecker-finch, once a vegetarian, now uses cactus spines to spear grubs in tree limbs.

Darwin, English promoter of the theory of evolution, "would be astounded if he could return to the islands and see what these birds have become since he knew them as seed-eaters," Dr. Beck said in an interview while attending a conference here.

"For years psychologists have thought animals can't reason. We thought they learned by trial-and-error methods or by reflex action, but this little bird has somehow learned to reason."

He said it would be interesting to raise a woodpecker-finch in a box in captivity to try to learn how and when it learns to use a simple tool like a cactus spine.

RESORTS TO WILES

"We don't know whether this is an innate characteristic caused by years of in-breeding or whether the bird learns by playing with cactus spines while young."

But while the woodpecker-finch may help psychologists understand humans better, the bowerbird of Australia also has caused researchers to raise their eyebrows.

The male bowerbird builds a mound of mud and sticks during the mating season. Then it burrows a tunnel into the centre of the mound.

The male lies in wait for a passing female and tries various ways of luring her into his parlor.

If the male becomes frustrated when no female accepts his invitation, he stalks off into the bush.

There he picks some berries, comes back to his mound and paints the inside red with the juice with the expectation—or hope—that the female will be attracted by the color.

"It's amazing the lengths to which males of all species of the animal world will go to get a mate—even though she may only be a temporary one."

Publisher Max Bell Student Of Economics, Bible and The Daily Racing Form

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP)—Max Bell is a soft-talking Westerner who says his business life is full of mistakes but who has a ten-gallon hatful of newspapers, fast horses and money in large denominations.

Whether the part about the mistakes is true—and it is not known that he has been clipped in business since a confidence man took him for six ounces of gold dust in his young prospecting days—his life is full of other contrasts.

He is a student of economics, a Bible and the horseplayer's Daily Racing Form.

He sits at the board tables of the staid and solid Bank of Nova Scotia and Canadian Pacific Railway but also heads a Chicago racetrack.

He heads a company running seven major daily newspapers—worth a reported $50,000,000—but hates interviews and photographs.

He has made millions on a bounce of the stock market but says he favors (heresy, for a Canadian capitalist) a capital gains tax on this kind of profit.

HAS DIVERSE SKILLS

His analytical skill runs to such variety as being a track handicapper of professional competence and working out a plan for financing new congregations of the Presbyterian Church.

Though a powerhouse in business, he operates at low pressure.

His pressure is so low that the public rarely hears of this 52-year-old multi-millionaire and physical-culture devotee except when one of his horses wins a big American race or fails to win the Epsom Derby. He's better known on the sports page than the business page despite a career as a big operator in Western oil.

His own papers—he is chairman and president of FP Publications with dailies in Ottawa, Winnipeg, Lethbridge, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria — he's only a light touch on the editorial opinions. They go varied ways in policy and have the diverging political outlooks.

Board meetings have been known to see the chairman pull out a muscle-building exerciser and flex hard muscles as the compact body of a middle-weight. Once he startled a meeting of editors by walking on his hands across the room. He ran a measured mile in six minutes last year, later the same day suffered a shoulder separation playing touch football.

HAD EYE ON MILLION

While he mixes sport heavily with business, he has always had an eye out for a deal and there was one him Million also Max when he was a young-ster talking about making a pile. He prefers trading in the large manner to the day-to-day administering of a business.

"I suppose you'd say my ability is more in the area of sizing up deals and trying to put them through," he said during a visit to Toronto recently. He was sizing up the ceiling of his hotel suite, lying back in T-shirt and slacks, his bristly iron-grey hair tousled. Davenport's The U.S. Economy and the Racing Form were at hand.

He talked about a few of his enterprises. These include a $1,000,000 horse farm at Cochrane, Alta., in partnership with Frank McMahon, head of an oil and gas empire, and plunges into miscellaneous ventures that keep him flying. For instance, he owns a piece of a hotel near London's airport.

Most spectacular of these—to insiders, for little has been publicized about it—sent a shudder through one of Britain's oldest, most revered and most unshakably British institutions in 1950.

He started studying the almost - 300 - years - old Hudson's Bay Company, based in London and with a big Canadian operation. He concluded the stock was an excellent buy (the company has more money in the bank than the market value of all shares) but that diversification was needed and he was just the man to provide it. He figured he could get control for $6,000,000.

STIRRED UP ACTION

Before long he was the largest individual stockholder and was churning up HBC meetings with talk of making better use of the company's vast resources. He got to within two per cent of what he calculated was control and then gave up, figuring he would have to run the company himself to get it on the track he wanted. He sold out at a good profit. Afterward the stock kept going—with diversification—to a point where his investment would have been worth $100,000,000 in 10 years.

Shortly after the war he took stock in another dramatic proposition. A huge block of 54,000 shares of Canadian Pacific stock was held by Britain's Westminster Bank. He set out to acquire it and arranged for financing of $60,000,000.

It turned out the bank's shares were held in trust for a multitude of Continental clients and were not for sale. However, as his fortunes grew in oil and newspapers Mr. Bell continued to watch CPR and by mid-1962 decided its $19-a-share price was a bargain. He started buying heavily and profited handsomely as it went into a long climb that has seen the market price more than tripled. The coup displayed the Bell flair.

"The good Lord put me in the right place at the right time and with the right friends," he once said, "and I'm happy to say we all made money."

His career as a newspaper owner consists of a series of improbabilities. His father, George Melrose Bell, nursed a fortune in insurance but dropped it all in newspapers. When he died in 1935, his Calgary Albertan—on which the son was working for $35 a week—was held by the Royal Bank of Canada as security for loans of $500,000.

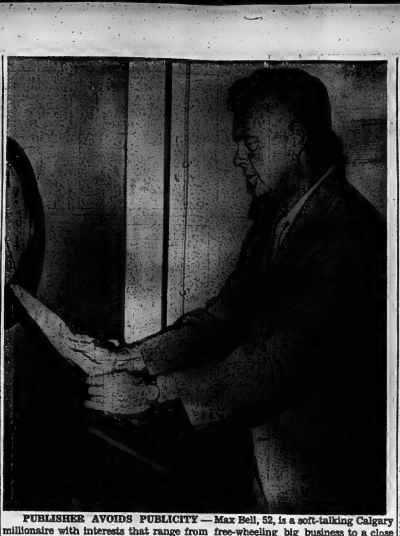
GOT BACK PAPER

Max raised $35,000 through four friends in 1943 and the bank took that as a down payment on The Albertan. In a few years, helped by the wartime boom, he paid off the bank and his backers.

With more borrowed money he picked up the tottering Edmonton Bulletin in 1947 but closed it down in 1951 when he considered printers' demands too onerous for a marginal operation. During the next three years he acquired—with some partner help—interests in and eventual control of the Victoria Times, Victoria Colonist and Lethbridge Herald.

In 1959 he persuaded Victor Sifton to join in buying the Ottawa Journal and merging all their interests in FP Publications. Mr. Sifton brought in the Winnipeg Free Press and its enormously successful Weekly Prairie Farmer.

Mr. Bell was still so little known even in the newspaper profession that, it is related, when the deal was in progress a news executive of The Journal telephoned a Western colleague: "Can you tell me anything about any newspaper background of G. M. Bell, a rich Calgary oilman with a lot of racing horses?"



Mr. Sifton became chairman of FP Publications and Mr. Bell president. On the chairman's death in 1961, the partner moved up.

FP's latest acquisition — in 1963—was the Sun Publishing Company operating the Vancouver Sun, largest paper in the West and in the city where George Bell dropped $400,000 on the now-defunct Star. Other FP holdings are a half-interest in Lethbridge TV station CJLH and a minority share of CHCT-TV at Calgary.

Through some of these years oil money was gushing in as Mr. Bell pyramided an original small investment. He says now he has sold out his oil interests and spends his newspaper ownership as the major aspect of his business career. He is active as publisher of The Albertan.

He's strong on family life and physical fitness and has combined these. For years nonsmoking, non-drinking Mr. Bell has taken along the family—some now grown up—for golf (he's a 12-handicap player), badminton, tennis, skiing, hockey (he played for Kimberley Dynamiters in the Western International League) and even weight-lifting. He has been a strong backer of minor sport.

Some of his closest friends are in sport. Columnist Jim Coleman first initiated him into the racetrack's inner sanctum of speed charts. Charlie Conacher, the old hockey great, once joined him in astonishing the turf crowd• assembled for Newmarket's July Stakes as they lauded in the infield in a plane chartered in Paris. A pal since boyhood is jockey Johnny Longden, who has made a million since Max's father gave him a bet tip on the banks overflowing shoebox he was using to hold his track earnings.

PUBLISHER AVOIDS PUBLICITY — Max Bell, 52, is a soft-talking Calgary millionaire with interests that range from free-wheeling big business to a close watch on the Daily Racing Form. He hates interviews and photographs. He sits on the board of the Bank of Nova Scotia and Canadian Pacific Railway and has a huge racing stable. He once shook the foundations of the ancient Hudson's Bay Company by coming within two per cent of gaining control. In this rare photograph, he watches news arrive on a teletype at the Calgary Albertan. (CP Photo)

May Need Cuts In Taxes Here To Retain Boom

Survey Also Suggests Wage Curbs Advisable

OTTAWA (CP)—An international organization suggests tax cuts and possibly wage and salary restraints may be needed if Canada is to keep up its boom in 1965.

The suggestions are made in an annual study of the Canadian economy prepared by the 21 - member organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, of which Canada is a member.

The survey, prepared in Paris last December, says the expansion of activity which marked Canada's economy in 1964 "should continue well into 1965, but the pace of advance may slow down somewhat unless fresh measures to stimulate demand are taken."

The fresh measures suggested are in the field of fiscal policy—tax incentive exemptions, and the like.

It also suggests "some form of an income policy" may be helpful in reducing Canada's current account deficit in balance of payments. This is the policy in Britain, Sweden and Holland which attempts to hold down the rise in general wages and other incomes to a rate compatible with rising productivity and stable prices.

SHOULD CONTINUE

At the outset of its 27-page survey, the OECD review committee says Canada's expansion, as in the United States, "should continue well into 1965, but some slowing-down may well occur unless fresh measures to stimulate activity are taken."

"The pace in business investment demand may also slow down following the strong increase over the last year."

The report also says the marked change in the federal budgetary position — revenues sufficiently buoyant to cut the initially forecast deficit of $455,000,000 to perhaps less than $200,000,000 — "would seem likely to exert a dampening impact on the expansion over the rest of the present fiscal year."

"Import prices is rising rapidly," the report also states, "and it is not clear whether the competition will be strong enough to achieve a further decline in unemployment."

PRESSURE RISE

Prices did remain "very stable" in 1964, the report says. Wage costs in manufacturing increased somewhat little, or fell slightly between the first halves of 1963 and 1964 after having increased in 1963.

During 1964 there was a sharp increase in manufacturing productivity, the sharpest since 1956. But the OECD report says this increase may not be different field from that of the previous boom period.

"Over 40 per cent of the increase in business investment in 1964 was planned in manufacturing industries, compared with less than one-third in 1955-56."

Union Aid Solicited By NDP

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Donald C. MacDonald, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, said Sunday the party will try to build up mass membership using labor union locals as a key base.

Speaking to a two-day seminar sponsored by the Ontario Federation of Labor, Mr. MacDonald said the party once tried to avoid the appearance of being dominated by the trade union movement, but now he, for one, is proud of this association with labor.

In future, the party plans to send information and educational materials and make speakers available to affiliated locals, he said.

It intends to combine forces with unions to build stronger associations in each riding.

"Our growing resources in the Ontario New Democratic Party is that we never built a mass membership.

PROPOSES CONTRIBUTION

Mr. MacDonald also proposed that the affiliated unions contribute to a sustaining membership fund on a monthly basis in addition to the present 50-cent-a-member annual fee.

George Home, political education director for the Canadian Labor Congress, called for the establishment of separate union political funds to provide money for contesting elections. The funds would be similar to ones used by trade union centres in the United States, Britain and Sweden.

The educational seminar heard a proposal for a high school program that would let students forge the current emphasis on marks.

J. R. McCarthy, Ontario's deputy minister of university affairs, said "marks have become the carrot that students follow through their school careers."

He suggested instead a non-graded high school in which a student might have a profile of achievement in which his English might be at the equivalent of Grade 10, mathematics at Grade 8 or geography at Grade 12.

Roby Kidd, executive secretary of the Social Science Research Council, suggested to the seminar that a separate division within the government be established to encourage and develop adult education.

Every town and city should provide specific services to advance adult education, just as they now provide libraries and high schools, he said.

Liberal Chieftan Resigns

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—Guy Rouleau, who made half representations on behalf of narcotics smuggling suspect Lucien Rivard, resigned Sunday as chairman of the Liberals' parliamentary caucus saying his doctor has ordered him to "go away for several weeks."

Liberal Whip James Walker told reporters following a five-hour afternoon caucus that the resignation had been accepted with "reluctance" and that a new chairman would probably be elected at Wednesday's caucus.

Mr. Rouleau, 41, who told the Commons Nov. 24 of his role in the Rivard case, then quit as parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, revealed his resignation as chairman by releasing a letter he wrote to Mr. Pearson.

"Some time ago I was ordered by my doctor to take a complete rest but I was not then able to do so," the letter said. "Needless to say, the events of these past weeks have done

Southern Indians Protest Against Adoption of Hindi

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—The fear of economic isolation behind a language barrier has driven thousands of southern Indians to protest against the adoption of Hindi as India's national language.

Despite the retention of English as an "associate language," and promises by Hindi-speaking Premier Shastri that no one will be penalized for not speaking Hindi, or forced to speak it, fears continue.

The fear is that in time only Hindi-speaking people will have the country's better jobs, better government positions, better opportunities.

Some southern Indians are openly speaking of seceding and forming a separate south Indian state if the government does not back down on the issue.

And 250,000,000 people, mostly in the southern triangle of India where ships down into the Indian Ocean, do not speak Hindi as a mother tongue.

For them English, the language of a departed conqueror, has been the language of unity and opportunity.

India has 14 main languages spoken by 1,000,000 or more people each, and 225 dialects, some of them with no written alphabet.

Hindi became India's official language Jan. 26, 15 years after the adoption of the Indian constitution. But long before that an amendment assured the continuance of English as an "associate language."

English is still the language of many textbooks and the medium of instruction in many schools and colleges. It also is the language of most higher courts and the main means of communication between the government and foreign countries.

The study of Hindi is compulsory in all schools, starting from the primary stage, but the language still is not commonly used in non - Hindi - speaking areas.

Observers believe it will take another 10 years or more before Hindi becomes the common language of these areas.

Some enthusiasts, headed by Socialist leader Ram Manohar Lohia, want the immediate abolition of English, its erasure from signs and the removal of statues of British statesmen and monarchs.

Another group, led by the Dravidian Munnetra Kazhagam party of south India bitterly opposes the "imposition" of Hindi on non-Hindi-speaking people.

One legislator who opposed continued use of English lit a fire outside the Parliament building to "purify the atmosphere." Later, an opponent of Hindi committed suicide by fire because of the "imposition." There have been at least three suicides so far.

Riots in Madras State, where the main language is Tamil, took at least 50 lives.

If Shastri gives way to the south and proposes a constitutional amendment to ensure continuance of English, he will meet strong opposition from Hindu protagonists in the north.

If he stands by assurances that Hindi will not be imposed, but does not follow them with legislative action, the trouble in the south is likely to continue.

Complicating the English-versus-Hindi argument is the fact that even in the Indian Parliament there are 100 members who speak neither language.

Flag Is Raised Without Cheers

LONDON (CP)—Canada's national flag was hoisted at noon today after a 15 minute ceremony at Canada House watched by more than 100 spectators. There was no applause.

Duplicating ceremonies held at Canadian missions around the world, the flag was raised by an escort of the three services while Canadian and British government officials stood at attention.

Pride Mingles With Regret As Canada Lowers Ensign, Hoists Maple Leaf Flag

Flag-raising Ceremonies Staged In Capital City and in Hamlets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said today he is sure all Canadians will fly the new maple leaf with pride, even though many regretted the replacement of the Red Ensign.

He spoke in the Hall of Fame in the Parliament Buildings shortly before a red - coated mounted Constable Joseph Secours, hoisted the new flag on a specially installed white flag pole at the foot of the Peace Tower.

Mr. Pearson termed the occasion "a milestone in Canada's progress from a group of separate British colonies to "a great and sovereign Confederation."

Governor - General Vanier, Commons Speaker Alan Macnaughton and Senate Speaker Maurice Bourget also hailed the new flag.

REFERS TO DEBATES

Referring to the stormy parliamentary debates and public controversies that preceded the adoption of the maple leaf in December, Mr. Pearson said:

"There are many in this country who regret the replacement of the Red Ensign by the red maple leaf. Their feelings and their emotions should be honored and respected.

"But I am sure, now that the decision has been made by the representatives of Canadian people in Parliament assembled, that all Canadians, as good patriots, will accept that decision and fly with pride our national flag."

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, who led English-speaking Conservatives in a six-month parliamentary struggle to retain the single and block the new flag last year, took part in the ceremony. He had turned down a government invitation to attend.

Mr. Pearson said: "Under this flag may our youth find new inspiration for loyalty to Canada; for a patriotism based not on any mean or narrow nationalism, but on the deep and equal pride that all Canadians will feel for every part of this land.

"God bless our flag. And God bless Canada."

SPEAKER

Speaker Macnaughton said the adoption of a distinctively Canadian flag was the formal illustration of Parliament at work.

"It is reassuring that in this 20th century when the old order is changing in so many parts of the world that we, who have been able through the orderly constitutional process to reach agreement on a matter so charged with emotion as a national flag," he said.

The design had been the subject of much debate, but government MPs chose it from five places and all agreed on what the flag stood for.

In the final rebellion of Parliament, the participants have gathered here today to mark by their presence their respect for a democratic decision.

"In a few moments from now the Red Ensign will be lowered to take its honored place among our national treasures."

Speaker Bourget, speaking in French, said the flag is the at Stratford city hall and in a civic ceremony at Chatham presided over by Mayor Garnet R. Newkirk.

Brief ceremonies were held by city councils in Kitchener and Waterloo to precede official flag - raising ceremonies. Most area schools had flag-raising ceremonies.

The Queen's proclamation was read on the Legislature steps at Royal Military College in Kingston prior to the unfurling of the flag. Commandant Air Commodore L. J. Birchall read the proclamation and the cadet wing of the tri-services college formed the parade.

LOWERED SUNDAY

The Red Ensign was lowered from the college flatstaff Sunday night, while the cadet pipe and drum band sounded last post. Reveille was played at today's ceremonies.

The new flag was also raised at Kingston city hall.

In Toronto, ceremonies began at 10:15 a.m. on a platform outside and continued through the morning with an official flag-raising at city hall at 2 p.m. and at the suburban Etobicoke municipal building at 4 p.m.

The emphasis was on youth at the ceremonies at St. Thomas. Cubs hoisted the flag and a high school band provided the music. An Anglican minister delivered the invocation and a Roman Catholic priest gave the benediction.

Brockville marked the raising with official ceremonies in front of the city hall. City officials and provincial and federal representatives were joined by a contingent from Brockville Rifles and two bands.

At nearby Prescott, a ceremony was held at the customs terminal of the Johnston - Ogdensburg International Bridge. The mayors of the two cities and officials of United States and Canadian government officials participated.

In Galt, the flag on the city hall was hoisted to the skirt of bagpipes and music played on a church organ over an outdoor amplifier. The Royal Canadian Legion raised the new flag beside the Red Ensign outside its lodge rooms.

Viet Nam Selects Premier

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP)—South Vietnamese leaders appeared ready today to announce the formation of a new civilian government headed by a former foreign minister, Dr. Phan Huy Quat.

Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh, South Viet Nam's strong man, also was expected to announce a 20-member advisory council, including six military officers, to serve as a temporary legislative arm of the government.

Khanh's ruling military council were reported to have picked Quat after three other candidates turned down the premiership. A 55-year-old doctor and opponent of the late president Ngo Dinh Diem, Quat served as foreign minister last year under Khanh.

Quat's cabinet includes men who are expected to win the support of various groups whose opposition has toppled past governments in Saigon. Quat is a native of North Viet Nam, and of 12 top cabinet members reported chosen so far, nine are either from the north or central Viet Nam.

The most active political pressure groups in the country, including the militant Buddhists, are led by north or central Vietnamese.

HAS BEEN ACTING

The government has been headed by Acting Premier Nguyen Xuan Oanh who was appointed by Khanh after 28 other Premier Tran Van Huong was ousted in a military coup. Khanh retains real authority as commander of the armed forces.

Although the fighting in Viet Nam has escalated, the Communists were ordered today to strike harder against U.S. and South Vietnamese forces. Radio Hanoi said the order was issued by Nguyen Hun Tho, president of the central committee of the Viet Cong's presidium.

It called upon the Viet Cong to "deal deadly blows at the enemy" and said that the war is developing "in a more and more ruthless as it is drawing near to success."

Despite Communist threats, U.S. officials in Washington said there appeared to be no hard evidence of a major new Communist military buildup following the U.S. air strikes last week against military installations in North Viet Nam.

The mayor of Hanoi, Tuong, who returned to the Soviet Union Sunday after a 10-day trip to North Viet Nam, North Korea and China, has promised military aid to the Hanoi regime.

Reports said North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung said in a joint communique that the Soviet Union and North Korea "will not remain indifferent to the guaranteeing of the security" of North Viet Nam. They also pledged support to the struggle of the South Vietnamese patriots."

Queen Was 'Never in Danger' During Oct. Visit to Canada Says Chevrier

LONDON (CP) — Lionel Chevrier, Canada's high commissioner in London, said today the Queen was "never in danger" during last October's Royal Visit to Canada.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: As a weather disturbance moves through Northern Ontario into Quebec, northerly winds will bring colder air and clearing skies to this part of the province tonight and more cloudiness into southern Ontario during tonight and Tuesday.

Today's Chuckle

A prominent Russian newspaper announces that is running a contest for the best political joke. First prize is 20 years.

Chevrier, in an address to the Insurance Institute of London, was discussing the various problems of Canada's national unity that have arisen in recent years.

He said the Queen received a great service to Canada by making the rest of the country realize there is a problem in one of its areas. Her speech pleading for a "dialogue" was a masterpiece, he said.

"She was never in danger. She was enthusiastically received. Young malcontents demonstrated in the streets. . . .

"Since her departure, the moderates have taken over."

At the time of the Queen's visit to Prince Edward Island and Quebec, considerable concern was expressed in the British press for the Queen's safety because of Quebec extremists.

Listing the benefits derived from the Queen's visit, Chevrier said:

"She made us all realize that we have a destiny that awaits us; that we cannot attain it without national unity; that national unity will depend upon the maintenance of two principles—namely, that violence is not strength, compassion is not weakness.

"With these principles we shall attain our destiny as a nation, as a member of the Commonwealth, as a member of the United Nations."

Chevrier said the problems of national unity were also made evident by the desire to amend the 100-year-old constitution, by the concept of co-operative federalism, by the adoption of a distinctive Canadian flag and by the establishment of a royal commission in bilingualism and biculturalism.

The text of his address was released to the press prior to delivery.

Popular Music's Brightest Star, Nat King Cole, Dies of Lung Cancer

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) Nat (King) Cole, whose smooth voice made him one of popular music's brightest stars, died today. He was 45.

Death came to the famed Negro musician at St. John's Hospital.

Cole had a cancerous lung tumor removed Jan. 25.

He had been admitted Dec. 9 last to St. John's for what was then termed a respiratory ailment.

He was allowed to go home shortly after Christmas and his doctors said his professional engagements for several months were cancelled "to allow time for his full recuperation."

The first hint of Cole's illness came when he was forced to cancel engagement at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas, complaining of a respiratory ailment. The gravity of his illness became more apparent when he was unable to appear at the first postwar music concert at Los Angeles' New Music Centre Dec. 11 and was replaced by Frank Sinatra.

Cole leaves his wife, Maria; daughters Carol, 19, Natalie, 14, and twins Casey and Timothy, 13, and an adopted son, Nat Kelly, 5.

Cole, who played his first professional dates with a 14-piece orchestra that earned a total of $1.50 a night, never really meant to be a singer at all. He started out as a pianist.

Critics called his voice husky, hoarse, furry, sugar-cured and gravel-like at times.

His recordings of Mona Lisa, Ballerina, Nature Boy, Unforgettable, Too Young and Christmas Song ultimately raised his average annual income to $500,000.

Cole's rise to the pinnacle of success had in its elements of a bad Hollywood movie: The rags - to - riches, obscurity - to - fame plot. But it was true.

Trinidad Invites Minister And Wife to Re-visit Island

Former residents of the Island of Trinidad, Dr. Harold F. Swan and Mrs. Swan, 36 Burton street, are going to revisit the Island on official duties. For 25 years Dr. Swan was principal of a training college there.

Dr. and Mrs. Swan have been invited for a three weeks' stay on the West Indies island and will leave Toronto by air on Feb. 22.

The invitation to revisit the Island has been made in recognition of Dr. Swan's contribution to education on Trinidad—36 years as training college principal and three years as head of a north island high school.

For the past eight years, Dr. and Mrs. Swan have lived in Belleville. After returning to Canada from Trinidad in 1956, Dr. Swan taught at Albert College for four years and since 1961 has acted as United Church supply minister in the district.

He is currently supervising minister at the Consecon charge.

In the ministry since before church union, Dr. and Mrs. Swan were in China before going to Trinidad in 1933. They returned to Canada in 1956.

Two of their four children were born in China and one in Trinidad.

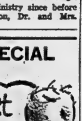
Union Claims Chrysler Imports U.S.-Made Cars

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Striking workers at Chrysler Canada Limited's plants here sent a letter to Prime Minister Pearson Saturday protesting what the United Auto Workers (CLC) called the company's "strike-breaking program."

The letter, sent on behalf of 7,000 striking members of Local 444 and the international union, claims that Chrysler is "importing U.S.-manufactured automobiles to supply the Canadian market while its employees are legally on strike."

The letter says the cars are being imported duty-free under provisions of a new Canada-United States tariff agreement.

The letter urges the government to intervene and prohibit "improper abuse of the new tariff treaty."



If the company's action continues, says the letter, it nullifies collective bargaining processes with Canadian subsidiaries of American-owned companies.

The strike, which began Jan. 28, involves workers at three plants and at Walker Metals Limited, a Chrysler subsidiary. Office staff are not affected.

Company officials were not available for comment.

Pennell Family In Ameliasburg Loses Home

The William Pennell family of Ameliasburg township lost its home and belongings in a fire on Sunday.

Belleville firemen were called to the outbreak on the fourth concession but the flames had gained too much by the time they arrived.

The Pennells, who had been away visiting, returned to find the smoldering ruins. The loss was covered by insurance.

In two other incidents during the weekend local firemen attended to a short circuit in a wall plug at Paul Mercier's place of business on Saturday. Later an oil burner at George Belch's place at 172 East College street caused considerable damage before members of the fire department arrived.

Tanzania Envoy Ordered Home

DAR ES SALAAM (AP)—Relations between Canada and the United States deteriorated further today after the United States expelled a Tanzanian diplomat and the African nation called its ambassador home from Washington.

President Julius Nyerere summoned Ambassador Oithma to the Tanzanian foreign ministry and told him the U.S. announced the expulsion of Tanzania's No. 2 diplomat in Washington, Herbert Kaiza. The pair are Tanzania's only diplomats in Washington.

The U.S. action was itself in retaliation for Tanzania's expulsion of two American diplomats last month on charges of subversive activities.

The U.S. state department said that "a thorough investigation" uncovered no basis for the charge against the expelled Americans.

Tanzania, a country of 10,500,000, was formed last year by the merger of Tanganyika and the neighboring island of Zanzibar. Tanganyika is a former British colony and Zanzibar a former British protectorate.

Booth's Rink Winner of V & G Spiel

The Victoria and Grey bonspiel closed at the Quinte Curling Club on Saturday night, the outstanding success from the curling to the costumes exhibited by the various rinks. Winning the fun a rink of Alex Insch, Herb Lawrie, Bill Spillett with Ross Booth as skip will have their names inscribed on the beautiful trophy. In the runners-up spot was a rink skipped by Dave Duffy and the Murray Johnson rink won the two-game high score with Hal Emerson in charge of the rink in second place in this category. The one-game high score was won by a rink skipped by "Skip" Shore.

Dr. Jim Nelles and his rink won the hard-luck trophy for the day and the costumes worn by the Pat Houston rink was lodged the best by the committee in charge. The costumes brought many a laugh from the spectators behind the glass. There were sixteen rinks entered in the spiel and the Victoria and Grey had a rink with head official members and "Bud" Tvill, manager of the local branch. This rink thoroughly enjoyed their day and the out-of-town members remained many old acquaintances.

Mrs. Hal McCorquodale and her efficient committee were in charge of the refreshments and a delicious roast beef dinner with all the trimmings was served to the hungry curlers. As in the Sportsman's spiel, George Moir at the piano and with his ukele kept the curlers and spectators in a happy mood throughout the day with his spontaneous sing songs. Old and new songs were sung with gusto and as it has been said before a good choir could be formed in the club. All in all it was a grand day of curling and good fellowship.

Two Toronto Men Die Of Exposure

TIMMINS (CP) — Two Toronto men died of exposure while staking claims about 25 miles south of here Friday night. Their deaths in the 32-degree below-zero weather were not reported until Saturday night.

The victims were Thomas Wilkinson, 65, president of Ganda Silver Mines Limited, and Walter Bitsa, 60, a mining promoter.

Provincial police said the two men, in company with William Ratchford, 42, a Toronto prospector, and Allan Martins, a Timmins bush guide, were returning to Timmins after staking claims when a storm struck, dropping about 14 inches of snow.

Their car hit a snow drift and stuck there. Mr. Martin and Mr. Ratchford decided to walk to Timmins, leaving the other men, who were to wait in a deserted hut about 16 miles away.

REACHED CABIN

Mr. Martin and Mr. Ratchford reached another cabin where they slept and then Mr. Ratchford hailed a passing car and rode to Timmins.

The other men, trying to reach the hut, stopped frequently, trying to get warm by lying in snow banks and finally by building a lean-to of boughs and trying to start a fire.

Police said one man died by the fire and the other about a quarter-mile away. Their bodies were sighted by a helicopter crew about 12 hours later and a snowmobile went to recover them.

Coroner James Mcclinton said Sunday that an inquest will be held "because it is time people realized that there is more to staking claims than merely walking into the bush."

Editor's Note: Thomas Wilkinson was well known in this city. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bertl Gabriel Wilkinson.

Mr. Wilkinson, while a resident of city was employed in the advertising department of Radio Station CJBQ.

He named advertising manager of the station when it opened in this city in 1946 and remained in that position for a year and one half.

Cave-Explorer Is Wedged In Shaft, Feared Dead

DOLGEVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — James Mitchell, 23, a chemist, was presumed dead as state police turned to earth-moving machines today to free him from a labyrinth-like cave that has held him captive since Saturday.

Cave-exploring experts Sunday night abandoned attempts to remove Mitchell, of Winthrop, Mass., by efforts entirely inside Schroeder's Cave, near here and about 25 miles east of Utica.

Mitchell had been wedged in a narrow shaft, near the top of an underground crater into which he had descended Saturday as two fellow members of the Boston Grotto Club watched. The numbing, cold underground waterfall that had helped to prevent his ascent also drenched his body with freezing water and hampered rescue efforts.

William Karras, part of a rescue team flown here from Washington, D.C., made three crawls Sunday to the crater opening—about 300 feet from the cave entrance.

He said he used a stethescope and could not detect any sign of life in Mitchell, who crawled him to the bottom of the 75-foot crater to facilitate earth-moving operations.

ASK FOR EQUIPMENT

State police requested owners of bulldozers and other heavy equipment to help rip away part of the hillside over the crater.

Rescue efforts inside had bogged down in mud and were creeping the 50- to 10-inch-wide passageway leading to the crater opening.

Mitchell, said Hedy Miller, 22, a Boston, Mass., nurse and Charles Bennett, 21, a Harvard graduate student, had squirmed their way through the passageway to reach the 30-foot underground stream Saturday.

Miss Miller and Bennett then followed lower Mitchell into the

, he underground stream feeds the 1,382-pound Mitchell was soaked by the time he reached the base of the shaft.

Mitchell faltered on the hand-over-hand ascent. Miss Miller told what happened:

"He kept talking slower and slower. Finally he didn't answer. His head lolled to one side.

"At that point Charles went for help."

Bennett and Miss Miller were treated for exposure and shock at the Little Falls Hospital.

Flag-raising the flag in Central Park. A short ceremony also marked the flag-raising at nearby Hespeler.

There was only one official ceremony scheduled at the Lakehead. Ceremonies at Port Arthur were to be conducted tonight at the naval centre.

The ship's company, members of the Navy League and local dignitaries, including Mayor Saul Laskin of Port Arthur and Mayor Ed. Salsberg of Fort William, were invited to attend.

RAISED AT SCHOOLS

At Welland, the flag was hoisted at the city hall and at all city schools.

An cadet honor guard from Woodstock Collegiate was on hand as the flag went up at city hall. Brian Eelen, 18, a Grade 12 student, gave the general salute on trumpet and Mayor Wilfrid Lindsay delivered the address.

There was no official ceremony at Oxford, Warden Harry Armstrong of Dereham Township said: "The caretaker puts the flag up every other day of the year. I don't see why Monday should be different."

The Royal Canadian Legion at Woodstock planned no special ceremony and, although the new flag was purchased for the color party, none had been obtained for the legion flag pole.

At nearby Ingersoll, Mayor Thomas J. Hall invited all citizens to join council in a brief ceremony in front of city hall.

Farm Hand Wanted After Woman's Death

SARNIA (CP)—Police concentrated a search in this area today for John Pitman, 21, a farm hand wanted in connection with the slaying of a school teacher near Dublin, Ont., Sunday.

A 1963-model car belonging to the dead woman, Marianne Vandervliet, 21, was found on a side street here early today by city police. It had apparently run out of gas.

A warrant, charging Pitman, formerly of Nova Scotia, with capital murder, was issued after Miss Vandervliet's, body was found in her parents' farmhouse at Dublin, 15 miles northwest of Stratford.

Pitman was employed on the Vandervliet farm, and police said the woman a Kitchener school teacher had come home for the weekend and was alone in the house during the day.

FOUND ON COUCH

Miss Vandervliet was found dead on a kitchen couch when her parents and two younger brothers returned home from visiting friends about 11 p.m. Sunday.

A graduate of Mitchell District High school and Stratford Teachers' College, she began teaching last fall. She and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Foort Vandervliet, came from Holland several years ago.

Interest of Young Readers Is Considered

TORONTO (CP) — Problems in newspaper production and content were studied Saturday at closing sessions of the two-day annual meeting of the Canadian Managing Editors Conference.

The executives spent much of the day listening to criticisms of the publications from six student editors of university publications as they tackled the question of how to attract the interest of young readers.

At the same time, the CMEC received a separate report from a panel discussion group of its own to the effect that teen-agers have a far wider range of news interests then they are often given credit for.

While there was dissent among the student group as to the value or otherwise of tear-page sections of newspapers, there was agreement that material aimed at the group should be improved. Younger people wanted to be informed on things they might see their elders on current affairs.

Michel Boldue of Laval University, moderating Peter R. Pregon of the Brantford Expositor, said the student group as to the value or otherwise of tear-page sections of newspapers, there was agreement that material aimed at the group should be improved. Younger people wanted to be informed on things they might see their elders on current affairs.

Michel Boldue of Laval University, moderating Peter R. Pregon of the Brantford Expositor, president for the last two years. Other officers are R. D. Owen, Kingston Whig-Standard, first vice - president; Maurice Dagenais, La Presse, Montreal, second vice-president; W. H. Metcalfe, Ottawa Journal, secretary-treasurer; and Denis Harvey, Hamilton Spectator, program chairman.

Directors include: J. A. Curran, Sault Ste. Marie Star; T. N. Morrison, Welland Tribune; Ivor Williams, London Free Press; A. W. MacFarlane, Toronto Telegram.

Group winners of Royal Canadian Legion public speaking contest held in Belleville Saturday, Nancy Moher, Dale King and Nickey Gardner are seen with Legion president Richard Kirby and Janet MacDonald, Branch 587 president.

Attempts to win bail for Rivard, wanted in the United States on charges of smuggling narcotics into that country, are the subject now of a judicial inquiry headed by Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court.

Mr. Rouleau has told the inquiry that it was at his instigation that two ministerial assistants telephoned Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne, who is acting for the U.S. government in trying to extradite Rivard to the U.S.

Mr. Lamontagne testified a $20,000 bribe was offered him by Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to Liberal immigration minister Tremblay, as an inducement to allow bail for Rivard while extradition proceedings were before the courts.

CALLED LAWYER

Mr. Lamontagne has testified that Mr. Rouleau telephoned the day 13 and 12 asking to obtain Rivard's release on bail as a favor, and that Mr. Rouleau said the Liberal party was displeased with opposition to bail in the case.

Although Eric Nielsen (PC — Yukon) made no mention of Mr. Rouleau when making his revelations about the Rivard case in the Commons Nov. 23, the 61-year-old MP for Montreal Dollard riding quit as Mr. Pearson's parliamentary secretary the next day. He said he was resigning until his name was cleared.

Mr. Rouleau was seen in the corridor talking to Mr. Walker following the caucus, but did not attend the meeting.

A grade 12 student from Moira Secondary School, Dale King, was declared winner of the Royal Canadian Legion public speaking contest held at the Branch 99 legion hall on Saturday.

Winner and runners up in four different age groups were decided from a total of 41 students entering the contest.

The winners will go on to the Zone speak-off to be held at Madoc on March 7th from where winners will go on to Peterborough for district competitions on March, 28th.

Winners in the various groups on Saturday were: Group 4 — Dale King; Moira Secondary School, with Terry Stollker, Quinte Secondary School, Grade 9, ion Gerry; Group 2 — Nickey Gardiner, Grade 8, Holloway, and Kathy Ashton, Foxboro; Group 1 — Nancy Moher, Grade 4, Our Lady of Fatima, and John O'Connor, Grade 3, St. Michael's Academy.

Judges for the contest were Kenneth G. M. Rose, Q.C. chairman, Rev. James H. Smith, Christ Church and Miss Cecilia Maloney, Ontario School for the Deaf teacher.

He said there was no general feeling within the caucus that there should be an early election.

The prime minister, bothered with a bad cold, stayed away from the caucus. He stayed home Friday evening instead of appearing at the Toronto Press Club ball, and cancelled a speaking engagement Saturday night in Ottawa.

An aide said he was staying inside for the weekend in order to be in good health for today's inauguration ceremonies for the single maple leaf flag.

West Pushed Back a Bit In Middle East Crisis

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The Middle East checkerboard is as jumbled it is always difficult to tell who is ahead, but the West seems to have been pushed back a bit in recent weeks.

The most important new move was U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser's successful pressure against West Germany to stop sending arms to Israel. Arab newspapers applauded it as a slap against the United States. Most Arabs believe the German arm shipments actually were sent by Washington.

Other minor events in the area indicate the Communists are gaining a few small points. One Communist gain was in Syria, where the government announced it had agreed to let the Soviet Union prospect for oil. Only two months ago Damascus announced it would grant no more Syrian oil concessions to foreigners.

CHANGE SEEN

Co-operation appeared to be growing between the Communists and the Baath Socialist regime in Syria—a big change from the days when the Baath party ran neighboring Iraq and persecuted and jailed many Arab Communists.

The checkerboard is at its most complicated in Iraq, where President Abdul Salam Aref follows Nasser's warm approach to Moscow. There is an unknown number of Arab Communists behind bars. The latest report is that Aref relashes the West as a matter of routine, was directed, for a change, against local Communists for having "flooded Iraq with blood" in the past.

Last week Iraq, which gets a flow of oil dollars from the West, made a gesture toward delegation to China "to promote trade relations." Just what trade the Kuwaitis have in mind is difficult to tell. The country produces nothing but dates and shoppers in the little Gulf state are more interested in the glittering Western goods that fill the stores than the sort of items Communist countries usually export.

In Beirut, the most capitalistic city in the Arab world, former interior minister Kamal Jumblatt—best known as the man who banned the twist and campaigned against belly dancing—called on Lebanon to recognize Communist China.

Police Trying To Locate Radio Owner

Belleville city police today were trying to locate the owner of a large transistor radio, believed stolen recently in the city.

The radio was among articles confiscated as police questioned suspects for theft over the weekend.

RCMP Officers Chosen to Raise And Lower Flags

OTTAWA - (CP) — Constable Joseph Secours of the RCMP, a 26-year-old amateur hockey player, has been selected for the honor of raising the new Canadian flag in the inauguration ceremony on Parliament Hill at noon today.

A second Montele, Sgt. Albert George Goswell, a native of Brantford, was named to lower the Red Ensign minutes before noon. The announcements were made Sunday by the prime minister's office.

Constable Secours was born in Cornwall and educated in Valleyfield, Que. He attended the University of North Dakota for two years, majoring in physical education, and is active in several sports.

PLAYED ON TOUR

He played with the Ottawa Montagnards club of the St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League on their recent exhibition tour of West Germany, The Netherlands and Czechoslovakia.

He joined the RCMP in Montreal Jan. 24, 1963, trained in Regina and was posted to Fredericton in Ottawa.

Sgt. Goswell joined the RCMP in Toronto Jan. 5, 1942—and served at Charlottetown and Montague, P.E.I., until January, 1944, when he transferred to the Royal Canadian Navy Volunteer Reserve, serving overseas.

He rejoined the RCMP in Ottawa in 1946 and has served there since, except for a posting to Kingston from 1949 to 1951. He was in charge of the guard on the Royal train during Queen Elizabeth's Canadian tour in 1959.

Pearson Speaks Out

Prime Minister Lester Pearson says that it is time to take a "long, hard look" at the United Nations.

The majority reaction in Canada is likely to be best expressed by something between a grunt and a sneer, though the apportionment of the ingredients of the reply between Pearson and the United Nations will vary considerably.

Many of Pearson's countrymen may dismiss his observation for reasons varying from a statement of the obvious to an intervention in a major problem by a man having extreme difficulty in keeping his own house in order. But we should not forget that, whatever his present troubles may be at Ottawa, Pearson still has a name to conjure with in UN circles. His statement, though it may appear to voice a self-evident fact, is nevertheless one of the first attempts to attack the UN malaise at its roots.

Mr. Pearson frankly said, in an address to the Canadian Club at Ottawa, that a decision must be made whether the UN is to deal primarily with social, humanitarian or disarmament organization, or whether it is to resolve, as well as debate, political and security problems. Furthermore, he did not exclude the possibility of revising the UN charter if the latter is to be the UN function; indeed one could read into his remarks the inference that such a revision is necessary.

One of the reasons for the present difficulties of the UN is that the charter has, in effect, been revised unofficially, with the responsibility for preventing war being taken away from the Security Council and vested in the Assembly. It is an adequate defence for this procedure to state the undeniable fact that the Cold War makes it impossible for the Security Council to discharge the functions for which it was designed. Nevertheless, Russia and France are not without a case in their refusal to pay the costs of peace-keeping missions which they did not approve, as by charter they were required to do, in the Security Council. Mr. Pearson says that the middle powers, such as Canada, cannot continue to carry the burden of peace-keeping projects, while wealthier powers evade responsibility. But one can rest assured that the great powers will never pay for interventions of which they do not approve. The only way to make certain that such approval is obtained before a peace-keeping mission is undertaken is to freeze the veto power in the Security Council, where the veto power was designed precisely to avoid the type of deadlock now existing over payment of the costs for such expeditions.

It is difficult to see how such a reconsideration could produce any great benefits, but we shall never be certain about this unless we attempt the re-assessment.

The great stumbling block to any re-organization would be the insistence of the communist powers in playing a role in every revolutionary movement which springs up amongst oppressed peoples. It is inevitable that native communists will be playing leading roles in such revolutions, but the United States and other nations could afford to ignore this if the communist lands would refrain from active intervention. Most revolutionary movements in recent years have had pronounced nationalist overtones. There is no guarantee that the nationalists would win over the radicals, if the big powers would stay out of the struggles, but this might occur.

In any event, it would be wise for the U.S. to take the risk of non-intervention, if Russia and China would only consent to follow a like policy. There is just a chance that Russia might be prepared to do so. China, however, is much more militant. There are those who will suggest that the only possible curb, ineffective though it is likely to be, would be to seat China in the UN Security Council and compel it to share in the responsibility that body has, under the UN charter, for keeping the peace.

The constitutional system of Canada cannot remain as it now is. Something must be done. We cannot go back to chronic sectional hostility and discord.—George Brown, one of the Fathers of Confederation, in 1865.

It may indeed be hypocritical not to practise who you preach, but it is equally hypocritical always to preach what you happen to practise. —Anthony Chevenix-Trench, Headmaster of Eton.

Adults Need Vaccinations For Polio, Tetanus, Smallpox

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

FIRST OF TWO ARTICLES

What vaccinations are necessary for adults?

Having a long time older people held to the incorrect idea that since they had been vaccinated as children, they didn't need any additional vaccinations.

Polio vaccine has served a double purpose. It has all but shut off the periodic epidemics of that disease. It has also pointed up the fact that vaccination isn't just for children. Adults need it, too.

In general, adults should have boosters every five years. For maximum protection, some could be given oftener, but the five-year rule of thumb makes sense.

What vaccinations? For most adults, these:

POLIO: I'm often asked about the relative merits of the Salk vaccine, which is killed, and the Sabin vaccine, which is taken by mouth.

Personally, I prefer the Salk. This type has been used longer, so we know more about it. It has been highly effective. In one area in 1958 there were 600 cases of polio and 22 deaths. Five years later there were only eight cases and no deaths. A vigorous campaign of using Salk vaccine made the difference.

The effective schedule is two shots a month apart, a third six months later, a booster one year after that, and then a booster every five years. (Some minor deviation from the exact schedule isn't going to do any harm, but at the general pattern is followed.) From experience we now know that such a schedule provides and maintains protection.

As for doctors who prefer the Sabin vaccine, I will not quarrel. The big point is to see that everyone gets one kind or the other.

TETANUS: This should have a booster every five years. In case of a wound or severe cut, a booster at that time will assure safety. But if your protection has lapsed because of not having had boosters, you may, instead, then require an anti-toxin injection. This, unfortunately, can cause an unpleasant reaction in some people. So the booster every five years is best — and besides, you'll be protected in case of being injured far from medical aid.

SMALLPOX: This should be repeated every five years. I've had people tell me, quite seriously, that they "still feel the scars" from vaccination in childhood. The scar doesn't mean anything. Double immunization besides gradually. The number of "takes" resulting from vaccination in adults shows how many have lost their immunity.

The government, remember, will not let anyone enter the country, even a citizen returning from a trip, without proof of having had a smallpox booster within three years.

FLU VACCINE: This should be a must, every year, for pregnant women, invalids, people subject to heart and respiratory or other serious diseases, and for those in vital jobs (nurses, police, key executives, doctors, and many others.) But if it is good for all of them, it is good for everyone else, too. Two shots, a month or so apart, the first time, plus a booster each year, or an added one in an epidemic year, is about right.

Your doctor can give you specific advice on others, such as travel abroad, depending on what part of the world is intended, typhoid-paratyphoid, and, for special risk groups, BCG for tuberculosis.

Tomorrow we'll review childhood vaccinations.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any danger in allowing coffee to stand in an aluminum coffee pot and reheating it several days in a row? — St. Louis Office Girls

No, there's no danger.

Note to Mrs. J. H. K.: As I've said before, yogurt is food, not medication. The same is true for cottage cheese. If you choose to eat them, do so. It's a matter of taste, not medicine.

Best Workers Have Ulcers

Financial Post

Be kind to the employee who has ulcers: he is probably one of the best on your payroll. That's the advice given businessmen by Dr. Edward C. Rosenow of Los Angeles.

He explains that workers with ulcers "are super-conscientious and don't have to be prodded because they prod themselves." Being kind to them, he says, can help ease the frustration that gave them ulcers in the first place.

It might work in some cases. In others, it might not. A super - conscientious worker, plagued by doubts and despair, might feel the more frustrated if the boss started coddling him on the shoulder, taking him out to lunch, and slipping compliments into his pay envelope. He might feel he was being smoothly prepared for some dire corporate fate — demotion, dismissal or a transfer to Inuvik.

Conversely, he might feel he had to make still greater efforts to merit all this geniality.

In either case, his ulcers would be more likely to multiply than to diminish, and while this would make him a better employee, it would also force his employer into a larger flurry of consideration. A vicious circle like this could end up with the employer getting ulcers, and who would be kind to the employees who

Man Must Be Smarter Than Machine

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Our veneration of the machine in this computer age has led us to a subtle but definite downgrading of the human brain. We forget that in order to make a machine that seems smarter than man, man must be smarter than the machine.

The human brain contains about 10 billion neurons; each of these cells is connected with hundreds, and sometimes thousands, of others. No machine ever devised by man could approach the complexity and versatility of the human brain.

According to Arthur Samuel, consultant to I.B.M.'s research department, the chance of constructing an artificial brain that could duplicate ours is about the same "as the chance that every American will be stricken with a coronary on the same night."

In the new book, "The Computer Age," prepared by Gilbert Burck and the editors of Fortune Magazine, the cost of duplicating the brain's cells and connections is estimated at "not even at the ludicrously low cost of only 5 cents per cell and 1 cent per connection, the cost would come to more than $1 quintillion, or $1 billion billion — more money than all the governments in the world together possess.

Samuel, by the way, is the man who taught a computer to play checkers so well that it now consistently beats him. But checkers is a relatively simple game, with a finite number of alternative moves. Chess is a different matter; no machine yet programmed can play very much better than a good novice.

The number of all possible moves in a chess game is something like 10 to the 40th power; to examine all these, even the fastest computer would take longer than the age of the universe, which is estimated at about two billion years.

Doubtless, the vast funds we are spending for computer research are worthwhile, for the more we can get machines to do for us, the more will our own faculties and energies be released for specifically human projects.

But at least an equal amount should be spent on developing the brains we have, the unused potential that resides in each of us, and especially in our children. For one guess is that all of us utilize no more than between 10 and 20 percent of the intellectual capacities we have — and that adequate research could show us how to exploit the enormous mental powers that are lying unused at the mind's bottom.

It is not enough that a few brilliant men can create computers to "think" for us; for the greatest thinking machine is inside each of us.

Nurses' President Explains RNAO Brief

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

Re the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario

The following are points of clarification. It is my sincere hope that these will serve to remove any confusion which might exist.

Re Collective Bargaining

1. The RNAO is seeking special legislation for collective bargaining for nurses. In doing so, the Board of Directors of this Association is acting on the direction of the Association's members. A resolution passed at the 1964 annual meeting reads as follows:

"Be it resolved: that the Board of Directors of this Association make necessary representation to the Government of the Province of Ontario to secure the enactment of legislation which will provide the following:

(1) The right of registered nurses, through the RNAO, to bargain collectively with their employers on all matters involving salaries and other conditions of work.

(2) The obligation by law on the part of the employers of registered nurses to bargain collectively in good faith with representatives of the RNAO for the purpose of entering into an agreement which shall be binding on all parties.

(3) The right of either party within the newly established process of negotiations, to apply at any time for the assistance of a government conciliation officer or independent mediator who shall be charged with the responsibility of assisting the parties to resolve their differences.

(4) The right of either party, as a final resort to request and obtain a final and binding arbitration of matters in dispute by an impartial third party or tripartite board.

(5) The legal obligation by both parties to be firmly bound by the contents of the said negotiations or findings of final arbitration.

2. The brief to be presented to the Cabinet Minister will follow the terms of this resolution.

3. The brief will be circulated to membership soon after its presentation to the Minister. This is a government bill and it is only then that the Minister who will present it to the Legislature should have the opportunity to see it prior to making it public.

4. The resolution does not call for a closed shop "Company Type" Union."

5. Under further terms of the resolution, an Interim Committee on Collective Bargaining has been appointed and has met twice since the information in September, 1964. The members of this committee are representatives of the various areas of nursing.

a. RNAO members receive monthly bulletins informing them of the progress of the Interim Committee as well as other activities of the Association.

Members of the Interim Committee report at their Chapter and District meetings.

Re RNAO brief submitted to the Royal Commission on Health Services 1962.

1. All groups invited to submit briefs were requested by the Commission to keep the confidential until their presentation had been made. The RNAO complied with this request.

2. The brief included protection into the future of nursing. These included provisions that two groups of nurses will emerge: those prepared within the University (leading to a degree); — those prepared in a diploma school.

Should these predictions materialize, the nursing profession will be upgraded. This same thinking has been expressed by other Provincial Nurses Associations across Canada and Association in the U.S.A.

With faith in its members, employers, the people of Ontario and the Members of the Legislature, the RNAO "forges ahead with Collective Bargaining".

Divorce Laws Need Changes

Toronto Telegram

Changes in the divorce laws of Denmark have been drafted in an effort to bring them into line with those of Sweden, Norway, Finland and Iceland with the ultimate purpose of forming similar legislation in this area for all five Nordic countries. The changes were made on the advice of a commission which had been studying the laws seven years.

The divorce laws of eight provinces of Canada (Quebec and Newfoundland do not grant divorces) are based on the divorce laws of England as they existed on July 15, 1870—almost 100 years ago.

England itself has made many changes in them—but here they remain the same, upholding modes and social attitudes that are a century old.

Virtually the only ground for a divorce in this country is adultery.

Your wife can carve you up or push you down the stairs and while you can have her arrested and put in jail you can't divorce her. Your husband can have left home five years ago last Tuesday without sending you a postcard or a penny since then—and you can wait two more years and have him declared legally dead, but you can't divorce him.

Yet if you can persuade a judge that your husband is guilty of having had one illicit affair after 25 years of domestic tranquility, he will give you a divorce just as he will grant one to a husband who can prove that his otherwise impeccable wife was once unfaithful to him.

Far from being the only grounds for divorce, adultery should not have nearly as much weight as actions that can actually endanger the health and security of our families.

Children Not Squeamish

Windsor Star

A CBC official observes that some school biology teachers object to biological subjects being transmitted over the screen. There has been some thought given, for instance, to showing the birth of a calf.

We suspect that many urban adults would be more squeamish about witnessing this than youngsters would. Indeed it would be a way of teaching little boys and girls something about sex, and the miracle of birth.

There was no mystery about this to boys and girls born on Canada's first Centennial year. They were in their teens, acting as midwives during the births of calves and lambs. They took it as a normal course of nature.

We know one Windsor mother who got a female cat and encouraged her to have kittens. When the kittens began being born she brought her young daughters in as witnesses. They watched with wonder but no squeamishness. In answering their questions as to the miracle of birth and gave them an early healthy attitude toward sex.

36 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 36 persons died in traffic mishaps in Canada during the weekend, including six in one accident in Manitoba, to raise the national accidental death total to 36.

Manitoba also recorded three other traffic deaths and one fire fatality, making the weekend total one of the worst ever recorded in the province.

Across Canada, in addition to the 36 road deaths, there were three deaths by exposure, three from carbon monoxide poisoning, two drownings and one woman who was struck by a train—all in Ontario.

Popular Music's

Young Nat took to music early, picking out Yes, We Have No Bananas on the church piano at the age of four. As he grew older, he played the piano and organ for church services.

PLAYS IN CLUBS

Cole came to Long Beach, Calif., in 1937. He was 18 and decided to stay in California. He dropped the S from his last name and began playing piano in cheap night clubs for $5 a night or less.

It was in such a club that a drunk one night placed a paper crown on the young pianist's head and said: "Look, King Cole!" The nickname stuck to Nat (King) Cole.

Late in 1937, Cole organized the King Cole Swingsters—with Nat at the piano, Oscar Moore on guitar and Wesley Prince on string bass. Jazz aficionados fell for the trio and others complained of their lack of a vocalist.

One night at Los Angeles' Swance Inn, another drunk came up to the piano and commanded: Sing Sweet Lorraine!

"We don't sing," Nat said gently.

"Sing," the man bellowed.

The manager ran up, sized up the situation and told Cole: "Sing. This guy's a big spender. Sometimes three bucks a night."

Cole sang Sweet Lorraine. He sang from then on.

In 1939 Cole contracted with Capitol Records (then Liberty Records) to record Straighten Up and Fly Right, which he had written years before for $50 to pay the rent. The record was a hit.

MARRIES VOCALIST

In 1947, he married pretty Maria Ellington, a vocalist with the Duke Ellington (no relation) Orchestra in a big Harlem wedding. Their honeymoon was financed by the immense sale of another Cole song, Nature Boy.

In 1948, when Cole and his bride bought a $65,000 Tudor-style mansion in Los Angeles' exclusive Hancock Park district, some white neighbors regarded the Negro couple as block-busters.

A lawyer for the aggrieved property-owners told Cole: "We don't want undesirable people coming here."

Cole responded: "Neither do I, and if I see anybody undesirable coming into the neighborhood, I'll be the first to complain." The Coles stayed and became a source of pride to Hancock Park.

In 1951, the government seized the house for non-payment of $150,000 in back taxes.

Cole promised to pay at the rate of $1,000 a week—and did.

In 1953, long-buried worries and hidden resentments caused his collapse in the wings of New York's Carnegie Hall during an Easter concert. He had acute ulcers and internal hemorrhaging; surgeons removed half his stomach.

From then on, Cole built a careful organization around his personal life, arranged so that he could enjoy more leisure with his family. He loved baseball.

In 1956, in Birmingham, Ala., Cole was attacked by six white men on the stage of a theatre before an audience of 4,000 persons. He was knocked down but not seriously hurt. Later he cancelled an Atlanta appearance, saying he wouldn't sing in the U.S.-South just then "for a million dollars."

Sometimes criticized by more militant workers for Negro civil rights, Cole believed his most important work was as an entertainer.

foundation for a closer union between Canadians. It was the rallying symbol of all Canadians, irrespective of language or religion.

He expressed the hope that Feb. 15 will become "flag day" and that Canadians will honor the flag each year with similar ceremonies across the country. This would promote greater unity and attachment to Canada.

He said the adoption of the maple leaf flag wrote a new page in Canadian history and swept away an obstacle that divided Canadians.

The Red Ensign was lowered by an Ontario-born Mountie, Sgt. Albert Gosnell, and taken away for safekeeping after plans were offered by the Protestant and Roman Catholic chaplains general of the armed forces, Rev. E. G. B. Foote and Brig. Herve Charlebois.

A 21-gun salute and trumpet fanfares sounded in the background.

The new flag was being raised at the stroke of noon EST to implement resolutions passed by both houses of Parliament and a Royal proclamation signed by Queen Elizabeth Jan. 28.

Other ceremonies were being held in 10 provincial capitals and many big centres. The maple leaf replaced the Red Ensign atop all federal buildings and Canadian diplomatic and military missions abroad at noon, local time.

Mr. Pearson, alternating between English and French at the 75-minute Ottawa ceremony, said the maple leaf will become a symbol of national unity.

He foresaw a unity that would encourage the evolution abroad of the two "peoples" that founded Confederation and would recognize the contributions and cultures of many other races.

Saying he was deeply moved and honored, the prime minister said the patriotic motives that led Parliament to replace the ensign with the maple leaf flag did not constitute a break with history.

He expressed the hope Canada will remain united in justice and freedom, providing equal opportunity and security to all its cultures.

He also hoped Canada would be "strong in its adherence to those moral principles which are the only sure guide to greatness.

Good Wind and Perfect Ice Gave Ice Boating Fanciers Taste of Heaven Saturday

Local ice boating enthusiasts were in their glory on Saturday.

Ideal conditions — good wind and perfect ice — were enjoyed on the Bay of Quinte with at least two local enthusiasts taking full advantage to spend most of the day in the open.

It was one of the rare winter days for ice boating. The Bay was one wide expanse of ice all the way from Belleville to Trenton.

Two local enthusiasts, Richard Bird, local high school teacher, and Don Adamson, Children's Aid Society worker, had their ice boats out early and in the 30 miles per hour wind were attaining speeds of 30 to 65 miles per hour as their craft ranged up and down the bay.

Due possibly to the vagaries of the weather and also to the fact that the right combination of wind and ice is necessary, ice boating has not achieved the popularity it might on the Bay of Quinte.

But according to Mr. Adamson, the sport is on the way back.

Currently there were about half a dozen ice boats on the Bay two of them owned by enthusiasts in the Trenton area.

Fresh Flowers Cover Grave Of Sir Winston

BLADON, England (AP) — A carpet of fresh flowers, their mingled scents piercing the cold winter air, covered Sir Winston Churchill's grave during the weekend—just as they have every day since he was buried in St. Martin's churchyard two weeks ago last Saturday.

One bunch came from a former Dutch resistance fighter and his wife. The card gave no names. It simply said:

"A small token of our tremendous admiration and sorrow at your departure. From a couple whom your voice inspired."

A bouquet of delicate light-blue flowers was flown from a garden in Greece; a freshly plucked bunch of red poppies came from a field in France; and a score of wreaths came from men and women all over Britain.

A policeman stood by the grave Saturday, along with two men and three women who were looking at the grave and its flowers.

"It's like this all the week long," he said. "It's a steady trickle. Always there is someone standing here. But nobody ends it's a crowd."

Will the crowd change this sleepy village of 413 people?

Slight changes already are in the offing, Churchill's widow, for instance. And bulldozers are moving in on a large meadow to ease one of the hairpin turns into a parking lot.

"During the weekend traffic builds up and on Saturday there are a thousand cars an hour on the road from Oxford to Bladon," the policeman said.

Young Liberals Want Abolition Of Monarchy

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto and District Young Liberals approved a motion Saturday calling for abolition of the monarchy, establishment of a republican form of government in Canada.

The motion followed the defeat of another affirming the role of the monarchy in Canadian government and urging that the role be strengthened.

The Young Liberals' annual conference also supported abolition of the death penalty, lowering of the voting age to 18 from 21, public accounting of contributions to political parties, improved medical and dental care and a domestic peace corps.

The motion were points of a statement of the group's principles which will be sent to other party organizations and politicians across Canada.

It also calls for the highest standards of morality in the Liberal party was defeated, but a general statement on morality in all parties was approved.

In a panel discussion, Charles Templeton, controversial candidate for the Ontario Liberal party leadership, said "new blood" has a hard time entering politics.

"I have found an enormous amount of talented people in this province that are unknown to the party," Mr. Templeton said. "But it is easier to take in the zealous and the already committed than to work to bring in good new people."

Air Raids on North Viet Nam Longshot Gamble by U. S.

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP) — The United States has tacitly recognized that it cannot beat the Viet Cong on the ground without committing hundreds of thousands of troops. As a result, it has taken to the air to try to beat the Communist forces in Viet Nam with another type of war.

This agonizing policy decision was many months in coming. It exploded into reality a week ago when Viet Cong raiders successfully attacked two major American installations at Pleiku on the same day. Retaliatory air raids against North Viet Nam began.

There seems little hope of ever protecting American installations here against the guerrillas. Hard hit installations always have been sitting ducks for guerrilla attacks. The Viet Cong has demonstrated this repeatedly in four years, and now appears to have opened a full - fledged campaign against bases.

The South Vietnamese and American retaliatory air raids last week on North Viet Nam are not expected to have a direct effect on the guerrillas. U.S. officials do not believe the raids will seriously harass Viet Cong infiltration routes.

"What we're trying to do," a ranking American official said, "is to get Hanoi to call off the Communist operations in the south."

These air raids are based on two assumptions.

The first is that they will injure or scare Hanoi and its Communist allies enough that they will send cease-fire orders to the Viet Cong in the south.

The second is that such orders should be transmitted by Hanoi, they will be followed by the Viet Cong.

Neither of these assumptions is a certainty, and the raids are a longshot gamble. But it is a gamble worth taking right now. U.S. officials feel, if all is not to be lost. Air raids so far have been confined to military installations.

It is difficult to tell how much damage the North Vietnamese forces suffered in last week's raids. Photographs taken by participating planes show one storey barracks, some of them damaged, surrounded by foxhole positions. Despite charges by China and Hanoi that 10,000 were killed in the Dong Hoi raid alone, North Vietnamese casualties probably have been fairly light.

The point is similar reprisal raids may be mounted against populous North Vietnamese cities and plants, including Hanoi itself. U.S. and South Vietnamese leaders have refused to rule out this possibility.

The war can even be escalated to a confrontation with China, as things now stand. Obviously, both Saigon and Washington would prefer to take care of the guerrilla situation in South Viet Nam itself. But even in terms of expecting reasonable protection for American bases, this has been recognized as unrealistic.

Postmen Get New Uniforms In April '66

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's 11,500 postmen will get a new navy blue uniform by April 1, 1966, the post office department announced Sunday.

The traditional midnight blue buttoned jacket will be replaced by a zippered tunic designed to fit comfortably and look less formal and military than the present 50 - year - old issue.

The familiar red piping on the jacket has disappeared, but it has been retained on trousers. The hat is softer, less rigid and has a smaller visor.

The new uniform also features a gold 11-point Maple Leaf on the shoulder badge.

Stewards' Job Now Filled By Women

HALIFAX (CP)—The girl-in-every-port tradition doesn't go for some members of the crew of the Norwegian grain carrier Belinda.

There are five women in the crew and four of them are the wives of officers.

Capt. Rangvald Rove says one effect is that there is less swearing among the multiracial crew. General behavior and dress among the men have also improved.

Practically all stewards' jobs on Scandinavian ships now are filled by women and many Swedish ships carry female radio operators.

Even in Norway, with its seafaring tradition, it's becoming difficult to get men to go to sea, so women are being recruited to fill certain jobs.

There's one problem, Capt. Rove says. The marriage rate among such women is high. Some ships have solved this problem by recruiting wives of crew members.

Couple Marks 59 Years of Wedded Life

DESERONTO — Fifty-nine years ago, February 14, a quiet wedding took place at Brock Street United Church parsonage in Kingston, when the former Gertrude Salzer and Percy Stover were married, by Dr. Hyde and were attended by Mrs. Stover's sister and brother. They travelled to Smiths Falls by train and then here and buggy ride to the station.

Mr. and Mrs. Stover have been respected and loved citizens of Deseronto for these 59 years and have been faithful members of the United Church of which Mr. Stover was treasurer for 42 years and has the last six years been keeping books for the church.

Mr. Stover owned and operated a grocery business in partnership with the late Cuthbert Salzer for 20 years until his retirement a few years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Stover remember well back in the days of the Rathburn era when the town was booming with a population of over 4,000.

The day was spent quietly, Mrs. Stover received a beautiful plant from the church women's group to which she gave many years of service.

EGG DISH—Eggs scrambled Mary Moore style are our featured egg dish today. For good measure add fried or baked sausages to the platter and finish up with a luscious lemon pie. Both recipes are given in detail today.

SCRAMBLED EGGS WITH SAUSAGE

When I told my surgeon-nephew Geoff that eggs were very low in price he said "I pass a stand on the highway every morning where eggs are sold by the basket. I'll buy a basket and we'll live on eggs this week!"

Splendid idea for every family in Canada!

This week, on my egg-cooking spree, I made Scrambled Eggs and another Lemon Meringue Pie — using 4 eggs this time.

SCRAMBLED EGGS MY STYLE (Serves 4)

4 tablespoons butter, 6 eggs, 6 tablespoons hot water, ¾ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley, optional, 1 tablespoon finely chopped green onion, optional.

Heat butter until deep gold in large heavy frying pan. If parsley and onion are used add them to pan, watching to make sure they do not burn. Beat eggs slightly and add all remaining ingredients. When butter is deep gold and bubbling immediately turn egg mixture in. Stand ready to push back the underneath cooked portion as soon as it sets, under high heat. Continue pushing back the set portion, allowing liquid part to run underneath until all is set and the mass is in golden layered folds. It should be barely set and streaked with moist throughout. Fold the whole thing over like an omelet, and rush it to the dining room at once on preheated platter. Delicious served with pan-fried or baked sausages.

LEMON MERINGUE PIE (4 eggs):

1 cup sugar, 5½ tablespoons cornstarch, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 cups boiling water, 4 eggs — yolks and whites separated, ½ cup butter, 1/3 cup lemon juice, grated rind 1½ lemons, ½ cup sugar (second amount), ½ teaspoon vanilla, one deep 9" baked pie shell.

In heavy saucepan, stir together thoroughly the sugar, cornstarch and salt. Stir in boiling water and cook, stirring, until thick. Pour some over the 4 beaten egg yolks, stirring, then return this egg mixture to saucepan and stir over heat 1 minute. Remove from heat and add butter and rind and let cool slightly. Turn into pastry and comfortably on outside. Then stir in lemon juice and pour into baked pie shell. Cover with meringue made of leftover 4 egg whites, beaten until stiff, adding the ½ cup sugar slowly and beating until very stiff. Stir in vanilla and completely cover lemon filling right to edge, peaking up meringue attractively. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until tipped pie shell. Cover with meringue made of leftover 4 egg whites, beaten until stiff, adding the ½ cup sugar slowly and beating until very about 10 or 15 minutes.

Susanna's Family Fare

THINK YOUNG

Dear Suzanne: As an "old-ter" of 77, I don't like to waste what time I have left so enjoy keeping busy making stuffed dolls, cuddly animal cushions, and many other items for clubs and lodges. Have you seen these perky disposable aprons?

They are simple and attractive to make for us at your own home parties, or for large banquets and other special occasions. They are also well received as favors or as a tea and sale item.

To start with you will need a quantity of the largest size dinner napkins. As spring and Easter are just a few showers away why not buy them printed with colorful reminders of this season of the year. Open up about half of one and lay them out flat, one on top of the other. With a long stitch on your machine, pull up a few gathers in the serviettes and sew a length of inexpensive ribbon right across the top — long enough on each side of the apron for tieing around your waist. Many women like to reinforce the stitching with a strip of binding underneath. That's all there is to it!

As the top one gets soiled or torn, just cut it off and you have a fresh new one each time. It is quite effective if all the women who are serving at a church supper have them on. — Mrs. G. C. Clay

I only hope I'm such a "younger" as you are at 77. — SUSANNA

Man Is Unable to Put His Feelings Into Words

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Will you please tell my wife a compliment sticks in some people's throat? I know. Ben Moss chopped herring the way his mother used to fix it. Believe me it's a lot of trouble to bone and chop a herring but I do it because I want to please him. Why can't he show a little appreciation when I go out of my way to do something nice? What would it cost him?

Last night I said, "Ben is the chopped herring good?" He answered, "I'm eating it, ain't I?"

I said, "Yes, Ben, I can see you're eating it, but is it good?" He answered, "If it isn't good then I'll tell you."

Ben is a wonderful husband and I wouldn't trade him for a million dollars. He has always been a good family man but this one fault of his has been eating on me for 30 years. What should I do? — LUCKY I DON'T HAVE ULCERS.

* * *

DEAR LUCKY — If the worst thing you can say about Ben is that he does'nt rave over your chopped herring, you are lucky.

Some women are married to men who can't translate their feelings into words. Pray for another 30 years with Ben.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am disgusted with the advice you gave the parents of a 20-year-old boy who got a 15-year-old girl in trouble. You said their son should return to college and the girl should go to the Florence Crittenton home to have her baby.

Why shouldn't the boy be made to pay for his mistakes? Decent parents would not have found it necessary to write to you. They would have insisted that their son marry the girl.

Every child deserves to be raised by his natural mother and father and you should be ashamed of yourself for suggesting otherwise. — DISGUSTED WITH YOU.

* * *

DEAR DISGUSTED WITH ME — Every child deserves to be loved. Often adoptive parents can give far greater love than the child's natural parents — simply because they want the child and the natural parents did not.

A collared father and a trapped mother cannot help but harbor feelings of resentment. The bitterness is often directed against the child. These innocent victims — unloved and unwanted — grow up to be emotional cripples.

You'll never catch me advising parents to push children into marriage. It can be grossly unfair to the boy, the girl, and, most of all, it can be unfair to the child.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am an honor student in an eastern university. Recently you advised a 15-year-old girl who was pregnant to go to the Florence Crittenton home for unwed mothers. I am qualified to second the motion since I lived in such a home.

Three years ago I spent four months in a Crittenton home in another state. I was treated with kindness and respect. Some of the girls I met at the home will be my friends forever.

My son was adopted when he was 10 days old. Although I shall never see him again, it is comforting to know he will grow up with people who can give him the emotionally healthy environment I was unable to provide.

I have talked with several unmarried, pregnant girls in this area and have helped them make a decision. Many of these girls had considered only abortion or suicide. The best alternative, for some reason, never entered their minds.

Thank you for the strong stand, Ann. I hope this letter reaches thousands more through you. — V.O. EX.

* * *

DEAR V.O. EX. — And thank you. A letter from a girl who has been there says it best of all.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Canon Wright Addresses College Guild

In spite of icy roads and sidewalks there was a good attendance at the February meeting of the Albert College Guild. In the absence of the president, Mrs. C. W. Smith welcomed the members and guests. After a brief business session, Mrs. E. Hickey, who planned the program, took charge. The meeting was arranged for Canon Wright to speak and Mrs. Wright to sing—a delightful combination.

Canon Wright was born in Toronto, but his forbears came from Ireland. He is one of the twelve clergymen that the Wright family has given to the Anglican church — three ministers in each of the last four generations. He received his theological training in Bishop's College, Lennoxville, P.Q. He had served the Anglican ministry at Fort Williams, Thessalon, Newboro and Acton, before coming to Christ Church, Belleville, last October. He married the soloist of one of his church choirs.

The program began with two beautiful solos by Mrs. Wright. She was accompanied by Mr. John Withers, organist of Christ Church.

TASK OF CHURCH

Canon Wright took the devotional service and gave the theme talk. The two main parts of one theme —the task of the church in these rapidly changing times. Canon Wright centred his talk around the statement: "The church is dying—dying to be reborn to follow more closely the teaching of Christ." The church's task is to realize that it is the family of God—with one Father, God, and all men as brothers.

The task of the minister is many-sided. He must be a preacher of the Gospel, a teacher whose text book is the Bible, a priest administering the sacraments, and a pastor caring for all the needs of his parishioners."

Miss Grace Tucker expressed the thanks of the Guild for the challenging and inspirational address and to Mrs. Wright and Mr. Withers for an enjoyable musical interlude.

At the tea table, gay with cupids, and a red and white flower centre, Mrs. T. F. Townsend and Mrs. H. F. Swan presided.

Ten Members Of Society Have Resigned

TORONTO (CP)—Ten members of the Voice of Women here have resigned for various reasons, Mrs. C. K. Macphee, national president, said Sunday. Nine of the women resigned at the same time.

Mrs. Macpherson said she thinks most of the women resigned because they were tired of defending the peace - promoting group against charges of Communist infiltration but some of the letters of resignation mentioned that reason. One woman resigned earlier.

She said members "are always meeting people who ask why they want to carry on a running battle for peace with a group of crazy dames. It becomes plain exhausting being part of it".

Many of the members have held executive positions at city and provincial levels, she said.

Those who resigned are: Mrs. Molly Andrew, Ontario vice-president; Mrs. Florence Aymong, executive representative from Ontario to the national council; Mrs. Cora Bell, former corresponding secretary for the national executive; Mrs. Mary Dales, charter member; Mrs. Phyllis McKenzie, Metropolitan Toronto president; Miss Eleanor McKay; Mrs. Olga Spinks, and Mrs. Mary Pettmutter.

Woman at 73 Is Launching New Career

MARIEVILLE, Que. (CP) — Even for those whose life has gone at 40, retirement usually comes 25 or 30 years later. But not for Rosalba Monast who at 73 has launched a new career.

An accountant with a Quebec knitting firm Miss Monast was successfully for an alderman's seat in this town 25 miles east of Montreal.

"I will undertake to serve my two-year term if my health permits," she said, adding with a smile: "I won't serve for longer than 50 years."

This car replaced a dog team on the run to Rumdoodle.

Which is in Antarctica.

Where the temperature stays for days at 50 below zero. And sheets of ice like broken glass, and mountains of frozen snow stretch as far as the eye can see.

Where no stock production car had ever operated successfully before.

Until the Australian National Research Expedition replaced their dog team with a Volkswagen.

Not that a VW has anything against dogs. It just has a lot against snow.

Like an air-cooled engine that has no radiator. Needs no water. And starts regularly in sub-zero climes.

And because it's mounted in the rear, right over the drive wheels, tires get extra bite on icy surfaces.

And a body that will hold tight as a drum over mile after mile of bouncing supply-laden sleds, scouting bumpy ice fields and transporting Glaciologists over the crevasse-ridden terrain between Rumdoodle airfield and Mawson scientific base.

A VW did this in Antarctica. And with very little special equipment.

The Australians did add front and rear tow bars. A pack rack. Tire chains on the back. An oil pressure gauge and ammeter. And additional heater system insulation. But other than that, no more winter preparation than a VW in Canada has.

Which brings us to the fact that you don't have to be in Antarctica to have reasons for owning a Volkswagen.

We built it to do a job for you wherever you live.

And you can let it replace anything you like.

Hawks Enter Stretch 4 Points Up

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

This could be Chicago's year.

Although that time has a familiar ring, the Black Hawks are back in the National Hockey League driver's seat for the third straight season, still aiming for their first NHL title since joining the league in 1926.

The Hawks moved out in 1965-63, wound up second. Last season they finished second again to Montreal Canadiens because of a collapse at the finish.

This time around, the Hawks paced themselves during the early part of the season and now are applying a closing kick as the teams enter the schedule's final quarter.

Chicago fought back twice to tie Montreal Canadiens 3-3 Sunday night to maintain a four-point lead over the Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs in the pennant race. Detroit Red Wings were left six points behind.

The Hawks blanked New York Rangers 3-0 Saturday afternoon while the Canadiens dropped a 5-4 decision to the Bruins at Boston. Toronto edged Detroit 2-1 in the evening.

LEAFS SURPRISED

While the Hawks held on through a rugged final period against the driving Canadiens Sunday, the Bruins surprised Toronto with two third-period goals for a 2-2 tie and Detroit bombed the Rangers 6-2.

Pierre Pilote's 45 - foot screened shot Sunday night pulled the Hawks even in the second period after Dave Balon had sent the Habs ahead 2-1. Phil Esposito scored his 22nd goal season, had scored for Chicago minutes earlier to erase a 1-0 lead the Canadiens established in the first period when Claude Larose tallied his 19th this season.

The Leafs also missed a chance to move up when they allowed a 2-0 lead to vanish within a span of two minutes and 39 seconds in the third.

Red Kelly and George Armstrong provided the Leafs with a comfortable margin but goals by Johnny Bucyk and Orland Kurtenbach deadlocked the contest early in the third.

In Detroit, the Rangers collapsed during the second period and the Wings took full advantage, scoring four times. The embarrassed Rangers saw the Wings score two goals while killing off a power play.

HOWE GETS 21ST

The score was 3-2 in Detroit's favor when Ron Murphy was penalized. Floyd Smith broke up the Rangers power play and scored on a 20-foot slap shot. Then Gordie Howe got his second of the night and 21st this season as Murphy continued to sit out his minor.

GORDIE HOWE

The Wings, who pumped 50 shots at Jacques Plante, also got goals from Gary Bergman, Murphy and Ted Lindsay. Earl Ingarfield and Lou Angotti scored for New York.

It was Detroit's sixth straight victory at home.

The Rangers fired 31 shots at Hall Saturday afternoon but couldn't rob the Hawks goalie of his second shutout this season.

Eric Nesterenko gave the Hawks a 1-0 lead in the first period and Mikita wrapped it up in the finals, setting up Doug Mohns' sixth of the year and then adding another insurance goal.

The Bruins, trounced 7-1 by the Canadiens Thursday night, bounced back to hand Montreal its fifth loss in six games. The Habs fought back three times to tie but Boston never trailed.

Murray Oliver wrapped it up at 1:20 of the third period, pushing the Canadiens ahead 5-3. Richard scored 30 seconds later.

But Boston held on to win.

Tom Williams, Ted Green, Kurtenbach and Fleming also scored for Boston. Balon, Provost and Larose scored Montreal's other goals.

The Wings missed a chance to take third place from the Leafs Saturday night. Frank Mahovlich broke a 1-1 tie midway through the final period to give Toronto the 2-1 decision.

Andy Bathgate opened the scoring in the first period, but Detroit's Bruce MacGregor tied it three minutes later.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

After seeing the video tape of the Patterson-Chuvalo fight Sunday, it is this department's opinion that you can toss out that "referee-robbed-us" opinion of the Canadian champion's entourage.

As a matter of fact I thought Patterson won by a slightly larger margin than the judges and referee marked on their slips.

It was a case of a heavily-muscled giant using the battering-ram tactics of a bulldozer up against a master-boxer who had trained for such an encounter.

Chuvalo put up a magnificent fight against an experienced ring strategist, claimed to have a "glass chin." The Canadian's right hand, on top form, in his camp's pre-fight ballyhoo, failed to have the desired effect on Patterson, who modestly stated that he was hit hard and proven "I do not have a china chin."

I think Patterson sized up Chuvalo correctly when he said he had "tremendous strength, a hard punch, but lacks the boxing ability and ring finese. With these he will go a long way."

That from a generous foeman who, as you saw, was deliberately snubbed by Chuvalo after the fight when Patterson went to his corner to speak with him.

Some anti-American sports fan once wrote that to win in the United States against an American champion or near-champion, you either have to knock him out—or shoot him.

While I don't think Chuvalo had to shoot Floyd it was very evident that the crowded Madison Square Garden crowd was solid behind the former world champion.

When the fighters were introduced, the Canadian drew a ripple of applause but the vocal thunder crashed when Patterson's name was announced. They shouted in unison when the Patterson punches connected. A few fair-minded ones yelled when Chuvalo nearly dropped Patterson in the tenth, the best round of the bout.

The fight had its humor. There were some who had trouble pronouncing Chuvalo's name correctly. In his pre-fight instructions, the referee called him "Chevalier." The "Louisville Lip" who commentated from ringside preferred to call him "Chuvalde."

And speaking of Muhamid Ali, Cassius, whichever you prefer, the Big Blabber did a Benedict Arnold after the first round was over.

"Ah've switched," he shouted. "I picked Chuvalde to win in the fifth but Ah've changed my mind. Floyd is going to take it and meet me for the world title."

It is a good thing they gave Clay a commentator's job and not one in the judge's pavilion. He favored Patterson with his ballyhoo after every round. In the few that Canadian clearly won, Clay said "Floyd ain't movin', he rilly ain. But he took all Chuvalde could give."

"Patterson surprised me," shouted the Muhamid. "He's the next man for me as soon as I've fixed Sonny—Mr. Liston. He fought the kind of fight I fought Liston. He's entitled to a crack at mah title."

"How will you fight him?" he was asked.

"Ah cannot revill mah secret," cackled Clay, "but Ahd better staht trainin'."

But the Clay vocal gun came after he was asked if he liked being a fight commentator. "Don't like it at all," he said. "You hafta talk too much. And you know I don't like to talk."

In glaring contrast was the quiet-spoken Patterson, who in panel discussion on the fight, gave Chuvalo great credit for a tremendous fight. He paid fine tribute to the Canadian's ability and potential. "But," he repeated, "his hard punches revealed that I do not have a china chin, as reported in some quarters."

Riteways Take 'B' Title

Petes Minors Win Tournament Honors

BY GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Peterborough Minor Hockey Association's team captured the "A" division and overall championships while Belleville Riteways copped "B" honors in the OMHA novice tournament here Saturday.

Petes won both their "B" division games, over Trenton and Peterborough Church Hockey League, to take the "B" title and earn a spot in the tourney finals.

Peterobrough M.H.A. played a tie with Napanee and whipped Gananoque, taking "A" honors with a better goal average or total than Napanee.

In the tournament's titular game, Peterborough topped Belleville 3-1 for the championship and the O'Connor Trophy. Crests were presented to the "A" and "B" division winners.

A special presentation was made to Jim Richardson of the Belleville team. He was selected as the outstanding player in the tournament and received a new pair of hockey gloves, presented by the Riteway Food Store.

Belleville topped Trenton 3-1 in the first game of the day, in other "B" games, Trenton dropped Peterborough Church 4-1 and Riteways downed the same squad 3-2.

"A" division games saw Napanee and Peterborough M.H.A. tie 3-3, Napanee defeat Gananoque 6-3 and Peterborough whip the outclassed Gananoque squad 7-1.

Napanee turned out to be the hard-luck team of the tourney, winning one and tying the other of their two games but missing a spot in the finals and going home without as much as a crest.

In the tournament windup, Peterborough scored two quickies, in the first two minutes, and Belleville was never able to overcome the deficit. That was the score at half time.

Riteways cut the deficit in half on Jim Richardson's goal after one minute of play in the second half. Overlapping penalties left the Riteways with more short when Peterborough added the clincher, Rick Minnie netting it at 4:35, his second goal of the game. Rick Ferguson scored the first one. Gary Baabette drew two assists and Steve McGillis had one.

Riteways had some good chances but were unable to beat the Peterborough goalie and at other times hit posts and missed the net in their analysis.

Rick Minnie and Steve McGillis scored two goals each in the champs' win over the Ontario squa. Paul Carey, Gary Rashotte and Rick Ferguson also scored. Gary Lariviere netted the lone Gasanogue marker.

Peter Smrke, Jim Richardson and Mark Cobb scored for Riteways in their 3-1 win over the Church League team. Jim Lupenstie drew two assists.

David Smith and Richardson one apiece. Bob Gibson was Peterborough's marksman.

The scoresheet from the Napanee-Gananoque game was jumbled, making it impossible to distinguish which players scored for which team. However, Napanee won 6-3 and goal scorers were David Wilson, John Gilbert, Jerry Hinchey, Paul Covell, Robert Webster, Bobby Parrish, Donald Mack, Shane Thompson and John Compsaro.

Second Win In Three Nights

Juniors Wallop Islanders 5-1

There's no two ways about it with the Belleville Junior "B's".

When they are bad they are very, very bad, but when they are good—watch out.

The "B's" racked up their second win in three nights yesterday, by clipping the league-leading Gananoque Islanders 5-1 right in the leader's home rink.

The victory boosted Belleville back into second place in the OHA Eastern Junior loop standings. Up until last Friday night the "B's" had lost seven in a row and plunged from first to fourth place.

Belleville cannot catch the Ganmoques club now, seven points back with but three games left, but they will be gunning for a second-place finish.

The "B's" travel to Napanee for their next game, at 8.30 tonight.

This will mark the first start in Napanee for replacement goalie Wayne Brant, who has helped the club's cause considerably since being picked up three games back.

Brant has picked out 31 of 32 shots last night. He has given up nine goals in his three games but only one of them in the last two contests. He was beaten 8-3 in Kingston last Monday.

With the league schedule near a completion, a playoff meeting of all teams, both "B" and "C", has been scheduled for Memorial Arena here Wednesday night.

The "B's" outshot the Islanders 47-32 but needed a three-goal explosion in the final chapter to wrap up the victory. It was 1-0 and 2-1 for Belleville by periods.

Bob Boyle scored the first-frame marker, assisted by Rutherford and Grant Hagerman at 1.29.

Gananoque tied it at 18.15 of the second. Bob Dickson fired the only shot that beat Brant, assisted by Gary Beatty and Ron Biggins. Little more than a minute later, Jim Rutherford scored the first of his three goals to put Belleville ahead for good. Bob Boyle and Jerry Hall also earned assists.

In the final heat, hard-skating Tommy Bennett triggered his first goal of the season to give the "B's" a little breathing room at 8.07. Jim Woodcock and Rutherford drew assists on the play.

Then came Rutherford's final pair to make it decisive. Bob Boyle assisted on the first one at 14.32 and both Boyle and Grant Hagerman were in on the final, at 19.3.

There were 14 penalties called in the contest. Belleville drew eight of the total. Included were misconducts to Dwight Hall of the Islanders and Jerry St. Denis of Belleville at 16.08 of the third period. Roy Mascale and Pete Small drew minors for roughing at the same time as tempers threatened to get away.

After tonight, Belleville plays Kingston here on Friday in a game that was postponed back in December.

One other home game, against Napanee, which was snowed out two weeks ago, may also be played unless it has some bearing on the final "C" standing as far as Napanee is concerned.

Ron McKay, Bill Glover scored two goals each as Trenton defeated Peterborough C.H.L. Gord Duncan netted the losers' goal.

Firing Napanee goals in the tie with Peterborough M. H. A. were D. Wilson, G. Plumley and S. McCarney. G. Rashotte, M. Carter and S. McGillis had the Peterborough markers.

Danny Lupenstie triggered two goals and D. Smith one in Riteways' triumph over Trenton. Richardson, Grant Goegan and P. Smrke had assists. R. McKay was the lone Trenton scorer.

Several clubs were confused and unhappy with the schedule arrangements and the confusion over how ties in points would be settled. The latter was said to be decided during the second last game of the tourney.

The teams were served dinner at the ANAF Hall with the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association handling arrangements.

Portland Holds Lead In Western

Portland Buckaroos kept balanced neatly atop the Western Hockey League during the weekend, despite the constant proddings of Seattle Totems.

Seattle gained some ground Saturday in a week-long uphill pull to catch the Bucks, edging Vancouver Canucks 5-4 while Victoria Maple Leafs polished off Portland 6-3.

The tables were turned Sunday; Portland dumped Victoria 4-1 while Vancouver set back the Totems 4-2, leaving the Buckaroos with a six - point lead in the standings.

Minor Hockey

Tigers and Aces battled to a 4-4 tie in Belleville Minor Hockey Association juvenile action here yesterday.

Foley paced the Tigers with a pair of goals with Smith and Johnson accounting for the others.

Olson, Doran, Mulr, Ellis and Emerson were credited with assists.

Ruttan and Hanna led the Aces assault with two goals each. Tomaso had two assists with Salter getting a single.

In penalties, all minors, were handed out by the officials, Aces drawing six.

Snell Defeats Crothers In Thriller

Four Yards Apart

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Peter Snell of New Zealand won the 1,000-yard feature race of the Los Angeles Times Indoor Games Saturday night, defeating his arch-rival Bill Crothers of Toronto, in a spirited race with a winning time of 2:07.3.

The 26-year-old Snell finished four yards in front of Crothers, who was timed in 2:08.1 before a packed crowd of 13,278 in the Sports Arena.

Archie San Romani of Oregon was third in 2:10.3 and trailing were Dieter Bogatzki of West Germany, 2:10.5, and Valery Bulshev of Russia, 2:11.8.

Snell took a quick lead and held off a challenge by the 24-year-old Crothers to get the inside lane at the first turn of the six laps around the track.

Snell maintained this lead, Crothers trailing a yard or two for the next five laps. San Romani moved into third place on the third lap.

The dramatic moment came as Snell and Crothers went into the gun lap.

Crothers suddenly moved abreast of Snell, obviously catching him by surprise. Snell just as promptly accepted the challenge and shot ahead. He was never seriously threatened in the final lap.

Twice Snell glanced over his shoulder just to be sure that the Canadian pharmacist would not attempt another surprise burst.

New Zealand scored again when Bill Baillie ran away with the two - mile run in 8:34.4. George Young of the U.S. was second in 8:34.6 and Geoff Pyne, a New Zealander attending UCLA, third in 8:36.2.

Mary Rand of Britain set an indoor record in the women's broad jump and Hungary's Zsuzsa Zsabo Nagy bettered the world indoor mark for women in the 880-yard run.

Miss Nagy had a time of 2:10.5, bettering the mark of 2:13.6 held by Leah Ferris of Hawaii.

Mrs. Rand broke the broad jump record of all six of her jumps. Her best was 20 feet, 10 inches.

The previous indoor record was 19 7¾, set by Willye White at Louisville, Ky., Feb. 16, 1963.

SNELL OUTMANEUVERS CROTHERS ON FINAL LAP — New Zeland's Peter Snell (dark suit) turns on the steam as Canada's Bill Crothers tries to pass him at the start of the gun lap in their 1,000 meter race at last night's Times Indoor Games at Los Angeles. Snell who had led from the start, forced Crothers to run on the outside during the effort to hold him to the tape by three yards. Time was 2:07.9, which was 1.9 off Snell's world indoor mark. N.H.L. Scoring Statistics

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gordie Howe has recorded his 16th consecutive 30-goal season.

The Detroit Red Wings veteran scored his 30th and 31st goals during the weekend and added an assist to climb into a tie for fourth place in the National Hockey League scoring race with 48 points.

Apple Kings Whip Napanee In Cobourg

TRENTON (Special) — Trenton Apple Kings tried another rink as a home base on Saturday night and the move appeared to pay off handsomely.

The Kings dumped Napanee Legion 11-6 in a free-scoring game played at Cobourg arena. The game was an OHA Eastern Junior tilt postponed from an earlier date.

Trenton's victory boosted the club into a third-place tie with Picton, one point back of second-place Belleville "B's."

In league action tonight, Trenton plays a home game against Picton in Picton. Belleville visits Napanee and Kingston goes to Peterborough.

Forward Tom Glover put on a fine scoring demonstration for the Apple Kings in Cobourg Saturday. He triggered four of Trenton's goals to almost sink the Legion boys on his own.

Ross Quigley, playing in front of his hometown fans, netted two Trenton goals with singletons for Vaughn Cunningham, Jack O'Donnell, Les Greveaux, Rick O'Donnell and Dave Johnson.

Earl Smith paced Napanee with two markers. Other scorers were Dennis Mullins, Rick Grove, Dave Fox and Ron Vanstone.

Trenton outshot Napanee 41-34 and held leads of 3-1 and 5-3 by periods.

The losers drew 10 of the game's 17 minor penalties.

The Gas House Hockey League

Both halfs of the Gas House Hockey League's semi-finals go right to the wire next weekend.

In the fourth games of the best-of-five sets played yesterday, Marysville nipped Mulroney's Sunoco 5-4 to tie that series at two games each.

Joyce Realty defeated the Kosmets 4-2 and lead their series two games to one with one game tied. Joyces need only a tie in the fifth game to capture the series.

Cam Milligan and Wayne Pascoe scored two goals and an assist each to lead the Marysville victory march. Terry Flynn potted the other goal and Richard MacKenzie got one assist.

Hugh Petrie had two goals and an assist and Ben Hurley netted the other two goals for Sunoco.

Jim Sheridan was a two-goal man for Joyces. Rod Turner and Leo Holland each had one goal and one assist.

Ron Wannamaker potted both Komet tallies. Frank Wiles assisted on one.

RETAINS TITLES

KINGSTON (AP)—Jamaica's Bunny Grant survived an early rush by countryman Percy Hayles and retained his British Empire and Commonwealth and Jamaican lightweight boxing titles by a split decision Saturday night.

Midgets Lose At Trenton

TRENTON (Special) — The Lions' midgets of Trenton topped their Belleville counterparts, the Oddfellows, 5-2, in an exhibition game here last night.

The Legion Juveniles' game against Ottawa was cancelled when the visiting club did not show up.

Trenton held a 27-23 shots-on-goal margin over Belleville and won the game in the second period. It was 1-1 after one heat and the teams completed the scoring in the second.

Scoring a goal each for the Lions were: Terry Coe, Jim Bigwood, Pete Walling, Dan Dixon and Don Creighton.

Belleville marksmen were Larry Moore and Storms.

The game was cleanly played with very few penalties.

Both clubs involved commence OMHA playoffs this week. Trenton goes against Cobourg on the latter's ice on Tuesday night. Belleville opens at home against Kingston on Wednesday.

Trenton RCAF globetrotters made it a winning trip to Nova Scotia on Saturday. The Trotters defeated the RCAF Greenwood Bombers 5-3 in exhibition play. The team made the trip by plane.

Cuts Imports, Limits Canadians

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian Football League clubs lopped one import off their 1965 playing rosters Saturday and decided on a limit of three naturalized Canadians for each team.

Cutting the number of Americans to 34 from 15 was strictly a matter of saving money, commissioner G. Sydney Halter said at the close of the two-day CFL meeting.

By limiting the number of naturalized Canadians, the league hopes to spread them around and thus add strength to the weaker clubs.

Halter said only Toronto Argonauts and Winnipeg Blue Bombers — bottom clubs last season in the Eastern and Western Conferences respectively — now have more than three Americans who have played five seasons in Canada and have taken out citizenship papers. But others, including Hamilton Tiger-Cats and British Columbia Lions, are about to go over the limit.

Halter said he doubts if there ever would be 17-man players in the same season. If there were, he hopes the new rule will mean they'd be found in all nine teams.

Clubs wishing to keep more than three naturalized Canadians in their lineup must class the excess as imports.

Halter gave a broad hint he'll resign as commissioner after the 1965 season. He agreed to stay on for two more years at the Saturday meeting but said afterwards "that probably will be it."

In other business the delegates rejected a common scouting plan for all clubs and a plan to take players from the National Football League, subject to recall.

They also approved terms of reference for a two-man committee which will seek ways to merge the administration of the two conferences. The terms don't include a fully interlocking schedule, which Mr. Halter said, would be a boon only to airlines.

The EFC delayed a decision on adopting a best-of-three final so as to make CFL playoffs standard. The WFC dropped its two-game, total-points semi-final in favor of the sudden-death game and the EFC and invited the EFC to come the rest of the way by settling its league title in a three-game set.

The EFC will meet later to consider the matter.

McGill Blasts Guelph 10-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

McGill University Redmen have no intention of ending up in last place in the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association intercollegiate hockey league.

McGill eighth in the nine-team loop, blasted last-place University of Guelph Redmen 10-1 Saturday for a four-point cushion over the Ontario university.

It was McGill's third victory in 15 games this year. Guelph has won only once.

In the only other game Saturday, University of Montreal Carabins edged University of Western Ontario Mustangs 4-3.

Guelph gave McGill a physical beating even though they lost their game. Six McGill players were helped from the ice and one was sent to hospital.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Lean Rod Funseth, who had never before won a pro tournament, overtook another of goldom's lesser known lights with a brilliant 67 Sunday and won the Phoenix Open golf tourney with a spectacular 14-under-par total of 274.

Don January also had a 278 and a tie for third while Frank Beard, Billy Maxwell and Al Geiberger were grouped at 279. Jack Nicklaus had a 280.

George Knudson of Toronto also had a good enough for $2,075 in prize money.

Al Johnston of Montreal was top of the money with a 288 total. Stan Leonard of Vancouver was one stroke back at 289.

Provincial Curling

Champions Fall By Wayside

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The favorites have had a lean time of it in the provincial curling championships to decide representation at the Canadian final at Saskatoon March 1-5.

In competitions across the country, former provincial champions and highly regarded veterans have suffered a series of reverses, some of them little short of stunning.

In the British Columbia finals at Kamloops Feb. 7, the unrated rink from the University of British Columbia, skipped by Jack Arnet, ousted veteran Buzz McGibney of Trail.

The Alberta championship, concluded at Dawson Creek, B.C., Saturday saw Mick Lashuk, of Calgary, emerge the winner by trouncing the much-fancied rink of Edmonton's Ron Gervais 12-4 in a sudden-death playoff.

Harold Worth of Saskatoon won the Saskatchewan title Saturday with an 11-8 win over Bob Pickering of Avonlea in a best-of-three contest.

START TODAY

The 32-rink Manitoba championship began at Winnipeg today, and will feature 1963 champion Herch Lerner and the top rink in 1964, Bruce Hudson.

Last year's ontario winner, Bob Mann of Hanover, finished the round-robin competition in fourth place at Cobourg last week.

Ray Grant and his Unionville rink of Al Claney, Ray McGee and Keith Jewett ran up a record of six wins and one defeat to capture the 1965 title, taking seven ends with a perfect score.

Jack Polyblank of Kirkland Lake will represent Northern Ontario in the championships.

Polyblank defeated Tom Tod of Fort William 10-9 with a last-end draw shot in Sunday night's championship game. It will be Polyblank's third trip to the national finals. He participated last year and in 1961.

MAKES CLEAN SWEEP

A rink from Bagotville, skipped by Bill Tracy, made a clean sweep of the Quebec championships Saturday, winning all nine draws. Tracy's last win was a 10-7 victory over Elmer Black's rink from Howick.

Doug Cameron's veteran rink from Charlottetown took the Prince Edward Island title Saturday with nine wins and no defeats.

The New Brunswick title went to Peter Lyons. The Moncton curler's amassed a record of nine wins and one loss to take their first championship.

Lyons downed Ray Mabey's rink also from Moncton, in the final Saturday.

Nova Scotia will be represented at Saskatoon by the Halifax rink of Ron Franklin. He ousted Don Cormier of Amherst in a double-knockout series.

George MacCharles became the youngest man ever to skip a rink to the Newfoundland championship. MacCharles, 26, led his St. John's rink to an eight-win, no-loss victory in a round robin competition at Gander.

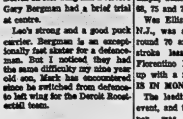
The leading Canadian in the event, and the only money winner, was Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., who picked up $313 for his 74-73-72-68—287.

Behind him in order came Phil Brownlee of Toronto, whose 77 Sunday gave him a 293 total, Will Hozenski of Winnipeg who had a 76 for 297, Bob Breen of Woodbridge, Ont., who came home in 75 for a 300 finish, Alf Huestis of Toronto at 77 and 304 and Ronald Striano of St. Basil le Grand, Que., who had a final 76 for a 310 total.



Henry McIlree of Toronto scored 78 for a 311 total while Eric St. George of St. John's, Nfld., had 84 for 317, Raymond Eliot of Sorel, Que., 78 for 312, James Morton of Montreal 77 for 313 and Ken Jacobs of Concord, Ont., an 80 for a 318 finish.

By GORDIE HOWE

Every now and then a defenceman is switched to a forward position for a few games. Boston's Milt Schmidt tried Leo Boivin on left wing and Detroit's Gary Bergman had a brief trial at centre.

Leo's strong and a good puck carrier. Bergman is an exceptionally fast skater for a defenceman. But I noticed they had the same difficulty my nine year old son, Mark has encountered since he switched from defence to left wing for the Detroit Rosenthal team.

Whenever there is a possibility of taking a chance and going for deep in the offensive zone to try and intercept a pass or race an opponent for the puck, he hesitates.

A forward can't hesitate. He has to react instantly. The split second of indecision can make the difference between getting to the puck first, or being outmanoeuvered and left behind on the play.

In the case of a defenceman, his first duty is to protect against a breakaway. He can't afford to gamble. He has to play percentages.

If there is a 50-50 chance of getting the puck, then he's going to play it smart and back up, forget about going after the puck. He's the last man back. There's no one between him and the goalie.

However, if he's got a 60-40 chance of getting to the puck, then he can play percentages, go after the puck.

This is ingrained in players who have played defence as long as Bobby and Bergman. Boivin is a good puck carrier. Bergman has a strong shot.

As defencemen, they've concentrated on not gambling, backing up and letting the other guy make the mistake, instead of going for the puck, on occasion.

The transition in both cases was a temporary one. So I wouldn't be surprised if they're a little more content with their lot as defencemen after a fling at being a wingman.

Glovers Centre Big Brawls

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cleveland Barons lost both of their weekend American Hockey League games but in the penalty box, the decisions weren't so clear cut.

The Barons, who trail the league's western division, lost 7-3 to Baltimore Clippers Saturday and 5-3 to Buffalo Bisons Sunday, but the biggest action of the two games took place in the penalty box.

Saturday Howie Glover checked Baltimore's Aldo Guidolin into the boards in the third period. After both players drew penalties, they decided to settle things in the penalty box. The brawl led to skirmishes involving most of the other players.

Howie started things rolling again Sunday, accompanied by brother Fred. The Glovers both drew misconduct penalties for raging at the officials following a hooking penalty on Fred.

Sports-mad Cleveland police were called in to quell that fracas after Howie turned on a fan near the penalty box.

BEARS BEAT REDS

In other Saturday games, Hershey Bears defeated Providence Reds 6-3, Pittsburgh Hornets edged Quebec Aces 4-3 and Springfield Indians walloped Buffalo 7-2.

Sunday, Baltimore walloped Hershey 8-2, Providence defeated Pittsburgh 3-1 and Rochester Americans crushed Quebec Aces 9-1.

Toronto Duo Wins Tough Auto Rally

By RON HOWARD

TORONTO (CP) — Factory-prepared Ford Cortinas unofficially placed first and second in one of the most gruelling sectional Canadian Winter Rallies in 18 years.

Only 34 of 122 cars finished the 1,300 - mile route Sunday. The surviving treacherous ice-sheeted back roads at times melted into pools and ponds of water.

Leading among the finishers in unofficial results was the Toronto team of Paul MacLennan and John Wimbledon who had only four penalty points. In second place with nine points were Lloyd Harrell and Bill Silvers, also from Toronto. Both teams were in Ford Cortinas.

The results will become official within two weeks, once they have been ratified by the Canadian Automobile Sport Club (CASC), governing body of the sport in Canada.

The course, planned by the British Empire Motor Club, wound east to Charbot Lake, about 30 miles north of Kingston and then through Bancroft to North Bay before returning to Toronto.

SET CANCER GOAL

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario division of the Canadian Cancer Society must raise $2,175,000 this year to meet rising costs of cancer research, Ross Morrison, campaign chairman, said Saturday. Mr. Morrison told 300 society volunteers that the society contributed $1,784,000 to the National Cancer Institute, which spent $2,030,000 on research in 1964.

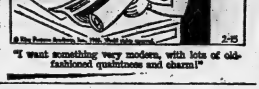
Student Curlers Seek Title

By DON ANGUS



FREDERICTON (CP) — Wayne Sisaki of North Bay begins defence of the title won by Northern Ontario last year in the annual Canadian schoolboy curling championship.

The 11 rinks, representing each province of Canada as well as Northern Ontario, begin play in the 10-game, round-robin banspiel at 7.30 p.m. EST in the Lady Beaverbrook rink here.

Prince Edward Island drew the afternoon bye and Northern Ontario will not see action in the second round tonight, scheduled to get underway at 7 p.m.

Only 18-year-old Tony Richardson of Moncton, skip of the New Brunswick entry, can be described as a veteran of the annual national event.

Richardson has an entirely new front end this year to help him chase the schoolboy crown that eluded him in an unprecedented playoff match at Regina in 1964. He is rated a major threat because of his experience and record.

LOST IN FINAL

Last year, the Richardson rink lost 10-8 to Bob Ash's Northern Ontario foursome in a final match after Northern Ontario and New Brunswick ended regulation play in a three-way tie for first place.

Defence of the national title however, will be up to Sisaki, 17, of Chippewa Secondary School in North Bay. Sisaki is the son of Ricky Sisaki, who skipped the first North Bay rink to represent Northern Ontario in the Canadian men's championship nine years ago.

Canadian Skier Wins N. A. Title

SUDBURY (CP)—Antero Rauhanen of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., won the North American cross-country ski championship during a heavy snowfall Sunday.

Rauhanen, a member of the Canadian national ski team, completed the 30 - kilometre course in two hours, 14 minutes and 57 seconds.

It was the first of three trial races for the selection of a training squad for the world ski championships in Oslo, Norway, next year.

Don MacLeod of Ottawa finished second in 2:18:10.0 followed by Eric Saltrup of Sudbury in 2:17:53.0. Both are national team members.

The competition is sponsored by the Canadian Amateur Ski Association. There were 90 United States entrants among the 25 skiers.

KETAPIS TITLE

Meanwhile at Collingwood, Doug Leigh and Debbie Gibson of Georgian Peaks Ski Club won the Alpine combined honors in the Ontario junior championships Sunday.

Leigh, of Galt, placed second in both the downhill and slalom races to defeat two - time Ontario champion Brian Hollinger of Toronto Ski Club and Barrie.

Miss Gibson of Toronto came fifth in the downhill event but won the slalom to retain her Ontario title.

Nationals Will Meet Oldtimers

WINNIPEG (CP) — The first game of Canada's national hockey team left Saturday for an eight-game exhibition tour before the world hockey championships March 4-14 in Tampere, Finland.

The national team were forced to increase their roster to 32 and split into two groups because only 20 players couldn't leave jobs and university studies for the 32 days required for the tour and championship tournament.

The second platoon will leave Winnipeg March 1.

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's national hockey team will be invited to play the National Hockey League Old-Timers in Maple Leaf Gardens Feb. 28.

"We might as well settle this thing once and for all," said Stafford Smythe, president of the Gardens. "Let's see how our national team goes against the Old-Timers."

The Old - Timers are undefeated this season, although they were tied once. They play mainly benefit games around Ontario, playing once or twice a week.

Generals Down Flyers

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

An electric timing device helped Toronto Marlboros in their narrow 4-3 win over Montreal Junior Canadiens in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Sunday.

Montreal's Christian Bordeleau shot the puck into the Toronto net with a fraction of a second left, but before the red light went on the blue light flashed to signal the end of the game.

The red light signalling a goal does not work when the blue light is on.

In other junior games, Ottawa Generals downed league leading Niagara Falls Flyers 4-0 Saturday night, and Sunday Peterborough Petes tied 1-1 with Kitchener Rangers and St. Catharines Black Hawks edged Hamilton Red Wings 4-3.

The Toronto game had a crowd of 14,307, the biggest for a junior game there this season. Doug Dunville scored two for the second - place Marlboros while Al Osborne and Ray Winterstein had one each.

Gun Bow Out-Duels Candy Spots

NEW YORK (CP)—Gun Bow captured the $57,200 San Antonio Handicap for an unprecedented second straight year Saturday, beating back the strong stretch challenge of Candy Spots at Santa Anita Park in California.

The San Antonio Handicap at Arcadia was Gun Bow's first race since he was second to Kelso in the Washington, D.C.

Successful Living

Baby Does Not Relate 'Slap' to His Crying

DEAR DORIS — My trouble started shortly after being married because my husband and I were living with his mother. She was always interfering with us and the baby.

My baby boy got the measles when he was just three months old and because he was crying my husband's mother said that he was just spoiled and to show him who was the boss. So my husband gave him a few good slaps and I was told not to pick him up.

He cried for over two hours. He was covered with spots and had temperature. Don't you think, Doris, that it was cruel to do that? — SEPARATED NOW.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR SEPARATED — I know who would have had the "few good slaps" if I had had my way. No small baby has the slightest inkling of what corporal punishment is about; could not possibly relate a slap to his crying, except to protest more loudly — with the only reaction at his command!

• • •

DEAR DORIS — You published my letter about being a widow and lonely. I received your note today with all those enclosures from others, and I must say I was flabbergasted.

When I wrote you concerning my problem I didn't realize it would interest anyone else but myself. It's sort of like throwing a pebble into a pool and seeing the ripples spread. I knew that there would be other women with similar problems to mine but I didn't know that there would be others of the opposite sex with the same sense. In a way knowing this seems to make me feel not so lonely and apart. I shall endeavor to answer these kind people and as one puts it — "quien sabe?"

I must thank you for your interest, Doris. I think it's been years since anyone has taken the slightest interest in me for myself alone without having some interior motive, i.e., favors returned, free baby sitting, etc. Since I wrote you I've felt better.

I suppose it was just the idea of getting my problem out in the open instead of keeping it inside. I'm glad I did and I'm glad you were there to listen — (tread!) — to me. — NOT A LONER.

• • •

DEAR NOT A LONER — Unloading all those pent-up thoughts and feelings has kept more than one lonely person out of the booby-hatch. People do like to help, don't they? Seldom do I publish an S.O.S. of any kind without some helpful responses. Come again.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — When this boy started dating my best friend, I think she was just desperate for someone to date, and thought that she really liked him. Now that her eyes have been opened, she realizes that she has made a serious mistake.

He notices that she has been trying to avoid him and he is getting rather impatient. She does not want to hurt him, but she does not like him the way he thinks she does. She is just frantic!

She looks to me for help and I look to you. Help! — A CONCERNED FRIEND.

• • •

DEAR CONCERNED — Her eyes are opened but his still is blind! She'll have to tell him. Any 15-year-old who doesn't hold out for freedom to date others is cooking her own goose.

• • •

(Putting it on paper helps. Let Doris give you a new slant on your dilemma. And remember that stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Longshoremen Return to Jobs

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—More than 1,000 longshoremen returned to work Sunday after settlement of a two-day walkout which cost Saint John shippers an estimated $100,000.

The longshoremen, members of the Saint John local of the International Longshoremen's Association, walked off their jobs early Friday in protest of parking restrictions. They reached a temporary agreement with National Harbors Board officials Saturday night.

The men said they will study for two weeks proposals for extra parking areas, space in dock areas, efforts to expedite snow removal, reduction of fines for illegal parking to $2.00 from $5 and a study on the issuing of parking permits.

Danny Thomas Has Another Handsomely Produced Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Danny Thomas had another of his handsomely produced specials on NBC Sunday night. One wished the writing had been as glossy as the sets.

There was one particularly attractive dance number about toys coming alive against a background of two enormous trousered legs and feet, supposedly Danny's.

The principal sketch was one of those domestic screed, with Marjorie Lord in a mud pack and guest star Perry Como playing an embarrassed unexpected guest. It didn't come off well.

Ed Sullivan had the Dave Clark Five back on his program—and the shrieking teenagers in the studio audience annoying the home folks. Victor Borge did one of his amusing but by now familiar routines.

The unusual Look Up and Live program on CBS Sunday morning presented translated fragments of poetry written by doomed children in Czechoslovakia's wartime Terezin concentration camp. The reading, by young actors, was sad and moving.

Most of the young authors, all under 15, soon were dead in Auschwitz. Some of the 15,000 children who passed through Terezin between 1942 and 1944 were even then marked for extermination. Only about 100 survived.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For February 16

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Early, make amends for apparent broken promise. Realize importance of family backing. No time to toss off principles. Frank honest approach gets you what you desire.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) If you attempt to deny emotions....you ask for complications. Stress change, expression, creative activity. Twilight favors romance, excitement and adventure.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20) Family member needs attention. Display fine sense of understanding. If you want to deny responsibility - - you are in for "reminder." Cycle can be light, happy. But first things come first!

Cancer (June 21 to July 22) If you bear grudge against one from your past - - you are being immature. Be perceptive. Read between the lines. One who criticizes may be real friend. Please - - think!

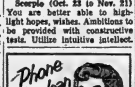
Leo (July 23 to August 21) Puzzle pieces fall into place. You see more clearly. But definite action should be postponed. More thought, study required. Be patient. Examine various possibilities.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Time when you discover basic purpose. Suddenly the past blends into present and future. You find additional meaning to life. Highlight personality, distinct sense of humor.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Avoid tendency to be extravagant. Realize originality not really equated with money. Plainly this is time to assert principles. But adhere to tried, dynamic approach.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are better able to highlight hopes, wishes. Ambitions to be provided with constructive tests. Utilize intuitive intellect.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Build from bottom to top. Authorities will be impressed with your versatility. Important to refuse short-cut methods. Loved one confides "secret."



Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Avoid actions based on impulse. Prove maturity by adhering to facts, schedule. Then you earn respect - - and profit. Day to share knowledge. Learn by teaching.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Be constant in efforts toward self-improvement. Sincerity prime requisite for self-analysis. Some changes appear necessary. Member of opposite sex involved.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to March 20) Recent controversy proves beneficial. Your facts were utilized with success. Be graceful winner. Check partnership proposals. Be aware of legal indications.

If today is your birthday you tend to be introspective, you are capable of overcoming odds to achieve goal.

GENERAL TENDENCIES:—Cycle high for Virgo, Libra. Special word to Pisces. Strive for harmony at home.

Abel Claims Victory in Union Vote

PITTSBURGH (AP)—I. W. Abel says he has won the United Steelworkers union presidency, and plans to make it secure sure through protests that could wipe out "many thousands" of ballots, setting a statement saying he defeated incumbent David J. McDonald in Tuesday's election by at least 10,000 votes.

Earlier, McDonald predicted victory for himself.

The Abel statement said:

"We are taking the necessary steps collecting information on voting irregularities in a number of places and we believe that as a result of the protests which will be filed, the incumbent president will lose many thousands of additional votes."

World Spotlight

The AP world spotlight this week discusses the forthcoming election in the Indian state of Kerala, a Communist stronghold. It also describes the latest attempt to obtain more hard Western currency, the racial situation in South Africa and Haiti's attempt to improve relations with the United States.

TRIVANDRUM, India (AP)—Big trouble may be approaching here in the Communists' south India stronghold of Kerala state.

Prime Minister Shastri's immediate problem is a state-wide election March 4 that will pit the decimated Kerala faction of his Congress party against strong Communist and leftist groups.

Kerala is angry about food shortages and angry with Shastri's central government. As long as it stays angry, Kerala threatens the federal fabric.

The Communists are determined to use the ballot box next month to gain control of the state administration, as they did with an unprecedented election victory in 1957.

It appears that only an existing rift in the leftist ranks could prevent another Red victory.

But since Shastri's party also quarreling in Kerala, it does not appear to have scant hope of a clear-cut victory.

Political experts say the most Shastri can hope for is a standoff in which Kerala voters deny any party or political combination enough votes to form a state government.

This would give Shastri the opening he needs to continue running state affairs from New Delhi on grounds central government intervention is necessary to ward off anarchy and turmoil.

New Delhi has taken over Kerala's state three times and steadily lost prestige.

The last take-over came in September when the state of Shastri's Kerala legislature deserted his party. The state government then was run by the chief minister on a no - confidence motion backed by a Communist-led opposition.

Shastri moved in quickly when neither his party nor the Communist opposition could form a new government.

MOSCOW (AP) — A pint of Stolichnaya vodka, one of Russia's best, costs a Soviet citizen 2.07 rubles, the equivalent of $3.43 at the official exchange rate. A Soviet citizen can buy it for 86 cents.

Russians pay the ruble equivalent of $3 for a kilo of coffee, just over 2 pounds. The foreigner pays $12 a kilo.

These lower prices for foreigners are in a new store opened by a Soviet organization for foreign trade organization. It is part of the Kremlin's government has assigned apartment houses to foreigners.

Soviet citizens tell of an effort to earn foreign exchange. This became noticeable last year to buy 3,000,000 cars abroad because of a poor harvest. That ran down foreign exchange reserves.

Shops at international airports increased efforts to sell gifts and small luxuries to foreigners who could pay in foreign currency. A department store bar was opened in a downtown hotel, a special fur shop in a big store.

Advertising was launched to try to get foreigners to pay hard currency for such Russian goods as cars, motorcycles and radios. Operators as gifts for relatives in the Soviet Union. Such purchases get foreign currency while ruble customers go on waiting lists.

The new food store compares favorably with stores in Scandinavia. It contrasts with the frequently dirty, usually unattractive food stores for the masses.

These stores for the masses are also government - owned. Prices for them include a large element of indirect taxes. Foreigners in Moscow seldom use them. Diplomats and foreign journalists, air line representatives and those living here order most of their staple foods from export houses in Denmark. Fresh meat and vegetables come by overnight train from Finland.

Although expensive by Western standards when ordered this way, the foods are cheap compared with prices on the Russian market. More important in many cases, they include things unavailable here.

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—The South African sun shines gloriously. Factories hum. Gold and diamond production zooms.

More people have cars than ever before. Building programs break all records. Thousands of white immigrants flood in to help meet ever-expanding labor desires.

Country clubs, delectable beaches, pleasure resorts, swimming pools, race tracks and golf courses are crowded, mostly with whites.

With black servants cheap, many whites have three full-time domestics—life is good for the white minority. The Afrikaans, who provide the bulk of the labor force, are segregated in their own townships and reserves, but come out in the day time to man urban industries and keep the cities going generally.

Premier Hendrik Verwoerd's white administration apparently has been entrenched since 1948 and all seems well with the white South Africans' world.

'FACES A CRISIS'

But the superficial picture is challenged sharply on the academed country faces what author Alan Paton describes as a "crisis of fear."

Paton, national president of the small Liberal party which campaigns peacefully for racial equality, also provides the bulk of the labor force, are segregated in their own townships and reserves, but come out in the day time to man urban industries and keep the cities going generally.

Premier Hendrik Verwoerd's white administration apparently has been entrenched since 1948 and all seems well with the white South Africans' world.

'FACES A CRISIS'

Paton, national president of the small Liberal party which campaigns peacefully for racial equality (non-violence), has accused the government of ignoring the country's $700,000,000 security plan "to protect everything that makes civilization worth while."

Paton has seen some of his closest friends, whites and nonwhites, deprived of their personal freedom on government order.

Not far from his home in Natal province, Chief Albert Luthuli is confined to a small area around his little tribal store. The former African nationalist leader cannot visit the nearby market town to transact business or talk to his friends there. He cannot speak out on political affairs or write about them.

The government seems immune to all protest. It apparently has the backing of most of the country's whites. The 12,000 non-whites have been more effectively silenced politically than ever before in South Africa's history.

PORT-AU-PRINCE (AP) — President Francois Duvalier of Haiti, in need of money and anxious to improve his image, is appealing for improvement in U.S.-Haitian relations. So far the appeal is largely unanswered.

Duvalier, in a variety of ways, is asking President Johnson for two things: A renewal of financial aid; cut off in 1962, and a word or two of friendly encouragement. No U.S. president has spoken well of the Haitian dictator in more than three years.

Duvalier has suggested that Johnson will even send a wreath when Haiti's national hero, Toussaint L'Ouverture, is honored by being formally asked to do so.

"He understands Haiti's problems because he has as much experience," Duvalier said.

REJECTS FIVE REQUESTS

Each time the U.S. government in the last year has rejected five requests for aid. These included a request for military grant to balance the nation's budget and a request for purchase of arms to fight Haitian exiles who invaded the country last summer but were defeated.

Many U.S. officials believe the Duvalier regime is here to stay for a long time. Its annual budget of $40,000,000 is derived largely from a 500,000 annually.

Duvalier has ruled this impoverished, mountainous island-land for nearly six years. He has declared himself president for life.

No Haitian dares oppose Duvalier openly but in private conversations criticism is common.

Woman Hurled From Auto Into Icy Waters of Creek

PICTON (Staff) — An Ontario woman hurled from her car into the icy waters of a fast-running creek was admitted to Prince Edward County Hospital last night seriously injured.

Mrs. John Cross suffered a broken hip, leg and other injuries when her small car missed the turn at White chapel and crashed into the creek.

Mrs. Cross was alone. She was returning from the Lake Ontario Cement Company plant after taking her husband, an employee, to his work.

It was stated that an unidentified resident of the area found Mrs. Cross lying on the bank of the creek and notified authorities.

An ambulance rushed her to the hospital.

The car was badly damaged.

Gerald DeLong of Greenbush was taken to hospital shortly before midnight suffering with head cuts and other injuries.

While details are sketchy, it is believed DeLong's car went out of control ending up in a ditch. His late model automobile was extensively damaged.

Hon. Kelso Roberts Promises Chamber Sandbanks Park, Beach Will Be Developed

PICTON (Staff) — The Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce held its annual dinner meeting and election of officers at Murphy's Royal Hotel, Saturday night. Guest speaker for the occasion was the Hon. Kelso Roberts, minister of Lands and Forests for Ontario.

Jack Colden, president of the Chamber of Commerce, introduced the head table guests, Mayor Ward-em of Prince Edward County; Allan Anderson, His Worship Mayor H. L. Hepburn, and Norris Whitney, MPP; Don Stanton, Jay Hepburn, A. Douglas Alkenbrack, MP, for Prince Edward-Lennox.

Following the introduction, Mr. Colden gave a brief report on the activities of the chamber for the past year. "The Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce, he said, "has been, and will continue to be in full support of the tourist industry and tourism in the county." He said the results of the recent 100 members and guests present that retail merchants of the town of Picton would realize that 57% of the tourist dollar is spent on general retail purchases, and that is spent on food and accommodation.

Mr. Colden expressed his pleasure with the success of the annual fishing derby. He said, enquiries have been made and reservations requested from people who live a great distance away and who have never even heard of Prince Edward County before they received notice that a derby was being held. The publicity given the fishing derby has well advertised the county. Colden also remarked, saying that further plans were being made by the chamber to introduce a new event for the month of September, which might offer the tourist something for this time of year and thereby increase the tourist business.

Outlining many other projects in which the chamber was interested he touched briefly stating that Picton harbor was badly in need of dredging.

Short remarks of welcome were given by Mayor H. J. Hepburn and warden of the county "Barney" Hepburn.

SPEAKER INTRODUCED

Norris Whitney, M.P.P., who introduced the guest speaker, said the Sandbanks park is no longer proposed, but is now a reality. Work has already been and will be a great benefit to many people in the near future. Mr. Roberts is keenly interested in this project, he said.

The Hon. Kelso Roberts in his opening remarks said that he remembered sailing into Picton harbor by steamer as a boy and he hoped that they would never let the harbor fill up. He added that Prince Edward is a great county, quick to get around in and beautiful. Finally he said, "can look forward to much more mooring activity and tourism. When the plans are finished you will have one of the most scenic marine drives in Canada." Provincial parks, he stated, have had to keep up with the phenominal growth of the tourist industry. Last year one million - campers occupied the 8,000 campsites provided right in Ontario's Provincial Parks.

As a compliment to the Outlet beach, he said that the Sandbanks will also be fully developed with its five miles of beautiful natural beach. In the years ahead many will recognize the tremendous beach and natural assets of this county.

Mr. Roberts was thanked for his address by A. Douglas Alkenbrack, M.P., who said that the increase of tourism in Prince Edward County would be for the benefit of all and would bring results to the whole surrounding area. Following the talk by the Minister of Lands and Forests, the annual election of officers took place, with Jay Hepburn being elected as president for 1965, Gary Harris as vice-president and Don Stanton as secretary-treasurer.

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police have charged a 15-year-old boy with capital murder in the shooting death early Saturday of area farmer Archie Liefso, 42. Police said Sunday Mr. Liefso was slain by a .22-calibre bullet at his home, about 50 miles southwest of Owen Sound.

He was found dead in his bed with head wounds, police said. The repeating rifle was found in the room and "numerous" shots had been fired.

Western Europe Requesting Conference on Viet Nam

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

PARIS (AP) — There is a steadily growing conviction in Western Europe that the explosive Viet Nam crisis must be moved from the battlefield to the conference table.

This attitude, reflected officially and in the press, arises from genuine fear that a holocaust may be just around the corner.

While there has been no general criticism of recent United States reprisal bombings in North Viet Nam—except from left-wing and Communist groups —war - wise Europeans are frightened.

They want a conference before anything worse happens. They feel that China, Russia and the Western powers should come to terms.

Their fears of general conflict have put many on the side of President Charles de Gaulle of France. He has said all along that the only solution to the Viet Nam situation is negotiation, leading toward neutrality.

De Gaulle wants a return to Geneva, where a Viet Nam truce was signed in 1954, and late last week announced that France would be willing to participate in such talks. Communist China was represented at Geneva in 1954 and obviously would have to be a participant again.

WANTS TRUCE

De Gaulle also would like to see Viet Nam neutrality guaranteed on the one hand by China and the other by the U.S. 7th Fleet.

Britain, while supporting officially the reprisal attacks on North Viet Nam and U.S. policy in general, is frankly worried that there is danger of escalation. Some British officials also would like to see a new Geneva conference on the question.

Britain and the Soviet Union were co-chairmen at the 1954 Geneva conference. But late last week there were reports that Britain has decided this arrangement is dead—thus agreeing with the Soviet view expressed months ago—and that a new one should be instituted.

Recently, Premier Aldo Moro of Italy expressed concern about the situation in Viet Nam and said that while the U.S. is not to blame, nevertheless peace is endangered. The Italian press backed him up.

In West Germany, there is support of America's Viet Nam policy but certainly the ghost of total war haunts officialdom and civilians alike.

Maple Leaf Flag Officially Raised On Peace Tower

New Emblem Sent Aloft With Prayerful Hopes

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—The new red and white maple leaf flag is representing Canada around the world today after being ceremoniously hoisted Monday in dedication observances that stretched from the Peace Tower to desert army camps.

With the heat of the flag battle over, politicians from all parties, along with Ottawa dignitaries and diplomats, gathered at the base of the Peace Tower Monday and sent the new flag aloft with prayerful hopes.

As the clock reached noon at Canadian missions and outposts around the world, other ceremonies, perhaps less impressive and more informal, were raising the new single-leaf flag for the first time.

Before the day was out, the first fully official Canadian flag was fluttering from some 1,000 flagpoles around the world.

Ottawa, of course, was the main ceremonial point. It was here that the great flag fight ranged off and on for six months, and the new design emerged from battle before it was even born. It slid up the flagpole Monday to the cheers of thousands who poured over the grounds of Parliament Hill to see history being made.

"If our nation, by God's grace, endures a thousand years, this day, the 15th day of February, 1965, will always be remembered as a milestone in Canada's national progress," said Prime Minister Pearson.

It was Mr. Pearson who led the burning flag issue through the Commons under a blistering opposition attack that resulted in 279 speeches, and finally the act of closure, before the flag finally emerged from the House Dec. 15.

At a ceremony in Parliament's Hall of Fame Monday, the prime minister told the governor - general before him he hoped the new flag would fly over a united country.

"May the land over" which this new flag flies remain united in freedom and justice; a land of decent god-fearing people; fair and generous in all its dealings; a nation of tolerant and compassionate towards all men; industrious, energetic, resolute; wise and just in the giving of security and opportunity equally to all its citizens; and strong in its adherence to those moral principles which are the only sure guide to greatness."

". . . God bless our flag, and God bless Canada."

The governor - general said

4:23 p.m. — The Ensign is struck in Belleville. 4:31 p.m. — The Maple Leaf flies over the city.

New Flag Presented, Raised at City Hall

Following special ceremony in the council chambers, Canada's new Maple Leaf flag was officially raised over the Belleville city hall tower yesterday.

Taking part in the city hall council chambers were officials of the Belleville branches of the Royal Canadian Legion, and the Army, Navy and Air-force Veterans, along with city officials.

The new Maple Leaf flag for the city hall tower was presented by the Royal Canadian Legion through its president, Dick Kirby, while the ANAF president, Jack Boyle, presented the new Union Jack for the city hall council chambers.

The new flags were officially received by Mayor J. H. Ellis, and were dedicated by Rev. Gordon Woodcock, president of the Belleville Ministerial Association.

The flag raising ceremony was a colorful affair with color parties from both the Canadian Legion and the A.N.A.F. taking part.

Veterans of two world wars proudly wearing their service medals, stood at attention as the Red Ensign was lowered from the flag pole atop the city hall tower and the new Maple Leaf flag run up in its place. .

Legion padre Bruce Honeycott pronounced invocation, City Clerk Adam Stalker read the Queen's Proclamation proclaiming the new flag. Sections of the Salvation Army Band and the A.N.A.F. pipe band took part in the proceedings.

In accepting the new flags from the Canadian Legion and the A.N.A.F., Mayor Ellis called on all Canadians to take an example from the men and women of the two service organizations.

"No body of men resisted the new flag more strongly than did the Legion and A.N.A.F. veterans. They did so legally and freely as they could do only in a democracy such as ours.

"Now, these two organizations have joined together to present the city, their city and ours, with copies of the new Flag and have pledged themselves to unity under it and allegiance to it."

"Let all our people take an example from these men. Let us join together in unity of purpose so that when we reach our 100th birthday, we may also reach a state of maturity which will be an example to the entire world."

Threat Subsides After Ice Jam Starts Flood

Public Works Men Busy Breaking Open Channel

The Moira River seeped over its banks in downtown Belleville this morning — but the threat of a flood was subsiding shortly after noon.

Scene of the breakover was the east bank of the river north and south of the Footbridge, where free-flowing ice jammed around the bridge around 11 a.m.

Meantime, public works crews wrestled with the emergency by smashing a channel in the ice downriver from the Lower Bridge.

Dynamite explosions rocked downtown Belleville through the morning as crews fought to clear a free-flowing channel.

Their efforts paid crucial dividends.

By 12.30 p.m. Colonel Angus Duffy, Emergency Measures Organization co-ordinator reported the water was dropping in the Footbridge area.

"In the last 20 minutes the water has gone down two to three inches," the co-ordinator said when contacted by radio at the scene.

CLEAR WAREHOUSE

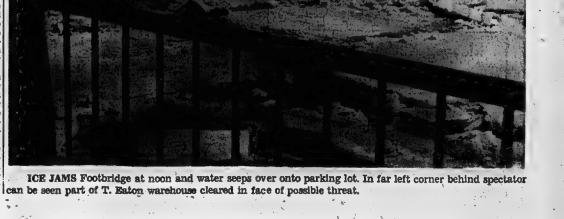
Employees of the T. Eaton Company hurriedly began clearing stored appliances from a warehouse flanking the river at the Footbridge.



Colonel Duffy said the threat was triggered when an ice jam just east of the Upper Bridge broke loose around 11 a.m. Flowing downriver it jammed on both sides of the footbridge, leaking water onto parking lots on the east bank.

Emergency officials were still watching the situation closely about 1.00 p.m. By that time, however, they apparently were in a happier frame of mind as the water continued to recede.

Also being watched was an ice pile further north of the city, near Canniffon.

The problem now lies in whether or not that ice will hold," said Col. Duffy. "But there is every indication it will continue to do so—barring some unforseen circumstances, such as a sudden thaw, or rain."

However, he emphasized the threat had receded due mainly to the efforts of city engineers in clearing channels through the weekend at the river mouth and the emergency measures taken this morning.

ICE JAMS Footbridge at noon and water seeps over onto parking lot. In far left corner behind spectator can be seen part of T. Eaton warehouse cleared in face of possible threat.

3 Bills Facing Commons

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—Three important bills face Commons members returning to the House today but personalities are expected to dominate Parliament during the resumed session.

The National Labor Code, the Canada Pension Plan and arrangements to permit provinces to opt-out of federal - provincial programs are to be dealt with before the session, already a record - breaking 214 days old, is concluded.

Prime Minister Pearson and his cabinet hope this can be accomplished in three weeks, while opposition sources forecast April 16, Easter weekend, as a more likely target.

With eventual passage of the legislation almost certain, attention will be focussed on political personalities who will shape their own careers and the future course of Canadian politics.

There is the prime minister, who must grapple with the problems of recent scandal allegations and the judgment on these issues that has been exercised by some of his ministers.

The one minister he hired—Yvon Dupuis, former minister without portfolio — has served notice he will defend himself in the Commons.

Although he resigned after an interview with Mr. Pearson, Mr. Dupuis says he can defend his integrity. His name was linked to an alleged scandal involving a race track application in his riding of St. Jean-Iberville-Napierville.

FURNITURE DEBATE?

Mr. Pearson may also be faced with further questions about furniture purchases on credit by Secretary of State Lamontagne and Postmaster-General Tremblay.

There is Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, who has just survived the most crucial test to his leadership.

Quebec leader Leon Balcer, who wants Mr. Diefenbaker replaced and who initiated the unsuccessful bid for a leadership convention, has decided to remain within the Conservative

Winged Satellite in Orbit To Record Meteoroid Blows

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A Saturn I rocket, performing flawlessly, hurled a "space bird" satellite into orbit today to measure meteoroids.

The space traveler's assignment was to measure and count the impacts with space debris and report back with electronic "squawks."

Word was awaited from tracking stations as to whether the satellite unfolded its giant wings to absorb and relay the blows.

It was the eighth success in a row for the big booster on which the United States counts for major manned space ventures.

The huge rocket later, the National Aeronautics and Space administration reported that the rocket had done everything expected of it and had drilled into orbit. An announcement said it shroud covering the payload had been jettisoned.

About 13 seconds after launching the 19-storey tall booster gradually turned into a south-east heading, spewing a tail of fire more than 300 feet long across a clear sky.

Folded in the nose of the rocket was its unique payload, officially named Pegasus after the flying horse of Greek mythology.

Once in orbit, Pegasus was to extend two wing-like panels to a span of 96 feet. Each wing is 14 feet wide and about an inch thick. The burned-out second stage was to remain attached, giving the craft appearance of a huge bird swooping through space.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Light snow will fall through northern and central Ontario Wednesday but is unlikely to do the same in southern sections of the province as cool seasonal temperatures prevail in all regions.

Four Arrested on Charges Of Conspiring to Blow Up Statue of Liberty and Bell

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI agents seized four persons today on charges of conspiring to blow up the Washington Monument, the Statue of Liberty and the Liberty Bell.

Agents arrested three Negro men and a white woman from Canada in New York City, it was reported.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said agents co-operating with New York City police seized a quantity of dynamite and blasting caps buried in a lot in the Bronx. He said the cache was a portion of the explosives being accumulated by the conspirators as part of their plot.

Those arrested were Miss Michelle Duclos, 28; Robert S. Collier, 28; Walter A. Bowe, 32, and Khaleel S. Sayyed, 22.

Hoover said the four were charged with conspiring to destroy government property—specifically the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor, the Washington Monument near the White House in Washington and the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia's Independence Hall.

He said Miss Duclos entered the United States from Canada Monday, has been employed by one of Quebec province's separatist parties — Rassemblement pour l'Independence Nationale. He said she lives in Montreal.

In 1964, Collier, a Boston native, violated state department regulations by travelling to Cuba with a group under the auspices of a student committee. Hoover said Collier is the self-styled leader of an organization Collier calls the Black Liberation Front.

Hoover said Bowe has been a supporter of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro and the Fair Play for Cuba Committee.

Israel Reviews Relations With West Germany

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Knesset (parliament) called on the Israeli government today night to reassess its relationships with West Germany because of the Bonn government's decision to cut off arms aid to Israel.

Bonn announced the move in effort to dissuade the United Arab Republic from recognizing Communist East Germany.

By a vote of 54 to 28, the Knesset adopted a resolution expressing "astonishment and indignation" at the West German decision and describing it as a surrender to president Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

Premier Levi Eshkol said Israel would not accept West Germany's offer of money for the $15,000,000 worth of undelivered arms. Bonn agreed in 1960 to ship $80,000,000 worth of arms to Israel in addition to $825,000,000 in reparations for crimes committed against the Jews by the Nazis.

Nasser has put pressure on the West Germans to halt their arms shipments to Israel. Last month he announced plans for a six - day state visit to the U.A.R. by Communist East Germany's President Walter Ulbricht.

West Germany claims the visit and the red - carpet welcome planned for Ulbricht will be tantamount to de facto recognition of the East German regime.

Viet Nam Peace Bid Not Made

LONDON (Reuters)—George Thompson, British minister of state for foreign affairs, today reported to Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart on his Moscow meeting Monday with Russian Foreign Minister Gromyko.

Officials denied a press report that Russia had asked Britain to take the initiative in bringing the United States into peace talks on the Viet - Nam crisis.

They said there's was no substantive discussion on Viet Nam between Gromyko and Thomson.

The British minister's call on Gromyko was only a courtesy one and followed his signature of a new Anglo-Soviet cultural agreement.

Thomson said on his return Monday night from Moscow that he had no new proposals on Viet Nam.

Despite the fact that neighboring municipalities are not in favor of the added expense Belleville city council is still interested in increasing the seating capacity of the proposed new Bay Quinte District High School from 800 to 1200 persons.

Yesterday at city council Alderman T.A. Carruthers introduced a motion asking that the city pay the added expense itself for the bigger auditorium.

Mayor Jack Ellis, however, said that estimated cost figures for the increased auditorium size had been revised upwards, the architect's estimate now being in the vicinity of $70,000 to $75,000.

In presenting his motion Alderman Carruthers said that now was the time if the city ever hoped to obtain a larger auditorium.

The chairman's motion was changed in request that the Bay of Quinte High School Board carry committee reports for the 1200-seat school auditorium.

WANT SEPARATE COSTS

In this way the exact cost of the 1200-seat auditorium size would be known, and the city could then decide whether it wished to go for the added cost.

Later in the meeting a public works committee recommendation asked that the city not hire outside truckers for snow removal except in cases of emergency.

But Mayor Ellis spoke out in opposition to the motion.

Referring to the recent decision of neighboring municipalities not to share in the costs of an increased seating capacity in the new high school auditorium, the mayor said he didn't see how the city expected to get co-operation from the rural municipalities if such negative motions were brought before council.

Council turned down the works committee motion.

Seven lonely years have drifted by,
To speak my thoughts I will not try,
One treasured gift I do retain,
Your loving memory I have gained,
God took your hand, we had to part,
He said "Come home" and broke my heart.
You are inside me in all I do,
Your love will guide me and see me through.
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by husband Jack.

GREEN — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Margaret Eleanor Green who passed away Feb. 16, 1954. Mom left the world she loved the best,
Without a last goodbye,
And left our sad and lonely hearts,
We keep on asking why,
There's a reason, God knows,
In the path God has planned,
We must believe and trust in Him,
And someday we'll understand.
—Sadly missed and remembered by daughter Audrey, son-in-law Gord and granddaughter Christine.

GREEN — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother Margaret Eleanor Green who passed away February 16th, 1954. Always smiling, happy and content, Never once a day my mother, wherever she went.
When my heart is dark and lonely,
And my troubles seem so strong,
I seem to hear you whisper softly,
Courage dear, you're not alone.
Each time I look at your picture,
You seem to smile at me,
You don't grieve, I'm only sleeping,
We'll meet again some day.
—Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by daughter Audrey, son-in-law Jean, grandsons Gordie and Garry.

City Allocation Raised For Hospital Extension

The new Belleville General Hospital extension will fare better from the Municipal Works Assistance Program, than was originally expected, members of the city council were told yesterday by City Manager J. R. Reynolds.

When the original application for municipal works assistance for the hospital extension was made, the Department of Municipal Affairs advised that the city had been allocated $841,153.

Since then, however, the Minister of Municipal Affairs has advised that the city's application is now subject to a maximum additional allowance of $500,000, bringing the total which may be borrowed under the program to $1,141,153.

The additional allocation of funds will have the effect of increasing the forgiveness portion of the loan-from $160,000 to an estimated $285,000, or 25 per cent of the total loan.

New Roadway To Be Built for School Children

School children in the Avondale Road area will eventually have a proper roadway on which to walk to the new Sir Mackenzie Bell public school.

Council yesterday approved a survey in connection with negotiations for a new roadway linking Avondale Road with Palmer Road. Informal agreements regarding necessary land transfer have been reached, according to F. C. Beavis, city planning director.

Mayor J. R. Ellis told council yesterday that the roadway was expected to be completed in 1966.

Brotherhood Week Dinner To Hear Rabbi

RABBI BERNARD BASKIN

Seven congregations will join together to celebrate Brotherhood Week at a dinner meeting, at which the Sons of Jacob congregation will be hosts in Belleville on Wednesday, Feb. 19.

The groups, representative of East Belleville religious organizations, are from Eastminster (United Church); St. Joseph's (Roman Catholic); St. Columb's (Presbyterian); St. Margaret's (Anglican); Emanuel (Baptist); Holy Trinity (Lutheran), and Sons of Jacob (Jewish).

Due to space limitations of the Sons of Jacob auditorium it was felt necessary to continue the practice of previous years and limit the attendance to approximately 200 East Belleville residents, plus some clergymen from other Belleville congregations. The meeting will be chaired by Dr. S. G. Rose, president of the Sons of Jacob congregation.

Speaker for the third annual Brotherhood dinner will be Rabbi Bernard Baskin of Hamilton, who is well known for his speaking engagements in Ontario and for his regular news contributions to the Hamilton Spectator.

Brotherhood Week, normally celebrated during the last week of February, was founded by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews in 1947, and involves millions of Canadians through radio, television, press, banquet and public conferences, seminars and assembly gatherings at schools and universities.

One of the main purposes is to provide an opportunity for Canadians of every race, creed, color and ethnic origin to meet one another in a friendly atmosphere and to learn more about one another's culture.

City council yesterday turned down a recommendation from the recently-appointed centennial committee asking that a member of the Board of Parks Management be added to it's committee.

At the same time council turned down a motion from the parks board asking that R. W. Phillips be the parks board representative on the centennial committee.

City council two weeks ago named the personnel to make up the centennial committee, at which time it was noted no parks board representation had been included.

Yesterday's motion to include parks board membership provoked some spirited discussion, particularly between Mayor J. R. Ellis and Alderman Joe Rose.

Alderman Ben Corke said he was simply amazed at the two recommendations.

NEEDS CO-OPERATION CLAIM

"Here council is being told it is crazy in its committee appointments," the alderman said. "I move that we disband the centennial committee and make the parks board the centennial committee."

But Alderman Don Williams said the centennial committee needed the co-operation of the parks committee. He said the motion was not altering the committee, but merely adding to the committee.

Alderman Jose said if council yielded to the centennial committee request it would "mean that council was losing out in its role of city administration.

Mayor Ellis objected to the alderman's remark and left the room.

Alderman Jose said parks board representation and Mr. Phillips name had been considered by council in case of a vote to the centennial committee appointments.

Tax Easement To Kingston 'Y' Turned Down

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor Robert Fray of Kingston complained today it cost his city $6000 to send a delegation to Queen's Park to learn something like a tax easement would have been communicated to them at home.

Mr. Fray made his comment after the legislature's private bills committee turned down a bill which would allow the city of Kingston to grant a tax easement to the YMCA-YWCA.

Municipal Affairs Minister Porter Spooner said there was no need for a private bill, since legislation already existed in the Municipal Act to provide for tax exemptions for recreational facilities.

City Solicitor Douglas Hardtman of Kingston said it was his interpretation of the act that the city would require a private bill to grant the tax easements.

WORDING CHANGED

C. W. Yates, a solicitor for the department of municipal affairs, said the wording of the section of the act relating to tax exemptions for recreational facilities had recently been changed to include recreational facilities.

Mayor Fray said the department might have sent the city a letter informing it there was no point in sending a delegation or requesting a private bill. "It cost us $600 to come down here," he added.

Syl Apps (PC—Kingston) said there seemed to be some conflict in the lawyer's interpretation of the act. He asked the committee to solve the problem by granting the same consideration to Kingston as it had given to other cities.

However, the bill was defeated by a vote of 16 to 3.

Mr. Apps said later the city probably will check further whether it has the power to pass its own bylaw to give the YMCA-YWCA a tax break.

This week's clinic, No. 3, on Dairy Herd Health, will have as main speaker Dr. Julian, regional veterinarian from Brighton, who will talk about control programs. Dr. Bruce Murray, practising veterinarian from Stirling, talks about the "On the Farm" applications; then, Dr. W. C. Lodolph of the Health of Animals Branch, Belleville, will deal with public problems in livestock health (Rabies.) Finally Dr. Julian will wind up the day with more dairy herd health items.

Clinic No. 4 — Sanitation and Dairy Management — Dr. A. N. Myhr of the Dairy Department, O.A.C., will be principal speaker on the subject of sanitation and dairy herd management for health. Keith Hubbs will deal with field inspection and the problems he runs into. To round out the program, Owen Gibb will deal with housing and stable facilities.

Clinic No. 5 — Crops and Weed Control — Did you know Canadian farmers lose $10 million a year due to weeds — the robbers of fertility and moisture and space in our soils. Jack Hagarty and Grover Smith of the Reginoal Office at Brighton will tackle this problem. In particular, they will deal with Chemical Weed Control, the Right Sprays, and What to Look for in Sprayers.

Clinic No. 6 — Farm Business Organization — Much is written about farm business problems. Many aids are available to the farmer but he has to make the decisions. What Decisions Should Be Made? To look at this, George Arnold, our Farm Management Specialist, will head up the program.

Mrs. B. C. Donnan Unveils Plaque Honoring Regiment

A colorful tribute to the memory of all men who served with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment was a featured afternoon of the flag-raising ceremonies at the armouries last night.

A handsome plaque, eight feet by eight feet, bearing the crest of the regiment with its battle honors was unveiled by Mrs. B. C. Donnan, wife of the late Lieutenant-Colonel B. C. Donnan, wartime commanding officer of the militia battalion.

Superimposed on the plaque are two smaller plaques, one bearing the battle honors of World War One; the other those of World War Two.

The plaque is placed on the south wall of the armouries where it can be seen from all parts of the building.

Mrs. Donnan in brief remarks said she was pleased to have the honor of unveiling the plaque to the memory of all gallant men who served with the regiment.

Lt.-Col. K. D. H. Willcocks expressed the appreciation of the officers and men of the regiment.

"Officers and men of this regiment will salute this plaque wherever they enter the armouries," he said. "It will remind us that we come here to train and be soldiers."

Of the battle honors he said "they are part of this regiment and we shall always be proud of them."

Prior to introducing Mrs. Donnan, Col. Willcocks paid tributes to the mothers and wives of soldiers who served overseas and at home.

"It is only fitting," he said, "that the wife of a former officer of this regiment be invited to unveil this beautiful plaque.

Can Do Nothing About Asia Without China

PARIS (AP) — Premier Georges Pompidou, returning from an official visit to India and Pakistan, said today that nothing can be done in Asia without the accord of China.

Pompidou said he and Prime Minister Shastri of India had a brief discussion about China. The French premier said he and Shastri concluded that "this great Asian power must be taken into account and considered and that nothing can be done in Asia without its agreement."

This is the viewpoint of President de Gaulle, who used this argument to support his recognition of Peking Jan. 27, 1964.

Frankford Merchants Set Store Hours

TRENTON — In an all out promotional effort Frankford merchants met recently formed a merchants' association. It is hoped that the newly-formed association will set the stage for a local Chamber of Commerce and other attractions to entice more business from out-of-town as well as the local trade.

In the past many shoppers were confused by variations in the hours and days that most stores were open. Some stores closed Monday, others Wednesday, most stayed open Friday and Saturday nights.

The newly-formed group of businessmen on January 27th voted unanimously for regular store hours that went into effect on Monday. In setting a precedent in the Quinte area, most merchants will be open weekdays with the exception of closing all day Wednesday. For the convenience of out-of-town and early weekend shoppers, most stores will remain open till 9 p.m. Friday nights. Weekday hours are from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Local restaurants and lunch bars and a bakery will remain open with regular hours including one that remains open as late as 2 a.m.

Don Farrar, part owner of a greeteria, and spokesman for the group said, merchants and shoppers alike should eventually find regular hours more convenient to plan. He said, merchants will be able to display and stock supplies more better for the one night they stay open. Shopper confusion will be greatly avoided by the knowledge most stores are closed on Wednesdays only as well as Sunday.

Bill Rose appliance merchant of eighteen years said "In order to compete with larger centres and modern business trends today, the small town merchants must organize. By a joint effort many attractions can be presented to increase our trade here in Frankford."

In expressing store managers and employees alike are busy preparing displays and specials to assist the association in the venture. Many employees will appreciate not having to work extra hours on Saturday night. In addition to no parking meters many business locations offer free parking for shoppers and visitors with cars.

DEPUTY APPOINTED

OTTAWA (CP) — Appointment of W. W. Hall of Trenton and St. Catharines as deputy director of the department of defence production's aircraft branch was announced Monday. Before his appointment Mr. Reid was division chief in the aircraft and armament branches.

Gen. Graham Comes Home To Join Rotary Celebration

TRENTON — It was "Happy Birthday" all around in the Batawa Recreation Hall last night when local Rotarians and their guests celebrated the 60th anniversary of Rotary International, the 43rd anniversary of the Trenton Club and Counsellor Rose Burns' "the baddy of them all," his 76th birthday.

Special guests at last night's banquet included Mayor James MacDonald, Councillors Burri, Todd and Tripp, Leo Grills from Belleville, Rotary representatives from Belleville, Stirling and Colborne, and Trenton Rotary past president Wm. House, (charter president), H. N. Smith, R. H. Smithrim, R. J. Whitley, Milo Andison, Dave Harrison, Fred Addset, George Cobley, Clifford A. Baker and Robert Patrick.

Past presidents Clarence Saylor and John Garrett were absent through illness.

The meeting was conducted by the 1963 president, Thomas Hetherington, and was also assisted by vice-president Albert Ward.

The guest speaker, General Howard D. Graham, was introduced by F. S. Ketcheson, who had seen active service with the general overseas in World War II.

As Charter President and the only living charter member, Mr. House recalled that the Trenton club had been formed in 1922 through the efforts of the Belleville and Trenton clubs men as the late Owen Herity and E. Guss Porter.

One of Trenton's most famous sons . . . a man who has been called "one of the most brilliant leaders of the Canadian Army," . . . General Howard D. Graham, "came back home" last night to the Trenton Rotarians celebrate their 43rd anniversary.

The one-time commanding officer of the regiment he still refers to as "magnificent," the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, went on to become the chief of the army in Canada, and after his retirement the president of the Toronto Stock Exchange.

His army honors include the DSO and Bar; CDE; Croix de Guerre; CBE; Legion of Merit; the French Legion of Honor.

But it was not of the army and war that General Graham spoke last night. He said he hadn't come either to give his listeners "a hot tip on the stock market."-He had come rather, he said, to give them an insight into the workings of the market.

The Toronto Stock Exchange is second in size only to the New York and London mart. An average day's trading sees four to seven million shares bought or sold across the counter. Values run into 10 to 12 millions a day. This mounts into between three and four billion a year.

General Graham said, the "bull" market of the past four years could be expected to continue during 1965.

"Things are good," he said, "Canada is going through a wonderful period of expansion and greater expansion and development of natural resources is planned."

The general defended the right of the exchange to handle "penny" or speculative stocks as well as "blue chips" stocks, because of the public's right to speculate, but he said the exchange keeps a tight rein on the type of information given out to the public by stock companies.

$900 Damage In Collision

TRENTON — A collision between a three weeks' old delivery van and a car on Dundas Street East near the Dominion Store around 7.35 p.m. last night resulted in property damage set by police at $900.

Van owner and driver, Kenneth Armstrong of 32 Crown Street, and the driver of the car, David Kitchener MacDonald of the RCAF, escaped injury.

The van was damaged to the extent of $400—the car, $500.

Four Ministers Are Sworn in By Vanier

OTTAWA (CP) — The four ministers involved in Friday's cabinet shuffle were sworn in Monday in the presence of the governor - general at Rideau Hall.

Prime Minister Pearson, fighting a mild and fever after his appearance at the flag-raising ceremony on Parliament Hill next to the dais, did not attend the swearing-in. He was represented by External Affairs Minister Martin.

Leo Cadieux, 38-year-old MP for Terrebonne and a member of the special Commons committee that recommended the new maple leaf flag last October, took oaths as a member of the Privy Council and as the new associate minister of defence.

The other three ministers took one oath for their respective portfolios. They are Trade Minister Lucien Cardin, shifted from associate defence minister, and Immigration Minister John R. Nicholson and Postmaster-general Rene Tremblay, who switched jobs.

This Needs a Second Look

President Claude Bissell of the University of Toronto has, in the words of the Toronto Globe and Mail, "pulled the rug out from under speculation" that Grade 13 English would be dropped as a requirement for university entrance.

He issued a statement saying that no change in entrance requirements is planned for the 1965-66 academic year.

Some will regard this as the end of the controversy. We suggest that to take this view would be too easy a dismissal of a significant occurrence.

Speculation regarding the possibility of dropping English as a university entrance requirement started when science and mathematics teachers at the university favored such action if entrance requirements were reduced-to four subjects.

It is easy to interpret this as shocking evidence of the low opinion which mathematicians and scientists hold of the arts. The difficulty is that, in practice, we frequently find a community's engineers and research men amongst the most active supporters of a community's cultural programs. Or we may take a less critical view and merely contend it is obvious that scientists and mathematicians do not appreciate the extent to which they depend for accurate communication on an adequate knowledge of the language.

There are, however, two other possible explanations, both of which should cause us to pause. One is that lowered entrance requirements in four subjects would be so unrealistic that the science and mathemitics teachers were merely endeavoring to make the best of a virtually impossible situation, knowing that it would be senseless to reduce the number of required subjects to a mere three, plus English.

The other possibility, and we do not think it should be dismissed too lightly, is that the scientists' and the mathematicians' viewpoint is a reflection on the manner in which English is taught in our schools.

There are good teachers of English—Belleville is fortunate to have some—but there are also teachers who do little more than "cram" their students for examinations. A high school teacher in another centre told us that this was the only way to obtain creditable "pass" percentages for a class. (He was not defending this method; merely stating a fact of life.) Perhaps some revision of the method of marking English papers is advisable, to give credit to those students who form opinions of their own rather than those who parrot the answers drilled into them by their teachers.

And we might also reflect on the fact that there are two styles of writing which the best English authorities hold in low regard. One, we regret to say, is "journalese," the language of the newspaperman; the other is the English of the school teacher, who does not know that there are times when an infinitive must be split to avoid ambiguity and who is afraid to end a sentence with a preposition, or to start it with a conjunction.

Licence Plates—Two Kinds

Ontario motorists have only a fortnight or so in which to obtain their 1965 licence plates.

Judging from the number of black and white markers seen on the streets, there will be quite a rush before all the cars are equipped with the blue and white plates in style this year.

More than the licence bureaus will be busy. The War Amputations of Canada will be hustling to get out the miniature licences which serve as tags for car keys and which provide their purchasers with a useful service, the return of lost car keys.

All the finder has to do with car keys with these tags attached is to drop them in a mailbox. The keys will be delivered by the mailman to the War Amputations of Canada, which has the address of the owner on file.

Originally, one licence tag was sent out. Today, there are two—most family cars have more than one driver and more than one set of keys in use.

This is typical of the War Amputations outlook. When inflation set in, instead of just increasing the price of the service, as occurred with so many other things we all purchase, they looked around and discovered a way of increasing the service. The tags are made in the organization's own plant, by members of the association, and no commercial firm or interest participates in any way in the proceeds. The sale of key tags is the association's only source of income -it asks for no gifts.

Many citizens feel that it is a pleasure to do business with this kind of an organization.

To Your Good Health
Infants' Multiple Vaccine Is Not Enough by Itself

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

SECOND OF TWO PARTS

Let's follow up yesterday's column of vaccinations for adults with the proper protection for children.

Current practice depends on a multiple vaccine for infants, usually a fourway type which includes polio, tetanus (lockjaw) whooping cough and diphtheria.

The ideal schedule is to give this vaccine at 3, 4 and 5 months of age, and at 1, 2 and 5 years. This builds a firm foundation of protection. Subsequent boosters of the necessary types should follow at five - year intervals thereafter.

Specifically diptheria and tetanus boosters should be given at the ages of 10 and 15, and then the tetanus every five years for life, as with the polio vaccine.

But the multiple vaccine, by itself, isn't enough. The smallpox vaccination, given at the proper time, certainly before school age (most usually, of course, demand it by then). This also, should be followed up with a booster every five years.

Finally, there is a new vaccination for measles, and I hope that parents will not be as apathetic about giving it as some of them were about polio vaccine.

To do the most good, measles vaccine should be started when a child is about 9 months old.

There are two major types, and your doctor may favor one or the other. First, there is an "inactivated" or "killed-virus" type, with two inoculations being given a month apart, and a third shot given six months later.

The alternative is a live-virus vaccine which, however, often causes what is called a mild case of measles. To keep the symptoms of this at a minimum, immune globulin is administered at the same time.

Either method gives excellent protection. Which one will turn out to be the preferable means so far as administration goes, remains to be seen.

Remember that measles in many cases is a childhood disease and just a nuisance— one that is taken for granted. However, in a steady proportion of cases complications develop. These can cause lifelong handicaps, such as faulty hearing, and others. And every year there are deaths from measles as well.

None of these basic vaccinations for children should be omitted. And, as outlined yesterday, boosters to maintain some of them at effective levels of protection should be continued every five years.

What about influenza protection for children? If we can subdue flu among adults, this may not be necessary for younger people.

In any event, I am sure that as yet we are only on the threshold of learning what other ailments can be prevented by vaccination even though it already is one of the greatest life-savers devised by mankind.

Dear Dr. Molner: What can a boy do to reduce the size of his nipples? — J. L.

In adolescence it is possible for the whole male breast to become slightly prominent. Then recedes and becomes normal as the boy matures. I'm not sure whether that is what you mean. As to the nipples themselves, there is no way to change the size.

Note to Mrs. E. B.: Menstrual irregularity, in itself, is from many causes totally unrelated to cancer. Correcting them is rather than fear of cancer at only age 33 — should be the reason for seeing a doctor.

Pension Exemptions

Calgary Herald

The international railway brotherhoods have asked that a provision be added to the proposed Canada Pension Plan, preventing integration of any of existing railway pension plans.

In other words, the railway employees wish to protect their private pension plans to which they are currently contributing.

But if one group is to be exempt from full, compulsory participation in a national pension plan, surely other groups should be allowed similar exemptions if they so desire.

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A five-year-old boy in Philadelphia picked up his father's loaded shotgun at home and killed a nine-year-old neighbor boy, following an argument as they were walking home from school.

Nothing can be done to the boy, of course (although I think his father should be given a stiff sentence for having a loaded gun in the house, accessible to a boy of five); but the tragic incident reminded me of a comment made by Nathan Milstein, the violinist, some years ago.

He was discussing the ill impact of television on children, and he said: "It is as easy to remove anybody who is in your way. It is so easy to stab them or shoot them. Children don't see the blood and the mess. On television, if somebody's in your way — boom — they're gone, that's all."

I happen to have a boy who will be five on the same birthday and he watches as many violent television shows as he can get away with. There is no doubt in my mind that Milstein is right — such shows cater to the small child's need for omnipotence, and provide him with a fiendishly simple solution to life's perplexities.

To the small child, violent death is the only problem; whereas, we know, in real life, it is only the beginning of a larger one.

My younger son is absolutely entranced with the prospect of power: of conveying and ordaining and eliminating whoever happens to be in his way. Of course, this is part of the doubtful conflict all boys go through in the age but violent programs heighten the attitude and blur the worlds of fantasy and reality in a most disturbing fashion.

It has been necessary for us to police his television watching and also to carefully explain to him that this is "theatre" and not "real." He is told that these men are actors, that the bullets are make-believe, and that after the scene is over, they pick themselves up and go out to have coffee together.

He seems to grasp this, but I am sure that on a deeper level, our words are meaningless and little to him. What happens on the television screen is a facsimile of his own wishes and drives, even though he is unconscious of them. In some way, they seem to sanction the aggressive component of the young boy.

It is no analogy to mention the frightening fairy tales of our own childhood, but we did deal with real people, but with myths and monsters; but the men on the screen breathe and bleed and die in an utterly human way.

We suggest that one can get rid of an "enemy" or a "problem" in this easy fashion — boom — is a growing part of the American mythos, and may account for our violent record as a people.

Ottawa Offbeat
'When the Going Gets Tough, The Tough Get Going'

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—As they line up again today in the bear-pit that the House of Commons has become in recent years, battered, bottle-scarred John Diefenbaker remains the Man to Watch.

Died is still dried, bloody but unbowed.

Not surprisingly, he survives again in the third bottle of the suicidal three-year civil war the Conservative Party has been waging with itself.

The only surprising thing in his survival is that anybody ever doubted he would.

The rebels should have known, having twice tried and failed to kill him off, that this was a veteran of a life-time of political to-fighting who was not going to die easily.

To kill a giant, you need a giant-killer, and the rebels just did not have one on call.

"When the going gets tough, the tough gets going," characteristically cracked the man known even to his enemies as "The Chief" when he went to do battle for the third time.

But if the going was tough before, it is going to be far tougher now.

For this time the rebels got to him, and while they did not dispose of him in this third attempt at the kill, they mortally wounded him.

ON HIS WAY

Died now is preparing to bow out as Chief.

And while he has yet to pick the day — "in his own good time," in his narrowing circles phrase it — the hour will come sooner than later.

You hear now that the clock may strike before the year is out.

And for two quite personal reasons.

In his office the other day, as he faced up to the ordeal of the coming battle, in a rare moment of letting down the guard, he was heard to say, almost to himself:

"You know, I don't really give a damn any more."

His had taken the party out of the wilderness of 22 years to an all-time pinnacle of power for any Tory leader in Canadian political history — 208 of the 265 seats in the Commons — and when his killing instinct from the peak began, as begin it must, they turned on him.

Twice, and again for a third time, he beat them off, and now was it to be wondered at that he was heard, in part at least, strange interlude, muttering, almost in surprise at the discovery that he was not dead to care any more.

Olive Diefenbaker, who has got out of such influence in his years of Government and Party power, is known to have left on set the way his own people have treated him, and is anxious for him to avoid inevitable future abuse.

So, as things stand at this writing, it is to be say, perhaps in a matter of months.

IT'S BEEN FUN

But then it is . . .

. . . a man of volatile moods, many of them completely unpredictable and often beyond easy understanding, he could sometimes be fun.

Three times they have tried to boot him out, and twice managed to keep him in the saddle.

But it must have occurred to them that if ever a man had an armor-plated pants-seat, it was one.

And a man with the kind of hard-thinking mind that can take pride in cracking "When the going gets tough, the tough gets going" just might decide on the spur of a moment of exasperation to hang up his hat, to the sheer joy of political living.

It has all been so much fun for him, he has told friends, even when by all the laws it should have been something of a torment and agony.

Diet, they say, does not give a darn about money.

Give up the leadership, remain in the Commons as MP for Prince Albert, they have urged him, and write your memoirs.

Remain MP for Prince Albert he has always intended.

But he is such a political animal, would the tame business of memoir-writing keeps him content?

He will make the decision in the weeks and months to come, but meanwhile he is the Man to Watch, dominating, as he does completely, the House of Commons and everybody in it.

Could Tape Measure IQ?

(By Peter Desbarats
In the Montreal Star)

From the state of Texas, where everything is bigger than big, comes word that women with small bosoms have large brains. And what is even more horrifying: massive bosoms mean miniature brains.

The discovery was made by Dr. Erwin O. Strassman, a clinical professor at Baylor University College of Medicine in Houston, after a study of 717 childless women.

This is the type of report, obviously, that attracts comment from every journalist who believes that there is Thurber lurking somewhere within his soul. Dr. Strassman Dr. Strassman mailing his report to the International Journal of Fertility and awaiting, with a resigned expression on his face, the inevitable "yuks" in newspaper columns across the country. They arrived on schedule. A typical newspaper headline on Dr. Strassman report was: "36-34-34, IQ Equals Zero!"

It seems clear that there is nothing humorous about Dr. Strassman's report. For one thing, he himself is with no choice. She can have bosom or brains but not both.

On the international level, it is a further contribution to the fruitless debate over the "West" school of thought. According to Dr. Strassman's theory, Western women must be located in China and other Asian countries where bosoms and practically everything else are under- developed. The theory implies that the only civilized women in the West are high - fashion models, professional female agitators and executive girls. It will ruin the monolithic bathing suit business by implying that any girl who actually made is nothing is a doll.

There are many other implications. Should universities scrap their complex intelligence tests for female students and simply rely on tape measures? Should secretaries be hired by the inch? Should psychiatric head-shrinkers be replaced by plastic surgeons who can inflate intelligence by dedication? Will every intelligent and well-proportioned woman be regarded henceforth with unwarranted suspicion?

We can only hope that Dr. Strassman will not be discouraged from continuing his important research by the caustic comments of writers who fail to appreciate its real significance.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

FEBRUARY 16, 1945

Hungry for news of names and places in the vicinity of her native Belleville, a grand old California lady for 94 years has written for a subscription to The Ontario Intelligencer.

In a letter of her own handwriting, the regularity of which would do credit to a woman forty years her junior, the Californian lady, recalls the years of her early girlhood spent in Belleville and relates some of the city's earliest history. Although she does not clearly indicate her maiden name it is surmised her name was Kyle as the infant that there is not one of the Kyle family on earth now.

Celebrating her 94th birthday on January 18th, Mrs. Stephenson wonders "if there is another person in Belleville of my age, or if any of my old schoolmates are still alive."

30 YEARS AGO

FEBRUARY 14, 1935

Following are the recently elected officers of the Harmony high school board: Chairman, G. B. Airhart; vice-chairman, R. A. Elliott; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Mae Leonard; property committee, H. R. Haacke, Albert Burridge, M. J. Maloney, and the Rev. A. R. Caldwell; finance and management committee, J. Elliott, Vincent Lynch, T. E. Haycock and G. B. Airhart.

Miss Mary Cruft and Miss Bessie Connell spent the week-end in Toronto.

Miss Ethel Morton spent the weekend in Toronto the guest of Mrs. Roy Adamson.

The Rev. I. E. Parker, pastor of the Tabernacle, has returned home after spending a short time in Chicago, Ill.

Miss Mary Carmichael spent the weekend in Toronto.

40 YEARS AGO

FEBRUARY 15, 1925

Mr. Robert Goode will be appointed to the city council to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Ald. Eugene LaRoche.

Ald. Hugh Middlemis of the J. J. Cash Company here, will leave shortly on a business trip to New York City.

Mr. W. E. Wiggins, reeve of Faraday township, and warden of the county, is spending a few days in town.

50 YEARS AGO

FEBRUARY 16, 1915

The men of the 15th and 49th Regiments, now in training here as members of the 3rd contingent for overseas service, are to be given a banquet tonight for a distance of five miles. There were over 300 men on the roll and it is certainly made a fine appearance.

Mr. Thomas Reid of the Ritchie Company is spending some time in New York City on business for the firm.

The annual ball given under the auspices of the Grand Knights, officers and members of the Belleville Council, Knights of Columbus, in the Academy last night was the popular event of the season. O'Rourke's seven piece orchestra supplied the delightful music, and the supper served by Ed. F. Dickens and Son was all that could be desired.

Jamaicans Buy Mittens

Owen Sound Sun-Times

The sales successes of Canadians are, at times, truly amazing. For instance, Canadian manufacturers have sold refrigerators to residents in the Arctic. At the same time $120 worth of heaters have been sold to Algiers and $300 worth of fur goods to Italy. Over $1,000 worth of mittens have been sold to Jamaica and Trinidad and $800 worth of gloves. Almost $1,500 of perfumes to the Virgin Islands, generally viewed as one of the classic places where flowers bloom in abundance and, somehow, perfume seems a bit artificial.

Of particular interest at this time of year when, immediately after the Christmas festivities, girdles are widely advertised, is a notation in the federal export reports to the effect $159 of these aides to feminine beauty were shipped to Nyasaland, now Malawi.

Trainmen Rebel Against Leaders Of Their Union

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pacific Great Eastern Railway trainmen rebelled against their union leaders Monday night and continued to strike against the British Columbia's government-owned railway only hours after agreement had been announced.

Picket lines went up again around PGE yards and the trainmen said they would not return to work.

They said they were "sold down the river" by their negotiating committee, which signed an agreement to end the strike that began Feb. 2 without permitting a vote among the 185 striking members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (CLC).
